Brother Watkins had not at this time begun preaching but Uncle Sam Andrews [redacted] spoken a few times.

"I was on[redacted] with father, but th[redacted] finely sold [redacted] how [redacted] and there [redacted]

I met my [redacted]n L. Wince for the first [redacted] was on his way to the [redacted] Conference. I was then a young girl of 17, still in short dresses, and too shy to speak save when introduced, so it was not until 1895 that a correspondence was commenced that resulted in our marriage in March, 1897,—God choosing for me the companion, who would guide and help me on the way to the Kingdom. Auntie Willard was greatly pleased, at the match, and thought my father had found a son indeed in my good husband.

I am very glad of the mention Bro. Crozier makes of Brother J. P. Westbee. No doubt Auntie Willard knew him in those early days as the author of "Armageddon" and other works. If not, she did later on, and though I think she never met him personally, she esteemed him very highly for his works' sake. With the names of Brother and Sister Crozier, she was familiar from the time they first began to write.

Indiana State Conference.

October 17 to 20, is the date of the coming Indiana State Conference, to be held at Hillisburg.

This will be the third Conference held at this point in recent years and if this compares with the two previous ones we can assure the visitors of a royal welcome and hospitable treatment at the hands of the Clinton County brethren.

The Programme Committee is preparing what will prove to be the best spiritual entertainment ever presented at a Conference, and as soon as details are arranged will make same public.

At the business sessions the following subjects will be considered:—

1. Election of Officers.
2. Election of Evangelical Committee.
3. The advisability of placing two Evangelists in the State next year.
4. Ways and means whereby we can promote the financial and spiritual welfare of the Church of God in this State.
5. The future of our State Bible School and our State Bereans, and other important topics.

President Willey urges that each of the fourteen churches be represented by delegates who can give a statement as to the financial, numerical and spiritual condition of the community. Whether delegated or not, whether members of a local church or isolated, come to the Conference. Come prepared to give good and to receive good.

Hillisburg is situated on the Lake Erie & Western Railway, between Frankfort and Tipton. Arriving at either Frankfort or Tipton you can make connections with the L. E. & W. both east and west. Those who live on the Clover Leaf route can go direct to Michigantown where you will be met by brethren.

All who come, write if possible to Wm. Huffer, Michigantown, Ind. R. R. 1. He will arrange for your comfort.

Programme Committee,
F. M. McCreary,
Wm. Huffer,
Geo. Smith.

Well Spoken.

Virtue is often a negative quality. The man who has no temptation to do wrong, and is so circumstanced that he finds it most natural and most easy to do right, has no especial occasion to plume himself on his virtue, and is not to be held up as a pattern, by any means. For instance, the poor cannot name a man who never drinks. He never did drink, he never wanted to drink, he does not like to drink, and—he doesn't drink. That is not virtue. He could name another who did drink, who always did drink, who drank to excess, who does like to drink, and who, after a long and manly struggle, succeeded in getting the mastery of himself and does not drink. That is virtue. Yet the world praises the one because he never drank, and though it applauds the other for conquering his appetite, remembers the time when it seemed to have conquered him. Let us praise virtue and applaud it, but let us take care that it is virtue before the demonstration begins. People who bring into this world hot tempers, strong impulses and fiery passions are certainly to be pitied, but not blamed unless they give way to them without effort; while they control and conquer [redacted] highest praise. The more fortunate ones, whom nature endows with cooler blood, genial, sunny tempers and more deliberate ways, are certainly to be congratulated, but never praised. The time will come when half things that men complain of in their fellows will be treated as infirmities rather than as faults; when they will be cured, not punished.

Fretting.

One fretter can destroy the peace of a family, can disturb the harmony of a neighborhood, can unsettle the councils of cities and hinder the legislation of nations. He who frets is never the one who mends, who heals, who repairs evils; more, he discourages, enfeebles, and too often disables those around him, who, but for the gloom and depression of his company would do good work and keep up brave cheer. The effect upon a sensitive person of the mere neighborhood of a fretter is indescribable. It is to the soul what a cold icy mist is to the body—more chilling than the bitterest storm, and when the fretter is one who is beloved, whose nearness of relation to us makes his fretting at the weather seem almost like a personal reproach to us, then the misery of it becomes indeed insupportable. Most men call fretting a minor fault; a foible, and not a vice. There is no vice except drunkenness which can so utterly destroy the happiness of a home.

An Ancient Nation.

At the departure of the children of Israel from Egypt, China was seven hundred years old; and when Isaiah prophesied of her she had existed fifteen centuries. She has seen the rise and decline of all the great nations of antiquity. Assyria, Babylon, Persia, Greece and Rome have long since followed each other to the dust; but China still remains, a solitary and wonderful monument of patriarchal times. Then look at the population of the country, roughly estimated at four hundred millions. Every third person that lives and breathes upon this earth and beneath these heavens is a Chinese; every third grave that is dug is for a Chinese.—Sylvester Whitehead.

Earthly Bliss.

The pleasures of this world are so transitory and fleeting that it seems a crime for a man to pass his days in frivolous pursuits, or to stake, as many do, their whole mind upon what before to-morrow's sun shall go down will become as mist or vapor. The uncertainty of life, the dark veil which covers the future from the piercing eyes of man; the ignorance of what a day may bring forth, have a salutary influence upon the thoughtful, and wean them from a too great love of the world, its pleasures, or of themselves. Though there be a few who live to the age of three-score and ten, it is no guarantee that we shall live till then. Health and youth are not to be relied on, for the nipping frost often destroys in an hour the fairest flower, and the lightning from heaven often rends the sturdy oak, and the ravages of years are swept off in a day.

Is it not astonishing, the thought that "the end of these things" so seldom enters the minds of men busy with the world's retail. What merchant inscribing his ledger, what mechanic using his tools, what sailor looking at the passing wave, pauses to think that the book, and steel, and wave will outlive the feeble arm that now converts them to its uses, and when the brain that directs them is dust, the book will lie unopened, the steel will be in other hands, the wave will roll steadily from shore to shore?

It is conceded that no mechanism of art or of nature equals the structure of our bodies. It is granted that no skill of man has approached it in the remotest degree; and that it is as far above the finest devices of genius as these delicate constructions are above the worthless stones in the street. Yet the work of man's hands will last a thousand years, and a man will not outlast the first century.

It would appear that no man looking on the strength of the ordinary brute matter, or on the imperishability of man's thoughts, could fail to ask himself if death is the end of all.

The Kingdom.

Wherefore we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear.—Heb. xii. 28.

The verses preceding this show that the kingdom is yet to come. The present kingdoms of the earth have to be shaken, and not only shaken, but removed, before the kingdom here mentioned is given to the saints. The words, therefore, must mean: Having to receive a kingdom, having it in prospect, the kingdom being promised to us, and wedally coming nearer to it. Let us seek grace by which we may obtain more of the spirit of, and preparation for, the glorious inheritance. It will be a kingdom which cannot be moved: it will abide, will be everlasting, and will exceed in glory, and beauty and blessedness the present heaven. We have the promise of this kingdom. Let us be thankful for it, and receive it with faith and confidence. Such a promise should inspire us daily with strength, and courage, consolation, and hope.—Silas Hare.

Mount Shasta.

Although Yosemite is reckoned the most wonderful natural phenomena in California, it is surpassed in many respects by Mount Shasta, which stands at the head of the Sacramento valley. Shasta has an elevation of 14,442 feet; that of Mont Blanc is but 15,789 feet. Mount Shasta once contained an active volcano; the crater is still visible. The view from the summit takes in the whole of California between the Coast and Sierra Nevada ranges of mountains, and from away beyond the Oregon boundary to the bay of San Francisco, a distance of 450 miles. As a vast and magnificent panorama it is doubtful if this view is surpassed in the whole world. The whole country is frequently filled with great masses of fleecy clouds which hides all but the tips of the Coast Range and Sierra Nevada mountains. The view from the summit under such circumstances is grand and wierd beyond description. The great Sacramento valley seems buried in piled up drifts of fleecy snow. These drifts under the sun's rays shine with an intense glitter. One of the largest living glaciers on the Pacific coast is found on the summit of Shasta.

An humble soul may groan under afflictions, but he will not grumble in psalms. Proud hearts discourse of patience, but humble hearts exercise patience. Philosophers have much commended it, but in the hour of darkness it is the humble soul that acts it.

Heaven's Sympathy With the Earth.

"When Adam and Eve left the retiring splendor of Eden and entered into the cold shadow of a dismantled world, God did not insulate or abandon them. He left open a way of intercourse between the condition they forfeited and lost, and the condition of sorrow and sin and suffering they had too justly earned. From heaven the gospel sounded down in their hearing, and in these evangelic words: 'The woman's seed shall bruise the serpent's head.' This was the first creed of Christendom. A ray from heaven subsequently lighted on Abel's altar and consumed his sacrifice. God afterward came down and walked with Enoch and with Noah. Abraham gave hospitality to visitants from heaven, Lot entertained angels. When Jacob slept in the desert, resting his aching head on a pillow of stone, the patriarch saw a communication between heaven and earth, and the angels of God ascending and descending by it.—Dr. Cummings.

Worldliness.

A lawyer who consumes three hours in arguing a question of law relating to the ownership of a barrel of apples, is indignant at his minister for exceeding twenty-five minutes in unfolding one of the great principles of morality, on the observance of which the whole existence of society depends. The judge who fills two hours with his "opinion" on the right of a counsel to challenge a witness grumbles at his minister because he has prolonged the discussion of fundamental laws of human existence to thirty minutes. The physician who takes ten minutes to prepare the medicine for the headache, is nervously restive if his minister spends twice so many in attempting to relieve a chronic heartache. The belle who has spent—how long!—in adjusting the bows on her bonnet, is remorseless in her criticisms on the minister who does not finish his meditations on the character of God in fifteen minutes. The fop who has combed and perfumed and waxed his beard and mustache for an hour, is mortified past endurance if the poor minister is not through his discussion of the Immortal life "inside of twenty minutes."

Vulgar Language

There is as much connection between the words and the thoughts as there is between the thoughts and the actions. The latter are not only the expression of the former, but they have a power to react upon the soul, and leave the stain of corruption there. A young man who allows himself to use one vulgar or profane word has not only shown that there is a foul spot upon his mind, but by the utterance of that word he extends that spot and inflames it, till, by indulgence, it will pollute and ruin the soul. Be careful of your words and your thoughts.

If you can control the tongue that no improper words are pronounced by it, you will soon be able also to control the mind and save it from corruption. You extinguished the fire by smothering it, or by preventing bad thoughts from bursting into language. Never utter a word anywhere which you would be ashamed to speak in the presence of the most refined female or the most religious man. Try this practice a little while, and you will soon have command of yourself.

Paragraphs.

Strong resolutions are needful to repel the force of temptations.

He that follows the Lord fully, will find goodness and mercy following him continually.

In the deepest night of trouble, and anxiety, and sorrow, God gives us so much to be thankful for that we need never cease our singing. With all our wisdom, and prudence, and foresight, we need never refuse to take a lesson in gladness and gratitude from the happy bird that sang all night, as if the day were not long enough to tell its joy.

Character alone is immortal. Not what we have but what we are, is enduring. Not that work in which we engage outside of us, but that which we carry on within us, is everlasting. As we pass from earth we shall leave behind our property, our relationships, our positions, and we shall enter that world with but our character, that we can call our own. We are making ourselves for eternity. Infinite will be the loss and disgrace if we build after the wrong plan, eternal be the gain and honor if we follow the right one.

Poetry.

At the Start.

Young man,
What is your plan
  Of progress? Are you
  Going to pull through?
Or will you lie down in the road
And let your load
  Kick out of sight
In the mud?
  Have you white
Blood,
  And pale,
  That curdles at the hard word Fail,
And dares not face
The chances of the race?
  Or have you red, clear red,
The good strong color
  All the great have shed
In deed or thought,
For every triumph wrought
  Out of what seemed full
  Of the impossible?
Have you the nerve
To serve
  Until you can be master? To wait
  And work outside the gate
Until you win
The strength to open it and enter in?
  Have you the heart to meet Defeat
Day after day,
And yet hold to the way
  That upward leads,
  And must needs
Be hard and rough
To make man tough
  Of sinew and of soul,
  Before he sees the goal;
So, when it is attained,
  He shall have strength to hold
What he has gained,
  And use it so
  That it be greater good shall grow?
Young man,
  Think on these things.
  What each one brings
Is as you choose it;
  You may take
  The stake,
Or you may lose it.
  Start in
  To win
And keep straight in the way
  Unflagging to the end;
Whatever it may be
Is Victory.

Eternity.

Eternity. Who can measure it or fix the bounds thereof? Compared to it, the longest life is shorter than a flash of light, or the twinkle of an eye. Would you have a faint idea of the extent of eternity, and the multitude of ages of bliss, promised to those who love God, and obey his commandments? Come with me to the sea shore! Let us grasp each a handful of the sands thereof, and try to number them. Can we do so? No, life is too short! And yet, let each tiny grain stand for a year, and there is less than the years of eternity. Now let us take shovels, and fill a wagon with these sands. Let us heap it on, as long as it will be, and let each grain represent a year, and yet we are short of the years of eternity. Let us employ an army of men, and heap the sands into a great mountain, and if we could number them, and each grain stood for a year, we would still be short of the years of eternity. But let us keep right on with our army of men, and heap the sands into mountains, year after year. Let us pass around all the bays and inlets, leaving hills, and mountains of sand behind us. Let us pass around the Pacific, and then around the Atlantic, and then around each of the other oceans, lakes and rivers of the world, heaping into mountains all the sands on their shores, and if it were possible to number them, they would yet be short of the years of bliss, and perfect love and happiness promised to those, who love God and keep his commandments. Let the worldly minded sneer and laugh, as they flit from pleasure to pleasure, as butterflies hover over the flowers, that so soon, must yield to the withering frost, and fade and die. Let it not hurt us, nor change our purpose, if they, in their folly, call us cranks, for well we know, that he or she, who spends the few short years of this life in search of ease and pleasure, or the applause of the multitude, and forgets or neglects to comply with the conditions, made known by God, which alone can give life, in these countless ages to come! These are the greatest cranks, the most foolish, shortsighted, and silly of all created creatures. Made in the image of God, and gifted with reason, they forget to use it, but like the beast, who has it not, content to spend the few short years, months or days of their time of trial in a childish pursuit of bubbles of pleasure, and then return from whence they came—The land of darkness, and forgetfulness, for they shall be as though they had not been. But they who are wise, will be found ready, when the Master comes, and will enter with him, into the joys of an endless life, in the Eden of the restitution ages.

Signs of the Second Coming of Christ. No. 2.

"And Jesus answered and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you; for many shall come in my name saying, I am Christ, and shall deceive many." Matt. xxiv. 4, 5.

"But of the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you; for yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night; for when they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape; but ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day shall overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day; we are not of the night, nor of darkness. Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober; for they that sleep sleep in the night; and they that be drunken are drunken in the night; but let us, who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for a helmet, the hope of salvation; for God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him." 1 Thess. v. 1-10.

"Be ye therefore ready also; for the Son of Man cometh at an hour when ye think not." Luke xii. 40.

"And take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares; for as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth. Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man." Luke xxi. 34-36.

"Behold I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame." Rev. xvi. 15.

"And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord God, that I will cause the sun to go down at noon, and I will darken the earth in the clear day; and I will turn your feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation; and I will bring up sackcloth upon all loins, and baldness upon every head; and I will make it as the mourning of an only son, and the end thereof as a bitter day. Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the Words of the Lord; and they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east, they shall run to and fro to seek the Word of the Lord, and shall not find it. Amos viii. 9-12.

"And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars; see that ye be not troubled; for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet; for nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places. All these are the beginning of sorrows. Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted, and shall kill you; and ye shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake; and then shall many be offended, and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another; and many false prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many; and because iniquity shall abound the love of many shall wax cold; but he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved; and this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." Matt. xxiv. 6-14.

Next paper, No. 3, will be "The Second Coming of Christ."

A Sister, in the Blessed Hope.

Mrs. C. W. Endsley.

Dear Restitution:

Not a cloud but what has a silver lining. I was called to Hillsburg, Ind., on Thursday, Sept. 12, to preach the funeral sermon of Sister Lillie Finney, whose obituary appears elsewhere in this paper and after my arrival arranged to stay over Sunday and hold meetings, and on Saturday we were made to rejoice by the determination on the part of Mrs. Lizzie Finney, sister-in-law of the deceased, to accept Christ and be baptized into his name for the remission of her sins.

The household at Hillsburg, rejoice over her action and may she hold fast the beginning of her confidence steadfast unto the end.

The brethren at this point are looking forward to the coming Conference and if all present indications are a true guide, all who do not come to the Conference will miss a splendid treat.

George Neill.

Editor Restitution:

I find that there is a great deal of infidelity or doubt of the genuineness of the Scriptures. I find it hard to combat the views of the people who hold these doubts, and as it is one of the most vital points in connection with Christianity, it is necessary to have all the proof we can get to show that they are inspired and given by God. I would like one or more of our good writers to take up the subject and give a number of articles in The Restitution, and go into it thoroughly, it might be well to have it put in tract form for distribution.

I submit this proposal to you hoping it may meet with your approval.

J. E. Hoganth.

Announcement.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Michigan will convene Sept. 26 to 27 inclusive, in Brady Township, Brother Alfred Harper's neighborhood.

The brethren here have asked for this meeting, gratify them by being present, then, too, it is very necessary that you be there for there are plans to be made for next year, that you must help make. Do you know brethren, that the next Annual Conference will be our 50th, or Jubilee Year? Shall we make it a time of much good and rejoicing, by having a longer session than usual? Shall we have a Bible School the week before, week after, or each afternoon during the session?

These questions which have been suggested by interested parties, will be talked over and some decision made.

Be sure and be present. If it is impossible for many to attend from each church, talk these matters over at the home church and send a delegate with your decision, but come if possible.

Those coming from north and south come to Vicksburg over the Grand Rapids and Indiana road. From the east and west take Grand Trunk to Vicksburg. Teams will meet all trains on Friday and carry passengers to place of meeting. All try and come Friday, as the meeting is about seven miles from Vicksburg and we do not want to make the brethren extra travel.

Mary A. Woodward, Sec'y.

The sixth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Christ Jesus, in southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah, Ill. October 17 to 21 inclusive.

We invite all to come, and come filled with the love of God. Never mind the things of the world for awhile and let us have the best time that Moriah ever had. Moriah is eight miles from Casey, south. All parties coming to Conference will stop at Casey, and we will furnish conveyance to the church.

Every body come the first day and stay until it closes. All parties write and tell us what day to meet them at Casey. It would be best for all to get to Casey by 3 P. M., then all could get to church in due time.

Everybody come and bring some body with them and a smile on their faces and a big heart filled with love, and we will try to make you happy.

The preachers will be S. J. Lindsay and L. E. Conner, and others expected. Board, bed and transportation from and to the station, all free, come one and all.

Address all communications to Lewis Weaver, Casey, Ill. R. R. No. 3, Box 31.

By Order of the Board.

Obituary.

"John Grief was born in Cleveland, Aug. 7, 1884. Died Sept. 6, 1907.

He was a member of the Sunday School for several years, and during that period spent much time with his pastor and teacher in studying out the things pertaining to his eternal welfare. He became a member of this body in Oct. 1904. He has suffered a good deal during the last year, and his work was such that it prevented him from attending the services of the household as much as he would have liked; but we know that his hope was bright all through. Among the last words that he said were that his trust is still in the Father who doeth all things well. It was his earnest desire that his beloved companion should fall in with the same truths that he embraced, so that they might walk together in unity, and together have an abundant entrance into the kingdom of our Lord when he shall come."

The above was written by one of the sisters of the Ecclesia. Words of comfort were spoken from John xi. 25, 26. In connection with this we read from 1 Thess. iv. 13-18, also 1 Cor. xv. 1-8. We laid Brother Grief away in the springtime of life with that hope that will give him life when Jesus who is our life shall come.

D. C. Rossman.

Once more the enemy, death, has invaded our ranks and claimed as his victim one of our beloved sisters.

Sister Lily Ellis Finney, wife of Bro. George Finney, was born June 27, 1879. Married December 25, 1896. United with the Church of God in May 1895. Was baptized by Brother Uncle Jerry Hatch.

She was taken with consumption and heart trou[illegible] year ago and died Septem[illegible]7, age 28 year, 3 months.

She lea[illegible] year old daught[illegible]ree sisters and [illegible] to mourn her loss.

She was a [illegible] kind mother, and was l[illegible] by all who knew her. Her funeral was preached at the church by Brother George Neill, of North Bend, Ind.

Though the cloud of sorrow hangs over the home and neighborhood, the sunlight of God's Word "That ye sorrow not as those who have no hope," sheds its beams around the bereaved ones. It is indeed sorrowful to see one so young claimed by the ruthless hand of death; yet it is a consolation to know that she put on Christ by being baptized into his name, and lived faithful to the end.

Catching Sculpins.

Did you ever catch a sculpin? No?—then go a-fishing off the eastern coast of Massachusetts, and the first thing you will catch, presumably, will be a sculpin, which may be described as a reddish-looking fish composed of a mouth and a tail, with a lot of horns and thorns to hold them together.

Utterly worthless, and only caught to be thrown back into the water, yet they grab your hook before a decent fish can get at it; they eat off your bait; they seem to care nothing for catching, and they are one of the chief vexations of the honest fisherman.

Did ever a "fisher of men" have a similar experience? I think so. Some may be exempt from it,—those who never catch anything have no trouble with sculpins;—but those who really fish for men and catch them, will occasionally "catch a sculpin,"—a fish that is pretty much all mouth, tail and horns; and which drives other fish away from the hook, and thorns and lacerates the hand that takes hold of it to throw it overboard.

"What made you catch such a fish as that?" said one man to a preacher who had proselyted a convert which seemed to be something of the sculpin species. "I was afraid he would bite," was the reply, "and I baited my hook just as light as I could." But he caught him nevertheless!

Fishers of men, keep an eye out for sculpins. But do not quit fishing because you sometimes get a bad fish. The Lord chose twelve apostles, and one of them was a devil. Ananias and Sapphira were found in the church when they were "all of one mind" and "had all things common." The great drag net gathers in fish of every kind; keep hauling it in, and at last unerring wisdom shall gather the good into vessels and cast the bad away, "into a furnace of fire."—Common People.

The Stopping Place.

The control which a good locomotive engineer has over his machine is something remarkable. "A long time ago," says the Christian Secretary, "some of the depot attaches at Springfield noticed that the 1:15 train from the South seemed to stop daily at the self-same spot when coming to a standstill at the depot, and about two months ago a mark was made to designate the precise locality. Since that time the train has not varied six inches from the mark, and some of the friends of the engineer have presented him a bouquet in acknowledgement of his skill."

We know some other machines which might be subjected to similar control with great profit. We recollect at a meeting held in Mildmay Conference Hall, London, to bid farewell to Mr. Moody, where the numerous addresses were of necessity very brief, at the close of some very interesting remarks by Dr. Andrew Bonar, which, though brief, yet overstepped the ten minutes allowed, Mr. Moody quietly remarked that "a minister's ten minutes are always twenty."

We have seen some ministers, and a good many other people who, when talking upon religious subjects, seem to lose control of their engines. In some cases it takes them a great while to begin, and then it seems as if they never would stop. Travelling round and round, there is no prospect of ever coming to the end of the road; and as they seem to be going nowhere, nobody knows when they will get there. The trouble with them seems to be they are not in running order, like some machine which is difficult to start, and when once in motion is much more difficult to stop.

We do not believe in limiting the time of preaching and exhortation by inflexible rules, but there is one rule which is of universal application. When you get through, stop; and if there is no likelihood of your ever getting through, stop before you begin. The priestesses of heathen oracles, like spiritual mediums of these days, were sometimes the subjects of an uncontrollable frenzy; but not so the servants of the Lord. "The spirits of prophets are subject to the prophets;" that is, to the man whom God has given the ability to speak words of instruction, exhortation and comfort, he has also granted the ability to hold his tongue, and not allow his engine to run away with him. And we are of opinion that if a good many who are famed for long-winded prayers and exhortations could be induced to get their engines under control, and stop, there would be plenty of people ready to give them bouquets, or anything else in reason, as a reward for their brevity.—N. L. Hastings.

She Gave Her God Her Best.

Only a mother can fully understand this pathetic incident. An officer in the army some years ago was walking along the banks of the Ganges, the sacred river, when he heard behind him a moan of agony. He turned around, and there before him was a Hindu mother, with two children. One was a lovely boy; the other a puny, weak, miserable little girl. He asked what was the matter. The answer of the poor woman was, "The gods are angry with me." "Why?" he said. "Because they have given me this miserable little girl." He replied, "But you have that boy." All she would say was, "The gods are angry." He passed on, not knowing what the woman meant.

Presently he returned. There was the same woman, the same little girl. But where was the boy?—Thrown into the Ganges! She had given the fruit of her body for the sin of her soul. He turned to her in astonishment, and said, "Surely if you had to give one, you could have given the girl?" Listen to her answer: "Sahib, do you think I would give my god anything but the best?" Her religion broke her heart. Ours binds up the broken-hearted, comforts those that mourn, wipes tears from off all faces. Yet which of us has given the best?

Love.

"He that loveth not, knoweth not God; for God is love." 1 John iv. 8.

This text is the most superlative definition of divine perfection and eternal infinitude, compounding all the finest qualities of the divine Father in one sentence, and reducing all to the pure, sweet essence of the one word—"love."

Love is the power that moves the universe; that puts in motion every natural provision, and has ever strewn the Christian pathway with the sweet flowers of God's richest blessings, perfumed with the holy fragrance of heaven's most ennobling qualities, as pictured in Jesus, the Christ.

Humanity has ever exerted itself to develop love, but only to fail; for although artists have endeavored to paint it, sculptors have attempted to chisel it, poets have labored to compose it into song, while others have tried with instrument and voice to sing its charms and pure melodies, it remains yet undeveloped by the human effort, and can only be seen in the Christ, and the saint of God, as it is inwrought by the Spirit of the eternal one. While "in part" we see it "through a glass darkly," yet the eternal ages of the future will exhibit it in all of its celestial wonderousness.

The command of God, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul—life—and with all thy might," is full of sweet pathos and tender emotion. But this we cannot do with our natural love, because it is too animal; therefore God has condescended to transmit his love to us by the Holy Ghost, to make possible the impossible, and make delightful the experience expressed in the text quoted.

That the love of God superabound in us as the prevailing principle of government, is made apparent by the facts that we may possess the gifts of oratory, faith, knowledge, prophetic understanding, and the broadest philanthropy, manifested in the abundance of our charities; and yet, being without love, we shall be sunk in the deepest spiritual poverty, and lose the kingdom of God at last.

The proof that the love of God resides in us is demonstrated in Christ obedience to the commands—the holy rule of life—of God, gaining thereby stimulation and energy, and also the guarantee of heavenly support and association. God's perfect love resident in the human heart dissipates all fear, expels all tormenting sensations, and makes the hours of life to be filled with holy reverence and sweetest joy. God's love in the heart binds Christian brethren in the bonds of filial affection, for love manifested to a brother is as the sunshine and the dew to the drooping herb, for it gives him that strength and vivacity that the wealth of the world cannot purchase. Brotherly love is the principle upon which our dealings with another turns, and while it does not palliate wrong it deals tenderly with it. Without it how unkind the human heart, and how harsh and grating the voice, and how depressing the words spoken!

Brotherly love is the blazing testimony of the Christian character; it will accomplish what argument can never effect; namely, the convincing that Christianity is true; that its virtues are a reality, and that the human heart is the place of their residence, transforming the entire conduct of the human life. Brotherly love opens its purse strings, and out of the abundance or its meagreness it deals its substance to the needy soul. Love will bring its eternal sequel by its endless perpetuation; for it is as enduring as God. Faith must and will reach its design, and hope will consummate in rapturous reality; but the endlessness of love will manifest itself in the eternal unfoldings of God during the everlasting ayeles.

Hallelujah! Time is rapidly speeding away, and the time of the summing up of all lives will soon be reached, when the judgment of God will decide every destiny. Then will be the time when love will manifest its mightiest strength and be possessed of its purest advantages.—C. H. Shurtliff in Crisis.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 23, REVIEW.

The Lessons for the past quarter have been from four books.

Exodus—Israel going out of Egypt.

Leviticus—The Levites performing the ordinances of the law.

Numbers—The numbering of Israel.

Deuteronomy—The second reading or rehearsing of the law.

The lessons cover a period of forty years, thirty-eight of which were taken up by the wanderings of Israel because of their unbelief.

Before leaving Egypt God told them he would take them to Canaan. On the very border of the land they refused to believe the Lord, and all over twenty years old died in the wilderness except Joshua and Caleb.

Lesson 1. God leads Israel in the wilderness. Exod. xvii. 1-15.

God fed them daily with Manna—meaning, What is it? They did not know. Neither did they know the living bread—Jesus. John vi. 51.

Lesson 2. The Ten Commandments. Duties towards God. Exod. xx. 1-11.

There was no need of the Ten Commandments if the Israelites had lived in faith, like Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

Lesson 3. The Ten Commandments. Duties towards Men. Exod. xx. 12-17.

These two lessons might have been one. These and all other Commandments are called the law, and were made for the lawless. 1 Tim. i. 9.

The law could not give life,—eternal life—therefore it was not gospel—good news. Gal. iii. 21.

Lesson 4. The Golden Calf. Exod. xxxii. 1-8, 30-35.

As the law was not of faith, Gal. iii. 12, and the Israelites were faithless, it was easy for them to fall into idolatry.

Lesson 5. The Tabernacle. Exod. xl. 1-13, 34-38.

Was a figure for the time then present, Heb. ix. 9. A figure of the true Tabernacle. Heb. viii. 2.

Meantime the Church of the living God—the true believer of the Gospel of the Kingdom—are the house—tabernacle—of God. 1 Tim. iii. 15.

Lesson 6. The sin of Nadab and Abihu. Lev. x. 1-11.

Their sin was that of disobedience. The sin that brought death into the world. Rom. v. 17-19.

Lesson 7. The Day of Atonement. Lev. xvi. 5-22.

Was the tenth day of the seventh month. Hebrew, Tishri or Ethanim, corresponding to September, October. The Lord accepted the service by the priest, and pardoned all their sins. Lev. xvi. 30.

Lesson 8. Israel journeying to Canaan. Num. x. 11-13, 29-36.

This was not the start from Egypt, but from Mount Sinai where they worshiped the golden calf, and God gave Moses the Ten Commandments. They journeyed north to Kadesh, the southern border of Canaan.

Lesson 9. The Two Reports of the spies. Num. xiii. 17-20, 23-33.

Twelve men were sent out,—one from each tribe—to view the land of Canaan. The first reported good of the land, then a bad report, because of unbelief. Two—Caleb and Joshua made a report based on faith, for which the Israelites said. Stone them, but the Lord prevented.

Lesson 10. The Brazen Serpent. Num. xxi. 1-9.

Rebellious disobedience against the Lord and against Moses brought swift judgment on Israel. And for the first time they asked Moses to pray for them. He did, and the Lord instructed him to make a brass serpent and put it on a pole. If those bitten looked at it they were healed—they lived.

Lesson 11. Moses pleading with Israel. Deut. vi. 1-15.

Pleading is hardly the proper word. There is not much pleading in commandments, statutes and judgments. There is pleading in the gospel. Matt. xi. 28.

Lesson 12. The death of Moses. Deut. xxxiv. 1-12.

Was different from any other man. He had no ailment. He died according to the Word of the Lord. Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures. 1 Cor. xv. 3. He was crucified in the full vigor of life. Jesus said, Moses wrote of me. John v. 46. In many things about the tabernacle we find types and shadows of Christ. In the Ark of the Covenant, the Mercy Seat, the Brazen Serpent, in the Manna, and in Moses.

The Review can be made interesting by blackboard drawings, or large sheets of paper, drawings of the lands of Egypt, Canaan, Sinai, the Tabernacle, and the Journeyings. The sketches may be rough—not artistic, but they help much.

Next lesson, Joshua, Israel's New Leader. Joshua i. 1-11.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Fierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies post paid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Bible Themes.

Is the title of the last book issued by Brother John O. Woodruff on miscellaneous subjects, both original and selected. This book contains 480 pages and cost the author $1.25 to issue. A quantity has been supplied us, and we wish to get them into the hands of readers, and offer them at 80 cents each, post paid, while they last.

Scriptures Opened.

This a book of 370 pages written by Robert Ashcroft, and is a book of thoughts and themes for Bible Students. We have a few copies only, and first come—first served. This book sold for $1.25, but we offer what we have for 80 cents, post paid.

WHEN you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "THE RESTITUTION," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

Our Helping Fund

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is represented by some one known to be trustworthy.

WE have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in Neb., will be held in St. Paul Sept. 14th to 20th inclusive.

MINNIE ROGERS, Sec.

WILL all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. R. Robinson will in future be 366 West Main St. Salem, O.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2042 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Evangelizing Notice.

The N. W. Conference has selected me again as Evangelist. The Brethren have added Arizona, and California to my field of labor. Any church or scattered brethren that want meetings during the Conference year should correspond with me at an early date so I can plan my year's work for this extensive territory which now includes Western Oregon, Washington, California and Arizona.

Hereafter my home will be Scholls, Oregon, and Address, W. L. Shevlin, R. F. D. 1, Laurel, Oregon.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Beloved, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. [illegible] Evangelist, or Robt. [illegible] Box 17, Oregon, Ill.

A four-page [illegible] German language, by [illegible] oblin of Cleveland, O. [illegible] that Must I do to be Saved [illegible] getting the opinion of one who understands the language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

NOTICE.

Information wanted concerning an Evangelist known as Blind Haynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Address, E. P. Woodward, Westbrook, Maine.

The Price is

ONE DOLLAR AND A-HALF A YEAR

To New Subscribers who have never taken our paper, we will send it on trial for

THREE MONTHS FOR 25 CENTS

OR

ONE YEAR FOR ONE DOLLAR.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

Our talents differ, and each one will be held accountable for the use of such talent, whatever that may be. If you have only one, use that.

Some one says, what can I do? Why you can circulate literature teaching the truth if nothing else. [illegible] who can do that. Will that do any good? Oh, yes. Let me tell you something. Some people have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. It would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

Address 420 N Willow ave. Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Price $1.25.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who tangles such mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the price list you have and order only what you see advertised in them.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, recent the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took tracters at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Fame.

The birds sing sweetest in the deepest shade,
Untrodden paths invite the truest lovers;
The roughest stone the purest gem has made,
The tiniest star could swing this world in space.
Ambition has no home in gilded halls,
Fame comes at last to those who've served unsought.
A song may dwell within a lowly cell,
The King of kings first in a manger slept.
Rest not a lowly birth and humble home;
The cold never fed the breeze until admired.
The flame of gems flutters on unknown,
Then nations like illumines all the world.

The Things Concerning the Kingdom of God.

Many good people profess to believe in the kingdom of God and deny that it is a future event and to be a literal kingdom. Those who believe thus nullify the gospel of the kingdom of God. There are three positions taken on the above subjects; 1st, that it is a spiritual kingdom, and is within you. 2nd, that the church is the kingdom. 3rd, that it is yet future and is to be a literal kingdom. Two of these must fall as but one is Scriptural. The Bible cannot teach three different doctrines. God's purpose in the beginning of the race was that one of his creatures should rule. Adam was created for that purpose. The Lord God said multiply and replenish the earth, subdue it and have dominion. Dominion means to rule.

The first man failed through disobedience but Christ prevailed, and to him was given the "first dominion"—the right to rule. Micah iv 8.

Daniel declared that four universal empires would exist and after this or in the days of these kings the God of heaven would set up a kingdom and it should not pass away but would be an everlasting kingdom. Dan ii 44. Now if the four kingdoms were universal and literal does it not prove that the fifth, God's kingdom, will be universal and literal. Sacred and profane history agree as to the four kingdoms. Please read carefully the 2nd chapter of Daniel. The above disproves the first position that the kingdom is spiritual and set up in the heart. Those who believe that the church is the kingdom and that it was set up on the day of Pentecost should remember that the word rendered church in the New Testament is ecclesia, and is properly rendered congregation, and has neither of the elements of a kingdom. The word rendered kingdom in the New Testament is rendered from the Greek word Basaleia. The two words are entirely different and cannot be used interchangeably. An ecclesia is made up of called out ones. Those who believe "the things concerning the kingdom of God" form an ecclesia. The kingdom is promised to the ecclesia. "Fear not little flock" (called out ones) it is your Father's good pleasure to give unto you the kingdom." Luke xii 32. The "little flock" in this text were his followers, and had been called out. To prove that the words are not interchangeable you might use one for the other in texts where they occur. It will readily be seen that the greatest confusion will occur.

Again the kingdom of God is to be set up in "the days of these kings." Dan ii 44. This cannot mean in the days when the Roman kingdom was yet universal as she had but one king at that time. "We have no other king but Cæsar." Pentecost took place during the time that the Roman kingdom was universal. It was more than 300 years after Pentecost when the fourth kingdom was divided into the eastern and western kingdoms. It is now in its ten toed system. In these days the God of heaven will set up his kingdom. When the Son of Man shall come with all his holy angels with him, then shall he set up the throne of his glory and before him shall be gathered all nations, etc. Matt xxv 31.

Again we have this proof. Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, After this (have taken out a people for his name), I will return and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up. Acts xv 14, 15, 16.

We should note first that God is now choosing or taking out a people for the name of Christ, after which event he (Christ) will return, again to set up David's throne for the purpose of ruling the nations. See Ezek xxi 27. God overturned the kingdom and said it shall be no more, until he comes whose right it is and I will give it (the kingdom) him. Isa xxxii.

1. We read, Behold, a king shall reign in right eousness and princes shall rule in judgment. The Psalmist declares Psa ii, Yet have I set my king (anointed) upon my holy hill Zion. Ask of me and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron, thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

Again Psa xxix, Let the saints be joyful in glory, let them sing aloud upon their beds. Let the high praises of God be in their mouth and a two edged sword in their hands. To execute vengeance upon the heathen and punishment upon the people; to bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron. To execute upon them the judgment written; this honor have all the saints.

The above Scriptures prove that God's purpose in creating man was that he should have dominion (rule). The instrument by which he shall rule is the kingdom of God. Every kingdom must have a king, associate rulers (princes) a territory, laws and subjects. God's kingdom will have Jesus as king, Luke i 32, 33. Those taken out as his associate rulers or princes. Rev v 10. The earth for a territory. Matt v 5; 2 Pet iii 13; Rev v 10. The laws will go out from Jerusalem. Isa ii 3; Mic iv 1. The subjects will be the nations blessed through Christ's righteous reign. Psa lxxii; Matt xxv 31-34. Unless you have these elements you cannot have a kingdom. When Jesus began preaching he preached the gospel of the kingdom of God. Mark i 14. The word gospel means "good news," "glad tidings." The glad tidings were concerning the kingdom of God which means its restoration. The apostles asked Jesus if he could at that time restore again the kingdom to Israel. The kingdom of Israel was God's kingdom which he overturned but promised to again restore it. Ezekiel xxi 27. In 1 Chronicles it is recorded that Solomon sat upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel xxviii 5. Again in xxix 23. Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David. David's throne was God's throne and will be the throne that Jesus will occupy when he comes. Acts iii 21 declares that the heaven must receive (retain) Christ until the times of the restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his prophets since the world began. Have we not furnished evidence enough to prove that the kingdom of God is yet future and must be literal, and cannot be the church?

Jesus sent his apostles out to preach the kingdom of God and they went every where preaching the gospel. To preach the gospel is to preach the kingdom of God. After his resurrection he remained 40 days speaking of the things concerning the kingdom of God. Acts i 3. He commanded his apostles to preach the gospel to every creature and he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned. Mark xvi 15, 16. Men and women are to be saved by believing and obeying the gospel of the kingdom of God. When Philip went down into Samaria he preached unto them the Word. He also preached unto them Christ. When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women. Acts viii 12 Cor xv I moreover, Now I make known unto you, brethren, the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye received and in which ye stand, by which ye are saved, if ye remember in what manner I preached to you unless ye have believed rashly. For I delivered to you among the first things, what also I received first, that Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures (Mockright). Paul declares in this text that he preached the gospel to the church at Corinth. Then he preached what he first received, the facts of the gospel. The death, burial and resurrection of Jesus Christ. He does not teach (in some resort) that the gospel consists of these three facts. You will find by referring to Paul's preaching in Acts xxviii 23, 30 and 31, that he preached of the kingdom of God. To whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets, from morning till evening. He preached the kingdom of God, "and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus, with all confidence." The phrases, "the kingdom of God," "the gospel of the kingdom" and "the gospel of Christ" must mean the same thing wherever you find them. The kingdom of which the gospel is glad tidings has its foundation in the Old Scriptures, and starts with the promise to the seed of the woman, and is further developed in the promise to Abraham, "In thy seed shall all nations be blessed."

Paul in Gal. iii, 8, says the gospel was preached before unto Abraham, saying, "In thee shall all nations be blessed." Abraham was promised a land and eternal life or an eternal inheritance in that land. Gen. xiii. 15. xvii. 8. Stephen said in Acts vii. 5, that God gave him (Abraham) none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on; yet he promised he would give it to him, when as yet he had no child. Must not God redeem this promise to our father Abraham? Now this promise was not to his numerous seed under the law but to his one seed which the apostle declares to be Christ, Gal. iii. 16, "Now unto you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. If ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise." The promise made to Abraham through Christ. We are required to believe the gospel of the kingdom of God, repent of our sins and to be buried with Christ in baptism to secure us salvation. In Eph. ii. 12, the apostle says, "That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world." If we believe the gospel of the kingdom of God we are no longer aliens nor strangers but fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God.

Again, we read, Heb. iii. 6, that Christ as a Son over his own house was faithful; whose house we are, if we hold fast to the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end.

Dear Restitution.

You will find enclosed two dollars to pay for the dear, old paper another year and 50cts for our Helping Fund.

Dear brothers and sisters: I have for many years had a desire to live to see Christ come, but I fear if he delays his coming much longer I will have to go down in death, as I am past seventy-four years old, and am very weak both physically and mentally, and almost every paper chronicles the death of some old soldier of the cross.

Yours, in the Blessed Hope.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY OCT. 6.

Joshua Israel's New Leader. Josh. i. 1-11.

Golden Text. "I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." Josh. i. 5.

The leadership of Joshua is the next recorded event after the death of Moses.

Joshua or Oshea—like his father Nun—was of the tribe of Ephraim. Was one of the twelve spies, Num. xiii 8, that Moses by command of the Lord—went to view the land of Canaan. He was the servant of Moses, Exod. xxxiii, 11, his minister, Exod. xxiv, 13, as we would say, next in command to Moses. He is first mentioned in Exod. i. 7-9, where Moses sent him out to fight Amalek. He went up into the Mount of God with Moses, Exod. xxiv, 13. Moses changed his name from Oshea to Jehoshua—meaning Jah saves—Num. xiii. 16.

Of all the men that left Egypt there was but two that lived to go into Canaan. Joshua was one of them, Num. xxvi 1xv. Moses was told he could not go into Canaan, and on asking for a successor, he was told to take Joshua. Num. xxvii. 18-23. He and Eleazer the priest were appointed to divide the land to the twelve tribes. Num. xxxiv. 17-29.

Moses told the Israelites that Joshua would lead them. Deut. xxxi. 3. Moses called him and introduced him to Israel. Deut. xxxi. 7, and the Lord gave him charge, verse 14. The charge—or committal—is in verse 23. Moses Moses laid his hands on Joshua and he was filled with the Spirit of wisdom. Deut. xxxiv. 9.

From these various Scriptures we learn that Joshua—[illegible] a young man—had taken great interest in the work of the [illegible] making himself useful [illegible] Him—God endowed—[illegible] Moses died on Mount Nebo. Joshua was, in every way ready—under the Lord—to undertake the great work of leading the Israelites into Canaan.

Lesson Text.

1. The Lord spake—By Eleazer the priest. Num. xxvii. 21.

2. The land which I do give them. The earth is the Lord's. Psa. xxiv. 1. He can do as he will with it. Since the time the Lord made the covenant with Abraham concerning the land of Canaan, Gen. xv. 18-21, that land belongs to Israel and always will. Ezek. xxxvii.

3, 4. Further assurance to Joshua and boundaries of the land.

5. A wonderful promise that called for the utmost faith and fidelity on the part of Joshua.

6. The oath Gen. xxii. 16. Heb. vi. 13-17.

7. It always required courage—individual courage—to observe and do according to God's Word. At the present time one requires to be strong—in will—and very courageous to believe what Abraham believed, and become his seed. Gal. iii. 29.

8. It is pleasant to meditate on the exceeding great and precious promises of life eternal contained in the good news of the kingdom of God.

9. God is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him. Heb. xi. 6.

10. Joshua takes command.

11. And gives his first order to prepare to march to Canaan. As far as the majority of Israel was concerned it made little or no difference to them whether Moses or Joshua was leader. Many today say they are not interested in the promises to Abraham, if they are only with Jesus. Those who believe and obey the promise will be with Jesus.

Next lesson. Israel enters the land of promise. Joshua iii, 5-17.

Signs of the Second Coming of Christ. No. 3.

So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time, without sin unto salvation. Heb ix 28. And when he had spoken these things while they beheld, he was taken up and a cloud received him out of their sight. And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven, as Jesus went up, behold two men stood by them in white apparel; which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven. Acts i 9-11.

And he shall send Jesus Christ, who before was preached unto you; whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. Acts iii 20-21. Jesus answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me, Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name (the little flock, a peculiar people) and to this agree the words of the prophets as it is written, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up. (What for?) that the residue (remainder) of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things. Known unto God are all his works, from the beginning of the world. Acts xv 13-18. (This is the third age) patriarchal; 2nd, Jewish; 3rd, Christian). When Jesus came the first time John says he came to his own and his own (the Jews) received him not. The Jews had heard Moses and the Prophets read every Sabbath in their synagogue which told of Christ's first and second coming, but they certainly overlooked how he would come the first time, for they expected him then just as he will come the second time, a king to sit on David's throne and rule the whole world. But when he came the first time as a babe, meek and lowly, his own (the Jews) rejected him. Then he turned to the Gentiles. This is the third or Christian age in which he is visiting the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name and this number will be complete when he comes the second time. And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations and then shall the end (of this age) come. Matt xxiv 14. And then if any man shall say to you, Lo, here is Christ, or lo he is there, believe him not. For false christs and false prophets shall rise, and shall show signs and wonders, to seduce, if it were possible, even the elect, but take ye heed; behold, I have foretold you all things. But in those days after that tribulation, the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars of heaven shall fall, and the powers that are in heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with great power and glory, and then shall he send his angels, and shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from the uttermost parts of the earth to the uttermost parts of heaven. Mark xiii 24-24. And Jesus said, I am the Christ, the Son of the Blessed, and ye shall see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of Power and coming in the clouds of heaven. Mark xiv 62. I saw in the night visions, and behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him, and there was given him dominion and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed. Dan vii 13-14. When the Son of Man shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory, and before shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats, and he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. Matt xxv 31-34. Behold he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also that pierced him; and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so, amen. Rev i 7.

To Be Continued.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

God is natural, normal, right, perfect, the source, model and highest ideal of all life.

Satan is unnatural, abnormal and wrong.

The enlightened, intelligent, progressive Christian approaches the natural.

The savage, ignorant, unprogressive is a degenerate, he has not come from the slime through lower forms of life, but has gone down from the parent stock which was "very good" "upright." The beautiful face, the "god-like form" is natural, the coarse, ill-formed, pinched features, the bent unsymetrical form is degenerated by the hovel, famine, oppression and vice. Doubtless Adam, a "son of God" was the most manly of men, and Eve the most lovely of women.

Men turned their backs to the light and walked in darkness till their noble natures became dormant, 'tho not lost beyond recovery. The sanitary, convenient, beautiful home, is natural. The hovel and wigwam is degenerate, unnatural. One husband with one wife is natural, parents teaching their children God's love, science and art, the home a school and the school a home, is natural. Departures from these are unnatural, degraded. A well developed tree is natural. A garden with plants pleasant to the sight and good for food is natural. The "waste, howling wilderness" is against nature, good is law, immortal, eternal, natural. Evil is against law, mortal, temporary, against nature.

Editor Restitution:

I would like to inform the household of faith of what is going on at West Branch, Washington. As for myself I was not satisfied with being baptized into the Baptist Church some years ago with a hope of going off to heaven at death, so on September 8, 1907, I was baptized into Christ, with a hope of a home in the kingdom of God on earth, also two faithful sisters that have been studying the Word with me for the past few years. Our beloved Brother, N. D. Titchenal of Wenatchee, after giving us two very able sermons buried us with Christ in baptism, in Blake's Lake, Mrs. Alberta Gray, Mrs. Maud Alexander and myself. So there are three of us now in this part of the country that are trying to live the life of the faithful. May we have the prayers of the loved ones in Christ to help us to be faithful to the end.

Yours, for the truth.

HIRAM CONDELL.

If thou art a vessel of gold, and thy brother but of wood, be not high-minded. It is God that maketh thee to differ. The more bounty God shows the more humility he requires. Those minds that are deepest; those stars that are the highest are smallest; the goodliest buildings have the lowest foundation. The more God honoreth men, the more they should humble themselves; the more fruit the lower the branches on which it grows. Pride is ever the companion of emptiness.

The Word of God ought be nearer to us than our lives, sweeter to be than our liberty, and pleasanter to us than all earthly comforts.—Manton

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE.
J. H. WILLEY,
W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 25, 1907.

ANY one wishing to write to Bro. D. M. Hudler can address him for a short time at Hobgood, N. C.

A MOST annoying accident occurred last week. The Michigan Conference notice appeared and the date was given as September 25 to 27. This date is radically wrong. It should be October 25 to 27 as it appears this week. The mistake was made, who made it does not signify. We are all liable to err, being mortal. After the error was discovered all effort to correct it was made, but not in time to stop its publication by the barespace of two hours. Let all who are concerned overlook the blunder, and rally to the meeting prepared to do good service for the Master.

ON last Sunday Sister Woodward gave the Church at Plymouth two most excellent discourses. Though not feeling very well physically, as for ability to preach, she seemed at her best, and all present listened attentively. At the closing of the forenoon service an invitation was given, and all hearts were glad when Miss Marie Petcher walked up the aisle, and presented herself for acceptance into the fold. Arrangements were made for the baptism to take place before the evening service, and at the appointed hour, the baptistry having been prepared meanwhile, a company of the friends assembled. Brother Willey performed the baptismal rite, after having received prompt answers to the questions he asked. So one more is added to the "little flock." The name of Sister Marie Petcher is now recorded in the Lamb's book of life. The history of her life from now on will be written exactly as it is on the pages assigned her by the recording angel. Our prayer is that it may be a clean page. Marie is the oldest daughter of Brother and Sister Frank and Ida Petcher, and has been a member of our Sunday School from her earliest days. She is bright and intelligent, understands well what she is doing, and is a sweet lovable girl, in the bloom of youth. Thus she comes and enters the race for a crown in the kingdom of her God. We trust all associated with her will give her all possible assistance in the struggle she must make, and our prayer is that the Father will by his grace sustain and hold her from falling. Let the example she has set be followed by others of her companions, that they with her may go in to the marriage of the Lamb at no distant day.

WE wish to call the attention of all of the Indiana brethren to the notice of the Conference that is given in this paper. The committee are arranging a programme that will be worth while hearing, and the business that is to be attended to should be of interest to every member of the Church in the State. The officers chosen to have charge of the work the coming year, should be the very best the State affords. The question of Evangelistic work is to be discussed. Shall we fold our hands and seal our pocketbooks? We are sometimes told that if the Lord wants his work done he will find a way to accomplish it. Did it ever occur to you that the Lord has found you and given you his truth. He has witnessed your acceptance of his offer of salvation, and has entered you as one of his workers—his co-workers. If you have a right to expect him to fulfill his promises to you, then he has the same right to demand the promised service from you. You cannot reasonably expect God to be true to you, unless you are faithful to him. His work will simply not go on as it should unless you give your support. The Conference Board wants your presence at the meeting, so your council and advice can be given. They want the encouragement you can give. They want to know how much you can give the coming year, of time, talent and money, to carry forward the work. If you cannot be there then send a letter of greeting and a pledge of what you will give. Let everyone arouse and do the very utmost. The Coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

I. Justification by Faith.

Rom. v. 1.

Peace with God is the object to be achieved. Peace means harmony, reconciliation. We read in God's Word that Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Rom vii 14, We are sold under sin.

Rom v 10, By one man's disobedience many made sinners.

Rom v 12. All men are sinners.

Rom vi 23, Wages of sin is death.

Rom v 17, By one man's offence death reigned.

Jas i 14, Sin is obedience to desires of the flesh.

Gal v 14, These desires are selfishness.

Rom viii 6, This is carnally minded which is death.

Rom viii 7, Carnal mind at enmity against God, is disobedience, and so therefore has no peace.

Rom viii 8, They that are in the flesh cannot please God.

Heb xi 6, Without faith it is impossible to please God. Those in the flesh have no faith—faith needs works. With faith we please God—obtain peace and harmony.

Adam disobeyed (lack of faith) displeased God. Like begets like. We displease God, because by nature we inherit Adam's sin and disobey. By the exercise of our faith we please God and are justified.

To justify is to pardon, to clear of guilt. Two kinds: Justification in fact, and justification imputed.

Rom ii 13, The doers of the law shall be justified. This is by complete obedience.

Eccl xii 13, Fear God and keep his commandments—the whole duty of man. If Adam had done this he and we would have stood justified. He did not and we can not.

Rom iii 10 20, Unfortunately for man there are no doers of right. No flesh is justified by deeds of the law—none righteous, no not one.

Rom iii 21, All have sinned and come short of the glory of God therefore none justified in fact.

Eph ii 8, But by grace (God's favor) ye are saved through faith.

Eph ii 9, Not of works, lest any should boast; therefore justification is imputed to us.

Rom iii 24, We are justified through redemption in Christ Jesus.

Heb ix 22, We find a law of God—without shedding of blood there is no remission. Sacrifice or violent death necessary to shed blood. Our natural death does not fill God's law.

Ex xii 5, We find another law of God—Lamb to be offered—a male free from blemish. This man cannot do—even a sacrifice would not be acceptable. Man has no hope, and here we see God's mercy in providing a fit offering.

1 Pet i 19, Christ as a Lamb without blemish and without spot.

Heb iv 15, Tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin. Justification is thus effected for the transgressor by one who does what he himself cannot do.

Rom iii 25, This is accomplished, imputed, by our faith in his blood.

Justification is conditional, not absolute. Some take advantage of this and say, I am saved—the thing settled. Jesus saves me—Jesus paid it all.

If this be a debt, the above would be correct, and the debt once paid the creditor is satisfied, and you are not a debtor. This is not a debt but a crime. You might deliberately kill, your friend might offer to receive the punishment, but you are still guilty, still at liberty, and might kill again. Therefore to satisfy God a change of conduct is needed—reformation, commonly called conversion. Work for man, work in man.

What is faith? Faith is dependence upon the veracity of another.

Heb xi 1, Faith is the substance of things hoped for; the evidence of things not seen.

Rom viii 24, We hope for what we don't see, and thereby are saved by hope. We look back to fulfilled promises of God, then forward to those blessings promised, and we are as satisfied and confident that God will perform what he has promised as if already before our eyes and before our possession.

Let us take Abraham's case, father of the faithful.

Rom iv 8 18, He hoped against hope. He believed God and was accounted righteous—just. How do we know? He proved his faith, Gen xii 1 4, xxii 2 3. Abraham did things.

Jas ii 14, Faith without works is dead.

If Abraham is our example let us see how it works with us. When we read we are at enmity against, or have sinned against God. When we read that we can be baptized for the remission of the past sin, Acts ii 38, and we have faith enough in God's Word to do so, we are justified.

We are now passively just—where Adam was before he sinned. We are neither good nor bad—We have yet to form a character. It might be good or bad.

Therefore we are told to add to this faith (2 Pet i 5-7) virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly-kindness, charity. The addition of these prove our faith, just as Abraham proved his.

Rom iii says There is none good, no not one. How can we who are carnal produce these good works.

Gal iii 27, Those who have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ—are now a part of Christ.

John xv 5, Jesus says I am the vine and ye are the branches. We are not a natural branch, for we read in Eph ii 3, that by nature we are the children of wrath—therefore grafted. The sap of the Vine, his Spirit flowing through us, produces fruit of spirit—Gal v 23. This is in obedience to God's law, God's desire.

Phil ii 5, Let this mind be in you which was in Christ Jesus.

Rom viii 9, If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his.

Rom viii 1, No condemnation to those in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit. Then we have peace with God, through faith. We believe that by doing the things which God has commanded us to do, we will be justified, reconciled, and continued obedience is continued justification.

We continue with our flesh to fulfil the law of sin, Rom vii 24, but Christ as our High Priest, intercedes for us, and God looketh not upon the outward appearance, but on the heart, 1 Sam i 6 7.

THE OPERATION OF FAITH.

Gal iii 9, Those which are of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham.

Gen xii, Abraham and his seed are promised land for everlasting possession.

Gal iii 16, The seed is Christ.

Gal iii 29, [illegible]ized into Christ, and as part of h[illegible] are heirs also.

Heb vi 17, [illegible]ennut. It is over this land t[illegible]e is to reign as King of kin[illegible]ord of lords, Psa ii, Zech xiv 9, Dan vii 17, Isa ii 2. And as part of Christ, the saints justified, reign with him, Rev v 9, 1 Cor vi 2.

Eph vi 2-12. At one time we were aliens, foreigners, from the commonwealth of Israel.

Eph ii 19 Now fellow-citizens. How? By naturalization. But we cannot hold office until we swear allegience—the only way. We don't give an emigrant an office, in the U. S. He might be a spy, he must publicly renounce his country (loses his vote) and swear allegience to ours. This is what we do by baptism. Now subject to the laws of the kingdom of God. Can and will be punished for disobeying them. Will be rewarded for faithful obedience to them. Whence comes this faith? Through knowledge. Rom x 17.

Rom v 1 Faith justifies.
Acts xv 9 Faith purifies the heart.
Rom i 12 Faith comforts us.
Heb xi 30 Faith obtains for us a good report.
Eph vi 16 Faith affords protection.
Eph ii 8 Faith saves us.
Mark xi 22 Have faith in God.
Luke xvii 5 Increase our faith.
Jude 3 Earnestly contend for the faith.
Jas ii 5 The poor of this world, rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom.

GEORGE NEILL.

Selections.

Trouble.

Trouble is more frequently made than sent. If every person would take the world as it is—its joys and sorrows—and yield at once an humble reconciliation to what is unavoidable, there would be far more happiness, and infinitely less misery than there is. Six thousand years' experience ought to convince mankind that there are clouds here as well as sunshine, and the man who starts life with the expectation that everything before him will be smooth and uninterrupted, is a dreamer who knows nothing of the world's realities. Wealth cannot shield us from disappointment and affliction, and poverty is not as heavy on the heart as the cares brought on by the possession of uncounted riches.

We cannot keep death away from our door, no matter how faithful we may guard its portal; nor can we so control the mind and disposition of others that the most tender ties and associations are not at times snapped asunder. Let us take matters as they come, and try to be content. If we are prosperous, we should rejoice and give God the praise. If we fall in our enterprise and find our plans of business dwarfed and thwarted, let us submit coolly to the visitation, and try again, with renewed hope and effort. There is no use lamenting, when lamentations will do no good—or shedding tears, when they only tend to heighten our sorrows. The grave will soon cover our troubles, and there is a happy life beyond, which we can make our own, no matter how the world treats us.

Down the Hill.

The evening of every man's life is coming apace. The day of life will soon be spent. The sun, though it may be up in mid-heaven, will pass swiftly down the western sky, and disappear. What shall light up man's path when the sun of life is gone down? He must travel on to the next world; but what shall illuminate his footsteps after the nightfall of his journey? What question is more important, more practical, more solemn, for each reader of our journal to ask himself? That is a long journey to travel without a friend. Yet every man must perform it. The time is not far distant when all men will begin the journey. There is an evening star in the natural world. Its radiance is bright and beautiful, and cheering to the benighted traveler. But life's evening star is good hope. Its beauty and brilliancy are reflected from the Sun of Righteousness, whose bright rays light up the evening of life, and throw their radiance quite across the darkness of the grave into Immanuel's land. It has illuminated the footsteps of many a traveler to eternity. It is of priceless value. A thousand worlds cannot purchase it; yet it is offered without money and without price, to him who will penitently and thankfully receive it.

Pardon and Purity.

The sweet sense of pardon comes to the penitent sinner who has been convicted of his guilt in transgressing the divine law, and confessing his sins becomes justified through Jesus Christ. But there is something more than pardon which he now receives. He experiences a change in his desires, and no longer loves the vanities of the world, but delights in God. Herein is conversion, which takes away the love of sin and implants the love for divine things. His will is to do the will of his divine Master, and to pattern after him. His heart has been won away by the love of Jesus, who is the dearest object of his affections, in whose service he delights. He has been adopted into the family of God, whose son he is. Such is the experience of every truly regenerate heart.

But the enemy of all souls is busy, and is not willing to part with him without a struggle. Some sudden provocation comes up, and he feels angry. He suppresses the temptation to give vent in words to what he was tempted to say, and so is not guilty of any sin. But he feels that there is an inward inclination contrary to a state of purity, and occasionally he also feels the movings of pride and conceit. Then again he is the victim of unholy, satanic suggestions (and by the way, these latter may be made even to the saint). He longs for victory over his inward foes. With the Psalmist he cries: "Create in me a clear heart, O God." He looks to Jesus as the mighty to deliver, and now seeks purity through the blood of the Lamb, and prays that God may sanctify him wholly, body, soul and spirit. With appropriating faith, and entire consecration of his justified powers, he fully trusts in his Savior, who by his Holy Spirit gives the inward witness of purity. What a grand and glorious change! He triumphs over his inward foes, for they are all cast out. The pure love of God reigns supreme within, and though temptations assail him, they are all without. His is a perfect love. He is now a saint, a holy one.

Dear reader, this experience may be yours. It is for us all. Get where you will not have to repress sin, which like a venomous serpent raises his head to strike his poisonous fangs into you. Jesus is able and almighty to save. Do not be discouraged at past failures, for there is One who loves you with an everlasting love, and can save to the uttermost. Perfect love is a heaven below. I love purity for its own sake. The sound of holiness and entire sanctification thrills my soul with bliss. Would you know its richness? Consecrate fully your powers to God, and he will take absolute possession of his holy temple.

Surely those who look for the speedy return of Jesus should be a holy people. I love him with all my heart, and would delight to see his beauteous face. Sweet Savior, win us all to thee. Surcharge us with purest love both to thee and mankind. Make us daily more like thee, in perfect love and purity.—T. L. Waugh, in Crisis.

A Bad Habit.

None may estimate the power of a look, conveying either affection or reproof. A look from the tender eye of Jesus sent Peter, after denying his Lord, to weep bitterly. A gentleman cast a mild look of reproof on a young man who had taken the name of God in vain.

"I am sorry, sir," said the young man, "that I have wounded your feelings by any word I have spoken."

"I confess," was the reply, "that I can never hear that holy and blessed name profaned without deep pain. As my Benefactor and Friend, to whom I owe every blessing, I am jealous of the honor of God."

"I spoke, sir, without thought. I meant no harm."

"I believe it, my young friend; but your Creator requires you to be thoughtful of his honor and your duty to him. As thoughtlessness cannot justify, neither can it be an excuse for any sin."

"I see that I have done wrong, sir; will you pardon me?"

"I am glad to hear this frank confession;" and the gentleman held out his hand in a friendly way; "but the offence is against God. He alone can pardon. I have found him a merciful God, slow to anger and ready to forgive; and if you seek him through faith in Jesus Christ, forsaking every sin, you shall find mercy too." "Accept my thanks, sir, both for the matter and manner of your reproof. I will never swear again, nor take the name of the Lord in vain." "A good resolution, if made in humble dependence on the grace of the Holy Spirit of God for help and strength. Farewell."

Keeping Engagements.

A friend of mine was closeted with President Roosevelt, discussing a matter of much importance, when the private telephone bell rang. The president answered, and a boyish voice said, "Who is this?"

"It is the President."

"Is Archie there?"

"He is not here, but I think he is somewhere about."

"Well, he promised to come and play with me at 2 P. M., and now it is 3 P. M., and he has not come, and I am very much disappointed."

"I will look the mater up at once," said the man of affairs. He spoke with as much interest and determination as would have been manifested over any question of statecraft or public policy. Turning to the house telephone he soon located Archie, and said, "Did you have an engagement to meet a playmate at 2 P M; and, if so, why have you not kept it?"

"Oh, yes, I promised to meet one of the boys, but I forget all about it."

"Go to him at once, and apologize."

The president then gave his son a homily on the morality of keeping an engagement, something like this. Not to keep an engagement is to be guilty of a species of falsehood, and it should be as carefully avoided as any other variation from the truth. Charge your mind with the fact so that you will be in no more danger of forgetting it than you would be of forgetting any moral or religious duty. Such action is a great help in the development of a manly character. If you play fast and loose with these promises, you will lose the fine sense of duty, and undermine your whole character.

If you keep engagements as a boy, you will keep them as a man; if you are careless with them now, you will have to learn new principles, or be a failure in life. Never forget that honor and manliness require you to keep all your engagements or to make timely and adequate explanation.—L. L. Goodell, in Christian Endeavor World.

As the light which illuminates our atmosphere, and gives brightness to our dwellings, and vision to every eye, is from the sun, and is dependent on its rise and motion every day, so we and all our mercies, and all our strength, for every day and hour of our lives come from God and are dependent on him.

To Attain Long Life.

He who strives after a long and pleasant term of life must seek to attain continual equinimity and carefully to avoid everything which too violently taxes his feelings. Nothing more consumes the vigor of life than the violence of the emotions of the mind. We know that anxiety and care can destroy the healthiest body; we know that fright and fear, yea, excess of joy, become deadly. They who are naturally cool and of a quiet turn of mind, upon whom nothing can make too powerful an impression, who are not wont to be excited either by great sorrow or great joy, have the best chance of living long and happy after their manner. Preserve, therefore, under all circumstances, a composure of mind which no happiness, no misfortune, can too much disturb. Love nothing too violently; hate nothing too passionately; fear nothing too strongly.

Seeming Failures.

Recently a man prospecting in the mining regions of Arizona, found a remarkable natural bridge. It spans a canyon forty-five feet in width. It is made of a great agatized tree that lies across the gorge. Scientific men say that many ages since this tree was prostrated by some terrific storm and fell across the canyon. By the efforts of the water and of time it has passed through many stages of mineralization, and is now a wonderful tree of solid agate; and there it lies, making an agate bridge, over which men may pass from side to side.

This tree seemed to be a failure when that day, in its prime, it was broken off by the storm and buried to the ground; but instead of being a failure, to what nobler use could it have been put than thus to become a bridge of agate, to stand for ages, and on which countless human feet may walk across the chasm?

This fallen tree is an illustration of countless human lives which have fallen and seemed to fail, but which in time have proved to be bridges, over which others can walk to honor, success and triumph.

The Wheat and the Chaff.

"In going my rounds," says M. Forget, a French colporteur, "I happened to pass by a stack of wheat, some men were thrashing out with a steam-engine. I offered them my books; they looked at them and began to insult and mock me. Suddenly one of them said, 'Oh! I shall buy one, and you'll see the fun.' He took a Testament, tore it up, and stuck some of the leaves into the cylinder of the machine.

"It gave them a moment's pleasure to watch the leaves as they were passing through.

"But it so happened that there were two men waiting at the other side to receive the chaff; one of these men lifted up a leaf of my unlucky Testament, read a few verses, and exclaimed 'Well this must be a fine book, judging from what I have just been reading.'"

He called me, and bought one of my Bibles, to the great astonishment of his friends. That single leaflet of the New Testament will perhaps have helped a soul to pass by perdition to eternal life.—Gleanings.

Paragraphs.

Though charity may make your purse lighter one day, yet it will make it heavier another.

We spend half our lives in making mistakes, and waste the poor remainder in reflecting how easily we might have avoided them.

Unselfish and noble acts are the most radiant epochs in the biography of souls. When wrought in earliest youth they lie in the memory of age like the coral islands, green and sunny amidst the melancholy waste of ocean.

It is a sin of dark and terrible hue when men can spend lavishly on a feast, and turn their Savior as a beggar away from their door.

Robert Hall: A Christain should look upon himself as sacred and devoted For that which involves but an ordinary degree of criminality in others, in him partakes of the nature of sacrilege, what is a breach of trust in others, is in him the profanation of the temple.

If love and affection could be won with gifts and jewels, then indeed love would have its price; but it is not so. Affection springs from the heart only; no gifts can produce it. A child's love is won more truly by a parent's kind embrace and kiss than with glittering toys.

Poetry.

A Benediction.

"The Lord bless thee, and keep thee; the Lord make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace."—Num. vi. 24-26.

The Lord Almighty bless thee
From his own heavenly store;
The fullness of his presence
Be with thee evermore.
Exod. xxxiii. 14.

The God of glory keep thee—
Keep thee in perfect peace;
Leading thee bravely forward,
Till every conflict cease.
Isa. xxvi. 3, 4.

May his own arm be round thee,
And compass every side
Under his soft wing nestling
Mayst thou for aye abide.
Deut. xxxiii. 27; Psa. xci. 4

In blessing, may he bless thee,
Filled full to flowing over
With gifts from heaven above thee,
Both now and evermore.

Truth and Unity. No. 2

Now, the general gift of the Holy Spirit is not its plenary or sensational aspect, but by far its most important and widespread, because of most benefit and far-reaching results. It is the difference between a good physician, who can handle every ill, and his patients. In "the end," when all teaching shall have ceased, teachers will pass away, but the taught will endure forever! Even Christ will then rest in God. I know not what of "the Spirit of Truth" I possess, or what moves me to pen these lines and fall in prayer for the small communion to which I am attached with all my being; but I do know that it is not a desire to lead, or hear myself.

For, the point I hope to clinch here is unity. A unity that is possible. The unity of "all truth"—not in its fulness—but as it lays in the Word of God, and must be exhibited and believed, until "that which is in part shall be done away." We cannot have this unity if brethren express lack of confidence in it, or substitute for it a purely emotional makeshift. The ostrich has tried this method in vain. Unity has not been in the Christian communities because they wrested the Word and followed human fealties and feelings. Truth and unity were to be, can be, must be, in every age since Adam. If we may have one Truth, we may have "all truth," and vice versa. Truth is instantly discernable by its harmonious rest in the plain letter of the Word. If any one is disturbed, it is because "the man sticking in the skin," (as the Fenna, Dutch, say,) is uncrucified, and will is on top. We then wish for unity, but not the unity of truth. A good president of our great nation is considered to be one who has the constitution at his back. So a good teacher of sacred things is one backed by the Word of God.

There is no danger. For every soul may be perfectly protected from deception by using the "liberty" there is in Christ. Faith is not compulsion, or law, for this reason withdrawal from a Bible church connection is schism, unless most flagrant disorder is rife. To attain to Bible unity we want a mighty outpouring of the diffusive (lowest and sweetest) gift of the Holy Spirit—the spirit of love and prayer, and the widest liberality consistent with the great fundamentals of [redacted] greatest Teacher among men or in the heavens. The Bible unity is not for all. For whom it is, is a clear enough matter in the Word. The first striking word is, "A peculiar people," "Little flock," "Many called, few chosen." "Then, they that feared the Lord, spoke often one to another. They shall be mine, saith the Lord, in that day when I make up my special treasure." Observe that the "peculiar people" (Greek, a people "for a purpose, or work,") is "a chosen race; a royal priesthood, a holy nation." Not money lovers and lucre getters. The distinguishing feature is a "priesthood," or fidelity to the work of Christ among men. Unity is not a matter as between sects, but as between [redacted] members." So then, disunion (in the Bible sense) is a disruption between or in the Body. To be divided [redacted] ourselves is to "scatter abroad;" to be against Christ. "[redacted] who is not with Me, is against Me." Jesus is addressing his own followers.

So, it may be seen that the Unity of Truth is not an aggregate of certain concordant views, to the exclusion of all else, but a bond; a "bond of peace." "Whoever would be first among you, let him be your servant." In a communion where the line between the minister and the layman is very slender, it requires the finest perception to find one's place in Unity! No man ever labored more for doctrinal unity than did Paul, yet his words are, "If I speak with the tongues of men and angels but have not love, I become sounding brass and a noisy cymbal. If I have prophecy (I) and know all mysteries (I) and have faith enough to remove mountains (I) and have all knowledge (I) but have not love, I am nothing." Not the love of kindred or of one's own, but love of the brethren. "We know that we have passed from death into life, because we love the brethren." Truth does not come by the will of man, but unity is largely in the hands of men. Truth is not, "what is true?" but, what is of God? Pilate did not see this. He regarded Christ's attitude as one of claims, as, in Acts xvii 15, where Gallio takes the same stand. The Truth, as Jesus held it, was anterior to all this, by exhibiting to the vulgar human gaze the living embodiment of God's Word. A fact, To be seen and handled. Not a doctrinal chimera, or insolvable sophism, or dynastic pretense, but the comprehension of all destiny—of God. And the plain works of God were back of it. John xiv 11. Jesus' presence fixed God (in logic as well as in fact,) as a Being, and Christ as his Son. No man ever termed father hood, motherhood, and sonship, "doctrines," or "questions," but facts. There is no doctrine or question of procreation, life, death, and such, except as men choose to so head them for purposes of research. When the issues of Jesus' Sonship are studied, it must be as facts. These are truths ill merely understood and believed in the outline. If we can get beyond the outline, so much the better for our knowledge. We stand safer. But brethren [illegible] not sigh if some details continue be[illegible] hid them.

It is not so much the object of a good farmer to keep ahead of or rival his neighbors, as to get from his own ground the best he can by right methods and means. So, it is not the object or obligation of a Bible people to rival or watch other societies, but to bring out of its own particular soil all that is of God, and to hold that ground honorably among its members. This must involve an extensive study of the Bible and turn up many intricate situations. In Matt. xiii 52, Jesus says, "Every scribe" (writer,) "therefore, instructed in the kingdom of the heavens, is like a man, a householder, who brings out of his treasury things new and old." This man is an official, an owner. Read all the context. This "new and old" is not "ever learning and never able to come to a knowledge of the truth," nor is it a constant upsetting of old simple truths. The result of all growth will be many noxious weeds. These may be removed to advantage, even though harmless. They are weeds, after all. There can never be a loss of strength in a community which encourages the widest use of Bible study, though it may often take an untoward direction. God is back of his Word and purposes. Let us not be afraid the ark will fall if we do not catch it. Bible investigation in the popular, partialist, churches is well taken care of by noble bishops, synods and other sanhedrims and august bodies. It is their only security, and they know it!

The true use of the Bible, as set forth by Paul in 2 Tim ii 16, is, "All Scripture (is) inspired of God, and (is) profitable for teaching, for testing, for correction, for training in righteousness, so that the man of God may be complete and fitted for every good work." The Diaglott and all who take exception to the first "is," after "Scripture," are surely in error, as the second "is," before profitable, will show at once. Neither are in the Greek, but that is the true Greek form, and is, are, were, etc., are understood. There is need for some redaction in places, but not there. The same ellipsis is seen in Matt xxviii 19, where name is omitted, but clearly understood.

Finally, Unity is not, of necessity, agreement. Agreement solves. Unity holds together, only. Disagreement dissolves. Disunion separates. Truth and agreement are indivisible, but unity is the monitor; the bond of peace. Paul disagreed with Peter, but they were not disunited. Listen to Peter, "Our beloved brother Paul." The discussion of Bible truth cannot stumble any one seeking salvation in this or any age, for salvation is by faith, and faith is by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God. Those who are to be saved cannot be hindered by any human accident. The Lord added to the church daily such as were to be saved. To reconcile this kind of passage with warnings, not to stumble the weak, we must mark the clear distinction between the abortive work of the present age under a divided and fabulous church, and that of the true gospel age to be, when there shall be one flock and one Shepherd, with Israel working out her own salvation apart, according to the earthly promise to Abraham, prior to the New Heavens and the New Earth, and the descent of the Holy City, New Jerusalem, the Bride of the Lamb, and the final stroke to all earthly rule, forever. It is a subject hard for the human mind to grasp, while so much of the old orthodox leaven remains in the bosoms of good men. It is not an extensive subject, and the only one that will account for the gospel to be preached in the whole world, to every creature, and no one to preach it in nineteen centuries! This is not and never will be Israel's work, but the work of Christ and his body, the ecclesia. Matt xxi 43, 44. To these only is perfect unity, agreement and all truth possible in this age, because these only can bear and receive it. Eph iv 13, "For the perfecting of the saints for the work of service, into the building up of the body of Christ till we all attain to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, into a perfect man, into the measure of the stature and fulness of Christ." The whole chapter shows the divine plan and workings through prophets, apostles and ages for the perfecting of this body. It is too extensive to pursue further in this paper. Verse 18 is very clear, "Christ, from whom the whole Body, being fitly joined and compacted and nourished by every joint, according to an inward working for the upbuilding of itself in love."

These are clear marks of the kind of disciple who is to know the truth. "Examine yourselves, whether you are in the faith; prove your own selves. Jesus, speaking in his usual way, said, "Not all can receive this Word, but they to whom it is given. He who is able to receive it." The work of Israel and that of the present age ran along exactly similar lines, one foreshadowing the other. Both were wanderings, and retracings and circumlocutions, and both have failed in their first love. But, both are the church of God and must eventuate in the full hope of redemption when they shall both learn to their great cost what they lost and wherein they missed. They were both planted "a goodly vine," but became "degenerate plants," and wholly unfit for the great purpose of God. Israel, with all its defection, prepared the world for the Christ. The churches, with all their schisms and misnomers are preparing the paths of the Lord, and making known the name of the Lord. "Blindness in part," is the sufficient explanation. The presence (parousia) of the Lord and his body can only bring in universal Light. Till then every Bible truth must be heterodox and every error orthodox in the popular measures of men. "There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body" has more hidden in its inspired utterance than the mere allusion to the human frame. There is a natural, temporal church, and there is a spiritual ecclesia. "That was not first which was spiritual, but the natural; afterwards the spiritual."

To our body and THE RESTITUTION, this whole subject is of the utmost especial importance. One good brother touches upon the matter in Acts xv 14, which is the keynote to the special purpose of God in the present age. The exact duration of this age depends upon the maturity of the last member of that Body. But I can nowhere find any obligation resting upon the ecclesia of Christ to hasten or retard the coming of the Lord in any way. The day is fixed immutably. It is the Seventh Day Advent contention, but is little short of egotism and another clear lesson on the unity that cannot unite.

"Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the Word of the Lord may run and be glorified. And that we may be delivered from men out of place and vicious. Be joined perfectly together; be comforted; think the same, be at peace. And the God of love and peace will be with you."

The History of a [illegible]
Life.—No. 26.

It was in the spring, or early summer of 1858, that Auntie Willard spent a week visiting at our home, and at grandfather Chaplin's, whose place joined ours on the north. It was a delightful visit to all concerned. She and I roomed together and sometimes talked half the night. She was my Naomi and I was her Ruth. To me in my youth, there was no woman seemed so near to God as Auntie Willard, save perhaps my mother.

The meeting, usually held at grandfather's was held at our house during her visit, and Brother Willard was out. Our kitchen was a very large one and in that we met. A Miss Mary Shepherd, from Warsaw, who was teaching our school, was boarding at our house, at the time. I was fond of her and longed for her conversion, for she was infidel in sentiment. We sat on the great chest together during the meeting and how the tears rolled down her cheeks as Auntie Willard and grandfather talked! But she would not give up at the time and many a night after she left us, I sat up until midnight writing to her, and trying to convince her of the infallible nature of God's Holy Book. She was an orphan and went to Texas with her uncle and aunt who had brought her up, and marrying, became convinced of the falseness of her position through the teaching of her husband and gave herself to God.

Miss Shepherd's uncle was a Mr. William Morris, and a brother of his—a Mr. Isaiah Morris and wife, who belonged to the Baptist Church in Warsaw, were esteemed friends of Auntie Willard's from the time she first knew them until her death, and so much did they love her that they drove out a few months before the sad event took place that they might get from me some news as to her state though both are feeble and well past the four-score mark. You will remember that it was in 1858, that the Besack boys, my sister and young Mr. Wheeler were baptized. It must have been in July or August that the last meeting was held at grandfather's where so many were present, who were never to be in such a gathering again until God's kingdom comes, and his will is done on earth as it is done in heaven. The latter part of August I made a visit to [illegible] Willard home and found it [illegible]el, full of dear ones, whose home[illegible]ands their love was sheltering, and yet the large amount of work that such a family involved, was moved out of the way so smoothly and quietly that one scarcely realized it was being done. There was no fuss, no flurry made about it. Auntie Willard was a skilful General and knew just where to place her forces. I never saw such washings and ironings done in any home as were done there, and yet,—work was never allowed to infringe on the morning and evening seasons of prayer and praise.

Sister Beatty's little child was very sick while I was in Warsaw and I helped her in caring for it, though so nearly ill myself that I could scarcely sit up. I think it had the typhoid fever and that it did not recover. I had not been well for nearly a year and had only been home two weeks or thereabouts when I was taken down with the same dread disease in a form verging closely on typhus, and was unconscious almost from the first, until near the time of my recovery. Scarcely any one thought I would live when I was at the worst and my friends were nearly distracted with grief as they prepared the garments for my burial. But Father, dear father, came into my room, and closing the door against all intruders, anointed me with oil in the name of Jesus, and lifting up his voice in earnest prayer to God, asked that I might be spared to him awhile longer. I knew what he was doing and tried to pray for myself though oblivious to all else that was passing. His prayer was answered. I had been taken sick about the middle of September, and Johnny, the youngest of father's flock, whom Auntie Willard had named for John the Baptist, because he was so good, died the 15th of October, after but one week's illness.

People were frightened now. The house had been full the night that I was expected to die and almost every one present had taken the fever. No one was here to lay our darling out, and a man had to be called in who was passing by, who reluctantly assisted my sister to prepare the dear one for his last repose. The next day after Johnny's burial, my eldest brother, Byron, and my sister Ettie were stricken down,—mother and my second brother Virgil, being already in bed. It was hard to persuade Byron to give up. He was the stay and staff of his parents. He said, "Whoever goes to bed here, does not get up again." He died on the 11th of November, and father went a lone mourner, to see him buried. The next day a beautiful young cousin—a Miss Josephine Laing passed away, and while some of the friends were on the road going to Uncle Laing's home to assist them in their sorrow, a messenger was sent after them to bring them back,—young Mr. Lyman Wheeler, who lived at the home of my grandfather and Uncle William—having died after they started. Uncle William, his wife, and four children were all smitten, and his wife died.

Uncle Morse Chaplin and children were struck down by the dread pestilence and came near dying, as was also father's youngest sister and brother. Grandmother took the fever later on and died the last hour of the last day of 1858. For eight long weeks father never took off his clothes to go to bed at night.

But why do I tell all this? Because it belongs to Auntie Willard's story. She it was who, taking her life in her hands came to assist father in caring for his sick and dying children. She it was who bathed our brows and hands. (How good the water felt on our hands! I seem to feel it now.) She it was who gave us our tepid baths, and who soothed us in our delirium. I am weeping now as I think of her kindness.

She staid with us until word came that her second son, Lyman, was down with the dreadful fever, and even then, her great love and pity for us, found a way to help for on going home she sent her dear Nelson out. He was here when Byron, and our esteemed friend—Lyman died, and tried to comfort me by reading the illimitable story of Lazarus and his resurrection. He took the entire charge of Virgil, and succeeded with God's blessing in saving his life, though the Doctor in attendance thought he too, and all the rest of us must die, and fleeing home in his grief, would not come back.

Lyman Willard hovered for weeks between life and death, but ultimately got well.

Is it any wonder that I am trying in my poor way, to keep Auntie Willard's memory green? Is it any wonder that I hold in tender, grateful remembrance the name of Nelson Willard?

Editor Restitution:

Just got home from Rollins, Kan. where we held a very interesting meeting, with a fair attendance until Sunday evening when we had a full house and the people seemed interested.

Our annual yearly meeting will be held at the Colony, Rollins, Kan. on the Santa Fe Railroad, seven miles east of Chanute. Those coming on the St. L. & K. R. R. change cars at Walnut, Kan. Those coming on the Southern Kansas stop at Chanute, and take the Santa Fe to Rollins. It will begin Friday evening, Oct 19, to continue over Sunday. We are expecting T. J. Daniel, of Arkansas, and Brothers Oliver and Williams, and all others who possibly can. Come and give us your help, and see the Colony town site, and enjoy yourselves with us poor pilgrims journeying towards the promised land. We have made arrangements to take care of all that come. You need not expect to get pay in dollars and cents, as all are poor in this world's goods. There is not a cent in the treasury, but if the brethren think so, there could be a plenty paid in before the meeting.

Let us wake up and do something. Send money to D. A. Renner, route 3, Chanute, Kan. Those coming write to Delos Johnson or D. A. Renner at Chanute. Come and see the place we might have for a good quiet colony of good thinking Christians.

By order of the Church.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trust-worthy.

A Cheerful Home.

A single bitter word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day. One surly glance casts a gloom over the household, while a smile, like a gleam of sunshine, may light up the darkest and weariest hours. Like unsuspected flowers, which spring up along our path, full of freshness, fragrance, and beauty, so do kind words and gentle acts, and sweet dispositions, make glad the home where peace and blessing dwell. No matter how humble the abode, if it be thus garnished with grace and sweetened with kindness and smiles, the heart will turn longingly toward it from all tumults of the world, and home, if it be ever so homely, will be the dearest spot beneath the circuit of the sun.

And the influences of home perpetuate themselves. The gentle grace of the mother lives in the daughter long after her head is pillowed in the dust of death, and fatherly kindness finds its echo in the nobility and courtesy of sons who come to wear his mantle and to fill his place; while, on the other hand, from an unhappy, misgoverned and disordered home, go forth persons who shall make other homes miserable, and perpetuate the sorrowness and sadness, the contentious, and strifes, and railings which have made their own early lives so wretched and distorted.

Toward the cheerful home the children gather "as clouds and as doves to their windows," while from the home which is the abode of discontent and strife and trouble, they fly forth as vultures to rend their prey.

The class of men that disturb and disorder and distress the world are not those born and nurtured amid the hallowed influences of Christian homes; but rather those whose early life has been a scene of trouble and vexation—who have started wrong in the pilgrimage, and whose course is one of disaster to themselves, and trouble to those around them.

The Queen of All.

Honor the dear old mother. Time has scattered the snowy flakes on her brow, plowed deep furrows on her cheeks, but is she not sweet and beautiful now? The lips are thin and shrunken, but those are the lips that have kissed many a hot tear from childish cheeks, and they are the sweetest lips in all the world. The eye is dim, yet it glows with the soft radiance of holy love which can never fade. Ah, yes, she is a dear old mother. The sands of life are nearly run out, but feeble as she is, she will go further and reach down lower for you than any other upon earth. You can not walk into a midnight where she cannot see you; you can not enter a prison whose bars will keep her out; you can never mount a scaffold too high for her to reach that she may kiss and bless you in evidence of her deathless love. When the worldshall despise and forsake you, when it leaves you by the wayside to die unnoticed, the dear old mother will gather you in her feeble arms and carry you home and tell you of all your virtues until you almost forget that your soul is disfigured by vices. Love her tenderly and cheer her declining years with holy devotion.

True Solace.

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

Ah, ye weary ones, who have been toiling all the night without success, who have been borne down by opposition, oppression, scorn and derision—ready to fall down and exclaim, "Lord, my punishment is greater than I can bear," take comfort at these words. However erring, however far your feet have strayed, your Elder Brother's gentle voice is always calling "come." How kind, how thoughtful, to leave such loving words behind to comfort his "little ones," while he has gone to "prepare a place for them." None knew better than he to what temptations you would be subjected. Himself a man of sorrows—acquainted with grief. He knew the comfort of praying to his Father, and desired that you should know the same. Then do not give up, though the waters be oft so heavy, and the wind contrary. Stick to your oars, ever praying, "Strengthen me, O my Lord," and you will master the tide. Jesus himself will guide you into the everlasting harbor. Cheer up Christian, howsoever old, or new, or sorrowful, God has said, "I will give you rest." Heavenly promise.—V. V. V.

Announcement.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in the State of Indiana, will be held at Hillisburg, Clinton Co., Ind., commencing Oct. 17, and continuing over the following Sunday. It is desired that each congregation throughout the state be represented. Let as many isolated believers be present as possible. We have important business to arrange and we need your council. Come in the spirit of the Master that we may exhort one another to love and good works.

Hillisburg is on the L. E. & W. R.R. east from Frankfort, and west from Tipton, Ind. All persons who expect to attend will please notify Brother Wm. Huffer, Michigantown, Indiana, that arrangements may be made for their comfort. Let all who can come. Come with a message of Hope and Love, and God will bless our meeting.

J. H. Willey, Pres. Ind. Con.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Michigan will convene Oct. 25 to 27 inclusive, in Brady Township, Brother Alfred Harper's neighborhood.

The brethren here have asked for this meeting, gratify them by being present, then, too, it is very necessary that you be there for there are plans to be made for next year, that you must help make. Do you know brethren, that the next Annual Conference will be our 50th, or Jubilee Year? Shall we make it a time of much good and rejoicing, by having a longer session than usual? Shall we have a Bible School the week before, week after, or each afternoon during the session?

These questions which have been suggested by interested parties, will be talked over and some decision made.

Be sure and be present. If it is impossible for many to attend from each church, talk these matters over at the home church and send a delegate with your decision, but come if possible.

Those coming from north and south come to Vicksburg over the Grand Rapids and Indiana road. From the east and west take Grand Trunk to Vicksburg. Teams will meet all trains on Friday and carry passengers to place of meeting. All try and come Friday, as the meeting is about seven miles from Vicksburg and we do not want to make the brethren extra travel.

Mary A. Woodward, Sec'y.

The sixth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Christ Jesus, in southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah, Ill. October 17 to 21 inclusive.

We invite all to come, and come filled with the love of God. Never mind the things of the world for awhile and let us have the best time that Moriah ever had. Moriah is eight miles from Casey, south. All parties coming to Conference will stop at Casey, and we will furnish conveyance to the church.

Every body come the first day and stay until it closes. All parties write and tell us what day to meet them at Casey. It would be best for all to get to Casey by 3 P. M., then all could get to church in due time.

Everybody come and bring some body with them and a smile on their faces and a big heart filled with love, and we will try to make you happy.

The preachers will be S. J. Lindsay and L. E. Conner, and others expected. Board, bed and transportation from and to the station, all free, come one and all.

Address all communications to Lewis Weaver, Casey, Ill. R. R. No. 3, Box 31.

By Order of the Board.

B. J. Woods, Vice. Pres.
Lewis Weaver, Treas.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Will all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. B. Robinson will in future be 866 West Main St, Salem, O.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

Indiana State Conference.

October 17 to 20, is the date of the coming Indiana State Conference, to be held at Hillisburg.

This will be the third Conference held at this point in recent years and if this compares with the two previous ones we can assure the visitors of a royal welcome and hospitable treatment at the hands of the Clinton County brethren.

The Programme Committee is preparing what will prove to be the best spiritual entertainment ever presented at a Conference, and as soon as details are arranged will make same public.

At the business sessions the following subjects will be considered:—

1. Election of Officers.
2. Election of Evangelical Committee.
3. The advisability of placing two Evangelists in the State next year.
4. Ways and means whereby we can promote the financial and spiritual welfare of the Church of God in this State.
5. The future of our State Bible School and our State Bereans, and other important topics.

President Willey urges that each of the fourteen churches be represented by delegates who can give a statement as to the financial, numerical and spiritual condition of the community. Whether delegated or not, whether members of a local church or isolated, come to the Conference. Come prepared to give good and to receive good.

Hillisburg is situated on the Lake Erie & Western Railway, between Frankfort and Tipton. Arriving at either Frankfort or Tipton you can make connections with the L. E. & W. both east and west. Those who live on the Clover Leaf route can go direct to Michigantown where you will be met by brethren.

All who come, write if possible to Wm. Huffer, Michigantown, Ind., Rt. 1. He will arrange for your comfort.

Programme Committee.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in The Restitution some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Bible Themes.

Is the title of the last book issued by Brother John O. Woodruff on miscellaneous subjects, both original and selected. This book contains 480 pages and cost the author $1.25 to issue. A quantity has been supplied us, and we wish to get them into the hands of readers, and offer them at 80 cents each, post paid, while they last.

Scriptures Opened.

This a book of 370 pages written by Robert Ashcroft, and is a book of thoughts and themes for Bible Students. We have a few copies only, and first come—first served. This book sold for $1.25, but we offer what we have for 80 cents, post paid.

When you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "The Restitution," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

The Orthodox Jew Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Evangelizing Notice.

The N. W. Conference has selected me again as Evangelist. The brethren have added Arizona, and California to my field of labor. Any church or isolated brethren that want meetings during the Conference year should correspond with me at an early date so I can plan my year's work for this extensive territory which now includes western Oregon, Washington, California and Arizona.

Hereafter my home will be Scholls, Oregon, and Address, W. L. Skeels, R. D. 1, Laurel, Oregon.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Believing, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Rob[illegible] Huggins, Box G, Oregon, Ill.

A four-page tract in the German language, by Brother M. Joblin of Cleveland, O. Subject, "What Must I do to be Saved?" After getting the opinion of one who understands this language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to M. Joblin, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

NOTICE.

Information wanted concerning an Evangelist known as Blind Haynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Address, E. P. Woodward, Westbrook, Maine.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

The talents differ, and each one will be held accountable for the use of such talent, whatever that may be. If you have only one, use that.

Some one says, what can I do? Why you can circulate literature reaching the truth if nothing else. There is no one but who can do that. Will that do any good? Oh, yes, Let me tell you something. Some people have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. It would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us about [illegible] give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. Daniel.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerely will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as preparation for final salvation.

Poetry.

Calm.

I stand upon the mount of God,
With sunlight in my soul;
I hear the storms in vales beneath,
I hear the thunders roll.
But I am calm with thee, my God,
Beneath these glorious skies;
And to the height on which I stand
No storm cloud can arise.
O this is life! O this is joy!
My God to find thee so;
Thy face to see, thy voice to hear,
And all thy love to know.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 26.

Other friends were as good and as brave as Auntie Willard in the time of our affliction, and notably among these was father's eldest sister—Mrs. Nancy Royce, who is still living at the age of 94 years. She did not take the fever, and leaving her little ones in the care of her eldest daughter, came to us day afterday, to watch with and nurse the sick not only at our home, but also at the homes of her other sad-hearted relatives, walking to and fro a distance of four miles. Her husband was equally good. Then the Good Templars Lodge sent its members two and two to sit up of nights; so we were not forsaken, and God was good and comforted us through his precious Word. Our beloved ones were dead, but God was able to make them alive again. A hand pointing to the words, "Behold he Cometh," is on their tombstones, at the suggestion of Auntie Willard, and for that day we patiently wait.

It was during [illegible] of this dreadful sickness that [illegible] had a dream so remarkable in [illegible] as almost to rival the dreams of the prophets of old. I cannot give the exact date but think it was the night that Johnny died. Father had thrown himself down to rest on a little pallet on the floor and kindly watchers had taken his place in the rooms of the sick. He soon fell asleep and dreamed that a tall majestic being came marching down the lane bearing a drum upon which with one hand he played a marching air, and with another kept up a mournful tolling, like the tolling of a bell. Having reached the gate, he halted, and looking, father saw that he was at the head of a funeral procession, in which countless numbers of coffins stretched back as far as the eye could reach.

In the brief pause at the gate, this awesome, and perchance, angelic visitor, ceased playing, and lifting up his voice, cried in fearful tones,—"WOE! WOE! WOE!" to the people of the land, because of iniquity." His message delivered he marched on and vanished, and father woke, impressed as he had never been before by a dream. He at once related it to the watchers, and they too thought it a remarkable vision, and as they wended their way homeward, questioned each other as to its probable meaning.

It was near morning when the watchers left, and Johnny soon after complained to father, that "he was so cold." Warm comfortables were heaped upon him; warm irons were placed at the icy feet, his hands were chafed with tender hurried touch, his grandparents were sent for, but alas! the first coffin of the herald-angel's procession, was to be Johnny's—that of "the good little boy," whom Auntie Willard had named and whom she had bidden father and mother "to hold on to lightly,"—for the coldness of which he had complained, was the coldness of death! Daybreak was scarce tinging the east, when he fell asleep no more to wake till Jesus comes.

"This is but the first," father said, referring to his dream; "there will be others," and as one after another, our dear ones fell under the hand of death, he would say, "There are not enough yet; still others of our kindred must follow these; and, if I know just how many tolling strokes were beaten on that drum I could tell how many."

Father was also sure that a terrible time of trouble was coming upon our country, as indeed there did in the War of the Rebellion. Johnny died Oct. 15, 1858, and on Dec. 17, 1860 South Carolina seceded from the Union, and by the 1st of Feb. 1861 six other states—Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Texas had followed, and "the Country," says Mr. Ridpath," seemed on the verge of ruin." "The army was on remote frontiers—the fleet in distant seas. With the exception of Forts Moultrie, Sumter, Pickens and Monroe, all the important posts in the seceded states had been seized by the Confederate Authorities."

The whole land was shrouded in gloom, as Buchanan withdrew from the President's chair, and Lincoln was ensconced in his place, for the United States Government "was now involved in a death-struggle for its own existance."

Scarce eighteen months had passed away after father had had his dream, when the first general movement of the war took place, by the advance across the Potomac to Alexandria, of an army of volunteers from Washington City. The war went on for four dreadful years, and the countless coffins seen in the dream were fulfilled. "Death and mourning" had come, but one giant iniquity—that of slavery,—had been swept away. Must other "woes" follow to fulfill the dream?

There is a "woe" pronounced upon "him that giveth his neighbor drink." This is another "iniquity," that involves not alone the southern half, but the whole of our nation. We are all alike guilty before God, because we make it legal "to put the bottle to our neighbor's lips."

AUNTIE WEST.

First Principles of the Oracles of God.

The things concerning the kingdom of God.

The gospel preached by Jesus when on earth had reference to the kingdom of God. Mark i 14, Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God. This needs no explanation, as it is plain so any one can see.

Verse 15 says, And saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand, repent ye and believe the gospel. This is not quite so plain as the gospel of the kingdom of God is, and needs a little explanation to be plain to a new beginner.

In several instances the form of this proclamation is in these words, The kingdom of God is at hand; or to be critically correct—has approached. This cannot mean, as will afterwards appear, that the time had come to establish the kingdom, for it is not yet established. It can only mean that it came nigh in the first appearing of Christ. The proclamation that it had approached was confined to his personal ministration in the days of his flesh.

We never find that the apostles made use of this form of proclamation after his ascension. In what sense had the kingdom come nigh, or approached when Christ appeared? In two senses: He brought near the kingdom for offer as an inheritance. The kingdom had never before been preached. The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached. Luke xvi 16.

Second, Jesus himself was the kingdom in the germ, Mark xi 10, Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, which cometh in the name of the Lord. He was the little stone destined to become a great mountain to fill the earth.

The original word, basilea, translated kingdom, has this comprehensive significance in its secondary sense. Parkhurst gives this as royal power, majesty, kingly dignity. Jesus the manifestation of God's power, which was afterwards to bloom into universal political administration, was among the people, had approached, and brought the offer of the kingdom with him.

Parkhurst further says, The Kingdom of heaven, or the heavens, is a phrase of Matthew's, for which all the other evangelists use The kingdom of God. Compare Mat iv 17 with Mark i 14, and Mat xix 14 with Mark x 14; Mat xi with Luke vii 28; Mat xiii 11 Mark iv 11, Luke xvii 11. Both expressions refer to the prophecies of Daniel—Dan ii 44; vii 13 14—Greek Lexicon.

Unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans write, These things saith the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God. My first witness is Jesus. Mat iv 17 2nd, From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness among the people.

Luke iv 43, And he said unto them, I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also, for therefore am I sent.

Luke vii 1 2, Then he called his twelve disciples together, and gave them power and authority over all devils. And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick.

Luke viii, And it came to pass afterward, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God; and the twelve were with him.

Additional testimony may be found in Mat ix 35; vi 33; xiii 19; Luke ix 2 11; xiii 28.

The gospel preached by the apostles had reference to the same thing—the kingdom of God. When they believed Philip, preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.

Now Jesus has twelve chosen witnesses, to confirm what he had preached, and what he had heard of his Father. Hear him, For all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you. John xv 15.

Paul as a witness comes next. Hear him, Acts xviii 8, And he went into the synagogue and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God.

Again in Acts xxviii 30, And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

One more time—Acts xx, And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more. Paul was a witness, but born out of due time. A witness to the Gentiles. Acts xxvi. Paul was a ringleader of the Phatisees, binding men and women, and imprisoning them; and even stood by when Stephen was stoned to death. Truly might he called a murderer; hostile against them that believed that Jesus Christ was the Son of the living God. Acts ix. Ananias was afraid of Paul. Hear what God said to Ananias, verse 15, But the Lord said unto him, Go thy way, for he is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel. Acts xxii 15. For thou shalt be his witness unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard.

Next, What is this kingdom? The answer derived from the following testimonies is a Divine political dominion, to be established on earth, with the object of upsetting and superceding all existing governments, and bringing the world into subjection to God.

What constitutes a kingdom, and how many elements to an organized kingdom? Six elements:

1, A king—the Lord Jesus.
2, Territory—the earth.
3, A capital—Jerusalem.
4, Subjects—the nations.
5, Law—goes forth from the capital.
6, Subordinate officers.

And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever. Dan ii 44.

And I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the heathens—nations. Hag ii 22.

And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying The kingdoms of the world are become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever. Rev xi 15.

I saw in the night visions, and behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of Days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages should serve him. His dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed.

1 Cor xv, For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. And the Lord shall be King over all the earth; in that day shall there be one Lord, and his name one. Zech xiv 9.

Ask of me and I will give thee the heathen (nations) for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession—Psalm ii 8; Rev i 25-29.

Rev xix 11, And I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he does judge and make war. His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; he had a name written, that no man knew but he himself. And he was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood, and his name is called The Word of God. (The same was in the beginning with God. And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon the white horse, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. (The overcomers.) And out of his mouth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations. And he shall rule them with a rod of iron, and he treadeth the wine-press of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God. And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, King of kings, and Lord of lords.

This purpose of Jehovah to establish a universal kingdom on earth, wit. Christ as its head, has a connection with God's past dealings with the nation of the Jews. This connection must be understood before the bearing of God's purpose in the future can be clearly understood. To assist in the attainment of this understanding, we affirm the following facts:

The kingdom of God has already once existed, being the typical kingdom of Israel, divinely constituted under the hand of Moses, existed 3000 years or more ago, in the land of Palestine. Ex xix 6. Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people; for all the earth is mine. And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the Lord commanded him. And all the people answered together, and said, all that the Lord hath spoken we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the Lord. Thus the covenant was made between God and the children of Israel—conditionally. If ye obey my voice.

Paul is my next witness. Acts xiii 16, Then Paul stood up, and beckoning with his hand said, Men of Israel, and ye that fear God give audience. The God of this people of Israel chose our fathers, and exalted the people when they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and with an high arm brought them out of it. And about the time of forty years suffered he their manners in the wilderness. And when he had destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, he divided their land to them by lot. And after that he gave to them judges about the space of 450 years, until Samuel the prophet. And afterward they desired a king; and God gave unto them Saul the son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the space of forty years. And when he had removed him, he raised up unto them David to be their king; to whom also he gave testimony, and said, I found David the son of Jesse, a man after mine own heart, which shall fulfil all my will. Of this man's seed hath God according to his promise, raised unto Israel a Savior, Jesus.

Read 1 Sam viii 1-7: And the Lord said unto Samuel, Hearken unto the voice of the people in all that they say unto thee; for they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me, that I should not reign over them. They rejected the Lord, their own king, and instead thereof wanted an earthly king, as other nations had.

Let me digress a little, and call your attention to the time when the Lord comes to reward his servants. Luke xix 17, But those mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring them hither, and slay them before me.

Now go back to 1 Samuel, but they have rejected me, that I should not reign over them. Now, therefore, hearken unto their voice; howbeit yet protest solemnly unto them, and show the manner of the king that shall reign over them. And Samuel told all the words of the Lord unto the people that asked of him a king. Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, Nay, but we will have a king over us.

See verses 20-22, And the Lord said to Samuel, Hearken unto their voice, and make them a king. And Samuel said unto the men of Israel, Go ye every man unto his city.

Chap ix 1, Now there was a man of Benjamin whose name was Kish, the son of Abiel, the son of Zeror, the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphiah, a Benjamite, a mighty man of power. And he had a son, whose name was Saul, a choice young man, and a goodly; and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he; from his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people.

Verse 15, Now the Lord had told Samuel in his ear a day before Saul came, saying, Tomorrow about this time, I will send a man out of the land of Benjamin; and thou shalt anoint him to be Captain (or King Deliverer) over my people Israel, that he may save my people out of the hand of the Philistines; for I have looked upon my people, because their cry is come up unto me.

Notwithstanding they rejected the Lord, and would not have him to reign over them, he still had a deep love for them.

Verse 17, And when Samuel saw Saul, the Lord said unto him, Behold the man whom I spake to thee of; this same shall reign over my people. Read on.

Chapter x 1, Then Samuel took a viol of oil, and poured it on his head, and kissed him, and said, Is it not because the Lord hath anointed thee to be captain (king) over his inheritance?

But this was Samuel's king; a very disobedient king, and one that was a very hard taskmaster, just as Samuel had told them.

Then the Lord sent Samuel to the house of Jesse to anoint a king of the Lord's Christ.

1 Sam xvi 4, And Samuel did that which the Lord spake, and came to Bethlehem; and the elders of the town trembled at his coming, and said, Comest thou peaceably? And he said, Peaceably. I am come to sacrifice unto the Lord; sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Jesse and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice. And it came to pass when they were come, that he looked on Eliab, and said, Surely the Lord's anointed is before him. But the Lord said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him; for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart. O, what a lesson for us to pattern after.

Verse 8, Then Jesse called Abinadab and made him pass before Samuel: and he said, Neither has the Lord chosen this. Then Jesse made Shammah to pass by. And he said Neither hath the Lord chosen this.

Again Jesse made seven of his sons to pass before Samuel; and Samuel said unto Jesse, The Lord hath not chosen these. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and behold, he keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Send and fetch him, for we will not sit down till he come hither.

And he sent and brought him in. Now he was ruddy, and withal of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look to. And the Lord said, Arise and anoint him, for this he. Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren; and the spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward. So Samuel rose up and went to Ramah.

2 Sam viii, Now therefore, so shalt thou say unto my servant David, Thus saith the Lord of hosts, I took thee from the sheepcote, and from following the sheep, to be ruler over my people, over Israel.

Verses 9-13, And when thy days be fulfilled, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish thy kingdom. He shall build an house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom.

Psa lxxxix 27, Also I will make him my firstborn, higher than the kings of the earth. My mercy will I keep for him forevermore, and my covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips.

Verses 35 36, Once have I sworn by my holiness, that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever and his throne as the sun before me.

This article is written for the young, babes in Christ, so I will let the prophets, Christ and the apostles, furnish the most of the teaching. It will not hurt the older children to use a little of this milk of the word.

Paragraphs.

Matthew Henry: I reckon him a Christian indeed who is neither ashamed of the gospel nor a shame to it.

To think kindly of each other is good; to speak kindly to each other is better; but to act kindly one towards another is best of all.

The earnest men are so few in the world that their very earnestness becomes at once the badge of their nobility; and as men in a crowd instinctively make room for one who seems eager to force his way through it, so mankind everywhere open their ranks to one who rushes zealously toward some object lying beyond them.

Education is a companion which no misfortune can depress, no crime can destroy, no enemy can alienate, no despotism enslave; at home, a friend; abroad, an introduction; in solitude, a solace; and in society, an ornament. It chastens vice, it guides virtue, it gives at once, grace and government to genius; without it, what is man? A splendid slave, a reasoning savage.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

REMEMBER the Conferences that are being advertised for this month. All who possibly can do so ought to attend these meetings. Your counsel is needed. If you find that you cannot go, then be sure that you are represented by some one authorized by the local church to which you belong. If you are isolated and cannot attend, send a letter of greeting and a pledge for what you will do for the Master's cause. If you ever intend doing for Christ, do it now, tomorrow is not yours.

IT is well to keep posted as affairs regarding Russia unfold, for the relation of this power with other world powers will effect the Jews, and the development of conditions that are to exist in the future. When Russia and Japan had their war, England made an agreement with Japan by which each was to safeguard the other from outside interference. At the time this was greatly to the advantage of England, as in case Russia saw fit to attack British interests in India, she would have to deal with Japan as well. Later the designs of Japan and her attitude toward other nations, especially the United States, has in a manner compromised England, and Japan has made capital of this alliance to further her schemes. It became a problem with England just how to counteract this, and at the same time not break faith with Japan. Last week England and Russia —natural enemies as they are—came to an agreement which is styled "genuinely self-denying on both sides." It removes for some time at least, the danger of a clash between these two powers in Asia, and guaranteed peace there for the present. Thus England has bound to her policy both Japan and Russia, and her close relations with France, Spain and Italy, leaves Germany the only power who can for the present cause any menace to the general harmony of nations. This looks good, for with all of Europe opposed to Japanese aggression, she can do very little to embroil nations, and with the "Peace Conference" working for pacification and quiet, the danger of any thing like a general conflict seem remote. The student of prophecy, while making note of this state of affairs, will not be lulled into slumber. We know that Russia has not changed her policy—has not reformed. The same ends she has aimed at for years are still the apple of her eye. Her recent chastisement by Japan has made it necessary for her to have a period of rest, to settle internal troubles and gather strength for another advance. Accordingly she agrees with England for the time being to take no steps that will cause friction. Do not be deceived by any peace talk, for what has been written by the prophets concerning the destiny of Russia, and of England, will surely come to pass. When men say "Peace and safety" then "sudden destruction cometh upon them." This is only a "sign of the times," showing us where we are on the journey to the Promised Land. As we note these signs let us take courage, knowing that our God is directing and guiding all the affairs of men, and his end will be attained in his own good time.

As straws cast into the air show the way the wind blows, we give the following report of a meeting held at Ft Wayne, Ind., Sept. 28.

Bishop Walter Sellew of Jamestown, N. Y., who has been presiding at the Free Methodist conference for northern Indiana, which closed with religious services today, greatly excited the members of the local Free Methodist church here by a sermon predicting the end of the world within a few months. He did not mean, he said, that the planet was to be destroyed, but that all the works of man were to be swept away and Christ was to come a second time to rebuild it and make it a fit place for the dwelling of the Holy Spirit.

The bishop minced no words in describing the certainty of destruction by flames to those who do not repent. He gave four reasons for his belief that the end of the world is near.

First—The conditions are now similar to those that prevailed when Christ was born, men have set up false gods.

Second—The strain upon matter has reached the breaking point.

Third—The savants of the world who study the Bible have gained an insight into the future, and, while they may not publicly acknowledge that the end is near, they are themselves making ready for it.

Fourth—The time is at hand when the Word of God will soon have penetrated to the remotest races and the prophecy fulfilled that the gospel will be preached to every human soul on earth.

The bishop and his wife, the latter being a former missionary, have just returned from a tour of the world, and the bishop said he spoke from actual knowledge.

A QUESTION in regard to the Sunday School lesson notes was referred to Brother Neill, and he sends the following:

The question has been asked, and it is a fair question, Why does Moses say he was not allowed to enter the land promised to Abraham, yet he died on Nebo, in the land? A careful reading will show that he was not debarred from setting his foot on the land, but that he would not have the satisfaction of going in with the tribes and seeing them possess it. This seems fully proved by a few words in Deut xxxi 2. "Thou shalt not go over this Jordan." Again The full promise to Abraham included Nebo. Gen xv 18. The special promise—we will say—was the land of Canaan, (Gen xii 6-7, between the Mediterranean sea and the river Jordan. There is more testimony to confirm this conclusion.

Communicated.

Mr C. and Mr. R.

The following conversation took place between Mr. R. and Mr. C. who were warm personal friends. Mr. C. is a believer in a Pentecost kingdom, Mr. R. in the Bible truth of the future kingdom of God. Mr. R. stepped into Mr. C.'s store in the town of V, near the middle of the week. After the usual greetings Mr. C. said, Friend R., I want to ask you a question. On the last Lord's day in connection with the communion service our pastor Bro. X, read the following Scriptures. I say unto you I will not drink henceforth of the fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it anew with you in my Father's kingdom. Matt xxvi 29. What does our Savior mean in this text? Mr. R., Friend C., I think he means just what he says, that he will drink it again with them in his Father's kingdom. Why not? Mr. C. Well, our pastor came into my store on the following day and I asked him what it meant and he said; I have not thought much about it, I will look it up. An hour afterward Bro. W. one of our preachers came in and I asked him what he thought of it. His answer was I do not know. This text has been a puzzle to me. Bro. F. another of our ministers came in and I stated the same to him. He thought it might have a spiritual meaning. Now friend R. give me your idea of the teaching of this Scripture. Mr. R, This is one of the many texts that teaches the literality of the kingdom of God. Mr. C. Do you think that the kingdom of God spoken of in the New Testament is to be a literal kingdom? Mr. R., Yes, I cannot conceive of any other kind of a kingdom. Mr. C. I am inclined to believe that the kingdom of God spoken of is the church and was established on the day of Pentecost. Mr. R. Well, friend C. if this position be true we may use the words church and kingdom interchangeable in texts where the words occur, may we not? Mr. C. Yes, I think so. Mr. R. Let us try this in a few texts. Fear not, little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give to you the kingdom. Do you think, friend C, it will read well to say, "It is your Father's good pleasure to give you the church? Again, then the king shall say to those on his right inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. Now, let us read it church instead of kingdom. Inherit the church, etc. John iii 3, Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God. How will it sound to read it, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the church. One more text and we think you will see the fallacy of your position. 1 Cor xv 50, Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God. Now, friend C, are you ready to believe that you have no flesh and blood in your church? Or that we in our flesh and blood state cannot see the church? Mr C, Well, it seems that these words are not the same in meaning, but is this all the proof you have? Mr R No. All Greek scholars will tell you that the words church and kingdom are translated from two different Greek words. The word church comes from the Greek word ecclesia and Mr Alex Campbell renders it congregation. The church is an ecclesiastical body. The word kingdom is rendered from the Greek word Basileia and is or will be a political body. A kingdom must have a king, associate rulers, territory, laws and subjects. Mr C, Do you mean to say that God will have in the future a literal kingdom on this earth? Mr R That is just what the Scriptures teach. Mr C, You mean the New Testament Scriptures, don't you? Mr R No, as the New Testament was not in use when Jesus used the language you referred to in Matt xxvi 34. Mr C You don't mean to say that we must believe the Old Testament Scriptures do you? Mr R Most assuredly I do, why not? Mr C I have always thought that when Christ died or was crucified that the old Scriptures were fulfilled, My R I wish to correct you on this point.

In Luke xxiv 25 to 28 we read. Then he [Christ] said unto them, O fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken. Ought not Christ to have suffered these things and to enter into his glory? And beginning at Moses and all the prophets he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself. In Acts viii 35. Then Philip opened his mouth and began at the same Scriptures and preached unto him Jesus. In the 32 verse we learn that the Scriptures here referred to is the 53rd chapter of Isaiah. In Acts xxviii 23, There came many to him (Paul) into his lodgings; to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God persuading them concerning Jesus both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets from morning till evening. We have here three witnesses who affirm that they spoke of the kingdom of God and Jesus not c[illegible] of Moses and the prophets. [illegible] C, Do you not think the[illegible]ngs to believe out[illegible]gment? Mr C Well, [illegible] Testament Scriptu[illegible] until Pentecost, th[illegible]pel was taught, which wa[illegible] burial and resurrection [illegible] Does not Paul teach that [illegible]xv 1-4? Mr R I do not think so. Let us see what the apostle taught in this Scripture. Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I have preached unto you, which also ye have received and wherein ye stand. By which also ye are saved if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless you have believed in vain. Now note that Paul states that he had preached the gospel to them. If you will but follow Paul's preaching as recorded in Acts by Luke you will see that he preached the kingdom of God, which is the gospel, every where he went. The message was not changed after Pentecost. It was still the kingdom of God. The gospel is the kingdom of God today and will so remain until Christ shall come. Paul preached the kingdom of God two whole years in his own house while in Rome. Acts xxviii 31. In the third verse he introduces the death, burial and resurrection of Christ. He did this because some in the church at Corinth had denied the resurrection of the dead. The death of Christ has been preached since. God first offered salvation through the seed of the woman. In verses 3 and 4 he declared to them what he first received. How that Christ died according to the Scriptures, not that he died, but HOW he died. Not according to the popular idea but according to the Scriptures. Mr C I do not understand you when you allude to the popular idea concerning Christ's death. I thought everybody believed alike on that question. Will you please explain what you mean? Mr R With the greatest of pleasure, friend C. Now, I suppose you believe in the popular doctrine of the soul's immortality? Mr C Yes, all orthodox churches believe that. Mr R Well then you believe that Christ had two natures, the body and the immortal soul. Mr C I think that is taught in the Scriptures. Mr R Then let me state your position. Christ had two natures, one human and the other divine. The human nature was subject to death the divine (the immortal soul) was not subject to death. When Christ was crucified his body died but his soul did not. You believe that his soul remained conscious during the three days his body was in the grave. Mr C Yes, we believe that his soul went to Paradise during that time. Mr R Now let me ask you which was the real Christ the body that died or the immortal soul that did not die? Mr C The conscience part, the immortal soul, was the real Christ and did not die. Mr R Friend C I fear you have admitted too much. Do you not see that your Christ being not conscious did not die? To die according to the Scripture is to pour out his soul unto death. Isa lxiii 12. Your Christ escaped the death of the Scriptures and went to Paradise. Now this is what I mean by the popular idea. Mr C If Christ died as you state, was he not a mere man? Mr R No, I do not so understand the Scriptures to teach. Paul says, Gal iv 4. When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son made of a woman, made under the law. Heb vii 26. For such an high priest becometh us who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners and made higher than the heavens. His begettal was not after a human father as some assert, but by God's Spirit. Heb ii For asmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil.

These Scriptures teach very plainly that Jesus partook of flesh and blood in order to suffer death for us. Otherwise he could not suffer. Mr C Well I admit that there is a difference in what we believe but are not these things you mention non-essentials? We both believe that we must believe, repent and be baptized and are not they the essential things? Are they not the things that bring us salvation? Mr R, Friend C, I am pleased to know that you see that there is a difference but sorry indeed to see you think these things non-essentials. Do you not know that God has never dealt in such things as non-essentials? You may be baptized in water 1000 times and still retain your sins. If you do not believe in the death of Christ as I have shown you you are yet in your sins 1 Cor xv 17. If Christ did not die he could not have been resurrected. One of the first things for you to believe is that Christ died according to the Scriptures. Mr C Why should I believe that God will in the future set up a literal kingdom on this earth. I have always believed honestly that at death we entered on our reward of eternal life. Mr R Well friend C, you do not think because you are honest in your belief, therefore it is true and will save you? Then the most skeptical will be saved and universalism or any ism will do the same. Are you ready to believe that? Mr C No you do not understand me. We require that men and women believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and the Savior of the world as we learn from Acts viii 37. If we believe that Christ is the Son of God is not that enough? Mr R To give your assent to a mere statement is not believing it. You must believe the whole message in regard to Christ. In Luke i 32, 33, we learn this important truth, viz: Thou shalt bring forth a Son and call his name Jesus, he shall be called the Son of the Highest and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David and he shall rule over the house of Jacob forever and unto his kingdom there shall be no end. If you believe that Jesus is the Son of God you must believe the message given by the angel to Mary the mother of Jesus. Mr C I believe that Jesus is seated upon his throne now and has been since he ascended to his Father. Mr R Friend C, have I not said to you that our believing anything without good proof is believing in vain and will not save us? I wish to read to you a portion of Scripture that we find in Acts xv 14, 15, 16. Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, After this I will return and will build again the tabernacle (kingdom) of David which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof and I will set it up. In Acts iii 21 Peter says in speaking of Christ, Whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. The prophets declare that Christ will return after God has chosen a people out of the Gentiles for his name and it will be to rebuild the tabernacle of David. Peter in Acts iii 21, says that the heavens must receive Jesus until the times of the restitution, etc. Do not these plainly teach that God has a work for Jesus his Son to do after he returns to this earth? Mr C, Friend R, I admit that these Scriptures do tend to prove your idea but I am anxious to know more about this literal kingdom. Who is to be the king, associate rulers and what will be his territory and who will be his subjects. Who will be the lawmakers, and what effect will these laws have? I am anxious to know all you believe on this subject. Mr R, I am pleased to know that you desire to know all about this important subject. For the present I think we have talked long enough. I have enjoyed our talk very much. When I come to town again I will call and continue our talk showing God's purpose in creating the earth and man. So good by. Mr C, I shall enjoy another talk as I have this. If we do not agree on all points we will certainly be benefited in the investigation of the Bible. I bid you good by. Come again.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY OCT. 13.

Israel enters the land of promise. Joshua iii 5-17.

Golden text. And he led them forth by the right way, that they might go to city of habitation. Psa cvii 7.

In the last lesson Joshua had been made the leader of the Israelites. Had received his orders from the Lord through Eleazar, the priest, and had given his orders to his officers to have the people prepared to enter the land of Canaan. He sent on two men to look over—inspect—the city of Jericho. They lodged in Rahab's house. The king of Jericho demanded that she give them up. She hid them —she had heard of the doings of the Lord with Israel and had faith. Joshua ii; Heb xi 31.

The story of the passing over Jordan is both wonderful and very interesting. iii and iv.

Passing over Jordan would have been a very appropriate title for this lesson. Lesson Text.

4 Sanctify yourselves—set yourselves apart—prepare, make a special preparation for the great and solemn wonders of tomorrow. There were two days of special preparation when the Lord came down on Mount Sinai. Ex xix 10, 11.

5 The Kohathites carried the Ark and all the vessels of the sanctuary. Num iv 4-15.

7 The Lord would do wonders by Joshua to show Israel that he was truly the successor of Moses.

8 Joshua was in full command.

9 Joshua said, Hear the words of the Lord. Jesus said, It is written. Matt iv 4-10.

10 Their easy victories over the nations in Canaan—greater nations than themselves, Deut vii 1, would prove to them that God was with them.

13 There would be no sign to show that they could cross the Jordan, until the feet of the priests touched the water. Then, up north, the water would stand like a wall. The sceptic says impossible, it never happened. The faithful say, We have heard.—O God—what work thou didst—in the times of old. Psa xliv 1.

We see. The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handy work. Psa xix 1.

This verse contains a promise that the waters SHALL stand up.

15, 15, 16, Informs that the waters DID stand up.

Sceptical commentators have written the Jordan bed could have been dried by natural means.

By volcanic action.

By a landslide.

We believe the waters stood up and were held up by the mighty power of God.

WE have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

The State and the Saloon.

The Temperance Cause, the periodical of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society, publishes a list of the cities and towns in Massachusetts, giving the vote of each in 1906 and 1907 on licenses for selling intoxicating liquors. The totals show that eighteen cities voted for license, and fifteen cities for no license; seventy-two towns voted for license, and 249 towns for no-license. The total vote for license this year was 188,566, and the total vote for no license was 181,844. The majority for license in the entire State was therefore only 6722. This was a decrease of 7880 from the election of 1906. Another year of the same gain would throw the majority of the vote on the side of not licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors. This is an end worth striving for hard and earnestly. It has a moral effect on the minds of the people to know that a majority of the people in any State is opposed to giving licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors. The sentiment that the majority should rule is strong in the people of this country of democratic institutions, and the majority ought to be made to appear in the elections, as it really is, opposed to the liquor saloon.

Amongst the treasures of the British Museum have just been found a series of documents, that will modify the prevailing opinions concerning the relation between Babylon and Israel. The principal of these documents is a collection of early chronicles covering the period from the eleventh to the seventh century of the Christian era, with several date lists and new versions of events otherwise known. All the material is being digested and edited by Mr. L. W. King, one of the officials of the Museum; and the publication will be awaited with interest by students of the Old Testament. It is evident already that a new solution will be necessary of the problem of Babylonian chronology, for the evidence shows that the various dynasty were contemporaries of the kings of the third. The immediate consequence is that the assumed antiquity of the Code of Hammurbi must be reduced by at least three centuries. That will have an important bearing upon the question of the independence of the Mosaic legislation, and will need to be rewritten, and the alleged dates of the migration of tribes from western Asia into Egypt to be revised. The treasures of European museums have, of recent years, increased too rapidly even for enumeration, and their publication will tend to correct the errors into which impatient scholars have fallen.—Episcopal Recorder.

We wish to call the attention of all of the Indiana brethren to the notice of the Conference that is given in this paper. The committee is rearranging a programme that will be worth while hearing, and the business that is to be attended to should be of interest to every member of the Church in the State. The officers chosen to have charge of the work the coming year, should be the very best the State affords. The question of Evangelistic work is to be discussed. Shall we fold our hands and seal our pocketbooks? We are sometimes told that if the Lord wants his work done he will find a way to accomplish it. Did it ever occur to you that the Lord has found you and given you his truth. He has witnessed your acceptance of his offer of salvation, and has entered you as one of his workers—his co-workers. If you have a right to expect him to fulfil his promises to you, then he has the same right to demand the promised service from you. You cannot reasonably expect God to be true to you, unless you are faithful to him. His work will simply not go on as it should unless you give your support. The Conference Board wants your presence at the meeting, so your counsel and advice can be given. They want the encouragement you can give. They want to know how much you can give the coming year, of time, talent and money, to carry forward the work. If you cannot be there then send a letter of greeting and a pledge of what you will give. Let everyone arouse and do the very utmost. The Coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

Consecration.

Give thyself to Jesus wholly;
He hath bought thee with his blood
He desireth thy salvation,
He would bring thee home to God.
Shall return for love so tender,
Shall return for love so free,
In thy heart with all its weakness
But 'tis all he asks of thee.

Give thyself to Jesus wholly;
His to be eternally;
Where and what thy Lord would have thee,
Ever willing just to be,
Follow closely where he leadeth—
It will be in pastures sweet,
Happy if for Jesus toiling,
Happy waiting at his feet.

Give thyself to Jesus wholly;
On his bosom lean and rest
In his love secure abiding,
In that love completely blest.
All thy heart to him uplifted
All thy will in his control,
Be thy life one glad communion
With the Savior of thy soul.

Communicated.

Dear Sister:

Your kind, thoughtful letter came to me in due time. You do well that you look after the eternal welfare of your children. We are certainly drawing very near the time when Jesus will come for his saints. All must be ready or lose the great reward which our Savior will bring with him.

There are quite a number of our faith in Los Angeles, but there is no organization of our people there. I will arrange to hold a service there, or at some convenient place, as soon as I can. In the mean time, that no time may be lost, instruct your son and daug' ter along the fundamental lines of the plan of salvation.

1. Christ the Lord is the Savior of the world. There is no other. Luke i. 31.

2. "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism, into death; that like as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we should walk in newness of life." Read Romans vi. 3-11.

3. "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ, and if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise." Read Gal. iii. 26, 27, 29.

4. "Buried with him in baptism, wherein ye are also risen with him, through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." Read Col. ii. 12.

The foregoing Scriptures represent baptism as a death, burial and resurrection. The candidate for baptism is just as dead to sin, as though he were actually dead. Take a young man who has been in the habit of visiting the saloons. When he makes the good confession and is baptized, the saloon will never see him any more. He will shun it as he would a pest house. He is therefore dead, not only to that sin, but to all other sins.

When they come to the water for baptism, they leave the world and all worldly things behind. They die to the sins of the world. The officiating clergyman leads them into the water and buries them under the water. They lose a breath or two, in imitation of death, then they are raised up by the minister in imitation of the resurrection, into God's family never to sin any more.

Nicodemus, who was a Jew, a member of the Sanhedrim and well-informed in the law, came to Jesus and said we know that thou art a teacher come from God. Jesus replying said, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. Nicodemus said, How can a man be born when he is old? Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water (the right rendering is, "out of water") and of the spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God.

Here are two births. The first is baptism, the second is the resurrection. All saints will have three births. First, their birth into their father's family. The second is the birth into their heavenly Father's family, the third is the birth of the spirit, which is the resurrection. There cannot be a birth witout a begettal. Paul says, "For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel." 1 Cor. iv. 15. James says "Of his own will begat he us with the Word of truth, that we should be a kind of first fruits of his creatures." Jas. i. 18.

How do Christian people get into the kingdom? If we had never been born into our Father's family, we certainly would never enter the kingdom. If we never become a child of God, by being born of water, as Jesus tells Nicodemus, we would never get into the kingdom. Can we have our names written in the Book of Life without being baptized? We cannot. Paul says "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ, and if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Gal. iii. 27, 29.

These Scriptures prove beyond question that baptism is necessary. We cannot become members of God's family without it. It therefore follows, conclusively, that when Jesus said to Nicodemus "Ye must be born out of water," he had reference to baptism, which is the second birth. Now let us see if we can ascertain what the birth of the spirit is.

Paul in 1st Corinthians says, speaking of the resurrection, "So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption, it is raised in in corrupting; it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power; it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body. And as it is written, the first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam a quickening spirit." 1 Cor. xv. 42-45.

These Scriptures show conclusively how we are born of the Spirit. When Jesus was hung on the cross he was mortal, and he died and was buried in Joseph's new tomb. When the angel rolled the stone away, and became out of the tomb alive, he was immortal and could not then have been put to death.

In making these suggestions for teaching the Bible, I should have begun with the account of creation given in Gen. i. and ii.

Impress this thought upon the children; viz: That God created the animals, birds, fish and all that was made for the benefit of Adam and his posterity. God commanded Adam to bring them all into subjection unto himself. In the beginning they were all tame and gentle, and would have been very useful indeed. Adam had no authority to kill or harm in any way any animal, bird or fish, or anything else. Therefore the animals were tame and gentle.

After dwelling upon this turn to Gen. ix. 2. Read carefully all that is said about the animals. God here gave man authority to eat the flesh of animals, birds, fish etc. To prevent man from destroying all of them he put fear upon them. In the restitution that fear will be removed. Read Isa. xi. 4-9. Even the most venomous snakes will become tame and gentle. "They shall not hurt or destroy in all my holy mountain, for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." Jesus and his saints will do what God intended Adam and Eve to do, and thus make every animal, every bird and every fish and creeping thing, happy, contented and good.

Your Brother, in hope of eternal life.

Cain's Wife.

The Bible does not tell us who she was, but at the same time it leaves no doubt as to whom she must have been. In Gen 1 25 and on we have an account of the creation of man, male and female, in the image or form of their Creator. He gave them dominion over all the earth, and over all the lesser order of beings, placed them in the Garden of Eden, where the man and his wife sinned against the Lord and were turned out of the garden. In the 20th verse of the second chapter of Genesis we read, "And Adam called his wife's name Eve, because she was the mother of all living." Then if she was the mother of all living, there could have been no other people upon the earth, except what were afterward born of her and her children. Beginning with the 4th chapter of Genesis we read, "And Adam knew his wife and she conceived and bear Cain." It is plainly to be seen that 'knew his wife' does not mean that he just then made her acquaintance. Well, what does it mean? By turning to the 25th verse of the 4th chapter the meaning of the expression is plain, for it says, "And Adam knew his wife again and she bare a son and called his name Seth." It is now beyond question what the expression means, so we will now turn to the case of Cain. After he slew Abel the Lord banished him from among men, and he became a fugitive and a vagebond upon the earth. The 16th verse of the 4th chapter of Genesis reads, "And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the Land of Nod, on the east of Eden." 17th verse, "And Cain knew his wife, and (just as in the case of Eve) she conceived and bare Enoch." It does not say anything about Cain finding any people in the land of Nod, or of his becoming acquainted with his wife there, but, "He knew his wife and she conceived and bare Enoch;" so she must have gone with him to that land when he was banished: this being true, Eve being the mother of all living, she must have been his own sister. The names of Adam's daughters are not given, but in Gen 7 4 it says, "And the days of Adam after he had begotten Seth, were eight hundred years, and he begat sons and daughters." What arrangement was entered into between Adam and Cain, that he should take a wife with him is not revealed, but that he did so is plainly to be seen. Some will say that he should not have married his own sister, but Eve was made from a rib taken from Adam which we must conclude is, just as near; and Abraham married his half sister Sarai.

Your Brother in hope of eternal life.

Willing to Shovel.

To be willing to begin at the bottom is the open secret of being able to come out at the top. A few years ago a young man came to this country to take a position in a new enterprise in the Southwest. He was well-bred, well educated, and he had the tastes of his birth and education. He reached the scene of his proposed labors, and found, to his dismay, that the enterprise was already bankrupt, and that he was penniless, homeless, and friendless in a strange land. He worked his way back to New York, and in midwinter found himself, without money or friends, in the great, busy metropolis. He did not stop to measure the difficulties in his path; he simply set out to find work. He would have preferred the pen, but he was willing to take the shovel.

Passing down Fourth Avenue, on a snowy morning, he found a crowd of men shoveling snow from the side walks about a well-known locality; he applied for a position in their ranks, got it, and went to work with a hearty good will, as if shoveling were his vocation. Not long after, one of the owners of the property, a many-millionaire, passed along the street, saw the young man's face, was struck by its intelligence, and wondered what had brought him to such a pass. A day or two later his business took him to the same locality again, and brought him face to face with the same man, still shoveling snow. He stopped, spoke to him, received a prompt and courteous answer, talked a few minutes for the sake of getting a few facts about his history, and then asked the young man to call at his office. That night the shovel era ended, and the next day, at the appointed time, the young man was closeted with the millionaire. In one of the latter's many enterprises there was a vacant place, and the young man who was willing to shovel got it. It was a small place, at a small salary, but he more than filled it; he filled it so well, indeed, that in a few months he was promoted, and at the end of three years he was at the head of the enterprise, at a large salary. He is there today, with the certainty that if he lives he will eventually fill a position second in importance to none in the field in which he is working. The story is all told in three words: willing to shovel. Christian Union.

A Child's Faith.

In the Highlands of Scotland there is a mountain gorge twenty feet in width, and two hundred feet in depth. Its perpendicular walls are bare of vegetation, save in the crevices, in which grow numerous wild flowers of rare beauty. Desirous of obtaining specimens of these mountain beauties, some scientific tourists once offered a Highland boy a handsome gift if he would consent to be lowered down by a rope, and would gather a little basket full of them. The boy looked wistfully at the money, for his parents were poor, but when he gazed at the yawning chasm he shuddered, shrank back, and declined. But filial love was strong within him; after another glance at the gift and at the terrible fissure, his heart grew strong, and his eye flashed, and he said, "I will go, if my father will hold the rope." And then, with unfaltering nerves, and heart firmly strong, he suffered his father to [illegible] ropes about him, lower [illegible] the wild abyss, and to [illegible] while he filled his basket wi[illegible]wers. It was a daring [illegible]th in the strength of [illegible]va him courage and [illegible]d it.

Blest be [illegible]

A pathetic and yet [illegible]ne story is told of the origin of the well-known hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds," which was written by Rev. John Fawcett, an English Baptist, who died in 1817, having spent nearly sixty years in the ministry.

It was in 1772, after a few years spent in pastoral work, that he was called to London to succeed Rev. Dr. Gill. His farewell sermon had been preached near Moiingarie, in Yorkshire. Six or seven wagons stood loaded with his furniture and books, and all was ready for departure.

But his loving people were heart-broken. Men, women and children gathered and clung about him and his family with sad and tearful faces. Finally overwhelmed with the sorrow of those who were leaving, Dr. Fawcett and his wife sat down on one of the packing cases and gave way to grief.

"O John," cried Mrs. Fawcett, at last, "I cannot bear this. I know not how to go."

"Nor I either," returned her husband; "and we will not go. The wagons shall be unloaded, and everything put in its old place."

His people were filled with intense joy and gratitude at his determination. Dr. Fawcett at once sent a letter to London explaining the case, and then resolutely returned to his work on a salary of less than $300 a year.

This hymn was written by Dr. Fawcett to commemorate the event.—Pittsburgh Press.

Read the Letter Through.

What would you think of a person who had a letter from a dear friend, and who should sit down and read a page, or a sentence or two in it now and then, never reading the letter from beginning to end? What idea would a person get from such a perusal of a letter.

About half of the New Testament is composed of letters, but how few people there are who ever read these letters entire. They read by snatches and sentences, and of course do not grasp the grand thoughts which run through the whole letter.

If we wish to get the sense of a letter, we should inquire who wrote it, when, where, and under what circumstances it was written, to whom was it sent, and what was the occasion of sending it. When all these questions were answered, then we should be prepared to study the document, and comprehend its contents and its drift.

A person who will sit down and carefully read one of the epistles of Paul from beginning to end, will find new light flowing in upon the mind, and will thus become rooted and also grounded in the truth, and will be better able to comprehend the messages God has given to men.

The epistles and other books were not written in the order in which they are placed in the Bible. Hence we need to study them in the order of time, as we would arrange a series of letters in the order in which they were written, before commencing to read them. The Scriptures will pay for searching. Those who dig deepest find most. Armory.

Sin and Sorrow.

God has linked sin with sorrow. Men join sin with pleasure, but the pleasure passes and the woe remains. Men strive to make a life of sin a life of joy, but they never succeed. Eventually there comes the day of grief. The cup which fills the brain with intoxication and delirious gladness, at the last biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.

The wild delights of unholy passion give place to that mourning which comes at last when wasting and disease have taken the places of health and merriment. Always this prospect of pain, regret, and misery lies before the sinner in his downward path. Sooner or later he will lament his course. Sooner or later his pleasures will turn to pains, and he will curse the day in which he yielded to their charms.

How much better to turn while it is today, and escape the grief which clouds the sinner's journey, and the perdition that awaits him at the end. Wisdom's ways are pleasantness. Even if the way seem thorny, yet it leads us home, and we can bear to tread a weary road if it only brings us to the goodly land.—Christian.

Led to Christ by a Tract.

Mr. A. E. Bidlard, in a letter quoting some instances of blessing received through tracts and Scripture text-cards, gives the following:

In a certain village there resided an old man, feeble in body but powerful in prayer. Among his experiences was the following, told in somewhat his own words:

"I was walking near Colchester one dark night when a man overtook me in a cart. I asked him for a lift.

"'Jump in,' said he, and on we drove.

"Fourteen or sixteen years later I was requested to visit a dying man at Colchester. When I entered the room he fixed his eyes upon me, and after a pause said: 'Do you know me?'

"'No.'

"'Do you remember walking at So-and-So one dark night, many years ago, and asking for a lift?'

"'The chords of memory were struck.

'Yes,' I replied.

"'You gave me a tract when you bade me good-night, and that tract led me to Christ.'"—The Crisis.

Paragraphs.

Well spent days bring happy nights and glad tomorrows.

Keep clear of a man who does not value his own character.

Carry your cross on dry land, and it will carry you in deep waters.

Anon: Time is a commodity of which the value rises as long as we live.

He who follows the Lord fully, will find goodness and mercy following him.

Milton: Truth is as impossible to be soiled by the outward touch as the sunbeam.

It is a most mortifying reflection for any man to consider what he has done, compared with what he might have done.

Edward Bickersteth: The sweetest life is to be ever making sacrifices for Christ; the hardest life a man leads on earth, the most full of misery, is to be always doing his own will and seeking to please himself.

As it is not putting on a gown that makes the scholar, but the inward habits of the mind, so it is not putting on an outward walk of profession that makes a Christian, but the inward grace of the heart.

Obituary.

Editor Restitution:

I regret to report the death of our beloved Brother George W. Updike of Warren Co. Virginia.

I am at present visiting with the brethren in the Shenandoah Valley. Arriving at the home of Brother J. D. Boyer, in Woodstock, last Saturday night, Sept. 21st. On Sunday morning we were pained to receive from over the mountains the news of our good Brother's death. Brother Boyer asked me to assist in the funeral service and on Monday morning we repaired to the home of our late brother where the service was performed.

Brother Updike was 82 years, 6 months and 16 days of age. Was baptised into the saving name of Jesus in the year 1900, by Brother B. F. Boyer. The community in which he has lived for the past 60 years united in a splendid testimonial as to his integrity, honesty, and life of usefulness, and those of like precious faith look forward to the joy of meeting him in the kingdom.

He leaves a wife, a son and daughter, nine grandchildren and 7 great grand children, and a host of friends.

I would just like to add that I am enjoying thoroughly the hospitality of the household of faith in Virginia. Expect to make my visit last about ten days.

George Neill.

Samantha Vorse Railsback was born in Marshall county, Indiana, Nov. 18th, 1841; died at her home in North St. Petersburg Fla., on Sep. 20, 1907, aged 65 years, 10 months and 2 days. She leaves her husband, Hugh S. Railsback, and her son, Oliver T., and family, to mourn her loss.

She was a kind and loving wife and mother and was loved by all who knew her. She had been a constant though patient sufferer.

With her family she came to Florida over twenty years ago, hoping a change of climate would benefit her. For nearly fifteen years she enjoyed reasonably good health, but for the past five years had been gradually failing.

She had been a member of the Church of God for over forty-six years and was a great Bible student. A Bible reading and prayer service was conducted at the home by the Congregational minister, J. F. Hoyt. Interment at Oak Lawn Cemetery.—St. Petersburg Independent.

Sister Railsback was well known to the people of Plymouth and Argos and the vicinity where she lived near the Antioch Church. She was highly respected by all who knew her, and besides her husband and son has many relatives in this part of the country who will mourn their loss.

The last visit they made back to Indiana was some four years ago, and our Sister was feeling quite poorly at that time, though always cheerful and bright. The Church members, relatives and old friends all unite in expressions of sympathy for our bereaved Bro. Railsback, who is now left to continue the journey of life without the companion he has had so long. May his trust be in the Father above, who knoweth all our cares and trials, and looking forward to the coming of our Savior, may he be kept faithful and again meet his loved one.

A true education—what is it? It is awakening a love for truth; giving a just sense of duty; opening the eyes of the soul to the great purpose and end of life. It is not teaching to be honest because "honesty is the best policy," but because it is right. It is teaching the individual to love the good for the sake of the good; to be virtuous in action because so in heart; to love and serve God supremely, not from fear but from delight in his perfect character.—Wayland.

With all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. B. Robinson will in future be 866 West Main St. Salem, O.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trustworthy.

Announcement.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in the State of Indiana, will be held at Hillisburg, Clinton Co., Ind., commencing Oct. 17, and continuing over the following Sunday. It is desired that each congregation throughout the state be represented. Let as many isolated believers be present as possible. We have important business to arrange and we need your council. Come in the spirit of the Master that we may exhort one another to love and good works.

Hillisburg is on the L. E. & W. R. R. east from Frankfort, and west from Tipton, Ind. All persons who expect to attend will please notify Brother Wm. Huffer, Michigantown, Indiana, that arrangements may be made for their comfort. Let all who can come. Come with a message of Hope and Love, and God will bless our meeting.

J. H. WILLEY, Pres. Ind. Con.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Michigan will convene Oct. 25 to 27 inclusive, in Brady Township, Brother Alfred Harper's neighborhood.

The brethren here have asked for this meeting, gratify them by being present, then, too, it is very necessary that you be there for there are plans to be made for next year, that you must help make. Do you know brethren, that the next Annual Conference will be our 50th, or Jubilee Year? Shall we make it a time of much good and rejoicing, by having a longer session than usual? Shall we have a Bible School the week before, week after, or each afternoon during the session?

These questions which have been suggested by interested parties, will be talked over and some decision made.

Be sure and be present. If it is impossible for many to attend from each church, talk these matters over at the home church and send a delegate with your decision, but come if possible.

Those coming from north and south come to Vicksburg over the Grand Rapids and Indiana road. From the east and west take Grand Trunk to Vicksburg. Teams will meet all trains on Friday and carry passengers to place of meeting. All try and come Friday, as the meeting is about seven miles from Vicksburg and we do not want to make the brethren extra travel.

MARY A. WOODWARD, Sec'y.

The sixth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Christ Jesus, in southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah, Ill. October 17 to 21 inclusive.

We invite all to come, and come filled with the love of God. Never mind the things of the world for awhile and let us have the best time that Moriah ever had. Moriah is eight miles from Casey, south. All parties coming to Conference will stop at Casey, and we will furnish conveyance to the church.

Every body come the first day and stay until it closes. All parties write and tell us what day to meet them at Casey. It would be best for all to get to Casey by 3 P. M., then all could get to church in due time.

Everybody come and bring some body with them and a smile on their faces and a big heart filled with love, and we will try to make you happy.

The preachers will be S. J. Lindsay and L. E. Conner, and others expected. Board, bed and transportation from and to the station, all free, come one and all.

Address all communications to Lewis Weaver, Casey, Ill. R. R. No. 3, Box 31.

By Order of the Board.

B. J. WOODS, Vice. Pres.
LEWIS WEAVER, Treas.

Our annual yearly meeting will be held at the Colony, Rollins, Kan. on the Santa Fe Railroad, seven miles east of Chanute. Those coming on the St. L, M K, R R, change cars at Walnut, Kan. Those coming on the Southern Kansas stop at Chanute, and take the Santa Fe to Rollins. It will begin Friday evening, Oct 19, to continue over Sunday. We are expecting T. J. Daniel, of Arkansas, and Brothers Oliver and Williams, and all others who possibly can. Come and give us your help, and see the Colony town site, and enjoy yourselves with us poor pilgrims journeying towards the promised land. We have made arrangements to take care of all that come. You need not expect to get pay in dollars and cents, as all are poor in this world's goods. There is not a cent in the treasury, but if the brethren think so, there would be a plenty paid in before the meeting.

Let us wake up and do something. Send money to D. A. Renner, route 3, Chanute, Kan. Those coming write to Delos Johnson or D. A. Renner at Chanute. Come and see the place we might have for a good quiet colony of good thinking Christians.

By order of the Church.

JOHN FOORE.

Indiana State Conference.

October 17 to 20, is the date of the coming Indiana State Conference, to be held at Hillisburg.

This will be the third Conference held at this point in recent years and if this compares with the two previous ones we can assure the visitors of a royal welcome and hospitable treatment at the hands of the Clinton County brethren.

The Programme Committee is preparing what will prove to be the best spiritual entertainment ever presented at a Conference, and as soon as details are arranged will make same public.

At the business sessions the following subjects will be considered:—

1. Election of Officers.
2. Election of Evangelical Committee.
3. The advisability of placing two Evangelists in the State next year.
4. Ways and means whereby we can promote the financial and spiritual welfare of the Church of God in this State.
5. The future of our State Bible School and our State Bureaus, and other important topics.

President Willey urges that each of the fourteen churches be represented by delegates who can give a statement as to the financial, numerical and spiritual condition of the community. Whether delegated or not, whether members of a local church or isolated, come to the Conference. Come prepared to give good and to receive good.

Hillisburg is situated on the Lake Erie & Western Railway, between Frankfort and Tipton. Arriving at either Frankfort or Tipton you can make connections with the L. E. & W. both east and west. Those who live on the Clover Leaf route can go direct to Michigantown where you will be met by brethren.

All who come, write if possible to Wm. Huffer, Michigantown, Ind., Rt. 1. He will arrange for your comfort.

Programme Committee,
F. M. MCCRORY.
WM. HUFFER.
GEO. NEILL.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Bible Themes.

Is the title of the last book issued by Brother John O. Woodruff on miscellaneous subjects, both original and selected. This book contains 480 pages and cost the author $1.25 to issue. A quantity has been supplied us, and we wish to get them into the hands of readers, and offer them at 80 cents each, post paid, while they last.

WHEN you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "THE RESTITUTION," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

Wanted.

By an experienced teacher of public and private schools, a position in private family, to teach the usual public school branches. Address Miss Lucy W. Horner, Tobaccoville, Va.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent in the way help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Gorrong Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Evangelizing Notice.

The N. W. Conference has selected me again as Evangelist. The Brethren have added Arizona and California to my field of labor. Any church or isolated brethren that want meetings during the Conference year should correspond with me at an early date so I can plan my year's work for this extensive territory which now includes western Oregon, Washington, California and Arizona.

Hereafter my home will be Scholls, Oregon, and Address, W. L. Skeels, R. D. 1, Laurel, Oregon.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted please write to us? Beloved, we [illegible] to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart [illegible] spiritual gift. Address [illegible], State Evangelist [illegible], Box G, Oregon.

A four[illegible]t in the German language, [illegible]ther M. Joblin of Cleveland [illegible]ject, "What Must I do to be Saved?" After getting the opinion of one who understands this language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to M. Joblin, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

NOTICE.

Information wanted concerning an Evangelist known as Blind Haynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Address, E. P. Woodward, Westbrook, Maine.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

Our talents differ, and each one will be held accountable for the use of such talent, whatever that may be, if you have only one, use that.

Some one says, what can I do? Why you can circulate literature teaching the truth if nothing else. There is no one but who can do that. Will that do any good? Oh, yes. Let me tell you something. Some people have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. It would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Yours in the Blessed Hope,

W. H. WILSON.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the oldest Advent ist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Poetry.

"O Ye of Little Faith."

A sower sowed his seed, with doubts and fears;
"I dare not hope," he said, "for fruitful ears;
Poor hath the harvest been in other years."
Yet ere the August moon had waxen old
Fair stood his fields, a waving sea of gold.
He reaped a thousandfold.

In a dark place one dropped a kindly word;
"Be weak my voice," he sighed, "perchance unheard,
Or, if they did, no answering impulse stirred."
Yet in an hour his fortunes were at stake;
One put a life in peril for his sake,
Because that word he spake!

"Little I have to give, O Lord!" one cried,
"A wayward heart that oft hath thee denied;
Couldst Thou with such a gift be satisfied?"
Yet, when the soul had ceased its mournful plaint,
God took the love that seemed so poor and faint,
And from it made a saint!

Mr C. and Mr. R.—No. 2.

Mr R Good morning, Mr C, how have you been since we met a few days ago. Mr C Very well, thank you, I see the Methodist people are getting ready for their camp meeting. Mr R Yes, I see a family from my neighborhood just passing on their way to camp. They seem to enjoy themselves in their meetings. Mr C I suppose so. I read a tract not long ago written by one of our ministers the title of which was, "Methodism not Christianity." Mr R I have never seen it, but in a measure I would agree with it, although I was reared and educated a Methodist. Friend C I have a proposition that I wish to state to you. Suppose two persons who were members of the Methodist church, in good standing, should bring letters to your church and one had been immersed and the other sprinkled, would you receive both into fellowship into your church? Mr C No, indeed, we would only receive the one who had been immersed. Mr R I thought you said a few moments ago that Methodism is not Christianity and now you are receiving such into church fellowship without any change of faith. Mr C We would begin to teach them the truth as we understand it to be taught in the New Testament. Mr R When we were talking the other day you said that faith, repentance and immersion was the New Testament order. Now you put it immersion, faith, repentance. Is not this changing the order as given by all New Testament writers? Mr C This does seem to change the order a little but do not all the churches do the same? If a person is satisfied with his baptism is that not enough. Mr R No, we do not receive any one by letter from the denominational churches. We treat all alike. Unless a man or woman has an intelligent knowledge of the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ and is then immersed upon their own confession we cannot admit them to church fellowship. A few months ago I was called to go to West Virginia and preach and baptize a man and woman. I found them intelligent believers. The man was a member of the Disciple church, his wife of the Baptist church. On their confession I immersed both. Mr C Do you require persons who have been baptized to submit to baptism again? Mr R You remember I said in our talk the other day that you might be baptized in water a 1000 times and still retain your sins. We admit no one into church fellowship who does not believe that God raised Christ up to sit on David's throne. Acts ii 30. He must have an intelligent knowledge of the gospel of the kingdom of God. Mr C Well, I must admit that these look reasonable and that I have never believed in receiving persons into membership from other churches than our own. I am a little anxious to hear more about that literal kingdom you say that God will finally set up on this earth when Christ comes. Mr R I shall be pleased to furnish you the proofs as we shall find them recorded in the Scriptures.

"The Restitution of all things Which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME LVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCTOBER 9, 1907. NUMBER 38.

The prophet Isaiah has said, To the law and to the testimony if we speak not according to this Word, it is because there is no light in us. Isa viii 20. Mr C I have stated before in our talks that I have always believed that the Old Testament was fulfilled in Christ. You remember that Paul says that Christ is the end of the law. Does not this teach that the law was done away? Mr R You should have quoted the full text and you would have seen to whom Christ is the end of the law. "To them who believe." In Col ii 14. Paul says it was the handwritings of ordinances that was blotted out nailing them to the cross. Nowhere do the Scriptures say that the promises made to Abraham have been fulfilled, which Paul says in Gal iii 8, is the gospel b'f re preached unto Abraham saying: In thee shall all nations of the earth be blessed. In the 16th verse of this chapter, he says now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, and to seeds, as of many, but as of one, and to thy seed, which is Christ. You will notice that Paul says that this gospel was preached before unto Abraham. Now in order to find out what this gospel is we must find out what God promised to Abraham. In Gen xii God called Abraham and told him to go to a land that he would show him. Abraham came to the land of Canaan and there God blessed him and gave him that land. In the xiii chapter 15th verse he gave it to him and his seed for ever. That means that Abraham and his seed (Christ) must receive eternal life before they could inherit the land. In xv and xviii chapters these promises are confirmed by an oath and by the covenant of circumcision. In the xxii chapter Abraham's faith is tested in the offering of his only son Isaac as a burnt offering. God said, Because thou hast done this and hast not withheld thine only son I will bless thee and multiply thy seed, etc. And in thy seed shall all nations of the earth be blessed, and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemy. These promises are still in force as the gospel of the kingdom. Mr C You speak of this seed bles...g all nations. Is not Christ blessing the nations today by Christianizing them? And will not this seed through the church convert the world? Mr R In our last talk I called your attention to Acts xv 14, where it stated that God is now taking out of the Gentiles (nations) a people for his name. He is not dealing with nations today but with individuals. He first called out twelve whom we call apostles. He made them his chosen witnesses and sent them out to preach the gospel and make disciples out of the nations. God has never but once dealt specially with a nation and that was the numerous flesh and blood seed of Abraham. We call them the Israelitish nation whom God formed into a kingdom. This was God's kingdom on this earth. Mr C Did not this seed inherit the land promised to Abraham and his seed, and does not this fulfil the promises made to Abraham? Mr R Friend C, you leave out one important thing in the promise to Abraham and his seed. They were given the land as an everlasting possession. Israel did not receive the inheritance under this promise but under the law which promised them only temporal things on the condition of their obedience to that law.

Mr C These testimonies seem very convincing to me. Can you give me any proof that Abraham did not receive this land as you state? Did he not live in it during his life time? I think this is very strong evidence that this promise has been fulfilled. Mr R Yes, I think I can furnish you an abundance of strong proof that Abraham has not yet possessed the land of Canaan. In Heb xi 8, 10 it says that he sojourned in the land of promise as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles (tents) etc. For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. You see he was a stranger in that country and desired a city that hath foundations, etc. In Acts vii 5, Stephen declares that God gave him none inheritance in it, no not so much as to set his foot upon. Yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child. Is not this positive proof that Abraham did not receive it? Mr C I don't see any need of mixing these old Jewish ideas with the gospel. Do you think that all Bible scholars are wrong on this question and does not education count for anything? It seems to me if we are to throw away scholarship that we are at sea on the Bible. Mr R In answer to your statements I want to call your attention to a Scripture found in 2 Cor iv 3, 4. If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost. In whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ who is the image of God, should shine unto them.

Permit me to state that God's purpose in creating the earth is that it should be inhabited. Gen i 28. God said to Adam be fruitful and multiply, replenish the earth (fill it full) Isa xlv 18. Thus saith the Lord that hath created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited. Eccl i 4. One generation passeth away, and another cometh; but the earth abideth for ever. Psa cxix 90. Thou hast established the earth, and it abideth. His purpose in regard to the earth may be seen in the above texts. In Gen i 28 we learn his purpose in creating man. God said to man subdue the earth and have dominion. Dominion means to rule. Adam was placed in the garden and was given a law, in violating that law he forfeited his right to rule and it was transferred to the seed of woman to whom God gave the promise that he should crush the head of the seed of the serpent. In Micah iv 8, the prophet says, Thou, O tower of the flock, the stronghold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem. The tower of the flock here spoken of is admitted to be Christ. Isa xxxii 1. Behold a king shall reign in righteousness and princes shall rule in judgment. We thus learn that God had a purpose in creating the earth and man and that the two are inseparable in that purpose. Mr C What has become of all the righteous dead since Adam! Are they not somewhere awaiting God's call at the resurrection? Mr R This will bring in another question which we can not now discuss. If you wish we will discuss this subject in the future let me give you a few texts on this point. Eccl ix 5. The living know that they shall die but the dead know not anything. Psa cxlvi 4. His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish. You may think over these texts until we can take up the subject of the nature of man. I trust our talk today has been mutually beneficial, certainly we have discussed our differences with the spirit of the Master. When we meet again I hope to take up the subject of the kingdom proper and show you what it is and where it is. For the present good by. Mr C I am pleased with the spirit of our discussion. Come again. Good day.

D. C. ROBINSON.

To Be Continued.

Isaac Williams: Our Lord, in his unbounded love, has taken great pains to teach us that death is to be considered but a sleep; that it is to be in our minds associated with sleep, and to be lightened and cheered by that association. By so often emphatically calling death a sleep, he has intended to alleviate and to strengthen our minds by faith in him, showing us thereby his desire that we should look on death as but a sleep, in ourselves and others.

"What is whiskey bringing?" asked a dealer in that article. "Bringing men to the gallows, and women and children to want," was the answer.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 27.

In a letter to father and mother, dated Jan. 27, 1869. Auntie Willard says:—"As I was sitting before the quite exhausted by the fatigues of the day, and reflecting how I became worn out last spring and where I went to refresh myself for a week and then thought, let me feel as I might this spring, I would have no Mother Chaplin's to go to and feel at ease and be refreshed in body and soul, the tears came stealing down and my poor heart ached with sorrow, and I said to myself, O Earth, thou art becoming a desolate place, soon all that I love here will be gone. I never shall find such a home as that again, in this world. It had all the comforts of this world mingled sweetly with those of the world to come. I then thought of your once cheerful home and of your sadness now, and all seemed so dark. But why pain you with my own sad reflections? I would rather comfort you. One who tasted the bitter cup for us all said, 'In the world ye shall have tribulation,' but, blessed be his name, he did not stop there, but gave us good cheer that he 'had overcome the world.'"

The old Disciple,—"Father Gordon," as he was called, who led the meetings, was doing all he could to keep up the interest, and yet it was flagging, the attendance being small and few taking part. They could not much longer lean upon him. He must soon "go the way of all the earth," and they "be deprived of his invaluable influence."

Does the light of dispensational truth when committed to a called out people, ever amount to anything when that people, either individually or collectively merge themselves with another people who do not hold it, or proclaim it? We must put our light on a candlestick,—have a church organization of our own, not put our light under a bushel, if we want it to lighten others. Close the lips of those who love the Lord's appearing, and their interest in religious meeting will soon grow "beautifully less." Auntie Willard wanted father to sell his home and come to Warsaw, that he might "Come to the help of the Lord against the mighty," but for some reason he did not do so, perhaps for lack of a desirable opportunity to sell, and so her plans for having a pastor and a church-building of our own in the county-seat, that the cause of the Lord might be built up and prospered there fell to the ground much to her disappointment.

Her family was enlarged during the early part of the summer of 1869 by the coming of her husband's nephew, and two neices—Edgar, Carrie and Lily,—the children of John Willard of Webster, New York.

This John Willard had five daughters and two sons of whom three are still living,—Lily,—now Mrs. Waugh, Mrs. Andrews, and Albert. Dr. Willard had also a sister, a Mrs. Myrick living in New York, who was a "sweet, refined, old lady." There was also another brother, a Joel Willard, who having lost his wife from the bite of a mad cat and having no children to care for him, came to the Doctor's for comfort and care.

Signs of the Second Coming of Christ. No. 4.

"When the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." Matt. xxv. 31.

"Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words, in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him also shall the Son of Man be ashamed when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels." Mark viii, 38.

"For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first, then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words." 1 Thess. iv. 16-18.

"Now this I say brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. Behold I show you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed; for this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." 1 Cor. xv. 50-53.

"For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead; for as in Adam all die so in Christ shall all be made alive; but every man in his own order; Christ the first fruits; afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming." 1 Cor. xv. 21-23.

"But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come? Thou fool! that which thou sowest is not quickened, (made alive) except it die; and that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain, but God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body. So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption; it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power, it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body." 1 Cor. xv. 35-38; 42-44.

We learn from these witnesses, Matthew, Mark and Paul, that Christ comes first with his holy angels, and raises all who are dead in Christ, and changes all the living who are in Christ at his coming, changes them from mortal to immortal and they are caught up together with those raised from the dead; "for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible and we shall be changed." (Caught up until the indignation be be overpast.)

"Thy dead men shall live; together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing ye that dwell in the dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead. Come my people, enter thou into thy chambers and shut thy doors about thee; hide thyself as it were for a little moment until the indignation be overpast; for, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity." Isa. xxvi. 19-20.

"For yet a very little while and the indignation shall cease, and mine anger in their destruction." Isa. x. 25.

"And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise; and another shall arise after them; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings, and he shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws; and they shall be given into his hand, until a time and times and the dividing of time." Dan. vii. 24, 25.

"Then I Daniel looked and behold, there stood other two, the one on this side of the river, and the other on that side of the bank of the river, and one said to the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river. How long shall it be to the ends of these wonders? And I heard the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and swear by him that liveth forever, that it shall be for a time, times, and a half; and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished." Dan. xii. 5-7.

"But the court which is without the temple leave out and measure it not; for it is given unto the Gentiles and the Holy City shall they tread under foot forty and two months, and I will give power unto my two witnesses and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days (forty-two months,) clothed in sackcloth." Rev. xi. 2, 3.

"And she brought forth a man child who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron; and her child was caught up to God, and to his throne, and the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, and they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and threescore days. Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabitors of the earth and of the sea! for the devil is come down unto you having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time. And when the dragon saw that he was cast unto the earth, he persecuted the woman which brought forth the man child. And to the woman was given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place where she is nourished for a time, and times and half a time, (forty-two month) from the face of the serpent." Rev. xii, 5, 6, 12-14.

We wish to call the attention of all of the Indiana brethren to the notice of the Conference that is given in this paper. The committee are arranging a programme that will be worth while hearing, and the business that is to be attended to should be of interest to every member of the Church in the State. The officers chosen to have charge of the work the coming year, should be the very best the State affords. The question of Evangelistic work is to be discussed. Shall we fold our hands and seal our pocketbooks? We are sometimes told that if the Lord wants his work done he will find a way to accomplish it. Did it ever occur to you that the Lord has found you and given you his truth. He has witnessed your acceptance of his offer of salvation, and has entered you as one of his workers—his co-workers. If you have a right to expect him to fulfil his promises to you, then he has the same right to demand the promised service from you. You cannot reasonably expect God to be true to you, unless you are faithful to him. His work will simply not go on as it should unless you give your support. The Conference Board wants your presence at the meeting, so your counsel and advice can be given. They want the encouragement you can give. They want to know how much you can give the coming year, of time, talent and money, to carry forward the work. If you cannot be there then send a letter of greeting and a pledge of what you will give. Let everyone arouse and do the very utmost. The Coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

We, all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. R. Robinson will in future be 366 West Main St. Salem, O.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Plymouth, Indiana, Oct. 9, 1907.

Last Sunday Brother VanVactor preached an excellent discourse for the Plymouth Church.

Brother and Sister Woodward are holding meetings at Argos, Indiana, this week. Sister Woodward will be with the Plymouth brethren on next Sunday.

Brothers, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

We reprint the hymn composed by Sister Wince. There was a mistake in the music when printed before, and we give it again now as corrected, so all may have it free from errors.

The programmes for the Indiana and for the Southern Illinois Conferences are printed this week. Every one be at the meetings from the start so as to attend to the business in its proper shape.

Attention is called to an error in the announcement of the Southern Illinois Conference. It reads Oct 17 to 21, and it should be Oct 16 to 20. Let all interested make note of this change. It is given correctly in the programme in this paper.

The Jews in Odessa are suffering renewed persecutions. Some one committed a crime. It was laid on the Jews. A mob formed and began killing and looting. The police dispersed the mob finally, but no arrests were made. Just the regular account of such doings. How much longer till the end of Gentile times shall come?

Remember the Conferences that are being advertised for this month. All who possibly can do so ought to attend these meetings. Your counsel is needed. If you find that you cannot go, then be sure that you are represented by some one authorized by the local church to which you belong. If you are isolated and cannot attend, send a letter of greeting and a pledge for what you will do for the Master's [redacted]. If you ever intend doing for Christ, do it now, tomorrow is not yours.

Illinois Berean Report.

The ninth annual meeting of the Illinois Bereans was held at Oregon, Ill. Aug. 24, 1907.

The meeting was opened by song and prayer, after which the secretary's report was read and approved.

The treasurer was absent but reported a low treasury. The following report was received later:

Balance in treasury Sept. 1, 1906, $47.46.

Receipts for year, $55.88.

Expenditures for year, $74.80.

Balance in treasury, Sept. 1, 1907, $28.54.

Fred H. Knodle, Treas.

The President reported that she had written 145 letters and received 144, also that a new society had been organized at Antioch.

She gave a very encouraging report of her trip to the south on behalf of the Bereans, having visited many points and isolated members.

Very encouraging reports from Adeline, Antioch, Dixon, Chicago, Marshall and Ripley were read, but Moriah and Fairdealing were not heard from.

It was moved, seconded and carried that the reports of the local societies be spread on the minutes. They were as follows:

Adeline,—

The Adeline Berean Society reorganized Jan. 20, 1907, with a membership of fourteen. We met once a week—every Tuesday evening and then to suit the convenience of some of our members, we changed to Wednesday evening.

We meet at the different homes of the members and study the lessons in the usual manner. We drew numbers to determine the order of leadership.

In June, the older Bible Class having dwindled down on account of the removal of some of its members desired to unite with us; so now we meet every Sunday morning.

With our finances we have at different times hired a hall in which to hold preaching services.

Officers are, Nelle Timmins, President; Walter Miller, Secretary and Treasurer.

[redacted]—

The Berean Society at Dixon meets every Sunday at the Sunday School hall with an average attendance of ten. The Society makes a present of a year's subscription to The Restitution to a Berean every year. Since last Conference the Dixon [redacted] have held twenty-three meetings. The increase in membership this year is two.

Ana A. Drew, Pres.
Olive Drew, Sec'y.

Ripley.—

The following is the report of the Ripley Berean Society for the year ending Aug. 6, 1907.

Total attendance during the year 804.

Average attendance of officers 2.

Average attendance of members 12.

Average attendance of visitors 7.

Total attendance 21.

Meetings are held every Tuesday evening.

Pearl Woods, Sec'y.

Antioch.—

The Berean Society at Antioch organized Sept. 2, 1906, with a [redacted] bership of 5. Meetings [redacted] held twice each month with the exception of five winter months.

Number of meetings, 12.

Average attendance 6.

The lessons in Book I. have been studied.

Grace M. Williams, Sec'y.

Chicago,—

The Chicago Bereans meet twice a month, the first Sunday at the home of Sister Whitehead, and the third Sunday before Church. We have 15 members with an average attendance of nine. Twenty-one meetings have been held since last Conference. We have distributed 153 tracts and written 27 letters to sick and isolated members. During the year we have had about $70.00 in the treasury and have given $50.00 for charity. We make a specialty of distributing dinners to the poor at Christmas time, and last year with the help of the Church we were able to provide for nine families. The Society also bought and dressed 18 dolls for an Italian mission. We wish to extend a cordial invitation to any Berean who has not an opportunity to extend this Christmas cheer, to unite with us in the work.

Lelia E. Whitehead, Pres.
Jessie M. Wilson, Sec'y.

Marshall,

Report of the Marshall Berean Society.

Numbers of members, 16.

Average attendance of members, 11.

Meetings held since July 22, '06, 27.

Dues collected, $2.10.

Members added during the year 3.

Jessie Claypool, Sec'y.

The Lebanon—isolated members also reported.

Sister Harsch of Indiana was with us and gave an interesting report of the work being done there.

Letters of Greeting from Sister Selma Samuels of Brooklyn; Sister Chandler of Carnegie, Okla., and Sisters Martin and Crundwell of Brownwood, Texas, were read.

The several committees then made their reports.

The Literary Committee reported that they had written eight letters a month until August, and that the responses were better than last year.

It was moved, seconded and carried that if a letter of any Berean is worthy of being placed in the Berean Column, that such letter shall be sent to the Literary Committee.

The Tract Committee reported having sent 1328 tracts, and of receiving $4.55,—$4.89, of which had been spent for postage, and tracts.

The Program Committee reported that topics had been chosen and leaders arranged for, for the Conference Session.

The Committee on new outlines reported the books ready for use.

Then came the election of new officers. Mabel Eaton and Jennie Townsend being the tellers. The following were the officers elected:

President, Anna E. Drew, 629 N. Galena Ave, Dixon, Ill.

Vice President, Almeda Mitchell, Lanark, Ill.

Secretary, Mabel G. Drummond, Rochelle, Ill.

Treasurer, Olive Drew, Dixon, Ill.

It was moved, seconded and carried that a committee of three be appointed by the Chair to procure the names of isolated members and furnish the same to all who wish to correspond with them, therefore the following committee was appointed:

Lelia E. Whitehead, 4528 Ontario St. Chicago, Ill.

J. W. Cooper, Ripley, Ill.

Mrs. Mary Gwin, Forreston, Ill.

R. R. 2.

Literary Committee:

Kathryn Townsend, Lebanon, Ill.

Verna Woode, Ripley, Ill.

Mrs. Mallesa Drummond, Chana, Ill.

Program Committee:

Anna Adams, 608 Peoria Ave. Dixon, Ill.

Edna Anderson, 138 Cedar St. Aurora, Ill.

Mabel Kendrick, Mt. Sterling, Ill.

Tract Committee:—Viola Eaton, Stockton, Ill.

Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Crundwell, of Brownwood, Texas, were received as new members during the year, and Minnie Thomas, Champaign, Ill., Virginia Ritenour, Dilbeck, Va., Miss Ida Ordmung, Ransom, Kan., Leota Houseen, Lebanon, were received as members during Conference.

The meeting was then adjourned.

Will all isolated members who wish correspondence please write to the Committee which is to procure the addresses of isolated members.

Mabel Drummond, Sec'y.

One Mother's Success.

Her two bright, active boys, though intensely interested in all outdoor sports, yet seem never to have her welfare out of their minds. A telephone message to see if mother is "all right" a choice flower bought for her out of one of the boy's pocket-money, these are every-day occurences. She explains it thus:

"It began when the boys were but little chaps, when I tried to show them that these little attentions were necessary to my happiness. As they grew older, I never failed to express my appreciation of the little things they did for me. If it was a tiny shell from the beach, or a smooth stone from the road, or a field flower; I was always delighted with it; and so the giving has become a habit. It means a great deal to me, and I have no doubt some women will thank me in the future. I have always felt," she added, "that if my boys failed in their attitude to the women who came into their lives, it must not be my fault."—Housekeeper.

Dr. Crobp:—The sentence of toil and the promise of glory have issued from the same throne. Even our trouble here may make the material of enjoyments above the circumspection of the earth. All are agents in the restorative mercy of the great Disposer, all turn into discipline. The obstacles to knowledge, the struggles of the heart, the incidents of the common path of man are converted into the muscular force of mind. We are but sowing in the winter of our nature the seed which shall flourish in immortality.

Stability out of the pulpit often speaks more eloquently than in the pulpit.

Tiring the Will.

Everything about a man tires. Let him hold out his arm even ten minutes and the exertion, which was nothing at first, becomes unbearable. Let him look intently at a distant tree, and sooner or later the whole view will blur. Let him think all day, and he will be amazed the next morning, when he reads what he wrote the day before, to find how much poorer his afternoon thoughts were than his morning ones. And since everything else about a man tires, why not the will? The will does tire. We can live perfectly a minute; we can live perfectly an hour; but no man can live perfectly a month. The will, like the arm, or the eye, or the mind, cannot be stretched to its highest efficiency all the time and remain elastic. Therefore, let us use our wills sensibly.

We do not hold it worth while to hold our arms for ten or fifteen minutes. We have better use for our arms, and we do not want to waste their strength; wisdom bids us rest our eyes and our minds. Wisdom likewise bids us rest our wills. The wise man will use his will for what is worth while, and not use up its strength on immaterial matters. If a man wills to pick up every piece of string he sees during the day, he wastes his will, and when the time comes to use it to help him in his work, perhaps it fails him. To draw on our will, continually saying, "I will be cheerful, I will be cheerful," may so use us up when there is no cause for forcing cheerfulness, that we shall break down in our cheer when it would really be important.

The man or woman who conscionsly thinks to himself, "I will be unselfish," is very likely to make other people aware that he is being unselfish—which is disagreeable—and to lose his unselfishness. If he simply went ahead, living his natural life, and letting his kindliness toward men flow out naturally, he would do more good and be much better loved. Such a man is using his will in the sensible, useful way in which the man picking up apples is using his arms. Before the end of the morning, the apple-picker will probably hold out his arm much more than ten minutes; but he will have two advantages over the man we began with. He will have performed a valuable task, and his arm will not be tired.—Christian Work and Evangelist.

Paragraphs.

True courage is unassuming; true piety serious and humble.

There is but one place of rest for the human mind, and that is on the Rock, Christ.

Prayer in the morning is the key that opens to us God's mercies and blessings. Prayer in the evening is the key that shuts up under his protection and safeguard.

God makes the earth bloom with roses that we may not be discontented with our sojourn here, he makes it bear thorns that we may learn to look for something better beyond.

The lark goes up singing towards heaven; but if she stops the motion of her wings then straightway she falls. So it is with him who prays not. Prayer is the movement of the wings of the soul; it bears heavenward, but without prayer he sinks in the filth of earthly impulses.

Most men never get thoroughly awake to the responsibilities of life and the possibilities of their own nature. What we want is the single eye that will see what our work is, the humility to accept it, however lowly, the faith to do it for God, the perseverance to go on till death. While we mistakenly sit still and wait for large opportunities and ripened powers, the day slips away and the long night closes the scene.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

The Bereans Column.

Dear Bereans:

Let us consider for a moment the subject of earnestness and diligence comparing their relative importance in an average business life with that of a successful Christian career. Take for example the representatives of the great business powers of the land, Carnegie or Rockefeller, or even Armour, if you please. We could not for a moment cite them as the best men, or the men who have gotten the most from life. But we can and do hold them up as those who by putting forth every effort and throwing their very selves into their work, have made a great success in that which they undertook to accomplish.

If earnestness then is necessary in the attaining of temporal things, how much more then should it prove to be so in regard to the things of God.

Isa. lv 9, For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts. Neh ii 1, Wherefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip. Jas v 17. Elias prayed earnestly that it might not rain; and it rained not, etc.

Prov xxii 29, Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before kings.

Dear Bereans, let us be diligent and earnest in the work that above all else shall win for us the right to stand before the one great King.

Jessie Gray.

Christ in Prophecy.

The first prophecy concerning Christ was spoken on the day of the transgression of Adam and Eve when God said to the serpent, "The seed of the woman shall bruise thy head." All through the Old Testament Scriptures Christ's birth is foretold. For example, in Gen xlix 10 we read, "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a law giver from between his feet until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be."

That this promised seed was to be the Son of God is shown by Psa ii 6, 7, and many other Scriptures. Isaiah and Malachi both prophesied concerning the messenger of Christ that would come before him to prepare the way for him. In Psa lxxii 10, 15 we are told of the gifts which were to be brought unto him; in Hos xi 1 of the fact that he would go into Egypt and he was taken there that Herod might not destroy him.

We are told in many places what Christ's office was to be. Through him and indirectly through Abraham, all the families of the earth shall be blessed. Gen xii 3. Isaiah xi says, "In that day there shall be a root of Jesse which shall stand for an ensign of the people, to it shall the Gentiles seek; and his rest shall be glorious," and in Joel ii 32, "It shall come to pass that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be delivered, for in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance as the Lord hath said, and in the remnant whom the Lord shall call."

Christ's ministry in Galilee is foretold in Isa ix 1, 2; his miracles in Isa xlii 7. Something of his character is shown where David says, "Thou lovest righteousness and hatest wickedness, therefore God, thy God hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows," also in Isa xi 2; and liii 9.

Concerning his teaching the Psalmist says, "I will open my mouth in a parable; I will utter dark sayings of old."

We know that he must have been rejected by men, because it was written, "He shall be for a sanctuary, but for a stone of stumbling and for a rock of offence"—and "The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner."

Christ's suffering was foretold in many places, but perhaps no place described so fully as in Isaiah liii. Zechariah tells of his entry into Jerusalem; of his being betrayed by a friend in whom he trusted; that he would be betrayed for thirty pieces of silver; and that the money would be used to purchase a potter's field. It was foretold that he would be falsely accused, but would not reply against that accusation; that he would endure mockery and insult, but would be patient through all the suffering; that he would be crucified; be offered gall and vinegar when he was thirsty; and even the words of his cry upon the cross were spoken many years before by the prophet. His garments were divided by casting lots as was predicted. Not one of his bones were broken (though those of the thieves were); his hands and feet were cruelly pierced (Psa. xxii 16); his grave was with the wicked and with the rich, that the Scriptures might be fulfilled.

The Psalmist said, "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell neither wilt thou suffer thine holy one to see corruption," and Hosea says, "After two days will he revive us and in the third day he will raise us up, and again David says, Thou hast ascended on high; thou hast led captivity captive. Thus far in the life of Christ prophesy has been fulfilled but there are prophecies that must yet be fulfilled.

We are told that he will come again Psa l 3 6; Dan vii 13 and that he shall have an everlasting kingdom and that all people and all nations shall serve him. Dan vii 14; 1 Chron xvii 14. "His dominion shall be from sea to sea and from the rivers unto the ends of the earth." Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom to order it and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever. When we consider how fully all that was written has been accomplished so far, we cannot doubt that it will be just as literally accomplished in the future. The Old Testament as well as the New tells us so much about Christ's coming and his kingdom that we may feel sure our hope is well founded and that the prayer "Thy kingdom come," will be answered.

Poetry.

"I Surrender All."

One thing alone, dear Lord, I have,
I may to thee resign;
All else is thine that thou hast formed;
Their use alone is mine.
Tho' I should clothe inside or gold,
What profit to me there?
For thou hast always owned them all,
I but thy bounty share.

But thou hast placed in mortal frame
A will to do or not,
As I may list and, answered
I may pursue my lot.
This will may lead me down to death,
Or to a rich reward.
I tremble, Father, at the thought
Of that I have to guard.

But, blessed Savior, thou hast said,
The work thou wilt sustain;
Surrendering my will to thee,
I can no more refrain.
Resigning this, my treize now flee,
All I can give is thine;
To cleanse, polish, guide, that in Thy glory I may shine.

The Kingdom of God.

"So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." Luke xxi 31.

These emphatic words of Christ are irrefragible proof that the kingdom of God is in the future, and are in harmony with our Lord's prayer—"Thy kingdom come"—given to be prayed until "his appearing and his kingdom." Notwithstanding these and other express words of Christ, and the whole tenor of the Scriptures, which show that the kingdom is to be "set up" and be possessed by the saints when Christ comes in the clouds of heaven, the popular church virtually ignored all this inspired testimony, and claim and teach in the pulpit and out, that the kingdom of God was established in the days of Christ and his apostles.

Moreover, they teach that the church is the kingdom, and use church and kingdom synonymously and interchangeably, and that the church is in the kingdom, and that the kingdom is in the church.

As the writer firmly believes that the Bible, in its original purity, is not a medley of contradictions, as the popular theology of the day makes it, he invites the candid reader's attention to what the writer believes is a Scriptural elucidation of the nature, time of setting up, and where, of the kingdom of God.

That the authorized, or common English version of the Bible contains many erroneous renderings, and consequently contradictions, is very well known and admitted by learned men in the languages. Many of these errors have been corrected in the later translations. But the marvel is that the recent revisers, while correcting many mistakes in the common version, the most of which are of minor importance, did not have the moral courage to correct those of supreme importance.

Many of the contradictions alleged by infidels are only contradictions of the erroneous theology of the church, and not of the Bible. Infidels have so used all this as to lead thousands to believe that the Bible is unworthy of credence.

It is also true that there are real contradictions in the Common Version, as a result of the original being perverted in many instances by the translators, who were ordered by King James to make the Latin-Papal Version—called the Bishop's Bible—the basis of the English Version. King James also directed that the translation should be in harmony with the doctrines of the church, which were settled by the pronunciamentos of the councils. Hence the many contradictions and doctrinal errors of the church that have been thus received and promulgated to its great detriment, by driving thinking persons by the million into universealism, skepticism, infidelity, agnosticism and atheism.

Before proceeding to show what the Scriptures teach as to the nature of the kingdom of God and the time of its appearance, or being set up, let us examine the passages that are relied upon to prove the common hypothesis, as before stated.

The words of John, the immerser (Matt iii 1-3) are relied upon as proof that the kingdom was set up at Pentecost. In the Common Version they are as follows:

"In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea, and saying, Repent ye for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight."

Here, as elsewhere, we have the proof of our statement that the translation was ordered to be in harmony with the doctrines of the church. And so the Greek word baptisteen as has been baptize also, in its varied forms—was left untranslated, and reads Baptist, "tees," the last part of the Greek word being left off! The translators knew, if they translated these Greek words they would have to render them immerser, immerse, immersion, or, as Martin Luther and Dr. J. J. Greisbach have done, namely, "John the dipper, dip, dipped," etc.

It is assumed that the kingdom must have been set up at Pentecost because John says, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." But we will now show that John, in using the Greek word basileia, here rendered "kingdom," referred to Christ as king, and not to his kingdom. For if John, as generally supposed, referred to himself, in the expression "for this is he," would have said, for I am he. That basileia should not have been here rendered kingdom we have for authority Dr. Greisbach, who renders the sentence, "For the kingdom of the heavens has come nigh." And the Emphatic Diaglott New Testament gives these verses as follows: "Now in those days appeared John the immerser, in the desert of Judea, publicly announcing Reformation because the Royal Majesty of the heavens has approached. For this is he of whom Isaiah the prophet spoke, saying: A voice proclaiming in the desert, Prepare the way of the Lord, make the highways straight for him."

This translation—the correctness of which, no Greek scholar of repute—in connection with the prophetic words "Prepare the way of the Lord" makes it certain that John was speaking of Christ, and was thus preparing the way for him, and not for his kingdom.

Before noticing other passages on this line the writer thinks it important that we understand the true principle of interpreting the Scriptures. That there is too much of such interpretation indulged in for sectarian and other purposes cannot be questioned. The Bible, so far as possible, should be its own interpreter by comparison and general tenor. For if we attach a meaning to a word, sentence, or passage that contradicts other passages, we can be certain there is error in our opinion of the meaning, or there is error in translation somewhere.

The principal reason of so much interpretation is, as the writer believes, that so many great and good men and Christians in the popular churches do not believe that God means what he says, when he says anything, as he often does, that is in contradiction of the denominational, or orthodox creed, so called. Hence interpretation is resorted to, in order to bend the Bible to the creed, instead of the creed to the Bible! Such a culpable resort as this is begotten of bigotry.

We could illustrate the above statement at length if space would permit, but will refer to two cases of truth and fact. The first case as illustration is the noted language of St. Peter at Pentecost, as follows: "Repent; and be baptized [immersed] every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit."

It is claimed by many Christians and others, and proclaimed from the pulpit, that Peter here teaches there must be not only repentance, but immersion in order that sins be remitted or forgiven. This error which is a palpable contradiction of the whole tenor of the Scriptures, is based on one of the many definitions given of the preposition for here used. It is necessary therefore to give to this word among the thirty definitions laid down by Noah Webster and others that will not be in contradiction of so many passages that positively teach the doctrine of justification by faith, as thundered by Martin Luther against the doctrine of works and penance as held by the church of Rome.

St. Paul says, Rom x 8-10, the word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart; that is the word of faith, which we preach; that if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.

These emphatic words of the apostle, if there were no others of like character, ought to settle the question that baptism is not enjoined in order to the remission of sins, but as an ordinance duty.

Webster in defining for, says, "the word by which a reason is introduced of something before advanced." And as repentance was advanced or conjoined before baptism by Peter, so baptism is required as a reason for having repented. Among the many definitions given of "for" are "on account of, because of," etc. So the true meaning of Peter's words, in the light of these definitions is as follows: "Repent; and be baptized for [because of your sins being remitted on repentance, or, on account of your sins having been remitted], and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit."

In further illustration of erroneous interpretation, we will here give a remarkable case of changing the true meaning of words, which has led the orthodox churches of the world to ignore and virtually reject the 200 passages of Scripture that positively and emphatically declare that the wicked shall perish and be destroyed by being "burned as stubble fully dry," "burned up" as "chaff," as "tares," as "withered branches, burned as root and branch," die "the second death," etc., etc. But the orthodox (?) interpreter says that perish, death, destruction, etc., mean to live forever in misery! And to be "burned up" means always burning, or not burning at all, that death, which every sane person knows is extinction of life,—means always dying, but never dead, or, that it is the death that never dies," that destroyed means always being destroyed, but never destroyed! The Psalmist says (cxiv 20), "The Lord preserveth all them that love him; but all the wicked will he destroy." The Hebrew word here rendered "destroy" is shomad, and the definition given is "to annihilate." But our orthodox theologians understand it as if it were as follows, The Lord preserveth in heaven all them that love him; but all the wicked will he preserve in hell to be tormented forever!

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY OCT. 20.

The Capture of Jericho. Joshua vi. 8-20.

Golden Text. "By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they were compassed about seven days." Heb. xi. 30.

In the last lesson Joshua had led the Israelites across the Jordan. They were camping in Gilgal, in the land of Canaan. The Lord had thus far performed—carried out—made good—the promise he gave to Abraham more than four hundred years before. Gen. xv. 13-16.

When the kings of the Amorites and the Canaanites heard of the wonderful drying up of the Jordan they were filled with dread. The Israelites kept the passover. Next day they ate of the corn of the land, and the Manna ceased. Josh. v. 10-12.

When Joshua went near Jericho he saw a man with a sword. Joshua said, Are you for us, or for our adversaries? He said, Nay—not for the adversaries—but as captain of the host of the Lord, I am come. Joshua acknowledged him at once as his superior officer, and worshiped him. One of the angels that excel in strength. Psa. ciii. 20.

The city of Jericho was in a siege. They—the people in Jericho—seemed to have thought that they could hold out against the Israelites. Or would hold as long as they could.

LESSON TEXT.

8. Seven priests, with trumpets—see verse 4. Before the Lord—the Lord and the ark of the Lord are evidently the same.

9. (Have the order of the march.

10. The march was to be in silence except for the blowing of the trumpets.

11. The work was done the first day according to the Word of the Lord.

12. Early rising is recorded of several of God's people—his chosen servants. Abraham got up early to see if Sodom was burned. Gen. xix. 27 and when he went to offer Isaac as a sacrifice, Gen. xxii. 3. Jacob rose early, after his wonderful vision. Gen. xxviii. 18. Moses rose early to go up unto Mount Sinai. Exo. xxxiv. 4.

13. Again the order of march.

14. Six days of the work done as the Lord commanded. Verse 3.

15. Very early rising was necessary as on that day—the seventh—they had to go round the city seven times.

16. Shout for the Lord hath given you the city.

20. And the people shouted—when the trumpets were blown a long blast—verse 5,—and the walls fell down flat—the Lord had given them the city, as he said he would. Jericho was some six miles from the river Jordan, and two miles from Gilgal, Israel's first camping place. It was a city of wealth—verse 19, also chapter vii. 21. A city of commercial importance, said to have been the key to all the important routes leading to central Palestine. The walls of brick about two miles around. The armed men and spectators on the walls of Jericho must have been amused or surprised, perhaps both—to see the Israelites marching round and round. It required faith on the part of the Israelites to capture the city of Jericho. It requires faith on the part of God's people today to believe the story, and like all true believers they showed their faith by their works, and let us further notice that though the Lord gave them the city they had to work for it. We are promised salvation through Jesus Christ, if we work out our own salvation.

Next lesson; Caleb's Faithfulness Rewarded. Joshua xiv. 6-15.

At the Breaking of Bread.

The love of God is incomprehensible, for we of this earth have been disobedient from the time it was given over to man to inhabit, and from the time of Adam's sin and condemnation God made it way for us to escape the condemnation pronounced. In Gen iii 15 it says. And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head and thou shalt bruise his heel. Then in Rom xvi 20 we find the following, And the God of peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly.

Isaiah vii 14 we find the instrument that is to bruise the serpent's head. "Therefore, the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel. Also in the ix 6 and 7 it tells us unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given.

Then in Isaiah liii chapter we find how we are redeemed by God's mercies, through the death of Christ, which is in this chapter, we are told.

John iii 16 tells us so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not but have everlasting life. God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.

Romans v tells us of one we were brought nigh by the redemption, and much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace which is by one man Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many. For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous.

We can readily see that up to this point God has done his part, and it now behooves us to do our parts.

I hope all present can say, very soon as Paul said in his letter to the Philippians, And I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord.

Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

P. L. Morgan.

A Trip Worth While.

"And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more as ye see the day approaching." Heb x 24, 25.

For some time the desire to go to the Bible Schools and Conferences of our Church, in some of the Central States, had been growing upon me, until I determined it should no longer be a contemplated pleasure, but a reality.

On July 25th I left my home to the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, and in less than twenty-four hours I was at Lemon Park, on the banks of the beautiful Indian Lake in Southern Michigan.

Here I was welcomed with greetings of love, by loyal daughters of the King. Surrounded by magnificent gems of nature, each one a visible revelation of the great Creator, we drew near our great High Priest, with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. Was it not fitting that God's children, though few in number, should turn to the revealed Word to feed upon the bread of eternal life.

While studying the book of Leviticus, and the Tabernacle in particular, we learned how the types foreshadow God's wonderful plan of redemption as it is in Christ, the Lamb of God. These types unfold, as it were, a beautiful panorama of divine benevolence. Many seed thoughts were sown, which we hope will spring up and bear rich fruit.

From Indian Lake we went to Raisin Center, where another daughter of the King received us with open arms, and bade us enter her home for the night.

The Ohio State Conference was the next place of interest, so on the following day we journeyed southward, reaching Springfield on August 6th. Here a spirit of enthusiasm and brotherly love so permeated the atmosphere, that the peace and harmony seemed like a foretaste of the joys of eternal glory. Time can never blot from my memory those splendid sermons and the Christ-like fellowship of kindred minds.

One day of rejoicing had not passed before another had dawned. It was a pleasure to stop on the way to Oregon, Ill. with the brethren and sisters at South Bend, Ind. Truly they too have the love of Christ in their hearts. Such cordial greetings and kindly welcome, makes one feel as if selfishness was indeed unknown amongst the Household of Faith.

Mere words almost fail to express my appreciation of the blessed privilege to meet with the young people of Oregon, and receive instruction from their earnest, well qualified state evangelists. I could not help thinking how it must have pleased the angels of heaven, and Jesus himself, as they beheld the dear Gersons, guided by those who have searched out the deep things of God, rightly dividing the Word of truth.

Retracing my steps homeward, I stopped a few days in Chicago, only to realize more fully what it means to be a true follower of the meek and lowly Nazarene. I have been encouraged to do more for Christ than I once dreamed possible, by the loving words of one who indeed is a true daughter of our royal King. Yes, I've been cheered along life's pathway by having known some dear hearts, whose homes are in the bustling and busy city of Chicago.

In Indiana I stopped at South Bend and Plymouth. Again I was made to feel happy in the several homes I visited.

Never have I spent a month more pleasantly and profitably than the month of August, 1907. Some asked "Aren't you afraid to start out on such a long and tedious journey all alone?" but not once did my courage fail, for was not Christ my Mediator and God my Protector? Very often our day-dreams and air-castles vanish when we learn to know the realities. But instead I've been privileged to enjoy a series of spiritual blessings such as I had not imagined. May God bless you, one and all, for having made my stay in your midst one so full of precious memories.

Brethren, "rejoice evermore" knowing that soon Christ will come to claim his Bride. May God's richest benedictions rest upon his people everywhere, and keep each dear one in the straight and narrow path, under the protecting shadow of the Divine Love.

Your Sister in Christ,
Virginia Ritenour.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the doners request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trust-worthy.

Obituary.

James Nelson Henry was born in Hampton Co., Mass. Oct. 27, 1828.

When a young man he moved to Crawford Co., Penn. where he became acquainted with Miss Addie A. Moore, whom he married Jan. 1. 1854.

To this union were born two sons and two daughters, all of whom survive him.

He came to Henry Co. Ill., March 1857, to New Windsor, Ill. March 1869, and to Galva, Ill. Oct. 5, 1875.

Sunday morning, Sept. 29, at 10:30 just as the bells were ringing, and people were going to places of worship, his life returned to its Giver. Had he lived until Oct. 27, he would have been 84 years of age.

He was the son of William and Rhoda Davison Henry. In faith he was of the Church of God. In early life he became a Christian, and was always a close student of the Word of God.

He has been gradually failing for years. The past two years he has been almost helpless. His patience through it all was remarkable. He was daily looking for the return of the Master, and his great desire was to be accounted worthy to be a member of the Bride of Christ. He is "resting in hope." "After life's fitful fever he sleeps well."

"He sees when the footsteps falter,
When the form grows old and bent,
He sees when the strength is failing,
And listens to each complaint.
He bids them rest for a season,
For the pathway has grown too steep,
And, folded in fair green pastures,
"He giveth his loved ones sleep."

He giveth ill friends tenderest
Can never this boon bestow,
But he touches the drooping eyelids,
And placid the features grow.
Nor clamor, nor call, can rouse them,
From slumber so pure and deep,
For only his voice can reach them,
Who "giveth his loved ones sleep."

Weep not that their toils are over,
Weep not that their race is won,
Glad must we rest as calmly,
When our work, like theirs is done.
And so we will yield with gladness,
Our treasures to him to keep,
For with many a soothing promise,
"He giveth his loved ones sleep."

Announcement.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in the State of Indiana, will be held at Hillisburg, Clinton Co., Ind., commencing Oct. 17, and continuing over the following Sunday. It is desired that each congregation throughout the state be represented. Let as many isolated believers be present as possible. We have important business to arrange and we need your council. Come in the spirit of the Master that we may exhort one another to love and good works.

Hillisburg is on the L. E. & W. R. R. east from Frankfort, and west from Tipton, Ind. All persons who expect to attend will please notify Brother Wm. Huffer, Michigantown, Indiana, that arrangements may be made for their comfort. Let all who can come. Come with a message of Hope and Love, and God will bless our meeting.

J. H. WILLEY, Pres. Ind. Con.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Michigan will convene Oct. 25 to 27 inclusive, in Brady Township, Brother Alfred Harper's neighborhood.

The brethren here have asked for this meeting, gratify them by being present, then, too, it is very necessary that you be there for there are plans to be made for next year, that you must help make. Do you know brethren, that the next Annual Conference will be our 50th, or Jubilee Year? Shall we make it a time of much good and rejoicing, by having a longer session than usual? Shall we have a Bible School the week before, week after, or each afternoon during the session?

These questions which have been suggested by interested parties, will be talked over and some decision made.

Be sure and be present. If it is impossible for many to attend from each church, talk these matters over at the home church and send a delegate with your decision, not come if possible.

Those coming from north and south come to Vicksburg over the Grand Rapids and Indiana road. From the east and west take Grand Trunk to Vicksburg. Teams will meet all trains on Friday and carry passengers to place of meeting. Air try and come Friday, as the meeting is about seven miles from Vicksburg and we do not want to make the brethren extra travel.

MARY A. WOODWARD, Sec'y.

The sixth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Christ Jesus, in southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah, Ill. October 17 to 21 inclusive.

We invite all to come, and come filled with the love of God. Never mind the things of the world for awhile and let us have the best time that Moriah ever had. Moriah is eight miles from Casey, south. All parties coming to Conference will stop at Casey, and we will furnish conveyance to the church.

Every body come the first day and stay until it closes. All parties write and tell us what day to meet them at Casey. It would be best for all to get to Casey by 3 P. M., then all could get to church in due time.

Everybody come and bring some body with them and a smile on their faces and a big heart filled with love, and we will try to make you happy.

The preachers will be S. J. Lindsay and L. E. Conner, and others expected. Board, bed and transportation from and to the station, all free, come one and all.

Address all communications to Lewis Weaver, Casey, Ill. R. R. No. 8, Box 31.

By Order of the Board.

B. J. WOODS, Vice. Pres.
LEWIS WEAVER, Treas.

Our annual yearly meeting will be held at the Colony, Rollins, Kan. on the Santa Fe Railroad, seven miles east of Chanute. Those coming on the St. L. M K. R R, change cars at Walnut, Kan. Those coming on the Southern Kansas stop at Chanute, and take the Santa Fe to Rollins. It will begin Friday evening, Oct 19, to continue over Sunday. We are expecting T. J. Daniel, of Arkansas, and Brothers Oliver and Williams, and all others who possibly can. Come and give us your help, and see the Colony town site, and enjoy yourselves with us poor pilgrims journeying towards the promised land. We have made arrangements to take care of all that come. You need not expect to get pay in dollars and cents, as all are poor in this world's goods. There is not a cent in the treasury, but if the brethren think so, there could be a plenty paid in before the meeting.

Let us wake up and do something. Send money to D. A. Renner, route 8, Chanute, Kan. Those coming write to Delos Johnson or D. A. Renner at Chanute. Come and see the place we might have for a good quiet colony of good thinking Christians.

By order of the Church.

JOHN FOORE.

Indiana State Conference.

October 17 to 20, is the date of the coming Indiana State Conference, to be held at Hillisburg.

This will be the third Conference held at this point in recent years and if this compares with the two previous ones we can assure the visitors of a royal welcome and hospitable treatment at the hands of the Clinton County brethren.

The Programme Committee in preparing what will prove to be the best spiritual entertainment ever presented at a Conference, and as soon as details are arranged will make same public.

At the business sessions the following subjects will be considered:—

1. Election of Officers.
2. Election of Evangelical Committee.
3. The advisability of placing two Evangelists in the State next year.
4. Ways and means whereby we can promote the financial and spiritual welfare of the Church of God in this State.
5. The future of our State Bible School and our State Bereans, and other important topics.

President Willey urges that each of the fourteen churches be represented by delegates who can give a statement as to the financial, numerical and spiritual condition of the community. Whether delegated or not, whether members of a local church or isolated, come to the Conference. Come prepared to give good and to receive good.

Hillisburg is situated on the Lake Erie & Western Railway, between Frankfort and Tipton. Arriving at either Frankfort or Tipton you can make connections with the L. E. & W. both east and west. Those who live on the Clover Leaf route can go direct to Michigantown where you will be met by brethren.

All who come, write if possible to Wm. Huffer, Michigantown, Ind., Rt. 1. He will arrange for your comfort.

Programme Committee,

F. M. MCCHORY.

GEO. NEILL.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Bible Themes.

Is the title of the last book issued by Brother John O. Woodruff on miscellaneous subjects, both original and selected. This book contains 480 pages and cost the author $1.25 to issue. A quantity has been supplied us, and we wish to get them into the hands of readers, and offer them at 80 cents each, post paid, while they last.

WHEN you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "THE RESTITUTION," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

Wanted.

By an experienced teacher of public and private schools, a position in private family, to teach the usual public school branches. Address Miss Lucy W. Horner, Tobaccoville, Va.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations. A few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

NOTICE.

Information wanted concerning an Evangelist known as Blind Haynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

Our talents differ, and each one will be held accountable for the use of such talent, whatever that may be. If you have only one, use that.

Some one says, what can I do? Why you can circulate literature teaching the truth if nothing else. There is no one but who can do that. Will that do any good? Oh, yes. Let me tell you something. Some people have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. It would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All communications should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, elsewhere mentioned, Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it reaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

The Gift of Life and its Return.

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Give love, and love to your life will flow,
A strength in your utmost need;
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

Give truth, and your gift will be paid in kind,
And honor will honor meet;
And a smile that is sweet will surely find
A welcome that is just as sweet.

For life is the mirror of king and slave:
'Tis just what we are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Communicated.

Mr C. and Mr. R.—No. 3.

Mr C Good morning Mr R, I am pleased to have you call again. You are about the only one of my friends that take an interest in Bible talks. Mr D, whom you have met in my store often believes in the future of the kingdom of God as you teach it. By the way he is a member of our church and quite intelligent in the Scripture. Mr R I am very glad to find a few who are interested in Bible study. I find that my visits here are becoming more frequent and interesting. I am delighted to know that our friend D accepts the truth on this question. I have been very favorably impressed with his wish to know more of the Scriptures. We promised that we would continue our subject of the kingdom of God at our next meeting. The question for us to consider today is I think, What is and where is the kingdom? Mr C Yes, I wish to know your full views on this question. I admit they are new to me, and coming as they do largely from the Old Testament they are more or less interesting. Mr R I think we settled in our first talk that the kingdom cannot mean the church. I will proceed to the question of the literality of the kingdom. In yesterday's talk I spoke of God dealing with Israel as a nation. You know that they were ruled for 400 years by the judges after they settled in the land under Joshua. In the days of Samuel, the prophet, they demanded of him a king. 1 Samuel viii 5. And said unto him behold, thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways; now make us a king to judge us like all the nations. Samuel went to the Lord and was told to grant their request. The Lord said they have not rejected thee but they have rejected me that I should not reign over them. In this we see that God was their king and up to this time he ruled over them. This kingdom was then God's kingdom. In reading the history of this people we find that Saul, their first king, lost the kingdom through disobedience and David was chosen king over all Israel. When David was old his son Solomon was chosen as their king. 1 Chron xxviii 5 states that the Lord hath chosen Solomon, David's son, to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel. xxix 23. Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father. The Israelitish kingdom was the Lord's kingdom. So we see God had a real literal kingdom on earth. In the days of Zedekiah that wicked king, God overturned that kingdom. Ezek xxi 27. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it (the kingdom) and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is and I will give it him. You now see that God overturned this kingdom and it is today in that condition. The gospel of the kingdom of God which Jesus and his apostles taught and which we read of in the New Testament is the good news or glad tidings concerning this overturned kingdom. Mr C I am not at all in sympathy with your israelitish idear as I had several times told you. What does God want with this old kingdom of Israel? I do not think he will ever restore it again. Mr R Friend C do you not remember the words of the prophet Isaiah when he said, to the law and the testimony if we speak not according to these words it is because there is no light in us. These are not my words but those of the prophet. We should be careful that we find not ourselves fighting against God. However we have proven that the kingdom of Israel was the kingdom of God and is now in an overturned condition. In Acts 1 3 we learn that Jesus after his resurrection remained with his apostles forty days, speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God. At this time they asked of him, Wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel? His answer was, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power.

Mr C It is evident from residue of the Scripture that they did not understand our Savior's teaching in regard to the kingdom. They thought that Christ was to be an earthly king, whereas he was to rule over a spiritual kingdom and that the church has taken the place of the kingdom. Mr R, Friend C, you do not notice this Scripture critically. Jesus did not tell them that they were wrong regarding the kingdom of Israel being restored. He said it is not for you to know the times or the seasons which God has not revealed. They asked him if he would restore it at that time. If they were mistaken Jesus should have corrected them. No indeed, the question and answer are both very plain. They were to be his witnesses unto the uttermost part of the earth. They were to preach the gospel of the kingdom which they did. Mr C These statements are so different from anything I have ever heard or read I will have to think over them awhile. If the kingdom was not set up on the day of Pentecost, what took place on that day? Mr R If you read the 2nd chapter of Acts it will tell you. The apostles were baptized with the Holy Spirit. They "received power" from the Father that they might do the work of apostles. You will see that the apostles and they alone were baptized with or in Holy Spirit. By this they were qualified to perform miracles and by the laying on of their hands others could receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. Please read Acts viii 14, 17. Mr C, Friend R, I am greatly pleased that we agree on the subject of the Holy Spirit baptism as I think this is very important to know. Many churches teach that any one who is converted can receive the Holy Spirit as did the apostles at Pentecost. I was not aware until now that you held these views. Mr R We as a people want to take the Bible as it reads as far as we can.

Now I am anxious to close this talk on the kingdom of God before we part. In Daniel 2nd chapter he declares the king's dream and then he interprets it You have read it I suppose? In this chapter the prophet speaks of five universal kingdoms. Mr C I thought he spoke of only four. I have no recollection of reading of the fifth. Mr R We will see as we examine this chapter. Nebuchadnezzar was the king of Babylon, and had universal rule. His kingdom was a universal kingdom, and was to give way to a second. This in turn was to give way to a third and a fourth. Each of these kingdoms were real, literal, universal kingdoms. The fourth was the Roman kingdom, and was a universal kingdom during Christ's ministry, and for more than three hundred years afterward.

In the time of Constantine the great this kingdom was divided into its two legged state. You remember that the image that the king of Babylon saw was that of a man. It afterward developed into its ten-toed state, in which condition it is now. The kingdoms of the east are parts of this fourth universal kingdom.

Now comes the fifth universal kingdom, which must be as real and literal as either of the four preceding kingdoms. Dan ii. 44 reads thus "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever."

The only difference between the fifth and the other four is that "it shall never be destroyed, and shall stand forever."

Mr C, Well you have given us a good deal of proof, but you have not shown that this kingdom will occupy the earth.

Mr R, Friend C, I fear that you have forgotten many things that we have proven. Christ was promised David's throne, and his throne was on earth. So to occupy it he must come to this earth again. This we have proven by Peter, Acts iii 21, and by James, Acts xv 16. But for fear you think we cannot do it, we will call your attention to Dan vii 27: "And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him."

This kingdom is to be under, not in or above the whole heaven. Friend C, I think we may append to this, which is proven, Jesus is to be the King, and to sit on the throne of his glory. Matt xxv 31. To the twelve apostles he promised twelve thrones, and that they should rule over the twelve tribes of Israel. Matt xix 28, To all those who overcome he has promised that they shall sit on thrones, Rev iii 21; v 10.

In Matt v 5, he promises that the meek shall inherit the earth. Peter says "Behold we look for a new heaven and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." The Revelator saw in vision until the old earth had passed away, and the new heavens and the new earth system were in existence. Isa ii 3, "For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem." These laws will cause the nations to beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

In concluding let me suggest that we have shown that this kingdom will have Jesus as its ruler. The saints who believe this gospel of the kingdom will be his associate rulers. Psa cxlix, "Let the saints be joyful in glory; let them sing aloud upon their beds. Let the high praises of God be in their mouth, and a two-edged sword in their hand, to execute vengeance upon the heathen, and punishment upon the people. To bind their kings with chains and their nobles with fetters of iron. To execute upon them the judgment written. This honor hath all the saints."

The earth will be the territory; the nations will be the subjects, and the laws will be enacted by the King and his associate rulers, and will go out from Mt. Zion and Jerusalem. If you should read Psa lxxii, you will learn something of the effects of his ruling, and that his dominion shall be from the river to the ends of the earth. This Psalm embraces David's sublime prayer.—"The prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended." He could ask for nothing more.

Friend C, To me these have been very interesting talks.

Mr C, I have enjoyed them very much, but I cannot agree with you in all you say, but must commend you for your earnestness in presenting this subject as you have. You are always a welcome visitor in my store. Come as often as you can. Good by.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 28

Edgar Willard remained in Warsaw and died there, but his sisters—Carrie and Lily, returned to New York, though both, after their marriage made Indiana their home. I was not acquainted with Edgar, but he must have been a young man of exceptionally fine character, for his memory is held green even to the present day by those who knew him. The girls were winsome, bright and fair, and made friends wherever they went. One of Father's sweetest poems was written for the album of the older sister. It began

"Shall we meet—
In lands of Isaiah's beauty beyond the desert's gloom,
In chimes of life immortal beyond the sunless dead tomb,
Where shrubs of life are growing 'neath Eden's cloudless skies,
Say, Carrie shall we meet?"

Carrie made one of a lovely trio, who visited our home and explored its delightful woods, and prairies, in the summer of 1859, and Lily one of a quartette, who spent a joyous week with us in the spring of 1860. With the latter party was a Miss Rosalyn Murdick—the only sister of Annie Murdick, whom I mentioned sometime ago, and also a Miss Annie Swihart, both girls of the highest type of physical, moral and intellectual beauty. The latter, when bidding us good-bye, laughingly said, "I'll be back in the May," but before the Maytime came, she was dead.

How surprised [illegible] we were, when we heard [illegible] she was the very picture [illegible] when she left us; her cheeks roseate, [illegible]

"'Tis the [illegible] caught of a breath,
From the bloom [illegible] galaxies of death,
From the gilded [illegible] ber and the shroud,
Oh why should the spirit [illegible] be proud?"

Rosalyn and Lily [illegible] again touch with each other, after the lapse of nearly fifty years, as do also the former and myself.

But I must not linger here with these dear friends of my girlhood days, whose lives and destiny were linked so closely with Auntie Willard's, since, for it is now about the time when the two families, so long and intimately connected by ties of friendship and of grace, are to be separated by hundreds of miles.

One evening as Auntie Willard was setting the table for supper, her husband's brother,—Joel Willard—picked up the County paper, and began reading a notice of some lands that were for sale at Hammonton, New Jersey. She at once became interested and seating herself beside him said, "Uncle, what have you found?" "Just the place for you," he replied. She "laughingly related the circumstance to her husband" when he came in and handed him the paper. A correspondence was at once begun and in Jan. 1860, he set out with his eldest son, Nelson, to visit the place.

Being greatly pleased with "the lay of the land" he made choice of a home and leaving his son to secure it if possible, returned to Warsaw to make preparations for moving should the home be purchased. For a year Auntie Willard had been asking the Lord to take them away from that plane of despondency and trial to a more congenial field. She wanted her dear boys to have better, more godly influences thrown around them, that they might grow up, wise and God-fearing men, and being saved themselves, be able to stretch out the saving hand to others. She also "hoped that a removal would break the spell that bound her and give her liberty in the service of God."

The climate of Indiana in pioneer days was none of the best. All suffered more or less who came here. In 1838 there were not well persons enough to take care of the sick, and large numbers died. Every fall the poor settlers would have to tussle with the ague or bilious fever. Father had the third day ague, for three years in succession.

Auntie Willard's health had broken down from long breathing of the miasmatic atmosphere. She was now an invalid, and this necessitated a change of climate. The place was bought and all were at last on the train. The morning of the second day found them in Philadelphia and at four o'clock P. M. they took the cars for Hammonton, where they arrived May 24th, 1860, where like Abraham of old they "built an altar unto the Lord and called upon his name, and with thanksgiving for their safe arrival and pleasing reception, they dedicated their all to God, praying him to be gracious unto them in that strange land, and to help them to do all his pleasure in their coming. This privilege was their crowning blessing."

We wish to call the attention of all of the Indiana brethren to the notice of the Conference that is given in this paper. The committee has arranged a programme that will be worth while hearing, and the business that is to be attended to should be of interest to every member of the Church in the State. The officers chosen to have charge of the work the coming year, should be the very best the State affords. The question of Evangelistic work is to be discussed. Shall we fold our hands and seal our pocketbooks? We are sometimes told that if the Lord wants his work done he will find a way to accomplish it. Did it ever occur to you that the Lord has found you and given you his truth. He has witnessed your acceptance of his offer of salvation, and has entered you as one of his workers—his co-workers. If you have a right to expect him to fulfil his promises to you, then he has the same right to demand the promised service from you. You cannot reasonably expect God to be true to you, unless you are faithful to him. His work will simply not go on as it should unless you give your support. The Conference Board wants your presence at the meeting, so your counsel and advice can be given. They want the encouragement you can give. They want to know how much you can give the coming year, of time, talent and money, to carry forward the work. If you cannot be there then send a letter of greeting and a pledge of what you will give. Let everyone arouse and do the very utmost. The Coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

Arabic Proverb:—Wisdom is better than riches. Wisdom guards thee, but thou must guard thy riches. Riches diminish in the using; but wisdom increases in the use of it.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trustworthy.

WILL all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. R. Robinson will in future be 380 West Main St. Salem, O.

Scriptures Opened.

This a book of 370 pages written by Robert Ashcroft, and is a book of thoughts and themes for Bible Students. We have a few copies only, and first come—first served. This book sold for $1.25, but we offer what we have for 80 cents, post paid.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites (as of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as necessary) for final salvation.

M. Joblin Is Dead.

On Oct. 10, we received a card stating that Brother Joblin was dead, and that Brother Neill would send an obituary notice later.

Though this news was not unexpected, as Brother Joblin has been sick so long, yet the expected is always a shock. For a number of years our Brother was associated with the Editorial work of The Restitution, and being a man of decided convictions, it is not at all remarkable that he incurred the displeasure of some. On the other hand his friends and adherents far out-number those who opposed him.

We lack ability to adequately set forth in words our appreciation of him as a man and brother. He ever labored beyond his strength. Always faithful and true. With him there was no compromise with error. He esteemed it a duty to God to fight for the truth, hence he was ever in the thickest of the fray. Brother Joblin worked from principle, and nothing could turn him. The affections of a life-time might be swept away, but yield to what he believed was error he would not.

This is our tribute, then, to Brother Joblin—a faithful, true, conscientious man, friend, brother, Christian. His life work is done, and his account is in the hands of the just Judge. It is likely he has made some mistakes—none are perfect as yet—but if any ill will lies in the heart of a man, it shold be laid aside ere his sun goes down.

Our prayer is that we each may live so as to meet our dear Brother Joblin on the evergreen shore, where there will be no more partings and heartaches. May the kind Father in heaven protect and care for our bereaved Sister Joblin.

Word comes that our Brother, Dr. Joseph T. Smith, of Long Beach, Cal. died Sept 26th. We have no further particulars.

Brother, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

The article in this issue by Brother S. A. Chaplin is sent us by Brother C W. Tomkins, and is taken from an old magazine called the "Israelite Indeed" edited by G. R. Lederer, in 1865, just at the close of the Civil War.

The programmes for the Indiana and for the Southern Illinois Conferences are printed this week. Every one be at the meetings from the start so as to attend to the business in its proper shape.

The Plymouth Church again had the pleasure of listening to instructive sermons delivered by Sister Woodward on last Sunday. Brother and Sister Woodward were at Argos all last week, and there were some baptisms, how many we cannot say definitely. They left for their home in Michigan on Monday, to be ready for their Conference which convenes next week. Sister Woodward's next appointment here will be over the second Sunday in November.

Remember the Conferences that are being advertised for this month. All who possibly can do so ought to attend these meetings. Your counsel is needed. If you find that you cannot go, then be sure that you are represented by some one authorized by the local church to which you belong. If you are isolated and cannot attend, send a letter of greeting and a pledge for what you will do for the Master's cause. If you ever intend doing for Christ, do it now, tomorrow is not yours.

Sunday School Lesson.

Lesson for Sunday Oct. 27.

Caleb's Faithfulness Rewarded. Joshua xiv. 6-15.

Golden Text. "Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things." Matt. xxv. 28.

In the last lesson we read that the walls of Jericho fell down flat. Such statements affords great amusement to the wise of this world—age—The world by wisdom knows not God. 1 Cor. i. 21.

Joshua next took the city of Ai, Chapter viii. Abraham pitched his tent near Ai more than four hundred years before. Gen. xii. 8. When all the kings of Canaan—west of the Jordan heard about Ai they formed a combination—an alliance— to defeat Joshua. Josh. ix. 1, 2. With the help of the Lord Joshua next defeated the king of Jerusalem and four other kings. Josh. x. He went on from victory to victory till the land rested from war. Josh. xi. 23. In chapter xii. a list of the thirty-two kings conquered. In chapter xiii. the division of the land.

Lesson Text.

6. Caleb reminds Joshua that the Lord had told Moses something about them—What was it? Num. xiv. 25; Deut. i. 35-38.

7. Kadesh-barnea—Where was it? Num. xiii. 26. As it was in my heart,—Caleb saw the land. It was just as the Lord had said, Exod. iii. 8. And he believed that what God had promised he was able, and would perform. As Abraham believed,—Rom. iv. 21.

8. My brethren—Ten of the twelve. Num. xiii. Wholly followed the Lord. Believed exactly what the Lord said by Moses, and lived accordingly.

9. The Land—Hebron, verse 14. Where Abram lived. Gen. xiii. 18.

10. The Lord hath kept me alive. To possess his portion of the land. There was another man that God kept alive—who was he? Luke ii. 25-32.

11. The Lord not only kept Caleb alive, but also kept up his strength. Surely God did reward his faithfulness. Who was it that died and was not even sick? Deut. xxxiv. 7.

12. This mountain,—The mountain before Hebron where Samson carried the gates of Gaza. Judges xvi. 3. In that day—Forty-five years before.—The Anakim—the three sons of Anak. Joshua xv. 14. This verse also proves that the Lord was with him.

13. And Joshua blessed him—congratulated him, and gave him Hebron—as the Lord had promised.

14. It has been said that Caleb was no Israelite, because he is called Caleb the son of Jephemieh the Kenezite. In Numbers xiii. we have the definite statement that he was one of the heads of the children of Israel, verse 3, and of the tribe of Judah, verse 6.

15. Arba—Said to be the father of Anak—the father of the giants. Truly Caleb was rewarded for his faithfulness. There is nothing singular about the Lord rewarding Caleb. God has made—to all the faithful—promises of great rewards and the Lord Jesus Christ will see to it that these rewards are granted. The Golden Text is a promise of much for little.

For a life of faith and works the faithful are promised possession of the kingdom of God. Dan. vii. 18. A collective promise.

He that overcometh—is faithful to the end—is promised the reward of a seat with Christ on his throne. Rev. 3, 21. This is an individual promise.

The next Lesson, The Cities of Refuge, Joshua xx. 1-9.

The Morning Star.

Rev. xxii. 16. "I am the bright and morning Star."

This is one of the most beautiful metaphors of the Bible. It seems a happy thought that Jesus Christ, that Great Shepherd of the sheep, that glorious beacon light of joy and hope to lost humanity, should in the last utterances of the Book of God be styled the Bright and Morning Star. Among the many symbols and figures by which Christ is represented in the Scriptures, I think none is more suggestive and comforting than this.

A welcome guest after a weary night of watching is the star of day. It is the glad messenger of light and joy. Night is a cover for all that is loathsome and diabolical. Murders, premeditated and in cold blood are not usually enacted in the light of the sun. The stillness and darkness of the midnight hour are more congenial to this dreadful business than the brilliant light of the noonday sun. Deep laid and complicated plans of treachery, theft and incendiarism, generally culminate under shadow of night.

The day star betokens deliverance from all this. It ushers in the day when doors are unlocked and left open, when special guards are released from their duty, and the world wears a happy appearance of peace and safety. A dark night of sin and moral turpitude has settled down upon our earth and its inhabitants. But the night has an end and the morning cometh.

Jesus Christ, of Nazareth, is the glorious Morning Star of the universe. He is such to Individuals. Who can explain the horrors of personal guilt before God? The dark shadows of sin as they cast their blighting power into the soul of man may be realized and wept for, but can never be described nor analysed. Sin in its generalities is not a question of much moment, but in its personal and individual character, it is a mighty problem. So long as men look upon sin only as a common and universal thing to which all alike are heir, and as a sort of arrangement of fate from which we cannot flee, so long they will not fear it, or loathe it, or seek to avoid it; but when it is brought home as a personal, individual matter, with all its crushing weight of responsibility and condemnation, then it is that we need a Savior, then it is we need a Star of Bethlehem—a hope inspiring joy, imparting light to shine into our hearts. To all such, Jesus is not only a star heralding a day of effulgent light and glory, but also a sun, bringing the day, and with light all divine, dispersing the night, driving out every shadow, and filling all the avenues of life with joy and peace.

Jesus is a Morning Star to the nations and the ages. The wise men followed a star which pointed out the way to Bethlehem, but that was only a meteor, and led them to a shining star, whose lustre was destined to grow brighter and still brighter with the passing ages. Long ages after the meteor which led them should have faded and been lost to sight and memory, the Star of hope to which it led them will be shining in its uncustomed orb with only increasing and growing brilliancy.

Jesus taught the lawyers in the temple at twelve years of age, and they marvelled at his wisdom. And when he spoke to the people they pronounced him a prophet such as had never been before. But the past is only a hint of what is to come. His wisdom and power of knowledge thus far exhibited, is only the index of what is yet to come. Not a few Jews heard him and were astonished. All nations are to hear him and be astonished. All people are to [illegible] and his doctrine is to [illegible] which is universal in its [illegible].

The light of Tabor at the transfiguration was only a shadow of the glory that is to [illegible] earth is to be filled with his knowledge, and his glory, and the [illegible] his reign.

Some stars give great promise and hope, but become dimmed by thick clouds, and their rays are lost entirely to sight. Not so with the Morning Star of our religion. He is the Bright and Morning Star. He passed under a dark shadow at Golgotha, but it obscured his brightness only for a time. He emerged from its gloom when the angel rolled away the stone from the door of his sepulchre. No other shadow has ever darkened his light or dimmed his brightness.

Stars set when the sun rises; so when Jesus becomes the Sun of day, he will no longer be needed as the star of hope to his people.

Balaam in his wonderful prophecy of Christ, said "There shall come a Star out of Jacob." But Malachi said in his still more wonderful prophecy, "To you who fear his name shall the Sun of Righteousness arise with healing in his wings." To the trembling and inquiring penitent Jesus appears as the Star of promise; but to the believing and trusting saint, he appears as the all-glorious Sun.

In the present age of sin and moral darkness, Jesus is to the world and nations, simply a star; but as such, he is full of promise and hope to those who trust him; but in the fulness of time he will be the Light of the world. His glory will cover the hills, and fill the valleys and permeate all hearts. He will then be the Sun.

There is still another analogy which we may profitably trace on this subject. The first coming of Christ as compared with his second, is as a star compared with the sun in glory. Glorious as was his first coming in its object and work, yet it was mingled with dark shadows. Great as were his moral victories, yet his life was a continual record of sorrow, trial and suffering. His life was a standing miracle, sustained at every point by the providence of heaven, and yet he was obliged to flee from the edict of a wicked king, and take refuge in a heathen land; and through the whole of his history, he was a pilgrim, homeless, and almost friendless, and finally he closed his career by the ignominy of the cross. All the allusions of the prophets to this coming of Christ are shrouded in gloom. Their pictures are all on dark backgrounds. Heavy shadows fall across the canvas upon which the scenes of his earth life are described by the prophetic pen.

Not so, however, in regard to his future and second coming. There are no shades of sadness found in any inspired description of this grand event. He will come the Conqueror and not the conquered. He will come to reign and not to suffer. He will come in judgment and not to be judged. No king's edict will then intimidate him, for the nations will become his willing subjects. No crown of rude thorns will bedeck his brow, for he has been crowned King of kings. He will no longer be subject to Satan's will, and led of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted, for he has stood the trial and has been proven worthy of a crown and kingdom. He will come, not in humiliation, but in glory. His friends are no longer illiterate fishermen and obscure tax gatherers, but they are the shining angels, and his worshippers, the redeemed hosts. He weeps no more over Jerusalem's fallen walls and wicked children. The night of weeping is past, the morning of joy has come. To the worthy scattered flock, he is the Star of Morning. To the redeemed and saved Bride, he will be the "Sun of Righteousness."—C. C. Marston.

Show Your Colors.

During the vacation of Dr. George C. Lorimer, pastor of Tremont Temple Baptist Church in Boston, Mr. J. Robertson of Scotland supplied for him. He mentioned an incident in his experience that is worth repeating.

Soon after his conversion he left home, and on the voyage had to room with another—a stranger to him. Whether his companion would prove to be a man of the world, or a believer in Jesus, he did not know; and the question of his own duty had to be considered.

Should he boldly show his colors? or keep quiet and say nothing for his newly found Master? He settled the point by going to his trunk, taking out the Bible his mother gave him, and laying it on his pillow. Then he went on deck, and waited long enough as he supposed, for the other to go to his room and to bed; but on retiring he did not find him there. He found however something that pleased him greatly; on the other pillow lay a Bible. That was enough; they were no longer strangers, but members "of the household of God," and had very pleasant times together in converse on things divine.

This is suggestive to young Christians. "Add to your faith virtue" or courage, 2 Pet i 6, and Peter well understood what he was talking about, as he once greatly failed through a lack of it. Have the courage of your convictions. Throw your banner to the breeze manfully. Stand up for Jesus bravely, yet wisely.

As in the foregoing incident, courage for Christ on your part will help others to do their duty. Remember he has said "Whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels," Mark viii 38. Now is our opportunity to honor Jesus, let us remember to do it daily.

Carnal and Spiritual Things.

The invisible things in nature are more real than the visible. The visible things around us are formed of invisible elements; and however the things which are visible and real may change in form, or pass out of existence; the invisible elements into which they are resolved remain.

So spiritual elements are first and more important than those which are material and carnal. The Spirit of God brooded upon the face of the waters, and life came through the power of that spirit. So "there is a spirit in man, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth him understanding," and this spiritual element is more important than a man's mere material form. Drunkards have muscle, rogues have brains, but true and faithful Christian men have something more than either. They are spiritual while others are carnal. Hence while godless men live "as natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed," spiritual men have in them elements of endless life and everlasting blessing.

Human society derives its strength and vigor from the higher rather than the lower elements. Society rests on God; separated from the spiritual and divine, it falls into chaos and corruption. Hence whatever tends to the moral and religious regeneration of man, is infinitely more important than that which relates simply to temporal matters.

Men sometimes contrast religious teaching with material help; they say people need bread, not tracts; but a large number of the people who ask for bread would take money if it were given them and spend it for strong drink, while if a tract were given to them, and read and believed and obeyed by them, it would end the strong drink business, and they would soon have bread enough to spare without begging for it. Hence a text of Scripture may be far more valuable to a man than a suit of clothes, for if a man is made new by the Word of God, the new suit of clothes will probably soon follow the new heart and the new life.

Of course we should not withhold immediate assistance from those who are in urgent need, though sometimes the lessons of need are exceedingly important. The prodigal son never came home until he "began to be in want" and "no man gave unto him." If his money had held out, or if he had held out, or if he had learned the art of bumming and begging, he might have lived and died a worthless tramp. But when he was hungry he came to himself; and when he came to himself he went home. Doubtless much food, bestowed upon persons who are unworthy to receive it, is wasted; and so, much of the "good seed," the living Word, falls on thorny and stony ground. Nevertheless it is business of Christians to continue to do good to all, as they have opportunity, and to benefit both the bodies and the souls of men. But if we can once get men right inside, they will soon be in a position to need very little outside help; for they will labor, working with their hands, and not only supply their own wants, but also help others.

Hence all successful effort to benefit man must have respect largely to his spiritual and intellectual relations; and in laboring to benefit men spiritually, men are sometimes obliged to neglect the more carnal and worldly aspects of affairs. God has given to every man his work, and to some he has left no time to make money. But an apostle has said, "If we have sown to you spiritual things, is it a great thing, if we shall reap your carnal things?" Men who are faithfully laboring to upbuild spiritual interests among men in this world, are also laboring indirectly for the material and temporal interests of the people, as really as if they were planting corn, building houses, making shoes or raising potatoes. One man saved from drunkenness may save a town or city thousands of dollars. One man rescued from a course of sin, may prove of greater advantage than the starting of a factory or the building of a railway; for the saved man may start the factory or build the railway, or may train his children in such a way that they shall be a life-long blessing instead of a curse to the entire community. The servant of God is no beggar in this world, he pays his way; and earns his bread; and those who are caring for their own material interests should see to it that while he attends to his work they attend to their duties, and provide generously for his wants that he may labor without hindrance and without anxiety.—Armory.

Think of This.

The position of "a good minister of Jesus Christ" (1 Tim iv 6) and an under-shepherd of "the flock of God" (1 Pet v 2-4) is sometimes filled, and sometimes merely occupied. To fill such a place means in this life the welfare of Christ's flock, and a good degree of acceptance, though it may involve partaking of the sufferings of Christ in great self denial, and possible martyrdom, but in the end "a crown of glory" (1 Pet v 4) and "a full reward" (2 John viii). To merely occupy the position is to "fall of the graces of God" (Heb xii 15) and suffer loss in the final day, being saved as by fire if at all (1 Cor iii 15). Those who can fill are being sought. Those who merely occupy are seeking.

M'Ilvane: We should feel that the religion of the Bible stands alone, not only as to the wisdom and grandeur of her communications, but equally so as to the boldness of her evidences, the sublimity of her credentials and the god-like dignity with which she cometh to the light, that her deeds "may be made manifest that they are wrought in God."

An Evangelist.

The evangelist is not primarily a teacher but a prophet—a prophet of the old school, such as Amos. His function is to startle the mortal ture. He aims at moving the [illegible] rather than instructing the intellect. He stimulates latent moral energy. To be sure he ought to have ideas, but he need have no stock of novelties. The great evangelists have differed widely in methods of presenting their messages, but they all have had one common denominator—intense conviction.

Moody and Drummond were illustrations of the truth of this. They approached the needs of men from different directions, but they both believed with all the earnestness of their mighty souls in the power of Christ to meet these needs. When they spoke to students on the deep things of religion they did not keep qualifying statements and enlarging on niceties. The diseases were diagnosed and sovereign remedies applied. There was no frittering, no begging.

The man who speaks to students as a prophet may be forgiven if he disbelieves some things, but the unpardonable mistake is for him to attempt to speak unless he has burning convictions on certain other things. One does not attack battleships with buckshot, but with projectiles.—The Intercollegian.

A Hand for the Tempted.

It is no great virtue to be brave when we have neither trials nor temptations. One may walk down the avenue with the liquor interests flaunting their devices on every hand, and he may have only a deepening disgust for the whole business. There is no temptation, and it requires neither courage nor self-control for him to walk in the midst of these enticements. But to some unfortunate one who is addicted to the use of strong drink, and is trying manfully to overcome his besetting sin, to him it is a temptation to go down that avenue. He must walk with a prayer on his lips and courage in his heart that he may overcome the snares that are set for him. He is running a gauntlett of fire. He needs the help of God and a brother's hand. It is the man with an appetite who needs to pray that the angel of the Lord may be around him.

Such a man should have our sympathy and help that he may pass through his furnace of fire unscathed. To place temptation in the way of the man who is doing his best to reform, is worse than to put a stumbling-block in the way of the blind.—United Presbyterian.

Paragraphs.

Resignation to God's sovereign will in trying times displays wisdom and secures comfort.

Have enough regard for yourself to treat your greatest enemy with quiet politeness. All petty spites are mere meannesses, and hurts yourself more than any one else.

The violet grows low and covers itself with its own leaves, and yet of all flowers yields the most delicious and fragrant smell. Such is humility.

Heaven sends us ten thousand truths; but because our doors and windows are shut to them, they sit and sing awhile upon the roof and then fly away.

God renders earth desolate to induce you to seek a better country. He strikes away every human prop, and puts failure and vexation into every worldly scheme, that you may turn from your idols unto him.

Matthew Henry: God led the Israelites to and fro, forward and backward, as in a maze or labyrinth, and yet all the while under the direction of the pillar of the cloud. He led them about, and yet he led them by a right way. His way in bringing his people home is always the best, though it may not be the nearest.

Archbishop Leighton on returning home one morning, was asked by his sister, "Have you been hearing a sermon?" "I've met a sermon," was the answer. The sermon he had met was a corpse on its way to the grave; the preacher was Death. Great street preacher! No laws nor penalties can silence him. No tramp of horses, nor rattling of carriages, nor rush and din of crowded streets can drown his voice. In heathen, pagan and Protestant countries, monarchies and free states, in town and country, the solemn pomp of his discourse is going on.

Poetry.

An Autumn Song.

The song-birds are flying,
And southward are hieing,
No more their glad carols we hear.
The gardens are lonely,—
Chrysanthemums only
Dare now let their beauty appear.

The insects are hiding,
The farmer providing
The lambkins a shelter from cold.
And after October
The woods will look sober
Without all their crimson and gold.

The loud winds are calling,
The ripe nuts are falling,
The squirrel now gathers his store.
The bears, homeward creeping,
Will all soon be sleeping
So snugly, till winter is o'er.

Jack Frost will soon cover
The little brooks over;
The snow-clouds are up in the sky
All ready for snowing;
Dear Autumn is going,
We bid her a loving good-by.

The Kingdom of God.—No. 2.

"Sp likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." Luke xxi. 31.

The writer in his first article on the above subject, stated that the words of Christ above quoted, show positively that the kingdom of God is in the future, and will be set up at his second coming, as by him taught and understood and affirmed by all the inspired writers who refer to it. He also showed that the Greek word basileia, rendered kingdom in Matt iii 2, and upon which incorrect rendering has been founded the error that the kingdom must have been set up at Pentecost, because it is said "The kingdom of heaven is at hand," referred to Christ the King, and not t his kingdom.

It was shown also to be wrong to attach a meaning to any word, sentence or passage, as so frequently done, which would bein contradiction of other passages. And in conclusion this point was illustrated by referring to the well known fact that thologians had so changed the true meaning of words in regard to the future punishment of the wicked as to show that God does not mean what he says, when he says in 200 passages that the wicked shall perish, be destroyed, burned as stubble fully dry, burned up as chuff, as tares, as withered branches, etc.

We proceed to notice other passages that are quoted to prove that the kingdom of God was set up in the days of Christ and his apostles; and that the church is in the kingdom, and that the kingdom is in the church —all of which absurdities are taught by the orthodox (?) churches of the world.

When it is asserted that the church is the kingdom of God, it is admitted that the kingdom is literal; when it is said that it is within a person, then it is changed from a literal to a spiritual kingdom. But we propose to show that neither Christ nor any inspired writer gives any intimation that the kingdom of God will be set up in the heart, or in the earth prior to Christ's second coming. For Christ says "My kingdom is not of this world," but of the world to come, he most certainly means, "the new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness." There is not a sentence in the Bible to show that the kingdom of God is a spiritual kingdom. It is said that the saints "shall inherit the kingdom of God." If so, how can the church be the kingdom, as alleged, if the church is to inherit it? The perverted words of Christ as recorded in Luke xvii 20 21, are relied on to prove a spiritual kingdom in the heart, and read as follows:

"And when he was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, 'The kingdom of God cometh not with observation (or outward show); neither shall they say, Lo here, or lo there, (when it cometh) for behold, the kingdom of God is within you.'" The margin reads "or among you." So that according to the margin, there is no intimation of a spiritual kingdom within or without. Dr. Adam Clarke, the great Methodist commentator, in writing on this passage says that basileia here means Christ. Whiting in his version of the New Testament renders he basileia "the King." Griesbach renders the sentence "The Majesty of the God is in the midst of you." The Diaglott gives it "God's Royal Majesty is among you."

The writer is firm in his belief that Christ here refers to himself as King de jure of his future kingdom.

Paul's words in Col i 13, which have also been perverted from the original, and are flippantly quoted to prove that the church is now the kingdom, reads as follows: "Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of God's dear Son."

Griesbach translates it as follows—"Who delivered us from the authority of darkness, and caused a change of sides for the kingdom of the Son of his love," and the Diaglott has it—"Who delivered us from the dominion of darkness, and changed us for the kingdom of the Son of his love."

We often hear quoted the words of the apostle, "The kingdom of God is righteousness and peace," to prove that the kingdom of God is within a Christian. But the apostle does not say nor mean, as supposed, that righteousness and peace is the kingdom of God. He simply means, as everyone ought to know, that righteousness and peace are characteristics of the kingdom.

John says "God is love," but love is not God, but of God. So righteousness and peace are of the kingdom.

The writer deems it unnecessary to notice other passages in this connection, as those already disposed of are the chief reliance in sustaining the popular hypothesis. It will be well to remember that if these erroneous translations, as shown, are insisted on, it would show a palpable contradiction of the words of Christ at the head of this article, and all his positive declarations that the kingdom does not appear until he comes from heaven with the holy angels, when, he says he will "reward every man according to his works," and will "say unto them on his right hand, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

Let us now see what God revealed to the prophet Daniel, when he was called before Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to interpret his wonderful dream, and to tell what his forgotten dream was, which the astrologers, soothsayers, magicians and Chaldeans could not tell. The intelligent Bible reader knows that all the commentators agree that the great metallic image of a man, which the king saw in his dream represents the four universal kingdoms, Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece and Rome; and that the legs of iron represent Rome consolidated, and the feet and toes Rome divided into ten kingdoms as symbolized by the ten toes of the image.

Daniel in his interpretation says (ii 40) "And the fourth kingdom (Rome) shall be strong as iron, forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things, and as iron breaketh all these shall it break in pieces and bruise. And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potter's clay, and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in the strength of the iron.....mixed with miry clay. And as the toes of the feet were part of iron and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly brittle. And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men (other nations) but they shall not cleave one to another (be consolidated) even as iron is not mixed with clay. And in the days of these (ten) kings (kingdoms) shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume (not convert, as taught) all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever."

Rome was overthrown by the northern barbarians in the fourth century, and the ten kingdoms were established, as stated in history between the years 356 A D and 483 A D. And since that time, the subjects of those kingdoms have mingled themselves with other nations, thus fulfilling the prophecy, And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed. We have been taught that these kings refer to the four kingdoms—Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece and Rome; but this cannot be true, for the first three kingdoms were not in existence when it is claimed that the kingdom of God was set up, namely, in the days of Christ and his apostles! So it is absolutely certain that it is to be as stated—in the days of these kingdoms—the ten—for Daniel was speaking in verse 41-44 of the ten and not of the four. And these ten kingdoms—though they have been mingled with other nations, unconsolidated, as predicted—are, as such, in existence at this time.

Let us now see the difference in the interpretation given by the inspired man of God and that given by theologians, and accepted by the popular church.

Daniel says, In the days of these kings [the ten kingdoms] shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom," etc. The popular church virtually contradicts this, when it says, it was set up in the days of the fourth kingdom, at Pentecost! Daniel says it was set up after the image was smitten on the feet. The church says it was smitten several hundred years before the feet were in being! Daniel says the kingdoms of the world were destroyed together when the stone smote the image, so that there was no place found for them. But the church proclaims that the smiting of the image was by the gospel, and, that, instead of the destruction of the kingdoms together, it is a gradual rubbing of the image (and it certainly has been a slow one) which will result in the conversion of the world to Christ!

In addition to the exegesis given of Nebuchadnezzar's dream and Daniel's interpretation, let us now notice the dream and vision of Daniel, which he had in the first year of Belshazzar, king of Babylon, as recorded Dan vii 1-28, all of which the reader will do well to read. Daniel says he saw in his dream and vision upon his bed "four beasts come up from the sea." the first like a lion, the second like a bear, the third like a leopard having four wings like a fowl, "After this I beheld a fourth beast; dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth; it devoured and broke in pieces, and stomped the residue.....and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it, and it had ten horns.....I beheld till the thrones [of the kingdoms] were cast down, and the ancient of days did sit, whose garments were white as snow .....his throne like the fiery flame, thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him; the judgment was set and the books were opened." And after speaking of the little horn and its destruction by the burning flame, etc., he says (verses 13): I saw in the night vision, and behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed." Daniel being perplexed, and anxious to know the full import of his vision came near to one standing by and "asked him the truth of all this." "So he told me," says Daniel, And made me to know the interpretation of the things. These great beasts, which are four, are four kings, [kingdoms] which shall arise out of the earth. But the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom forever, even forever and ever. Then Daniel would know of the fourth beast [Rome] and of its ten horns, and of the little horn that came up,—which spake great things, and whose look was more stout than his fellows. And then Daniel says, "I beheld and the same horn [Papal power] made war with the saints of the Most High, and prevailed against them until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High, and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom. Thus he said, the fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom [called four kings, verse 17], which shall be upon the earth.....And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise, and another shall rise after them." And after giving some of the characteristics of the one that should rise after the ten, the little horn, Daniel says "he shall wear out the saints .....and they shall be given into his hand until a time, times and the dividing of time [1,260 years]. But the judgment [on this power] shall sit, and they [the ten kingdom—over which the papacy ruled with a rod of iron that long term] shall take away his dominion [civil power, which has been marvelously fulfilled] to consume and to destroy unto the end" [of the 1,260 years]. "And the kingdom and the dominion.....under the whole heavens [not in heaven], shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him."

Selections.

Israel, the Church and the Nations.

Paul admonished Timothy to "study to show himself approved unto God—a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth." This is not done by those who apply the promises and prophecies concerning Israel to the Church. The Word of God contemplates the divisions of the human race, each of which holds a distinct place in the grand economy of Redemption: Israel, the Church and the nations. No one can rightly apprehend the doctrine of the "calling," and the "election," who fails to recognize these subdivisions in their proper scriptural relations. God's ultimate plan is the establishment of a kingdom upon this earth, universal in its sway and eternal in its duration, that shall embrace these as its constituent elements; and toward this consummation all Divine interventions of law, of gospel, and of the general superintendence of the destinies of all nations, under the general scheme of Providence, constantly tend. This kingdom will displace every earthly government, fill the earth under the whole heaven, universal, and embrace all people, nations and languages, as is obvious from Daniel ii 35-44, vii 14 27.

As prophecy thus foretells the complete subjugation of the world to Divine authority, the question is—is the administration of the affairs of this heavenly empire—who will rule? To the throne of the world God has called and elected One who has proved himself every way worthy of the crown and sceptre of the universal empire in the world to come." Isa xlii 1-6; Psa lxxxix 27; 1 Peter ii 4, 6; Phil ii 10, 11; Dan vii 13, 14. Jesus, the Messiah, God's own dear Son, has been made perfect through sufferings, and stands forth in prophecy as the predestined King of kings and Lord of lords in God's kingdom, and we say: Hail Immanuel. "Homage to the Son of David." But who shall compose his royal cabinet? Who shall be elevated to the ranks of [illegible] aristocracy? Who [illegible] associated princes, the [illegible] priests" of "the ages to [illegible] most glorious [illegible] tion offered to Israel [illegible] 8. But constant [illegible] ellion, and a rejection [illegible] Sovereign, by crucifying [illegible] of Glory," forfeited all pre[illegible] as a nation, and the kingd[illegible] been taken from them—that [illegible] privilege of ruling as kings and [illegible]s—and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof. Matt xxi 43. The door to royalty is thrown open to all nations in the gospel. Jew and Gentile have equal opportunities of winning a "crown of glory that fadeth not away." Those from all nations who believe on God's "chosen one," become, through faith and obedience, the "chosen generation, the royal priesthood, the holy nation, the peculiar people—in other words, the Church, the body of Christ, the house of God, the Lamb's bride, the sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty. The princely ranks in God's everlasting kingdom comprise the faithful of all dispensations of probation, whether of the Patriarchal, Mosaic or gospel ages. The General Assembly and Church of the First-born, the denizens of the New Jerusalem, are the nobility of the future times, and associated with the King who shall reign in righteousness, will be the princes who shall decree judgment. Men speak of noble houses in worldly kingdoms—the house of Hanover, the house of Orange, the house of Orleans, of Hapsburg, of Bourbon, etc., etc., but the Scriptures speak of the "household of faith," the house of God, which is the "Church of the living God." To this house belong the true nobility of the world—patriarchs, prophets, apostles, saints and martyrs—the pure and the holy of all ages. Time would fail us to speak of Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David, Paul, Peter, James and John, and the innumerable company that no man can number, who compose the royalty of coming ages. Of these the apostles have been elected to the thrones of Israel. Matt xix 28. In the distribution of future honors one will command ten cities, another five, and thus the poor despised saints will fill the multitude of places of honor in the Divine administration of government. This is the Church's prerogative and place in the future.

But Israel is not abandoned of God. If Messiah is the Savior of the "Body" —the Church—it is no less true that "Israel shall be saved in the Lord with an everlasting salvation, and not be ashamed or confounded, world without end." Isa xlv 17. And if it be true of the Church and of Israel, that they shall be saved, it is none the less true that nations will be saved and walk in the light of the New Jerusalem, and bring their glory and honor into it. Rev xxi 24, 26; also, Dan vii 14, and Ezek xxxvi 36, where the words rendered "heathen that are left" properly mean nations that are left. Zech xiv 16.

There is a solemn truth connected with all this. Although the church will be saved, not every one who joins the church in its militant state, will attain a crown of righteousness. "Many are called, but few are chosen," is true of any single age of its probationary history. Still, in its completeness, it will be a grand spectacle when in "General Assembly." So of Israel, though it shall "blossom and bud, and fill the face of the earth with fruit (Isa xxvii 6), a remnant only are saved in their passing generations. So of the existing nations; they sink into death—Sheol, Hades—into the lower part of the earth. Psa ix 17; Ezek xxxii 21, 32. The age of millennial blessedness will see the church in triumph, Israel in glory, the first of nations, and the nations left, the happy subjects of King Immanuel.

During the mixed state of the millennium, order will be restored, rebellion suppressed (without incurring a national debt of three thousand millions, we suppose, L.) all rule and authority and power put down, all enemies, even death, destroyed, when God will be all in all. Then the ages to come, the everlasting aions thereafter, are ushered in. The church is glorified, the names of the tribes are engraven on Jerusalem's gates, and the nations, saved, walk in its glorious light, Rev xxi 7, 12, 24)—Son—Israel—Nations.

Glory to God and to the Lamb! No more tears will be shed, and there will be no more death. Who alive will pass out of the sufferings and tribulations of this world into the undying ecstacies of that to come? We must gain a kingdom or nothing. Another age will furnish subjects. How glorious God's design, to fill the earth with holy, happy intelligences, to glorify him for ever, instead of colonizing a few in some celestial sphere, and consigning the majority of mankind to endless misery! When the church is in glory, and Israel and the nations that are left saved with an everlasting salvation, "the wicked will be no more."—S. A. Caplin.

Each His Own Lamp.

One of the most serious thoughts about life is its individuality. Paul puts it in a sentence when he says: "Each man shall bear his own burden." We are in danger of forgetting this truth. We think so much of our lives in their mutual relations that unless we are careful we lose sight of our individual responsibility. The duty of helping each other is so impressed upon us that we sometimes forget that in the deepest experiences of life we cannot help each other, nor can we receive help from others. Each one has to stand for himself. Each one should think of himself as an individual, standing alone before God, having no companionship in the most vital affairs of life, and should seek to realize the responsibility of this position.

When we think of it, the truth readily becomes apparent. No one can choose for us; each one can make his own decisions. We must take our own place before God and meet our own responsibilities. No one can believe on Christ for us. Others may intercede for us when we have sinned, but until we ourselves, in penitence and contrition, repent, confess, and seek forgiveness, forgiveness will not come to us. Four men carried a paralytic to Jesus, and we are told that when Jesus saw their faith he forgave the man's sins and then healed him. But we know well that the sins were not forgiven because of the faith of the four friends who carried the man. There must have been in his own heart a sense of unworthiness, a confession of sin, a cry for forgiveness, or Jesus would not have said to him, "Thy sins are forgiven thee." No one but ourselves can consecrate our life to God. No one can obey the commandments for us. No one can do our duty. All about us may be those who are busy and active in God's service, keeping his commandments and doing his work, but this avails nothing for us; we must do God's will for ourselves.

Soul-Winning.

It is glorious work. No other labor is so full of rich compensations. They who have realized how satisfying it is to toil for Jesus will never be content with any lower occupation.

But, says one and another, "I cannot break through my reserve, and talk to my neighbor about spiritual things."

This is the experience of many. The instant that conversation takes a turn toward direct religious topics, bearing on the life and conduct of individuals present, lips are sealed. Christian mothers cannot talk to their children. Fathers yearn over their boys, that they may decide to be for the Lord; but they cannot ask them a single simple question about it. Friends talk to friends about everything else. The world is full of Christ-loving hearts; but an enchanter's spell is over so many of them that their love does not overflow into speech.

If you love Jesus, and want others to love him too, see that you are so sunny, so brave, so full of joy and gladness that they will look for the motive that lies at the root of your conduct. Do not let it be said of you even in misunderstanding and partial error, that you are grim, forbidding, morose, and uncourteous. One can be selfish in prayer and devotion as well as in lesser things. To speak glad, bright, inspiring words, to do kind acts in a kind way, to let your life be, to all who feel its force, what the river is to the trees on its banks, and the sparkling rill to the meadow it kisses, will be to take a long step onward in the vocation of winning souls.—Christian at Work.

Obituary.

Martha Jane Kelroy died at her home at New Hartford, Iowa, Friday, Oct. 11, 1907, aged 68 years, 1 month and 28 days. She was the daughter of Geo. and Betsey Galbraith and born in Shefford County, Province of Quebec, Canada, Aug. 19, 1839.

The marriage of B. Kelroy and Martha Jane Galbraith took place at Freeport, Ill. 1860. They came to Blackhawk County in 1860, and for 27 years lived in the same house in Waterloo. Four and one-half months they lived in Cedar River Park, then moved to New Hartford where they lived until her death.

They have no children. Sister Kelroy is survived by three sisters and one brother. Five sisters preceded her in death—two are buried in Kansas, two in Illinois, one in Colorado, while she is buried in the cemetery at New Hartford. She has been a consistent and conscientious Christian since 1858, and a member of the Church of God.

The esteem in which she was held as neighbor and a Christian was shown by the many friends who came by train from Waterloo and other places to attend the burial.

"I am the resurrection and the life" was the text of the discourse upon the occasion.

Many hearts are sad and sympathize with the husband in his bereavement, and we all have hope that she will live again in that time when "they shall die no more."

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

When you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "The Restitution," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

Announcement.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in the State of Indiana, will be held at Hillisburg, Clinton Co., Ind., commencing Oct. 17, and continuing over the following Sunday. It is desired that each congregation throughout the state be represented. Let as many isolated believers be present as possible. We have important business to arrange and we need your council. Come in the spirit of the Master that we may exhort one another to love and good works.

Hillisburg is on the L. E. & W. R. R. east from Frankfort, and west from Tipton, Ind. All persons who expect to attend will please notify Brother Wm. Huffer, Michigantown, Indiana, that arrangements may be made for their comfort. Let all who can come. Come with a message of Hope and Love, and God will bless our meeting.

J. H. WILLEY, Pres. Ind. Con.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Michigan will convene Oct. 25 to 27 inclusive, in Brady Township, Brother Alfred Harper's neighborhood.

The brethren here have asked for this meeting, gratify them by being present, then, too, it is very necessary that you be there for there are plans to be made for next year, that you must help make. Do you know brethren, that the next Annual Conference will be our 50th, or Jubilee Year? Shall we make it a time of much good and rejoicing, by having a longer session than usual? Shall we have a Bible School the week before, week after, or each afternoon during the session?

These questions which have been suggested by interested parties, will be talked over and some decision made.

Be sure and be present. If it is impossible for many to attend from each church, talk these matters over at the home church and send a delegate with your decision, but come if possible.

Those coming from north and south come to Vicksburg over the Grand Rapids and Indiana road. From the east and west take Grand Trunk to Vicksburg. Teams will meet all trains on Friday and carry passengers to place of meeting. All try and come Friday, as the meeting is about seven miles from Vicksburg and we do not want to make the brethren extra travel.

MARY A. WOODWARD, Sec'y.

The sixth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Christ Jesus, in southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah, Ill. October 16 to 20 inclusive.

We invite all to come, and come filled with the love of God. Never mind the things of the world for awhile and let us have the best time that Moriah ever had. Moriah is eight miles from Casey, south. All parties coming to Conference will stop at Casey, and we will furnish conveyance to the church.

Every body come the first day and stay until it closes. All parties write and tell us what day to meet them at Casey. It would be best for all to get to Casey by 3 P. M., then all could get to church in due time.

Everybody come and bring some body with them and a smile on their faces and a big heart filled with love, and we will try to make you happy.

The preachers will be S. J. Lindsay and L. E. Conner, and others expected. Board, bed and transportation from and to the station, all free, come one and all.

Address all communications to Lewis Weaver, Casey, Ill. R. R. No. 3, Box 31.

By Order of the Board.

B. J. WOODS, Vice. Pres.
LEWIS WEAVER, Treas.

Our annual yearly meeting will be held at the Colony, Rolline, Kan. on the Santa Fe Railroad, seven miles east of Chanute. Those coming on the St. L. M K. R R. change cars at Walnut, Kan. Those coming on the Southern Kansas stop at Chanute, and take the Santa Fe to Rollins. It will begin Friday evening, Oct 19, to continue over Sunday. We are expecting T. J. Daniel, of Arkansas, and Brothers Oliver and Williams, and all others who possibly can. Come and give us your help, and see the Colony town site, and enjoy yourselves with us poor pilgrims journeying towards the promised land. We have made arrangements to take care of all that come. You need not expect to get pay in dollars and cents, as all are poor in this world's goods. There is not a cent in the treasury, but if the brethren think so, there could be a plenty paid in before the meeting.

Let us wake up and do something. Send money to D. A. Renner, route 8, Chanute, Kan. Those coming write to Delos Johnson or D. A. Renner at Chanute, Come and see the place we might have for a good quiet colony of good thinking Christians.

By order of the Church.

JOHN FOORE.

Indiana State Conference.

October 17 to 20, is the date of the coming Indiana State Conference, to be held at Hillisburg.

This will be the third Conference held at this point in recent years and if this compares with the two previous ones we can assure the visitors of a royal welcome and hospitable treatment at the hands of the Clinton County brethren.

The Programme Committee is preparing what will prove to be the best spiritual entertainment ever presented at a Conference, and as soon as details are arranged will make same public.

At the business sessions the following subjects will be considered:—

1. Election of Officers.
2. Election of Evangelical Committee.
3. The advisability of placing two Evangelists in the State next year.
4. Ways and means whereby we can promote the financial and spiritual welfare of the Church of God in this State.
5. The future of our State Bible School and our State Bereans, and other important topics.

President Willey urges that each of the fourteen churches be represented by delegates who can give a statement as to the financial, numerical and spiritual condition of the community. Whether delegated or not, whether members of a local church or isolated, come to the Conference. Come prepared to give good and to receive good.

Hillisburg is situated on the Lake Erie & Western Railway, between Frankfort and Tipton. Arriving at either Frankfort or Tipton you can make connections with the L. E. & W. both east and west. Those who live on the Clover Leaf route can go direct to Michigantown where you will be met by brethren.

All who come, write if possible to Wm. Huffer, Michigantown, Ind., Rt. 1. He will arrange for your comfort.

Programme Committee,
F. M. McCRORY.
WM. HUFFER.
GEO. NEILL.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wines wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wines as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wines, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Bible Themes.

Is the title of the last book issued by Brother John O. Woodruff on miscellaneous subjects, both original and selected. This book contains 480 pages and cost the author $1.25 to issue. A quantity has been supplied us, and we wish to get them into the hands of readers, and offer them at 80 cents each, post paid, while they last.

WHEN you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—this is in favor of "THE RESTITUTION," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

Wanted.

By an experienced teacher of public and private schools, a position in private family, to teach the usual public school branches. Address Miss Lucy W. Horner, Tobaccoville, Va.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Evangelizing Notice.

The N. W. Conference has selected me again as Evangelist. The brethren have added Arizona, and California to my field of labor. Any church or isolated brethren that want meetings during the Conference year should correspond with me at an early date so I can plan my year's work for this extensive territory which now includes western Oregon, Washington, California and Arizona.

Hereafter my home will be Scholls, Oregon, and Address, W. L. Skeels, R. D. 1, Laurel, Oregon.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

NOTICE.

Information wanted concerning an Evangelist known as Blind Haynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

Our talents differ, and each one will be held accountable for the use of such talent, whatever that may be. If you have only one, use that.

Some one says, what can I do? Why you can circulate literature teaching the truth if nothing else. There is no one but who can do that. Will that do any good? Oh, yes. Let me tell you something. Some people have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. It would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshal., co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother,

T. J. DANIEL.

Dawn.

Light of the better morning,
Shine down on me!
Sun of the brighter heavens,
Bid darkness flee!
Thy warmth impart
To this dull heart;
Pour in thy light,
And let this night
Be turned to day
By thy mild ray!
Lord Jesus, come;
Thou Star, star shine;
Enlighten now
This soul of mine!

Streaks of the better dawning
Break on my sight,
Fringing with silver edges
Those clouds of night.
Come on morn a brave,
Glow, brightly glow,
Foretelling soon
The ascending noon,
Wakening this earth
To second birth,
When he shall come
To earth again,
Who comes to judge,
Who comes to reign.

Baptism for the Remission of Sins.

In an article in THE RESTITUTION of Oct 9th it is asserted that immersion is not for or in order to the remission of sins but as an ordinance of duty. This teaches that our sins are forgiven through repentance and immersion may be omitted or is only of secondary importance. This is just the position taken by the socalled Christian world and therefore little importance is paid to this important ordinance of the household of God. Why pay that repentance is necessary and immersion not?

Is not the statement in Acts ii 38, Repent and be immersed every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins. If repentance is necessary, is not immersion? They must stand or fall together. The apostle says, Be immersed in the name of Jesus Christ. Some importance is to be attached to the name. In Gen iv 26 we read, "Then men began to call upon the name of the Lord, (margin, to call themselves by the name of the Lord.) Exodus xxiii 20. Beware of him (the angel) and obey his voice, provoke him not; for he will not pardon your transgressions, for my name is in him. We take his name through baptism.

Jesus was immersed to fulfill all righteousness, not as a mere duty. Paul says, he was faithful in his house as a son. To be faithful is to fulfill all righteousness. It is nowhere written that immersion is an ordinance of duty but a command. Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, and he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall or is condemned. Mark xvi 15, 16. To believe and be immersed will bring salvation. Who would assert that we can be saved without believing? The order is faith, repentance and immersion. They are in order to the forgiveness of sins. The prophet Samuel said to Saul, "Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams." Rom x. If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. Can it be that baptism is not required in this Scripture? We are to believe that God raised him from the dead. We must confess it with our mouth and believe it in our hearts. We must show his death by our acts as well as by our voice. It is not every one who says Lord, Lord, but he that doeth the will of my Father who art in heaven. We wish to notice Rom vi 17. But God be thanked that (since) ye were the servants of sin, ye have obeyed from the heart that form (mold) of doctrine which was delivered to you. The mold of doctrine is spoken of in the first of this same chapter, Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death. Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his resurrection. Are not these texts strong proof that our life in the future depends on our being buried in the likeness of Christ's death? The burial and planting is in order that we may live anew through the resurrection. To disregard this important fact is to nullify the gospel of Christ. The gospel must be preached in order that men may hear it and be baptized into his name. Further Paul says, that our old man is crucified with him (that is put to death) that the body of sin might be destroyed. We go down into the water and are put to death in order that this body of sin be cut off, that henceforth we should serve sin no longer. Is it written anywhere that repentance will put to death the old man? In Col ii Paul speaks of the circumcision not made with hands, which is baptism, and by it we put off the body of the sins of the flesh. Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead.

It is strange that one Scripture is regarded emphatic and as teaching the forgiveness of sins through belief only. Rom x 8. To believe with thine heart is to act. To believe with the mouth is to give an assent to the fact in general. To give an affirmative answer to the queation, Do you believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and the Savior of the world, is not believing in the Christ of the Scripture. Ananias said, Why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord. Paul was here directed to be baptized in order that his sins might be washed away. This act would call on him the name of the Lord. Again we read from Paul, Gal iii 27, For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. The Emphatic Diaglott renders this text thus, Besides as many of you as were immersed into Christ were clothed with Christ. To take the name of Christ is to be clothed with Christ. These are the results of baptism and could not occur unless you were baptized. Therefore baptism is for (in order to the forgiveness of sin) or in other words our sins are not remitted until we are baptized, that is clothed with Christ.

The Greek preposition translated by the English preposition "for" is rendered by fourteen different prepositions and twice Mcknight renders it, "in order to." Rom i 17; xvi 26. 'Made known to all the Gentiles in order to the obedience of faith. The Emphatic Diaglott renders "eis" in this passage "in order to." In Acts ii 37 "for" has that signification. Unless they repented and were immersed their sins were retained. If we owe a debt we are not relieved or cut off from it until an equivalent is given in good money or personal security. Our life is given in baptism that our debt may be cancelled.

Your brother in the hope of the gospel.

D. C. ROBISON.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 29.

The road from Philadelphia to Hammonton passes through low, sandy stretches of bushy woodland—the trees looking like pigmies beside the giants of our western forests,—past half-deserted farms, large cranberry beds, with here and there fine buildings "in groves of planted trees." It was quite a contrast to the scenery Aunty Willard had been used to in her Indiana home. The scrubby oaks, the groups of pines, where great flocks of crows go home in the twilight to roost, the beautiful holly with its varnished leaves and red berries, the beds of white sand, as white as snow, were a study and a delight. The soil in the southern part of New Jersey is light. And this accounts for the large amount of uncultivated land, and for the deserted farms. But since the culture of the cranberry has been introduced much of the otherwise waste tracts has been utilized, more than half the cranberries raised in the United States being the product of the New Jersey beds.

Messrs Landis and Burns were the proprietors of all the Hammonton real estate in the 60's, and [illegible] afterward founded the town of some 5000 inhabitants. Hammonton contains perhaps [illegible] thousand less. Judge Burns afterward married Lily White, the daughter of Dame (Baker) White [illegible] ter the sister of Attie (Baker) Willard. Nelson Willard's wife, the Judge, being 36 years the senior of his spouse. The Hammonton people are fruit-growers and manufacture boats and shoes.

You will remember that the first thing Brother and Sister Willard did after reaching their new home was to erect an altar and dedicate their all to the Lord. She says, in her "Story of Grace,"—"As the fused lead took its way around every type, stereotyping the whole, so did the heavenly influence of this altar tend to remold our household for God. As darkness without light, as cold without heat, as the world without the sun, so is a household without God, a life without Jesus. He is the sunlight of the household, the sunlight of the heart. Yes, and will be the sunlight of the ages to come, 'The Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them to fountains of waters: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.' 'O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God!.....For of him, and through him, and to him are all things; to whom be glory forever. Amen.'"

She farther says, "The conviction had long rested upon my mind that if I was faithful to God in my new home, I should live and recover my health. This by grace I had vowed to do. And as now God had graciously heard our prayers and given us all our sons to be yet subject to us under the paternal roof, freed from those adverse influences that had worked the ruin of many, I was stimulated to untiring efforts on their behalf. But a herculean task it seemed, to work the needful change and cause them to be contented. From the bustle of town life to what was almost a Selkirk desert; from the delicate office work to the hot sun in the common farmer's lot, even for one season, was a change that required no small courage to endure patiently. But our hope was in God. To him we looked to accomplish what we could not do, and things did move on surprisingly even to us. It was also apparent if we had religious privileges, we must make them, and we resolved in the Lord's strength, not to live without them. Consequently on the second Lord's day after our arrival we called the family together in the form of a Bible class and thus spent the [illegible] closing with prayer. In the [illegible] noon we broke bread in remembrance of Jesus. Thus with family worship, Bible class and supper, and the blessing of God in it all, we felt that we had gone a Sabbath day's journey. 'Oh! we do praise the Lord, for he did appear unto us in this desolate place, and we were blessed as Elijah under the juniper tree. How good it is to learn by experience, that it is God who makes all our privileges; that he is the fountain to which all must come if truly blessed. Fine houses, high steeples, and all the paraphernalia of worship is but the outer court; the soul to be blessed must pass all these, and like queen Esther come in humility and fear into the presence of the king, and for itself touch the golden sceptre held out in the person of our Lord Jesus Christ. Then, and not until then, is it made whole. And it is thus that we are made whole; it is thus, and only thus, that we are kept whole, 'As ye therefore have received the Lord Jesus Christ, so walk ye in him.'

"Thus weeks were being numbered with the past while lumber was gathered, stone quarried and drawn, the well dug and material brought together for a new house in our beautiful oak grove, situated a little more than a mile from Hammonton station, directly on the line of the Camden and Atlantic railway, and a mile [illegible] just at the foot of the hill leading thirty-one miles one way and twenty-nine the other. This [illegible] summit level [illegible] was quite an item of interest [illegible] timber is so scarce in this region. We were taken quite by surprise [illegible] we rode out for the first time to the site of the house. Its retirement was just that for which I had long been sighing. Now it was mine in its perfection, and it filled the aching void. I needed just such an isolation from society that I might gather strength. Oh, to walk out and be alone, no human eye to see me. What a luxury! to walk and commune with nature and nature's God, uninterrupted! How inexpressible the pleasure! It was as pleasing as it was new and strange: never before having enjoyed the privilege. Here I found leisure time for reading and meditation. I feasted on 'The Voice of the Church,' by D. T. Taylor, and committed to memory those rich extracts from the gifted Charlotte Elizabeth Cowper, and others on the coming of our Lord. How sweet such companionship. How I appreciated as never before the labors of our brother Taylor in that work. I kept the voice of God—the Bible, and 'The Voice of the Church' on my table together; the latter but an echo of the former. We enjoyed a little world of our own in such communings with the worthies of the just and present day, and this, without any of the wear and tear incident to living in reciprocities.

"Meanwhile my heart was seeking opportunities to do good by the distribution of tracts and conversations with the few with whom we came in contact. One little boy came every Lord's day morning to be taught the alphabet and to learn of Jesus. There was no work too small to do for Jesus. My vow was upon me, and I constantly remembered it by holding myself in readiness to do with my might what my hands found to do.

"In the course of time the fruits of industry began to appear in a house rising amid the green foliage of the grove. So rapidly did the work progress that in August—a little more than two months after we reached Hammonton it was thought practicable to move in. The family altar was equally precious here and the shady grove supplied the place of meditation."

LESSON FOR SUNDAY NOV. 3.

The Cities of Refuge. Josh. xx. 1-9.

Golden Text. "My Refuge is in God." Psa lxii. [illegible]

The last lesson Caleb had received Hebron as a reward for his faith in the word of God. From Joshua chapter xiv. to xx. describes the lot or portion of the land of Canaan that was given to the tribes of Israel. The law of avenge was given after Noah came out of the ark. "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." Gen. ix. 6.

In this law there was no provision made for the slayer, no way by which he might or could escape. It did not matter whether he slew by design or accident he was to be put to death, and seemingly any one was at liberty to be the avenger. We are left to suppose that the avenger was generally a relative or friend of the one slain.

In the plains of Moab, before the Israelites entered Canaan, the Lord gave Moses instructions concerning the Cities of refuge. Num. xxxv.

The Levites were to receive from the children of Israel forty-eight cities. Six of them were to be appointed—or sanctified—set apart for cities of refuge. Three on this—the east side—of Jordan and three in the land of Canaan. If an Israelite, or one of another nation living among the Israelites should kill any one unawares—by accident he could flee for safety to the nearest city of refuge. If the congregation—at his trial—found him not guilty of any intention to murder, he was not to be delivered to the revenger of blood, but should stay in the city of refuge—in perfect safety—until [illegible] priest—or return to his [illegible] children [illegible] sin and the pro- [illegible] ing [illegible] by a party, [illegible] were the tax [illegible] of the civil power. They were universally despised; branded as plunderers, classed as beasts of prey with bears, and lions. Even our Lord classes them with heathen men, and the Jews forbade marriage with a family in which there was one publican.

The principal crops are wheat, oats, corn, barley, rye, millet, mint, hay, cotton, apples, beans, peas and onions.

The principal animals are horses, cattle, swine, sheep and goats.

Palestine is interesting to us because it is the country that our Lord Jesus spent his life in, and that Jerusalem will be the capital city of the kingdom that he is going to set up on this earth.

" 30 Luke ix 46-50
" 31 Matt xviii 11-22
Nov 1 Luke xvii 3-10
" 2 Matt xviii 23-35

Study these three sermons carefully.

QUESTIONS.

First Sermon—

What was the difference between John's preaching and Christ's?

Does it not seem strange that John doubts Christ after having baptized him?

What answer does Christ send to John to convince him?

Second Sermon—

What question does Christ ask his disciples?

Explain verses 18 and 19 in Matt. xvi.

Why did Jesus charge his disciples to tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ?

Do you find a lesson of self denial in these readings? Where?

Explain the use of the word "soul" in Matt. xvii. 26, and Mark viii. 8.

What does Jesus mean by saying that some with him should not taste of death till they saw the Son of Man coming in his kingdom?

Notice promise in Matt. xvii. 27.

Third Sermon—Matt. xviii.

Notice what is taught—

1st. Warning to be humble and harmless—explain verse 7.

2nd. To avoid offenses—do we do it.

3rd. To despise not the little ones—who are they?

4th. How to deal with the brethren when they offend us—do we do it?

5th. How to forgive.

6th. Note the parable illustrating this teaching of forgiveness in which Christ is King and we the servants.

GEORGE NEILL.

Activity is essential to healthy life, and especially to healthy Christian life. The Christain life is like the bicycle that hurries along our roads—while it is in motion you are borne onward safe and upright, but when it pauses you fall helpless to the earth.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Plymouth, Indiana, Oct. 28, 1897.

As there are five Wednesdays in this month, our next issue will bear date of Nov. 6

We were pleased to meet with Sister Eliza Rahe at the Indiana Conference. She had been visiting in Ohio, and stopped to enjoy the meeting while en route to her home in Oklahoma.

Brother Skeels announced in another column his starting on a trip to Arizona. Let those who are on his route correspond with him and arrange for meetings, as he requests.

Brother S. J. Lindsay makes report of the Illinois meeting and says it was the best he [illegible] the people—how the heart rejoices those in their youth and vigor determine to stand for Christ and his cause. Bro. Lindsay is now engaged in a series of meetings near Marshall, Ill, and we pray the blessing of the Heavenly Father to attend his efforts.

A letter from Brother McCless of Los Angeles, Cal, elsewhere in this paper, tells of his efforts to overcome the demon of intemperance. In such a case, where one is struggling, always extend the helping hand, and do not place a stumbling block in his way. Assist him into the full light of day, and snatch a brand from the burning, in the spirit of Christ. So we ask our Heavenly Father to give him strength to overcome, and light to serve Him aright.

It was our good fortune to be enabled to attend the Indiana State Conference last week at Hillisburg. The programme as given in the paper was carried out with little variation. The President, Brother Willey, was called to Mt. Ayr, Ind, on Friday evening, by the death of his brother-in-law, Mr. George Sigler, and Brother Burnham was called on to take the chair and preside, which he done to the satisfaction of all. The Secretary will give a report in full of the proceedings for our next issue, and we will not encroach on her territory much. The meeting was a success. The attendance was good all the time, and the order all that could be desired. The reports from the churches showed a good interest generally, and pledges made for next year were encouraging. Where all the preaching was of the most excellent order, it would be unjust to specialize, but no one will take offense if we mention the sermon delivered by Brother Halstead. The vigor, and energy, and earnestness displayed made an impression on the minds of all who heard him that they will carry in memory for many a day. Perhaps the most impressive sermon was the one by Brother Huggins, on the subject of "Thoughts." I shall not attempt to give any outline of it, but the "thought" was made clear that thoughts are the cause and acts the effect. The cause must come before, and is the influence that produces, the effect. Brother Huggins won the hearts of the people by his original manner of presenting the subject in hand. Not so much by saying [illegible] things, as by saying old things differently from the ordinary. Bro. Wagoner never preached better than at this gathering, and Brother Neill has made good progress in the past year by hard study and earnest application. Sister Mattie Neill, of Ohio, captivated all by her animation, and the pleasing, yet clear and emphatic manner she has of presenting her topic. The Communion service Sunday afternoon, with our good Brother Wince officiating, was most impressive and solemn. On Saturday afternoon one, and on Sunday afternoon two more, making three in all, made the good confession, and were baptized, and with one other who had been baptized before, were received into the church. May they all prove faithful to the solemn vows they have made, and meet with the approval of the King when he comes in his beauty. The hospitality of the Clinton County Church has become a proverb, and us who have experienced their kindness appreciate it fully. To others we can only say "Come and see," and you will not doubt. May God's blessing be with the Hillisburg Church.

In Memory of M. Joblin.

Our dearly beloved Brother Maurice Joblin, of Cleveland, Ohio, died Friday afternoon Oct. 4th, at 5 o'clock. For several [illegible] from a complex illness [illegible] and pain he [illegible] Jesus.

He was born at Whitwell in the Isle of Wight in 1832, and came to Canada in 1851. He there heard, believed and obeyed "The things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ," being immersed into Christ by Bro. J. B. Cook. He next moved to Seneca Falls, N. Y. He came to Cleveland in 1863 and found there one man "sound in the faith," a Bro. Kolmeyer, and ten or twelve others who had some idea of the gospel of the kingdom. After a series of sermons by Bro. Joblin these became obedient to the truth as it is in Jesus. In that year a church of thirteen members was organized by Bro. Mack Allen with Bro. Joblin Pastor. Our Sister Joblin says she is the only living member of the original Church in Cleveland. Bro. Joblin, in company with our late lamented Bro. Wm. Pate, spent two years in Cincinnati, soon after the War, preparing an illustrated work containing biographical sketches of prominent men of that City. Bro. Joblin then went to Tennessee where he farmed and preached the glad tidings to those around him. Often on Sundays he drove from ten to twenty miles to proclaim the truth to salvation.

In 1888 the meeting house on Woodland Ave., Cleveland was built. Bro. Joblin was invited to take charge as Elder and Evangelist. He came to Cleveland October 31 of that year. The opening services of the Church were held Sunday morning Nov. 11, 1888. Bro. Joblin in his kindly, earnest manner, presenting the subject "Our God whom we serve." The evening discourse was based on the text "That Blessed Hope."

As has been stated he had several ailments which kept him in rather poor health, but did not prevent him from being a most painstaking and faithful friend and servant—and indeed it might be added—father of the Church. The richest treasures of knowledge, understanding, and wisdom to salvation were brought—wrought out—by him, from the Scriptures, and delivered to the Church. For about sixteen or seventeen years he proclaimed "sound doctrine, profitable for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness." For the past two or three years this noble life of ministry has been broken by seasons of great suffering, weakness and exhaustion. In addition to his work for the Church, he wrote several valuable pamphlets, many tracts, and articles for various papers, chiefly The Restitution.

It is not known that he left any thing unfinished, but he had a great desire to do more. The Church in Cleveland has lost so much in his death, that a successor—in the full sense of the word—will be hard to find.

In character he was kindly affectionate, quiet, earnest, hospitable, modest, retiring, but bold in the truth. That he held fast, and proclaimed it without fear or favor. He had an absorbing love for the Church. His strong ambition was to preach and spread the truth concerning the exceeding great and precious promises of God to men. He had a deep desire to live a godly life, and to have those of like precious faith do likewise.

His sermons were sound doctrine. His manner—of preaching—was profound, earnest, loving, and at times, tearful entreaty. He had a positive dread of false doctrine. No one could take more pains, or labor more arduously to oppose and uproot ancient and modern theories, hobbies and logical sophistries, which make the Word of God of none effect. It is indeed questionable if he had an equal as a Bible student, a teacher of spiritual things. It may be truly said of him, "A great man has fallen." Those who knew him best loved him best.

He leaves a widow, our beloved Sister Joblin, aged and infirm. They lived and loved together many, many years. She was in truth his helpmeet, and a great inspiration to him. She shared in all the honors that were accorded him by the faithful—by the world he was not known.

Our Brother Robinson, State Evangelist, of Salem, Ohio, was called to preach the funeral sermon, in the Church at Cleveland. The address was affectionate, Scriptural, and very instructive as to the nature of man. He spoke words of hopeful gladness, in the full belief that our Bro. Joblin will be "Raised up at the last day," closing with an earnest, affectionate appeal to the Church to take a constant loving care of Sister Joblin. The Salem, O., church, where Bro. Joblin had often been called to preach the good news, or officiate at funerals [illegible] present at the Cleveland Church, love and sympathy, and to the widow their affectionate consolation. The [illegible] was done by Bro. Neill at the close of the discourse by Bro. Robinson.

Our beloved brother was then laid to rest in Lake View cemetery to await the time when "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven"—to raise the dead saints, and change the living saints. Let us strive to meet our brother in the kingdom.

P. Neill.

To the memory of Brother Joblin.

I was acquainted with Brother Joblin when he first embraced the Bible doctrine of the restitution of all things that God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. I was at his baptism and I have been more or less acquainted with him ever since, and found him to be a man that was fearless in the discharge of his duties to his God, and to his brethren. I sympathize with Sister Joblin in her lonely condition, and pray that the God of all grace may surround her with his loving arms, and bring her to join her dear companion in the kingdom. Amen.

Selections.

Christ in Prophecy.

The first prophecy concerning Christ was spoken on the day of the transgression of Adam and Eve when God said to the serpent, "The seed of the woman shall bruise thy head." All through the Old Testament Scriptures Christ's birth is foretold. For example, Gen xlix 10 we read, "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be."

That this promised seed was the Son of God is shown by Psa ii 6, 7, and many other Scriptures. Isaiah and Malachi both prophesied concerning the messenger of Christ that would come before him to prepare the way for him. In Psa lxxii 10,16, we are told of the gifts which were brought unto him; in Hosea xi 1 of the fact that he would go into Egypt, and he was taken there that Herod might not destroy him.

We are told in many places what Christ's office was to be. Through him and indirectly through Abraham, all the families of the earth shall be blessed. Gen xii 3. Isaiah xi says, "In [illegible] shall be a root of Jesse which shall stand for an ensign of the people, to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious," and in Joel ii 32, "It shall come to pass that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be delivered, for in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance as the Lord hath said, and in the remnant whom the Lord shall call."

Christ's ministry in Galilee is foretold in Isa ix 1, 2, his miracles in Isa lxii 7. Something of his character is shown where David says, "Thou lovest righteousness and hatest wickedness, therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows," also in Isa xi 2; and lii 9.

Concerning his teaching the Psalmist says, "I will open my mouth in a parable; I will utter dark sayings of old."

We know that he must have been rejected by men, because it was written, "He shall be for a sanctuary, but for a stone of stumbling and for a rock of offence"—and "The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner."

Christ's suffering was foretold in many places, but perhaps no place described so fully as in Isa liii. Zechariah tells of his entry into Jerusalem; of his being betrayed by a friend whom he trusted; that he would be betrayed for thirty pieces of silver; and that the money would be used to purchase a potter's field. It was foretold that he would be falsely accused, but would not reply against that accusation; that he would endure mockery and insult, but would be patient through all the suffering; that he would be crucified; be offered gall and vinegar when he was thirsty; and even the words of his cry upon the cross were spoken many years before by the prophet. His garments were divided by casting lots as was predicted. Not one of his bones were broken (though all those of the thieves were); his hands and feet were cruelly pierced (Psa xxii [illegible] his grave was with the wicked [illegible] with the rich, that the Scriptures might be fulfilled.

[illegible] psalmist said, "Thou will not [illegible] my soul in hell neither will thou [illegible] thine holy one to see corruption." [illegible] and Hosea says, "After two days will he revive us and in the third day he will raise us up, and again Daniel says, "Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive. These [illegible] life of Christ prophecy has been fulfilled, but there are prophecies that must yet be fulfilled.

We are told that he will come again Psa l 3, 6; Dan vii 13 and that he shall have an everlasting kingdom and that all people and all nations shall serve him. Dan vii 14; 1 Chron xvii 14, "His dominion shall be from sea to sea and from the rivers unto the ends of the earth. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom to order it and to establish it with judgment and justice from henceforth even forever. When we consider how fully all that was written has been accomplished so far, we cannot doubt that it will be just as literally accomplished in the future. The Old Testament as well as the New tells us so much about Christ's coming and his kingdom that we may feel sure our hope is well founded and that the prayer, "Thy kingdom come," will be answered.

How One Boy Succeeded.

I recently saw a remarkable man in the little village of Norwich, New York. If you wish to know his name, go into any hardware store and ask for the best hammer in the world; they will bring you a hammer bearing the name of D. Maydole. Young gentleman, take that hammer in your hands, drive nails with it, and draw inspiration from it.

Many years ago a boy was struggling through the snows of Chenango Valley, trying to hire himself to a blacksmith. He succeeded, and learned his trade; but he did more. He took it into his head that he could make a better hammer than any other man had made. He devoted himself to the task for more than a quarter of a century. He studied the chemistry of metals, the strength of materials, the philosophy of form. He studied failures. Each broken hammer taught him a lesson. There was no part of the process that he did not master. He taxed his wit to invent machines to perfect and cheapen his processes. No improvement in working steel or iron escaped his notice. What may not twenty-five years of effort accomplish when concentrated on a single object? He earned success; and now, when his name is [illegible] upon a steel hammer, it is [illegible] his bond, his integrity [illegible] in steel. The spirit of the man is in each hammer, and the work, like the workman, is unrivaled. Mr. Maydole is now acknowledged to have made the best hammer in the world. Even the sons of Thor across the sea admit it.

While I was there, looking through his shop, with all its admirable arrangement of tools and machinery, there came to him a large order from China. The merchants of the Celestial Kingdom had sent down to the little town where the persistent blacksmith now lives in affluence, to get the best that Anglo-Saxon skill had accomplished in the hammer business. It is no small achievement to do one thing better than any other man in the world has done it.—James A. Garfield.

"Some of the wisest maxims of mankind are those which point out the value of small savings. They not only encourage thrift, but indirectly all the other virtues."

Pope Pius on Modernity.

One can hardly expect of Pope Pius X. that he should be familiar with English history, but it would be well for him if some discreet friend were to call his attention to a well-known incident. Some flatterers of King Canute, we are told, tried to inspire in him an idea that he was supreme, not only over his subjects, but over the forces of nature. The shrewd monarch, desiring to administer a reproof of their fulsome adulation, had his chair placed on the seashore, and in his most majestic tones bade the incoming tide retreat. The waves of course paid no attention to his command and the king retreated to save his life. Pope Pius has probably never read of this incident, but it might suggest to him a timely lesson, which if we may judge by his recent encyclical, he needs to learn.

The encyclical is launched against a tendency of his church, which he styles "modernity." He does not precisely define the term, but intimates that it is the synthesis of all heresies and the outcome of unlimited curiosity, presumption and insubordination, coupled with ignorance or disregard of real Catholic science. The bishops are exhorted "to tear out of the hands of the faithful all bad books and all bad writings," and this he imposes on them not as a right, but as a duty. The bishops, aided by a council of censorship, are to be judges of what books are bad. He gives them, however, a hint for their guidance by a vigorous denunciation of the modern spirit. The teaching of philosophy and positive theology is to be conducted in the spirit of the Catholic church, and all professors in colleges who do not obey the order are to be summarily removed.

A storm of protest has arisen from intelligent Catholics here and abroad against this intolerant manifesto. It is pointed out that it suppresses all inquiry and binds the church by fetters intolerable to intelligent men. It is a movement backward to the time of the Inquisition, which, if it had survived, would have been a suitable instrument for carrying out the Pope's behests. The modernity of that time had its representative in Galileo, and it subjected him to torture to compel him to retract his assertion that the world turned on its axis and went around the sun. He was told that his theory was opposed to Bible teaching and was necessarily an error, and the rack was used to convince him. Other scientists and scholars of a like type may now be found in every college, and the Pope, debarred from applying the rack, orders them to be removed from their chairs. Is it possible that this priest buried in the Vatican can suppose that the spirit of inquiry and research can be stifled by such measures? Neither he nor the Protestant divines who control their respective churches can so stereotype the doctrines of the time and say what men shall or shall not believe. The truth is great, and no matter what the priests say, it will prevail.—Christian Herald.

Men that Fell Out.

Dr. M. D. Hoge, of Richmond, Va, tells of two Christian men who "fell out." One heard that the other was talking against him, and he went to him and said: "Will you be kind enough to tell me my faults to my face, that I may profit by your Christian candor and try to get rid of them?" "Yes, sir," replied the other "I will do it." They went aside, and the former said:

"Before you commence telling what you think wrong in me, will you please bow down with me and let us pray over it, that my eyes may be opened to see my faults as you will tell them? You lead in the prayer, please."

It was done, and when the prayer was over, the man who had sought the interview, said:

"Now proceed with what you have to complain of in me." The other replied "After praying over it, it looks so little that it is not worth talking about. The truth is, I feel now that in going around talking against you I have been serving the devil myself, and have need that you pray for me and forgive me the wrong I have done you."

The quarrel was settled from that hour, and there are several other difficulties that might be settled in the same way. Try it.—Christian.

A great artist made it a rule never to look at a badly done picture, as he had found by experience that whenever he did so his pencil had a tendency to reproduce the bad work. Apply this to bad books and bad company.

The great mistake of modern Christianity has been the substitution of light for heat, and nowhere is this more evident than the doctrines it has taught concerning God. In its eagerness to be enlightened, it has become icy; and in the attempt to make the head correct has too often left the heart cold. But I say accuracy is far less important than energy; that idea of God is best for me which vitalizes me most. Doctrines which furnish the head but leave the heart in empty barreness abstractions that substitute words for feelings, and knowledge for life; teachings about God, instead of visions of God; these have been the greatest hindrances of vital religion.

The Golden City.

From the days of St. John's Revelation
The marvelous story is told
And down thro' the ages has come the song
The song of the City of Gold.

To the innocent hearts of the children,
To the toilers who faint 'neath earth's pain,
To the old who have fought out its problems,
To the young whose journey is done.

Comes the dream of the mystical City,
With color and loveliness rife,
Iridescent its jeweled foundations,
Flower-bordered its River of Life.

And the streets of the City are golden,
And the sea as of crystal appears,
And the sound of the harpers is in it,
And it knows not of sorrow or tears.

Like a mirage far out in the desert,
Like the fabric that fashions our dreams,
Like some many-hued mirrored reflection
The heavenly Jerusalem seems.

We grope and the types and the shadows
We find at its veiling disguise:
But our hearts cannot grasp the conception—
Its glory is hid from our eyes.

We catch but a note of the music,
A glimpse swiftly passing and faint,
[illegible] resurrection,
Low whispered to ear and to saint.

But the glow of it shortens the journey
And our feet leap more bravely the road
Which leads to the sorrowless City
Whose Builder and Maker is God.

And thus as a gift to the ages
The marvelous story flows on,
And the heart of man rests on the vision
That illumined the eyes of St. John.

Pine Woods Bible Class.

Teacher. The subject selected for to-night's study is: "The Birth of the Spirit—Its Scientific Aspect."

"Unless a man owes his birth to water and the spirit, he cannot enter the Kingdom of God." John iii. 5. 20th Cent. Trans.

Teacher. Have scientific men been a unit with regard to the origin of natural life?

Student. They have not.

Q. In what did they differ?

A. Well, Dr. Bastian held to the theory of the spontaneous generation of life; while Tyndall harmonized with Huxley, who said, "Life can only come from the touch of life."

Q. Well, how will they settle which of the two theories was correct?

A. By experiments. Dr. Bastian [illegible] glass jars two-thirds full of an infusion of hay and organic matter. For several hours, he subjected these to a boiling heat, that he might kill all germs of life. These jars were then hermetically sealed that the outer air may be excluded. These were set away in order to see if life would develop in them.

Q. Well, what was the result?

A. Life appeared in great quantity.

Q. What did Dr. Bastain conclude?

A. He concluded that life was spontaneously generated.

Q. Well, did that convince Dr. Tyndall?

A. No, sir; he was not satisfied with Dr. Bastian's test.

Q. Why not?

A. He thought it had not been crucial enough; that there existed forms of life which would survive a higher temperature than Dr. Bastian used.

Q. Well, what did Dr. Tyndall do?

A. He tried like experiment himself, but subjected it to a severe test, which he thought must surely destroy all germs of life.

Q. Well, what was the result?

A. Not the least sign of life did ever [illegible]

Q. How did scientific men seem to regard the test?

A. They pretty generally agreed with Huxley, who said, that "Biogenesis, or life only from life is victorious."

Q. Can you quote others as expressing the same thought?

A. Certainly. Says Drummond:—"These experiments have practically closed the question.....So far as science can settle anything, this question is settled. The attempt to get the living out of the dead, has failed. Spontaneous generation (either of natural or spirit life) has to be given up.....Life can only come from the touch of life."

Says Tyndall, (Nineteenth Century,") 1878, p. 507:) "I affirm that no shred of trust-worthy experimental testimony exists to prove that life in our day has ever appeared independent of antecedent life."

Q. Can that which is inert, and inorganic, ever receive organic life?

A. Only as it shall come in contact with some prior-existing organic life. It must be "born from above," that which is above it (like a tree) must reach down, come in contact with it, and thus become absorbed into itself.

Q. Is the Life of the Spirit spontaneously generated?

Q. On this point I will quote some appropriate remarks of Prof. Drummond. He says: "The religion of Jesus has probably always suffered more from those who have misunderstood than from those who have opposed it. Of the multitudes who confess Christianity at this hour, how many have clear in their minds the cardinal distinction established by its Founder, between Born of the Flesh and Born of the Spirit. By how many teachers of Christianity even is not this fundamental postulate persistently ignored? A thousand modern pulpits every seventh day are preaching the doctrine of Spontaneous Generation. The finest and best of recent poetry is colored with this same error.

Spontaneous Generation (of the Spirit life) is the leading theology of the modern religious or irreligious novel: and most of the most serious and cultured writing of today devotes itself to earnest preaching of this impossible gospel."

Q. As science teaches that the natural flesh life can never be generated, except by coming in contact with prior existing natural life, it also teaches that it can never of itself ascend to a higher plane of life than the flesh, how can it reach the life of the Spirit?

A. The same scientific principle applies to the generation of the life having its origin with the Spirit, as applies to the generation of the flesh life, it must come in contact with some prior-existing Spirit life.

Q. Where is the fountain-head of this life?

A. We read, "God is Spirit," not "a Spirit;" as in the Common Version.

Q. Has any one else this life?

A. Yes, sir; the Lord Jesus came in contact with the Father, (the prior-existing Spirit life) and through being "born from above," received the life of the Spirit. See John v. 26, "As the Father hath Life in himself; (underived self-existent life,) so hath he given to the Son to have (the same) life in himself."

Q. Is it an essential requisite that all flesh must come in contact with the Father, before it can partake of the life of the Spirit?

A. No, sir; see Rom. vi. 23, "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." He is the prior-existent Spirit life, through which all flesh must come in touch with, prior to the reception of the life of the Spirit.

Q. Well, then; suppose a person possessing only the animal life, fails to take requisite steps to come in contact with the Son of God, as the only source of the life higher than that of the animal existence, what will be the result?

A. Both science and Scripture could have but one answer, as to the result, and that is that a person having only animal life, could not continue in existence, any longer than the animal life can last.

Q. How long can it last?

A. According to science, death results, "By the failure of an organism to adjust itself to some change in the environment." This may be illustrated by a fish. Water is the environment of a fish. In that environment, it has the power of locomotion, and can find all the correspondences which will harmonize with, and sustain life in its organism. Remove the fish from its native environment, and place it on dry land, and it soon dies; because its organism is not suited to that kind of an environment. On land it has no power of locomotion, to aid it in its search for food, and other correspondences necessary to sustain life in its organism. Take a bird from the forest, and place it in the environment of a fish, and it likewise will soon die because its organism is not suited to that environment.

Man, likewise, must have an environment, that suits his organism, and if deprived of it, he will die, just like any other animal. In fact the natural animal man may die a part at a time. Drummond says: "A man who is thrown out of correspondence with a part of his environment by some physical infirmity, let it be, that by disease or accident he has been deprived of the use of his ears. The deaf man, in virtue of this imperfection, is thrown out of rapport with a large and well-defined part of his environment, namely, its sounds. With regard to that "external relation," therefore, he is no longer living. Part of him may truly be held to be insensible or "Dead." A man who is also blind is thrown out of correspondence with another large part of his environment. The beauty of sea and sky, the forms of cloud and mountain, the features and gestures of friends, are to him as if they were not. They are there, solid, and real, but not to him; he is still further Dead. Next, let it be conceived, the subtle finger of cerebral disease lays hold of him. His whole brain is affected, and the sensory nerves, the medium of communication with the environment cease altogether to acquaint him with what is doing in the outside world is still there, but not to him; he is still further "Dead." And so the death of parts goes on. He becomes less and less alive.....finally some important part of the animal organism that remains, breaks down. The correlation with the other parts is very intimate, and the stoppage of correspondence with one, means an interference with the work of the rest.....Flesh refuse to correspond with the air, heart with the blood. There is now no correspondence whatever with the environment—the thing, for it is now a thing, is Dead.

Q. What produces death in old [illegible]

A. Herbert Spencer says: "It is by natural decay organs became, in old age, the seat of actions between assimilation, oxidation, and waste of force going on in the organism, gradually fall out of correspondence with the relations between oxygen and food and absorption of heat by the environment."

Q. What would science define eternal life to be?

A. I will quote as follows: "The desideratum is an organism with a correspondence, in very exceptional kind. It must lie beyond the reach of those variations of available food, which cause it not to stop the processes going on in the organism. Before we reach eternal life, we must pass beyond that point at which all correspondences inevitably cease. We must find an organism so high and complex, that at some point in its development it shall have added a correspondence which organic death is powerless to arrest. We must in short pass beyond that finite region where the correspondences depend on evanescent and material media, and enter a further region where the Environment corresponded with is itself Eternal.

Q. Will you please give Mr. Spencer's definition as to what he considers Eternal Life to be?

A. It is as follows: "Perfect correspondence would be perfect life," were there no changes in the environment but such as the organism had adapted changes to meet, and were it never to fail in the efficiency with which it met them, there would be eternal existence, and eternal knowledge."—Principles of Biology, p. 88.

Q. Then to put the matter in few words, eternal Life, according to science, would be "Uninterrupted correspondence with a perfect environment." Is there such a thing in existence?

A. Yes, sir; there is.

Q. Where can we find it?

A. See John xvii 3: "This is life eternal, that they may know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

Q. Well, what is it to "Know God?"

A. It signifies that a perfect harmony exists between the one knowing God, and God himself; hence a Perfect Correspondence exists with a Perfect Environment.

Q. It also reads "And Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent," what are we to understand by that?

A. It signifies that Jesus, the Christ, has had an uninterrupted perfect correspondence with the Father, a perfect environment, and now possesses Eternal Life, and God sent him to be to all others, the "Perfect Environment," with which they must [illegible] respond," previous to being "Born of the Spirit." "He that hath the Son (is in correspondence with him) hath (zoe) life, and he that hath not the Son of God (is not in correspondence with him) hath not (zoe) life."

Q. Will not some people profess to know Jesus the Christ, who have never been in correspondence with him?

A. They will, (see Matt. vii.) Jesus said to them, "I never knew you."

Q. Why did he not know them, they were religious people, and some of them were street preachers?

A. They had not come into correspondence with Jesus the Christ in God's appointed way.

Q. Is there a Divinely appointed way?

A. There is. You will find the way set forth in "Student's Text Book," Lesson III., Page 14.

Q. Is it a fact, then, that there is a law governing the natural flesh man as to how he shall come into correspondence with Jesus the Christ, as the perfect environment?

A. Most certainly.

Q. What is that law called?

A. The law of the Spirit of Life.

Q. Where is it spoken of?

A. In Rom. viii. 2, "For the law of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the Law of Sin and Death," under which law are all those who are not under the "Law of the Spirit of Life."

Q. Is it true that the Spirit of Life is the quickening power that will insure its possessor of being "Born of the Spirit?"

A. See Rom. viii. 11, "If the (quickening) Spirit of man that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit (the Spirit of Life) that dwelleth in you."

Q. From whom did Jesus derive the Life Spirit?

A. He came into correspondence with the Father, the Perfect Environment. "For as the Father hath (the [illegible] of Life in himself, so hath he [illegible] the Son to have Life in himself." [illegible] Father reaseth up [illegible] [illegible] the spirit man a [illegible] [illegible] in the natural?

A. By no means. An infidel may [illegible] the Christian graces, and [illegible] perfect a life as a natural man can [illegible] and still remain an infidel. His [illegible] life, alone, will not make him any [illegible] more than an improved animal.

Q. What else is needed?

A. Jesus says: "Do not be surprised at me telling you that you all need to be born over again."

Q. Why needful?

A. Jesus says: "Unless a man owes his birth to water and Spirit, he cannot enter the Kingdom of God."

Q. Why cannot he enter the Kingdom of God?

A. God's Kingdom is an everlasting Kingdom, and the natural man having only animal life, could not inherit an everlasting kingdom.

Q. I was raised to believe that man was a combination of both natural and spiritual, and that the spiritual dwelt within the natural as a man lives in a house. Was that correct?

A. That was what the Pagans taught, but the Scriptures do not. See 1 Cor. xv. 46: "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual but that which is natural; and afterward (not at the same time) that which is Spiritual."

See also John iii. 6: "All that owes its birth to human Nature alone is only human, and all that owes its birth to the Spirit is Spiritual." 20th Cent. Trans.

"You all need to be Born over again."

Teacher: It is now time to conclude this lesson.

This lesson will appear in the Student' Text Book, which is printed, and in the hands of the Book Binder. Will be ready for delivery about the time this paper reaches you.

Editor Restitution:

God will cut no man off entirely for sin, until he has come to a full knowledge of the truth in the Spirit. Until he has exercised in him the "Spirit of Truth" sufficiently to know perfectly good and evil. While it is true that many are called and but few chosen" those not chosen for a long season must not despair, they are not necessarily lost. A man who is cut off entirely from God would never have any desire to return to God, or any yearnings of the Spirit of God. He may be [illegible] the [illegible] where he will do [illegible] never present with him. [illegible] is no more I that do it but sin [illegible] in me." Unless a man is delivered from this sin which dwelleth in him, he will be overcome by it again and again.

For this reason the Apostle James exhorts us to "confess our sins or faults one to another and pray one for another, that ye may be healed." Now we are living in perilous times, a luxurious age, and we need to put on the whole armor of God. That I may be able to do this and be an overcomer which means so much today, I desire to make a confession through the columns of The Restitution, asking the prayers of the spiritually minded for my entire deliverance and complete restoration. I have inherited a strong desire for intoxicating drinks. My father and grandfather were both hard drinking men. From my childhood I was dosed with drugs as was customary with the old time physicians, and my father always had a good supply of wines in the cellar, in the buffet and on the table at every meal. I was continually under its influence more or less. When the temperance crusade reached New York City, my mother became interested and threw the wines and liquors all out of the house, but it was too late for me. I came west about twenty-two years ago, joined the Methodist church, experienced religion (?) was quite active in the church for a time, and was able to control my appetite for about ten years, and seemed to have good reasons for believing it had gone forever. When I came into a better knowledge of the scriptures through The Restitution paper and certain tracts—I rejoiced greatly with others, and we were buried in baptism in water, signifying our death and resurrection with Christ. We met frequently together, and were much blessed, being full of faith, hope and love. It was not long before the "mystery of iniquity" began to work, and the disturbing influences abounding, separated us as a body until we were unable to agree and could hold no meetings in peace and harmony, [illegible] together. I could not at this time go back to any of the denominations and consequently stayed at home, began to read the Sunday papers and indulge in things of the fleshly mind, and in time the temptation came to take a glass of wine occasionally, for "my stomach's sake and often infirmities." It was some time before I drank to excess, but the power grew on me at a terrible rate until I was at times beyond control. Now I praise God that he has again restored me and again taken the appetite from me, for I have had grace to be a total abstainer for some time. I ask any Christians who, reading this, feel led to lift up their hearts to God for my complete deliverance now and forever, or until we drink it anew with Christ in his kingdom. "If any man sin we have an advocate with the Father Jesus Christ, the righteous." Because of nothing better I am meeting with the "tongues" people or rather a branch. They are children in Christ, having much to learn, but are spiritually minded, and walk in love. They do not favor speaking in an unknown tongue, unless there be an interpreter, and much of the excitement of this particular body has subsided, for I must say, even the interpretation is not very edifying to the church, because the message is simply an exhortation to come to Jesus, intended for the heathen or unbelievers, otherwise there is no special power in it, neither can it be said to be the fullness of the Holy Spirit, or a special message direct from God, or a prophecy—simply a gift of tongues.

Reply to Bro Francis.

He says that if some one will show him his error he will kindly receive it, so I will endeavor in the Spirit of Christ to do so. Perhaps it is presumption in me as Bro. Francis is a scholar and I am not but there are certain facts that perhaps my brother has not noticed. He says that because the seven churches are in the past is proof that the prophecy has been fulfilled. Granted there were seven churches in Asia, but that is no proof but that there may be again. I suppose my brother will not claim that the scene under the sixth seal is in the past, as I never have come across any one as yet but what admits that it pictures a scene after the resurrection, and if that is after the resurrection, that is positive proof that the rise and work of the seven headed and ten horn beast is in the future, as he is not brought to view until the fifth trumpet sounds, and that is after the seventh seal is opened. Most Bible expositors try to apply the beast of Revelation to the Roman beast, but that beast only had one head, and John's beast is a leapord beast with seven heads and ten horns, and as history gives no account of such a beast, consequently he must be in the future, and to my mind it is under his reign that the saints of God are to suffer death, those that are spoken of under the fifth seal, and his time is given as 1260 days or 42 months, or time times and ½ a time, which are all 3½ years, and as there is no intimation that they are year days, I dare not try to make them year days as that would require a good deal of addition, which would incur the displeasure of God. I hope Bro. Francis will take this in the spirit in which it is written and may God add his blessing. Amen.

Report of Work.

The meetings just closed at Moriah, Illinois, were the best in point of interest and attendance that it has been my lot to attend at this place. The audiences were large at each session and on Sunday evening the house had its seating capacity tested to its full extent.

On Sunday morning two young sisters took upon themselves the name of Christ in baptism. They are Sister Lucy Black and Sister Louisa Woods. This adds two more to the band of noble young people in this state who are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ. May they never forget the source of the oil of joy and gladness. When you send up your petitions to the Father do not forget that these are the subjects of your especial mention.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints." Those of our little body are falling one by one. A few [illegible] had place to go of [illegible] and while at our bedside [illegible] Heckman's, I received the sad news of the death of our aged and well beloved brother, George W. Updike, who fell asleep in Jesus Sept. 22, 1907. He had only been about 13 months since we were called upon to chronicle the death of our beloved sister, Elizabeth A. Updike. Brother George's health had been failing for the last two years, yet he was able to go around and hopeful of recovery until the last few days, he was visited by a stroke of paralysis, from which few ever recover. He was our oldest member, being 82 years, 6 months and 16 days of age. He was a son of our old Mother Elenore Updike, and had been a friend to the truth for many years and in his 76th year he listened to Brother E. F. Boyer, while delivering one of his most excellent discourses and at the close he remarked that he now wanted to obey the gospel which he did, and continued to be a faithful member as long as he lived. I often visited them and read the Bible to them and they never tired listening to it, and I have just returned from visiting the old homestead and trying to comfort his aged companion, and son and family. Brother Updike was the oldest citizen in our community and much respected by all who knew him. May we all try to emulate his virtues and prepare to meet him in the morning of the resurrection when all the dead in Christ shall come forth to see the King in his beauty and enjoy the peaceful reign of Christ on the earth, to bind kings with chains and nobles with fetters of iron. This honor have all his saints. Written by one of his favorite cousins.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this [illegible]th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to [illegible] Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

When you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "The Restitution," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

Selections.

The Divine Moulding.

"As the clay is in the potter's hand, so are ye in mine hand."

Let us fancy ourselves standing as the prophet stood. The clay is in his hands. He uses it as he will. He shapes it and reshapes it as it seems good to him.

The clay is passive in the potter's hand. "As is the clay, so are ye." There is something in this that grates upon us. It seems to strike against our ideas of free moral agency and intelligent being. We put ourselves against God. Paul says: "Nay, but, O man, who art thou that repliest against God? Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus? Hath not the potter power over the clay?" We can never get beyond this. Absolute human independence is a thing unknown. We are the subjects of God's power—dependent upon him for our being. He can do with us what he will. He can dispose of us as he sees fit.

The potter forms the clay into vessels. "As the clay, so [illegible] into vessels." Our [illegible] now is God's work. He made us what we are. Whatever elements of strength or beauty are in these vessels, God imparted them. Each one of us is the vessel formed by God's hand, and if he made us vessels, then his purpose was that these vessels should hold some treasures. Vessels are not made to be empty. He filled us with his own spirit. Marvelous vessels we are as God made us, made precious by the gifts of God of intelligence and moral impulse.

And a vessel is marred. We need not inquire into this marring process. The work of the most skillful hand may be spoiled. The vessel was not fit for use. "As the clay, so are ye." These vessels which God made and pronounced very good have been marred by sin—sadly marred. Not all the potter's vessels were marred; these human vessels are all marred, "for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Perhaps the prophet could not see the unfitness of the marred vessel, but the skilled potter could. A human vessel may seem very good to our eyes, a human character very fair, but God can discern where it is marred and spoiled and unfit for the Master's use.

So the marred vessel is re-made by the potter's hand. "As is the clay, so are ye." The vessel could not make itself a better vessel. No more can we. Marred by sin, there is no power of self-restoration in us; there is no human means. Men have tried it over and over and failed. So "the potter made it over again another vessel." So must we be made anew. It is what Paul calls "the making of a new man." And note the process of that making another vessel. The marred vessel is crushed in the potter's hand into a shapeless mass of clay. The old marred vessel is destroyed to make a new one. So these old marred vessels of human nature must be destroyed. It is Paul's destruction of the old man. And that other vessel is made "as it seemed good to the potter to make it." Not as it seems good to us, but as it seems good to God, is the standard of regenerated human nature. Saul of Tarsus was such a man as the world have thought good, honored, esteemed, of high place and commanding influence. Paul the Apostle, the persecuted man, did not live such a life as the world envied. God made him a new man "as it seemed good to him to make him."

God molds our being in various ways in ways that we do not understand; in ways of which we are not conscious. He shapes our lives by influencing our thoughts, our spirits; not only by influencing our outward lives. Indeed, he influences our outward lives by influencing our thoughts and our spirits. After all, we must go beyond the figure, for human nature is something more than senseless clay. God's hand is ever at work to mold us for righteousness. And this molding process goes on in various ways—by his messages, by influences, by trials, by the operations of his spirit.

And we must submit to God if we would be made into vessels as it seems good to him to make us. It is our power and prerogative to resist God's re-making and re-molding power. It is a prerogative which distinguishes us in our moral being from the other creatures of God. But it is an awful prerogative. If we insist on remaining marred vessels, we can remain so. If we persist in remaining sin-cursed human beings, we can remain so. But it is an awful assertion of daring resistance to the good will of Divine purpose for us. The prophet's cry is full of significance: "Woe unto them that seek deep to hide their counsel from the Lord, and their works are in the dark, and they say, Who seeth us and who knoweth us? Surely your turning of things upside down shall be esteemed as the potter's clay, for shall the work say of him that made it, He made me not? or shall the thing framed say of him that framed it, He had no understanding?" And again he says: "Woe unto him that striveth with his Maker. Shall the clay say unto him that fashioned it, What makest thou? or thy work, he hath no hands?"

We are all vessels of God, formed by God's own hands, molded and shaped in the very image of God himself. The marks of his creative handiwork are upon every one of us. No human theory of development can blot it out.—W. H. Dunbar.

Announcement.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Michigan will convene Oct. 26 to 27 inclusive, in Ba[illegible] Township, Brother J. Hess [illegible] neighborhood.

The brethren here have asked for this meeting, gratify them by being present, then, too, it is very necessary that you be there for there are plans to be made for next year, that you must help make. Do you know brethren, that the next Annual Conference will be our 50th. or Jubilee Year? Shall we make it a time of much good and rejoicing, by having a longer session than usual? Shall we have a Bible School the week before, week after, or each afternoon during the session?

These questions which have been suggested by interested parties, will be talked over and some decision made.

Be sure and be present. If it is impossible for many to attend from each church, talk these matters over at the home church and send a delegate with your decision, but come if possible.

Those coming from north and south come to Vicksburg over the Grand Rapids and Indiana road. From the east and west take Grand Trunk to Vicksburg. Teams will meet all trains on Friday and carry passengers to place of meeting. All try and come Friday, as the meeting is about seven miles from Vicksburg and we do not want to make the brethren extra travel.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies post paid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Bible Themes.

Is the title of the last book issued by Brother John O. Woodruff on miscellaneous subjects, both original and selected. This book contains 480 pages and cost the author $1.25 to issue. A quantity has been supplied us, and we wish to get them into the hands of readers, and offer them at 80 cents each, post paid, while they last.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Scriptures Opened.

This a book of 370 pages written by Robert Ashcroft, and is a book of thoughts and themes for Bible Students. We have a few copies only, and first come—first served. This book sold for $1.25. But we offer what we have for 80 cents, post paid.

A New Tract

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and they are very expensive. We [illegible] to have more pay[illegible] Pearl [illegible] among the[illegible]

Send orders to John Foore, [illegible] W. Corning Ave, Pasadena, Kan. price is 10 cents each.

Evangelizing Notice.

The N. W. Conference has seen fit to send me again as Evangelist. The brethren have added Arizona, and [illegible] nia to my field of labor. Any church or isolated brethren that want meetings during the Conference year should correspond with me at an early date so I can plan my year's work for this extensive territory which now includes western Oregon, Washington, California and Arizona.

Hereafter my home will be Scholls, Oregon, and Address, W. L. Skeels, R. D. 1, Laurel, Oregon.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Beloved, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Robt. G. Huggins, Box G. Oregon, Ill.

A four-page tract in the German language, by Brother M. Joblin of Cleveland, O. Subject, "What Must I do to be Saved?" After getting the opinion of one who understands this language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to M. Joblin, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged [illegible] we can supply this book for a time only at a reduced price, we will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

NOTICE.

Information wanted concerning an Evangelist known as Blind Haynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Address, E. P. Woodward, Westbrook, Maine.

Will all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. B. Robinson will in future be 2416 West Main St Salem, O.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

Our talents differ, and each one will be held accountable for the use of such talent, whatever that may be. If you have only one, use that.

Some one says, what can I do? Why you can circulate literature teaching the truth if nothing else. There is no one but who can do that. Will that do any good? Oh, yes. Let me tell you something. Some people have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. It would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be address-d to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money set loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy on the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help in some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 1s cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false Hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no one for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Shall We Meet.

Shall I meet thee my brother? in Eden restored,
To purity, loveliness, beauty and bloom?
Where God and the Lamb shall be ever adored,
And joyfulness flourish unsullied by gloom?
Shall I meet thee, my brother, where sorrow and crying,
And pain cannot enter, and death shall not be?
Not a pang ever felt—no drooping, nor sighing—
Where all are immortal, and happy and free.
Oh! say, shall we meet?—or shall one fail to be there?
Shall I be excluded, and you win the prize?
Or I and not you, or shall neither appear
Triumphant with saints when to glory they rise?
I mean to be there, through the Master's rich grace!
My brother, my brother, be it in thy resolve!
O think of the bliss, to behold his bright face,
While ages on ages their courses revolve!
Enduring the cross, and despising the shame,
My brother, my brother, like Christ let us be!
The crown keep in view, and in Jesus' name,
The end of the conflict in glory we'll see!

The Judgment—What Is It?

The subject of the judgment has been discussed by many of our ablest writers. It is a subject full of interest and one not easily understood. We wish to present a few of our own thoughts along this line for the consideration of the many readers of THE RESTITUTION.

To understand it in its primary sense we must study with care the first few chapters of Genesis.

First, we must understand fully the nature of man before we can understand the effect of the judgment. Gen. ii. 7, records that God formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and he became a living man. If we keep in mind that man is dust and ashes we can understand the effects of the penalty of the law. The record further states that God put the man whom he had formed in the garden to adorn and dress it. He placed him under a law the penalty of which was death, or the reward eternal life. "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Rom. vi. 23. The means through which Adam was to receive eternal life was the "tree of life." As long as he refrained from eating of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil he could live from the fruit of the trees given him to prolong life. If he had remained faithful he could have partaken of the "tree of life," through which he would have become immortal. His disobedience prevented that so the sentence of death was passed upon him in the language: "Dust thou art and unto dust thou shalt return." This sentence is in perfect harmony with the record that God formed man of the dust of the ground. Now if this man did not exist before his formation from the dust could he exist after he returned to the dust? The judgment passed upon the first of the race left him just where he was before formation, "of the dust of the ground." The record further states that Adam lived 930 years, and died. We further understand that the immediate sentence of death was suspended that they might produce an offspring and fill the earth as directed in Gen. i. 28. In order that the execution of the law be suspended God made a covenant with the man whom he had formed. In order that Adam's life might be spared the Lord God sacrificed the animals whose blood atoned for the blood of the victims under the law and the skins to cover their physical nakedness, therefore Adam was permitted to live 930 years; but nowhere does it state that God gave Adam another chance for eternal life. Instead of the Elohah demanding the life of Adam he took in its stead the life of the animal. Up to this point there had been no promise of a future life for the race. Without it it would have generated as do the animals without any hope of a resurrection from the dead. In Rom. v. 18, Paul says that, "through the disobedience of one judgment was passed upon all to condemnation. This ten cast the race under a judgment of condemnation which means "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." Now the promise of the "seed of the woman" can restore the race to a justified state. Rom. v. 1.

This can only be done through faith in God's promise through the seed. Those who do not avail themselves of this offer and walk in the new life will still remain under condemnation. We wish here to speak of the two kinds of judgment viz: Corrective and Retributive.

A Corrective Judgment has for its object the correction of the life of the disobedient. Our penal institutions are of this nature. Prisoners sent to these institutions are permitted to correct their habits and many leave these places and live honest and useful lives. Those sent to our reformatories have an indefinite sentence to work out. Their good behavior secures for them a discharge sooner than if they were disobedient. Such a judgment is called Corrective. A Retributive Judgment is one in which there is no mercy extended to the victim. Under such a judgment there is no mercy, but the life of the violator is required to pay the penalty. One who is convicted of murder in the first degree, without the recommendation of clemency, must die before witnesses. The Mosaic law was retributive. "He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses." Heb. x. 28. In order that we may prove that a large part of the race have the promise of a second chance or opportunity we must show that God's judgments are corrective, and not retributive, which I think can not be done. Those who teach this doctrine dwell largely on the meaning of the promise made to Abraham "In thy seed shall all nations be blessed." They take this to be an unconditional promise. Such can not be its meaning as the previous law would necessarily have to be suspended and corrective judgment substituted. All relating to the law of pardon must be set aside in order that this doctrine be proven. The race was condemned in Adam and can only be saved through the last Adam or Christ. There is no provision made for the redemption of those of the race who go down under the condemnation of the law "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return."

We should not lose sight of the fact that the race without the promise made to the woman would have gone to the dust and remained there as do other animals. Therefore, those who refuse or neglect offered mercy remain in the dust. Those who have been enlightened are subjects of a future judgment and the only class whom God will judge in the future. All of God's judgments of the past have been retributive. The sentence passed upon Cain was without mercy. Gen. iv. 13, and Cain said unto the Lord, "Mine iniquity is greater than it may be forgiven," (marginal.) He had no further opportunity to receive eternal life. The judgment passed upon the ante-deluvians was retributive. They were of the dust and would have gone down to the dust, but in order that these wicked people would no longer produce their offspring he destroyed them and saved Noah and his family because of their righteousness. God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. Gen. vi. 5. (Marg.) (the whole imagination; the Hebrew word signifies not only the imagination but also the purpose and desires.) With such a class, is it not a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you. 2 Thess. i. 6; Jude xiv.

Enoch prophesied of these things saying: "Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all" etc. I call attention to these texts to show that it is a righteous thing with God to blot out of existence such of the race as became exceedingly sinful. The cities of the plains were judged without mercy because of their sinfulness yet none were to be found in these cities save two that they had no opportunity of learning God's plan of salvation.

Paul says in Acts xiv 17. Nevertheless, God left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness.

Not one of the race can plead ignorance as an excuse, as God has never been without a witness. What can our Heavenly Father do with those whose purposes and desires are continually evil. Are not such natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, and shall utterly perish in their own corruption?

Man cannot deal out justice with mercy, but God can. Man's judgment is weak, and is not able to see that it is a merciful judgment to destroy evil from the face of the earth. When God promised the seed of the woman, the purpose was to destroy the seed of the serpent. I challenge those who believe that God will raise a portion of the Adamic race to make them subjects in his kingdom to show where he has ever promised or practiced a corrective judgment.

We are often asked the questions—What will become of all the morally good who have lived, and do live, and will live until Christ shall come? This question is answered in one statement of the Lord. John iii 18. He that believeth on him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God. Rom viii 1. There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For the law of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death. 1 John v 12. He that taketh hold of the Son taketh hold of life; he that taketh not hold of the Son taketh not hold of the Son. Syriac trans.

The resurrection is the only means to receive eternal life. We can obtain this only through faith in the gospel of Christ; a reformation of our life, and an immersion into the name of Christ. Then if we overcome we have a promise that we shall live again. We have no right to claim that God's plan of salvation extends further back than the promise to the seed of the woman. Gen iii 15. Had the Eternal One have left the race without this promise, it would have had no promise of a resurrection.

In Gal iii 22, The Scriptures hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe. The Diaglott translation reads The Scriptures has shut up together all under sin, in order that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to the believer.

God shut up the antediluvians for a period of 120 years while Noah was building the ark. Those who were shut up had the promise of salvation through the preaching of righteousness by Noah, whom the apostle declared to be a preacher of righteousness. God has ever warned his creatures that righteousness would gain for them eternal life, and unrighteousness eternal death.

Isa xl 17, All nations before him are as nothing; and they are counted to him less than nothing, and vanity. Job vi, in speaking of those who deceived him, he says, They go to nothing and perish.

The Scriptures are filled with the promise of eternal life to those who obey and the opposite to those who disobey. Those out of Christ are compared to beast regarding this life. With the power to live they are compared to branches broken off the living vine. Brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed. They shall utterly perish in their own corruption. We must remember that whatsoever we sow that must we reap. If we sow to the flesh we must of the flesh reap corruption. If to the Spirit we will reap life everlasting.

Let me say in conclusion that God's judgments have been final, (retributive). In dealing with Israel the law was their teacher to lead them to Christ, but if they disobeyed the sentence was death without mercy. It is a difficult thing for us to see mercy in a death sentence. It was not intended to correct the sinner, therefore was not a corrective judgment.

A careful study of the subject of judgment will help us to see the truth along this line. The salvation of the race can only count from the time that "all were shut up under sin" which was from the time of the promise made to the woman's seed. Gen. iii. 15.

If Adam had been obedient God's plan would have been through his righteousness. We can only consider our salvation as starting with "thy seed shall bruise his head." May we live to see the time when "Mercy and truth are met together, and righteousness and peace have kissed each other."

Your brother, believing in God's righteous judgments.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 30.

It was past the middle of November 1858, before the [illegible] were held over on account of friends Auntie Willard had [illegible] last time came to New Jersey. [illegible] do not think she was present [illegible] grandfather sent for [illegible] Sister Seymour and the [illegible] of the sermon, taking [illegible] how long shall it be [illegible] wonders?" a [illegible] for when "the [illegible] is reached [illegible] the saints of God [illegible] dear ones away [illegible]

Brother [illegible] barbaley and his wife, Sister [illegible] dley, came from Plymouth [illegible] in by attending the funeral [illegible] keeping now, but his wife [illegible] and spends the most of her [illegible] with her son, A. L. Corbaly, who is reading and greatly enjoying the story of Auntie Willard's life, and who, like his beloved parents, is a firm and active supporter of the truth.

I think Brother and Sister Seymour have long been dead. When they were here the lines between age-to-come and con-age-to-come believers had not been drawn as tightly as they are now. Indeed, father wrote for "The Crisis" long after this, and the first article I remember their refusing was one entitled "The generations and the prophetical periods." They rejected this in a very gentlemanly manner, and even offered to pay father something for his work if he would keep on writing. It was not until about 1871 that the "Crisis" preachers began to be afraid of him, and were chary about admitting him into their pulpits.

Brother Brown of Philadelphia, Pa. however, was not afraid. He believed it himself, and so did some others of the members of his church, but he did not preach it, thinking it better to "go slow" in such matters.

Readers may wonder why I turn aside from my story to tell about personal matters, but they must remember that these matters were very near to Auntie Willard's heart, clinging as she did to my parents and grandparents with such fond affection.

I left her in her new Hammonton home, August, 1860. She is about to have a conflict with Spiritualists, and she remembers the words of the Lord "And let it be, when thou hearest the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry trees, that then thou shalt bestir thyself."

She and her husband had been attending the weekly prayer meeting held in the neighborhood by a few friends of the Baptist denomination, and she says "The fruit of this meeting was peace, but it brought a burden. We saw what they lacked. Our souls had been in their soul's stead, but we now knew the life giving power of the blessed hope of the glorious appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ. How to communicate this hope, was the burden. How best could we show them that our redemption—our future life—depends on the coming of Jesus, and not on the false idea of going to heaven at death? was the question.

"We soon found the bane of this place was Spiritualism. Spiritualists had ever made their boast that Hammonton should be to them what Salt Lake City is to the Mormons. This was the great fear for the new place. As ancient Israel quailed before the giant of Gath, even so did modern Israel here shrink before this modern Goliath, in his defiant boastings. Where was little David now? Like him we encouraged ourselves in the Lord our God. We contemplated no direct attack, but thought to fetch a compass behind him, and then wait until we 'heard the sound of a going.' He had the ground in the Baptist Sunday School, and was encroaching on the unestablished by the Methodists. It was boldly asserted by the leaders of the school, that they only used the Bible until something better could be prepared by themselves.

Seeing this, we fetched our compass by throwing open our doors, and inviting all who would to come and join with us in the study of God's Word.

Commencing with Genesis we studied the Bible by subjects; the creation, the fall, the penalty, the flood, the call of Abraham, and the gospel, or good news of the kingdom preached to him in the promise of the land of Canaan as the nucleus of the future kingdom of God, soon to be established upon the earth, under his Seed—the Son of David, so beautifully set forth by Daniel and by all the prophets, and by the Revelator. Here we dwelt long and largely, for this is the field wherein is hid the treasure which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath and buyeth it.

After a time some began to discover this treasure, and give evidence of a desire to purchase it. We were besought with tears to intercede for them, which we did with all the heart. This was that for which we had labored, and we hailed the first evidence that the seed had taken root, as the husbandman hails the green blade after his patient toil.

'Blessed Bible, how I love it!'

Reverently did we press this treasure to our bosom, thank God and take courage for these tokens of his favor. And we now seemed to hear the 'sound of a going' to beset ourselves by sending for help, and prepare for the onset.

Gideon-like we had hidden ourselves and were threshing wheat. With him too, we felt poor, and the least in the Father's house; yet God seemed to say to us 'Go in this thy might, and I will be with thee.' We went, and we cried not 'The sword of the Lord and of Gideon,' but The Sword of the Spirit God's holy Word—which is more quick and powerful than any sword of Gideon; yea, 'sharper than any two-edged sword.' The Sword of the Spirit we lifted up, and the Comforter, true to his mission, was present to make it effectual to the convincing of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. All felt his power. Shoutings and weepings were commingled. Those who had before made up their minds to obtain the pearl of great price at the loss of all things, now arose and with gushing tears gave testimony. A number of others who but for this meeting, had been that night at a ball, sobbed and entreated prayers. Others still, who with us had been searching the Word, now with tearful eyes and choking utterance, besought our aid in obtaining the treasure.

Glory to God! My shackles too had fallen. I was free."

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME LVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 6, 1907. NUMBER 41.

Read

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

At the Breaking of Bread.

Hebrews xiii 5. Let your conversation be without covetousness, and be content with such things as ye have; for he hath said I will never leave thee nor forsake thee.

Let your conversation be without love of gain. Take heed, and beware of covetousness, for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things that he hath. Fret not thyself because of him that prospereth in his way. A faithful man shall abound with blessings, but he that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent. Then let us be rich in good works, laying up in store a good foundation against the time to come, that we may lay hold on eternal life.

Let not your thoughts be what ye shall eat, or what ye shall wear, for all these things do the nations of the world seek after; and you Father knoweth that ye have need of these. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these shall be added unto you.

Be content with whatsoever things ye have. Paul says For I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content. But how did he learn to be content? By his own strength? No. He says, Through Christ which strengthened me. This is the only way that we can learn to be content with what we have. If our lot be hard, and we covet our neighbor's wealth, then we are forgetting that it is Christ that strengtheneth, forgetting that the Father knoweth what we have need of, and that he has said I will never leave thee nor forsake thee.

Do we believe this, or are we trusting in our own strength? Are our treasures on earth? Where our treasure is there will our heart be. Trust in the Lord and do good, and verily thou shalt be fed; for the Lord loveth judgment, and forsaketh not his saints. They are preserved forever.

Then let us strive to keep our love of gain or covetousness, out of our conversation, and be content with those things that we have. Let us humbly thank God for our daily bread, and pray that we may be kept from temptation, and be worthy of an abundant entrance into the kingdom that Christ will soon establish on Zion's holy mount, for soon will this earth be redeemed and filled with the glory of God.

ELLA KNOWLES.

An officer of high rank was walking with a friend in India, when a native passed and saluted. The officer returned the salutation, upon which his companion exclaimed:

"What, salute a slave?"

"Yes," replied the officer, "would you have me less courteous than a slave?"

Lowell: For success I ask no more than this—to bear unflinching witness to the truth.

Hadley: Patience means readiness to wait God's time without doubting his truth.

Plymouth, Indiana, Nov. 6, 1907.

From a clipping from a paper sent to us we learn that Sister Harriett S. Dresser of Nestor, California died on Oct. 21, 1907, she was a native of New York State, and was 85 years old. We have no further particulars concerning her life and death.

We give space this week to reports of the Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Kansas Conferences. The meeting in Kansas was not as large as had been expected, but was enjoyed by those there. The one in Southern Illinois was counted the best ever held at the place. Michigan is waking up to have a regular Jubilee time next June at Hutton, and a Bible school is to be one of the features. In Indiana the work of the Conference has gone on as well as other years, and the impetus given the Work in general by the activity of the Bible school and Berean society work shows up a good big gain. It is the determination of all hands to push this work along, and next year we trust will show even better than this has.

Since the Indiana Conference Bro. Geo. Neill has been at work, and it is practically arranged that he will move from South Bend to Clinton County, near Hillsburg Church. He will preach for this church next year two Sundays in the month, one at Warren Co., and one at Roll, in Blackford Co. This will give him a good range to work in, close together, where he can do more effective labor in the cause of the Master. It is expected some other person, most likely Bro. Buell Nutt, of Cleveland, O., will come to the Indiana field to work next year, and the outlook is good for progressive effort in this State.

The following is clipped from a Washington dispatch to the daily papers of Nov. 5, and shows the present condition of the great navies of the world: An interesting statement showing the relative order of warship tonnage of the principal powers has been compiled at the office of naval intelligence. It shows that Great Britain leads the world with a tonnage of 1,638,118, the United States following with a tonnage of 611,616. France is third with a tonnage of 609,079. Germany fourth with a tonnage of 529,032, Japan next with a tonnage of 374,701, and Russia, Italy, and Austria following in the order named.

However, were the war vessels building by the various nations now completed the United States would be third in the list with a tonnage of 771,788, following closely France, which would be second with a tonnage of 886,112, and Great Britain the leader with a tonnage of 1,93[illegible] land of Gilead, east of the Jordan, according to the agreement with Moses. Num. xxxii. There they built an altar—of witness—The Israelites—in Canaan—heard that it was an altar for sacrifice, and were so angry that they prepared to make war on those east of Jordan. The matter was explained to the satisfaction of all. Josh. xxii.

In Chapter xxiii. Joshua called for all the heads of Israel. He called their attention to the fact that he was getting old, and the great responsibility that was coming on them.

Chapter xxiv. The camp had been moved from Gilgal, Chap x. 43, to Shechem, Chap. xxiv. 1. There Joshua told them about their forefathers, and their deliverance from Egypt That the Lord had given them a land and cities, and vineyards, and olive yards. Chap. xxiv. 13.

Lesson Text.

14. Now therefore—for many good reasons—serve the Lord in sincerity and truth. There are many preachers and writers who teach that any and every real good act done by any one from a religious standpoint—or conviction—is serving the Lord, on the moral principle that we should do to others, as we would they should do to us. This is serving the Lord. The Lord's Covenant with Abraham must first be believed and obeyed—"He that believeth and is baptised, shall be saved." Mark xvi. 16. Having believed and obeyed we may then serve the Lord in sincerity and truth. The Israelites could not do this while they had any respect for the gods their fathers—forefathers—served on the other side of the flood—on the other—east-side of the great river Euphrates. Gen. xv. 18. Abraham's forefathers were idolators. Rebecca's father, Laban, had images—gods. There were gods many in Egypt, and the Israelites were there 400 years.

15. There are just two gods to serve. The true and the false, and Joshua had brought them to a point—a place and time—where they must decide which they would serve. When we hear, and believe the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, we are brought to a choice of the true or the false. If we choose to serve the Lord we are immersed into Christ for the remission of past sins. The Amorites occupied land at the north of the dead sea, from Canaan to Gilead, both west and east of Jordan. We will serve the Lord,—a noble decision and example.

16, 17, 18. The Israelites answered well. They even knew that the false gods—they had among them—had never done any good thing for them.

19, 20. Ye cannot serve the Lord. They could not serve the Lord—by words. Good words and evil actions will not please God.

21. They try to impress Joshua that they meant what they said.

22. In this public declaration they were witnesses one to another. To this they agreed.

23. Now prove your words by putting away the strange—false gods, and do it heartily, willingly.

24. Again they assert they will do as Joshua commands.

25-28. The Covenant.—To serve the Lord their God—was made, and written in the book of the law. Deut. xxxi. 24-26. And a stone for witness. Gen. xxxi. 48.

Next Lesson, Gideon and his three hundred. Judges ix. 9-23.

Reply to Bro. Lent.

I agree with Bro. Lent that the events to transpire under the sixth seal are in the future, but that they all transpire after the resurrection, I think is a position not in accordance with the teachings of the Scriptures. The earthquake and the signs in the sun and moon are signs of the advent of our Lord. Bro. Lent places the work of the seven headed and ten horned symbol in the future because he is brought to view after the opening of the seventh seal. This position would be correct if the events mentioned in the prophecy did transpire in consecutive order, but that is not the way the book is constructed.

The seals reveal a certain class of events, the trumpets another, which seems proper to be represented by the sounding of trumpets—the well known sign of war. I will call Bro. Lent's attention to the fact that in the eleventh chapter we have the account of the sounding of the seventh trumpet, then follows the voices, saying, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever.

The events narrated under the seals and trumpets, commence with the sixth chapter, and end with the eleventh—the kingdoms being taken possession of by the Lord and Christ. The elders give thanks to the Lord God Almighty.....because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned.

So ends this chain of events—seals trumpets, the kingdom has come—the fifth kingdom according to Daniel. Now Bro. Lent after that there will be chronologically considered no place on this earth for the events noted in chapter twelve and thirteen. No place for the dragon in the heaven after Christ reigns. The woman will not then fly into the wilderness from the face of the serpent. No standing room then for the seven headed and ten horned beast of chapter 13. Therefore the events noted in chapter 12 and 13 must transpire before the sounding of the seventh trumpet. Bro. Lent says speaking of the beast of chapter 13 "history gives no account of such a beast, consequently he must be in the future." To this statement I will say that history gives no account of the lion with the eagle's wings. Dan. vii. 4. Shall we therefore say that Babylon is not in the past?

In closing I will notice Bro. Lent's position on literal time. He says, "as there is no intimation that they are year days, I will not dare to make them year days. In Gen. xxix. 27-28, we read, "Fulfill her week, and we will give thee this also for the service which thou shalt serve with me yet seven other years."

And Jacob did so and fulfilled her week; and he gave him Rachel, his daughter, to wife also. Now Bro. Lent you see by this Scripture that there is recognized in the Bible such a thing as a day for a year in regard to a period of time. Also in Num. xiv. 34, we read, "after the number of the days in which ye searched the land even forty days, each day for a year shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years. Again in Ezek. iv. 6, "I have appointed thee each day for a year." By reading verse three of this last mentioned chapter we learn that the prophet was a sign to the house of Israel.

So we learn that God uses the day year mode of time in connection with signs or symbols, therefore we are in good company when we use symbolic time in reckoning the periods when symbols are used. Now Bro. Lent please read Dan. ix. 24-27, and apply to the prediction literal time, and see if the Messiah appeared at the end of the 69 weeks and that Jerusalem was destroyed within the 70 weeks of literal time. [illegible] Lent, if in this article you f[illegible]thing offensive I now ask pa[illegible]rance.

Selections.

The Names of Our Lord.

The Word tells us that he who was made flesh and dwelt among us was the Lord's Anointed, to carry out all that was necessary to accomplish Jehovah's purposes, whether these regarded the church or the world. The Word Christ has an official meaning, but it has more, for God hath made "Jesus" in consequence of his atoning work, both Lord and Christ. Hence there is the glory which he had in the Divine purpose before the world was. John xvii. 5. And there is the glory which was given him after his mediatorial work. John xvii. 22.

Jesus is the name associated with his humiliation and shame. Hence we are never said to be in Jesus but always in Christ. There is something to be learned in these two names. The use of them is suggestive in the order in which they are used in the Scriptures. If it is "Christ Jesus," then the thought is of that glorious One who humbled himself as "Jesus." If it is "Jesus Christ," the thought is of that humbled One who is now exalted and glorified. Phil. i. 1.

"Paul and Timothy, the servants of Jesus Christ to all the saints which are in Christ Jesus."

Men may use these titles at random without design, thought or meaning, but the Holy Spirit uses them with Divine perfection and precision.

How wonderful when we were incapable of comprehending the unsearchableness of our great Creator; that he should reach down to our finite capacities and manifest himself in a Son of his own, like ourselves in sin's flesh, with powers suitable to prove his claims; One "in whom dwelt all the fulness of the Godhead bodily." When Philip said, "Show us the Father and it sufficeth us," he replied, "O Philip! have I been so long time with you and yet hast thou not known me?" "He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father." Precious thought for our comfort, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." By and by we shall see eye to eye and know as we are known. May the time soon come! —John O. Woodruff.

Two Kinds of Reading.

A young boy found that he could read with interest nothing but sensational stories. The best books were shunned in his hands, but they were not interesting. One afternoon, as he was reading a foolish story, he heard some one say, "That boy is a great reader; does he read anything that is worth reading?"

"No," was the reply; "his mind will run out if he keeps on reading after his present fashion. He used to be a sensible boy until he took to reading nonsense and nothing else."

The boy sat still for a time, then rose, threw the book into the ditch, went up to the man who had said his mind would run out, and asked him whether he would let him have a good book to read.

"Will you read a good book if I will let you have one?"

"Yes, sir."

"It will be hard work for you."

"I will do it."

"Well, come home with me, and I will lend you a good book."

He went with him, and received the volume the man selected.

"There," said the man, "read that, and come and tell me what you have read."

The lad kept his promise. He found it hard work to read simple and wise sentences, but he persevered. The more he read, and the more he talked with his friend about what he read, the more interested he became. Ere long, he felt no desire to read the feeble and foolish books. Besides, his mind began to grow. He came to be spoken of as an intelligent, promising young man, and his prospects are bright for a successful career. He owes everything to the reading of good books, and to the gentleman who influenced him to read them.—Christian Guardian.

Sometime.

It is a sweet song warbled to and fro among the topmost boughs of the heart, and filling the whole air with joy and gladness as the songs of birds do when the summer morning comes out of darkness, and day is born on the mountains. We have all our possessions in the future which we call "sometime." Beautiful flowers and singing birds are there, only our hands seldom grasp the one or our ears hear the other. But, oh, reader, be of good cheer, for all the good there is a golden "sometime;" when the hills and valleys of time are passed; when the wear and fever, the disappointment and the sorrow of life is over, then there is the place and the rest appointed of God. Oh, homestead, over whose roofs fall no shadows or even clouds; and over whose threshold the voice of sorrow is never heard; built upon the eternal hills and standing with thy spires and pinnacles of celestial beauty among the palm trees of the city of God, those who love him shall rest under thy shadows, where is no sorrow nor pain, nor the sound of weeping "sometime."

Ice a Wonder in Jerusalem.

Ice is now being made by machinery in the ancient city of Jerusalem. An oil engine furnishes the power. Until the establishment of the plant, most of the natives of the city had never seen ice, and they still regard it with wonder. At times crowds may be seen about the building in which the machinery is located, anxious to view what seems to them almost a modern miracle. Some of the people cannot be persuaded to touch the ice, while others who have done so insist that it gave them a sensation like burning. By holding a piece of ice in the hand for a few moments, one can see how this idea came to the natives of Jerusalem.

"When a superficial conclusion is pleasing and good, its innocence atones for its ignorance, but when it is base or undesirable, it makes up in idiocy for all it lacks in innocence. It will ever be found true that he who arrives at base conclusions from weak proofs is as base and weak himself as are his conclusions."

Continue in Prayer.

It is easy to pray in the hour of anguish and distress. The wicked and ungodly cry out in their time of sore need; but when the storm is past they cease to pray; when the calm comes, they have no further occasion for supplication. But the child of God, who knows really the power and virtue of prayer, loves to "continue in prayer." He fills his mouth with arguments; he prays as taught by the Holy Ghost. He pours out his soul unto God. Day after day and year after year his supplications rise. He prays without ceasing; like the Son of God, who continued all night in prayer, the watches of the night bear witness to his supplications, and the dawning of the morning finds him at the throne of grace.

Continue in prayer. Let the breath of prayer go up until the turmoil of business, the oppression of care, the temptations that beset, and the trials that surround. Let prayer be made continually, and rise by day and night, and God will hear our prayers and help in time of need. Our prayers like vessels sent afar will bring back rich cargoes from distant lands; and when at last our prayers shall find their fullest answer in the kingdom of God we shall cease to pray and fill up our voices in notes of ceaseless praise.

Talk at Home.

Endeavor always to talk your best before your children. They hunger perpetually for new ideas. They will learn with pleasure from the lips of parents what they deem it drudgery to learn from books, and, even if they have the misfortune to be deprived of many of the advantages, they will grow up intelligent if they enjoy in childhood the privilege of listening daily to the conversation of intelligent people. We sometimes see parents who are the life of every company which they enter, dull, silent and uninteresting at home among their children. If they have not mental activity and mental store sufficient for both, let them first use what they have for their own household. A silent home is a dull place for young people, a place from which they will escape if they can. How much useful information, on the hand, is often given in pleasant conversation and what unconscious, but excellent, mental training in lively social argument. Cultivate to the utmost the graces of conversation.

What is Home?

A London newspaper offered recently a prize for the best answer to the question, "What is home?" Here are a few of the answers received:

A world of strife shut out, a world of love shut in.

Home is the blossom, of which heaven is the fruit.

The golden setting, in which the brightest jewel is "mother."

The father's kingdom, the children's paradise, the mother's world.

The center of our affections, around which our heart's best wishes twine.

The jewel-case, containing the most precious of all jewels—domestic happiness.

A little hollow scooped out of the windy hill of the world, where we can be shielded from its cares and annoyances.

"Human dissatisfaction is as changing as the clouds in color, shape, distance, density, appearance and disappearance; and like the clouds our troubles and discontentment are more apt to bring merciful showers than otherwise. God has well said: 'Man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble.' And even when he is 'born of God,' he is not entirely exempt from this early heritage."

Do your best loyally and cheerfully, and suffer yourself to feel no anxiety or fear.

Brother, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

We have received a new edition of the tract "Letter to a Friend," from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract [illegible] issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Obituary.

D. A. Renner, fell asleep in Jesus Sunday, Oct. 27, 1907, at his home in Rollin Colony, Neosha Co., Kan., at the age of 57 years and 8 months. He was born in Tazwell County, Ill. Feb. 29, 1850. He never married. He was baptized into the all-saving name of Jesus Christ almost fifteen years ago, and united with the Church of God, in which he lived a faithful and true Christian life, until the enemy, death, captured him as his victim.

He moved to Kansas from Illinois, where he expected to be permanently located until dead, or the Lord would come.

His sickness was short, only a few days. He was up a part of the day before he died, and we hardly knew what caused his death. He was calm and patient, and talked to his brother's wife a few moments before he fell asleep in death, no more to awake until the resurrection morning.

Brother Renner leaves three brothers. Albert, Samuel, and I do not remember the other brother's name.

Brother Samuel is very much afflicted, and he with his family will miss his brother very much. He will also be missed by one who was near and dear to him, one who was to help him fight the battles of this life. To her the loss is the greatest. The Church, Sunday School, neighbors and all will miss him. He never missed Church or Sunday School unless sickness hindered. He kept his lamp trimmed and burning, and was ever ready to help in every good work.

Funeral services were conducted by Uncle John Foore, the text being Rev xiv 13, I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, Write, blessed are the dead, which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them. Job xvii 13. If I wait the grave is my house, I have made my bed in the darkness. They shall go down to the bars of the pit, when our rest is together is in the dust. The Lord sent Isaiah to Hezekiah, set thy house in order, for thou shalt die and not live. Isa xxxviii 1. Hear Hezekiah praying and pleading with the Lord to live. See to die and not live. Die is the opposite of live. See verse 15, God added fifteen years to his life. Hear Hezekiah praising God and rejoicing. Verse 17, Behold for peace I had great bitterness, but thou hast in love to my soul delivered it (my soul) from the pit corruption. See, set thine house in order, does not mean an old wooden building. 2 Cor v 1, For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved — have a building of God (house) not made with hands eternal in the heavens. For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven. If so be that being clothed we shall not be found be found naked. That if we are alive we shall not be found dead, unclothed. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened; not for that we would be unclothed (not dead), but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

While we are alive we are clothed. While we are dead we are unclothed. When we are resurrected we are clothed upon with our house which is from heaven. 1 Cor xv 53. For this corruption shall put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. Clothed upon with our house which is from heaven. 2 cor v 2.

1 Thes iv 13-19, But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope.....Wherefore comfort one another with these words.

Thus we laid our dear brother to rest, with a Bible hope, waiting for the Master to come and raise him up from his sleep, and give to him a crown of righteousness, at that day; and not to him only, but unto all them also that love his appearing. 2 Tim iv 8.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep."

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trustworthy.

Poetry.

God's Anvil.

"Pain's furnace heat within me quivers,
God's breath upon the flames doth blow,
And all my heart in anguish shivers,
And trembles at the fiery glow;
And yet I whisper—As God will,
And, in his hottest fire, hold still.

"He comes and lays my heart, all heated,
On his hard anvil, minded so
Into his own fair shape to beat it
With his great hammer, blow on blow;
And yet I whisper—As God will,
And, at his heaviest blows, hold still.

"He takes my softened heart and beats it,
And sparks fly off at every blow;
He turns it o'er and o'er and "beats" it,
And lets it cool, and makes it glow;
And yet I whisper—As God will,
And, in his mighty hand, hold still.

"Why should I murmur? for the sorrow
Thus only longer lived will be;
Its end may come, and will, to-morrow,
When God has done his work in me:
So I say, trusting—As God will,
And, trusting to the end, hold still.

"He'll cause it all to profit purely
Affliction's glowing, fiery brand,
For all his heaviest blows are surely
Applied by a Master hand;
So I say, praying—As God will,
And hope in him, though suffering still."

Indiana Conference Report.

As per announcement the Annual Conference of the Church of God in Indiana convened at the Hillsburg Church, Thursday evening, Oct. 17.

The lesson read at the opening was 1 John i. After appropriate songs and prayer, the President, Brother J. H. Willey gave a short address on "Love."

The address of welcome was given by Brother William Huffer, of the Hillsburg church, and a true welcome it was.

The first sermon was delivered by Brother Huggins of Illinois, his subject being "The power of God's Word."

Friday morning at 10:00 o'clock the lesson read was John xiv. The nominating committee then appointed consisted of Wm. Huffer, A. R. Underwood and Marshall Logan. Some very appropriate remarks were made by Brother Wince and others concerning young men who wish to enter the ministry. That they should be encouraged and not discouraged.

At 10:30 Brother George Neill spoke on "The Foolishness of Preaching."

At 2:30 on Friday the business session was called. Roll call of churches showed the following represented, Bracken, North Salem, Plymouth, Pleasant View, Rensselaer, Roll, Hillsburg and South Bend. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. After which the nominating committee reported as follows: President J. H. Willey, 1st Vice President J. A. Burnham, 2nd Vice President E. C. Plummer, Secretary Lydia Railsback, Treasurer R. C. Railsback. Officers elected as nominated. The Evangelist Committee elected consists of J. L. Wince, Wm. Huffer and E. C. Railsback.

The reports of Secretary and Treasurer show that $409.44 had been received during the year, and expenditures were $219.74, leaving a balance of $189.70 in the treasury. After that report was made the following amounts were pledged and paid: The Bracken church paid $48.75 which is included in report. North Salem paid $16.80, pledged $36.80. Plymouth pledged $39.00. Asa Roose paid ten dollars. Etta Fry pledged $25.00. J. L. Barnes paid four dollars, making a total of $220.50 cash on hand at close of conference. Other churches had not been canvassed.

The advisability of putting two evangelists in the field was discussed, but dropped for want of sufficient funds.

At eight o'clock Friday evening, Sister Mattie Neill brought a greeting of love from the church at Salem, O, and then spoke on the subject "Where is the Kingdom of God."

Saturday morning at 10:30 Brother Halstead spoke on "How to determine sacred truth."

At 1:30 business again convened. In the absence of Brother Willey, Bro. Burnham occupied the Chair.

Report of the Indiana Bible School was read and accepted, but as said report was published at close of the school, so will be omitted here. It was moved and carried that the same board of management be elected for another year, said board consists of J. L. Wince, Mrs. Phebe Willey, and Mrs. R. C. Railsback.

Report of Berean work was given by the President, George Neill. Moved and carried that the State Conference accept the Bereans, and make their work a part of the conference.

Following are some articles on Berean work:

INTRODUCTION.

In order to properly introduce ourselves, let us call attention to the report of our last Bible School. To the success of that school can be attributed the organization of the Berean Society of the State of Indiana. The following pages will tell you what we are now doing, and what we hope to do yet.

The future of the Church of God rests almost entirely in the hands of its own young people. An occasional addition comes to us from other denominations, but this is not often the case. We cannot safely depend upon any but our own young people for the future growth of the church. Their education in the Master's cause is of vital importance. Very many of our churches do not hold regular meetings and the young people drift away. Some means of interesting them is essential. It is only the interested who acquire a saving knowledge of the truth, and Berean work is intended to awaken that interest.

As the faithful older workers drop from the ranks one by one, who will take their places unless our young people understand the gospel of the kingdom well enough to impart it intelligently to others. We have no schools or colleges for educating our preachers. At present we have in our state only three active workers—Bros Halstead, Wince and Neill. Brother Wagoner works when health permit him to. Three of these cannot be depended upon much longer.

We need and want more workers in the field. We are obliged to look out of our State for them, as we did for Brother Neill. We meet with difficulties. It seems that this unfavorable state of affairs, and our lack of schools, and of interested young people can only be remedied by allowing Bible School and Berean work to come to the rescue. This cannot be accomplished in one year or two, but a systematic study of God's Word for five years or more is sure to bring results.

Please note what Bereans are doing. We are studying systematically and with blackboard help the lessons on the life of Christ which have been outlined in THE RESTITUTION; our Secretary is in correspondence with twenty-one isolated members; two singing classes are well organized and two others are started; essays are being written by some member of each local society on each lesson; we are learning in order the books of the Bible and discussing them; we are learning to pray properly; we are committing Bible verses from Genesis to Revelations which will enable us to be always ready to give an answer to every man that asketh us a reason of the hope that is in us with meekness and fear. 1 Pet iii 15.

We hope to appoint local leaders to carry on this work as rapidly as possible, and we are looking forward to a two weeks' Bible school next June. Will five years of such work be worth while?

One more fact. Many of our Bereans are yet in school, leaning upon their parents for support. Many of those who work are not as yet self-sustaining. Therefore the older ones, the parents, must lend their financial as well as moral support to this movement. You say "Another cry for the money." Yes, barrels of it! Please read "Our Hopes," and open up the barrel.

As President of the Berean Society of the State of Indiana, elected June 14, 1907. I have assisted in the organization of societies at South Bend, North Salem, Plymouth, Argos, Burr Oak, Pleasant View and Hillsburg. Have been in attendance at 20 meetings, have written 132 letters, and devoted as much time as I could in this work, not daring to neglect the Evangelist work allotted me.

As Berean work in this State is new our first year's work will naturally be an uphill affair. We expect discouragements. We also expect encouragements. We trust the former will be few, and the latter many. I have found the young people everywhere enthusiastic, energetic, eager, willing, anxious. I have found many of the older ones sympathetic, warm hearted advocates of this movement. I cannot speak too highly of the hearty co-operation of Brother Wince, Sisters Fry and Willey. Nor can I overestimate the work of our Vice President Sister Evelyn Harsch and our Corresponding Secretary Sister Geneva McCrory, who have faithfully labored to place the Society on a secure basis.

Permit me to suggest the appointment and support of some brother or sister who will give his or her entire attention to this work. The work is abundant, and to be done properly needs the entire attention of some one who will faithfully and persistently labor.

GEORGE NEILL.

REPORT OF VICE PRESIDENT.

Since our organization in June, I have written and received answers to fifteen Berean business letters. I have helped the President and the Corresponding Secretary prepare lesson outlines from one to fourteen.

In the absence of the President, I have conducted the South Bend meetings, and presented the lessons.

Respectfully submitted
EVELYN K. HARSCH.

REPORT FROM CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

Work done from June 10 to October. The year's outline and lesson one sent to nine applicants from Huntington, no replies. Three from Hartford City, all working; also sent lessons 2-3-4. Excellent work. Two from Roll, both working on lesson 3. Three from W. Lebanon, working. One from Kokomo, working.

Correspondence with the various local secretaries as to work being done. These societies report thus: At North Salem, most of church, 1 & 3 Thursdays, 14 paying dues, several not paying. Glenn Logan Sec.

Plymouth, at church, every two weeks, (now every week) 12 paying dues, several not paying. Leona Helms Sec.

Argos, at church every two weeks, 9 paying, several not, interest good, Gladys Tabet Sec.

Pleasant View, at church monthly, 24 members, others attending, interest good, Mrs. Florence Thompson Sec.

South Bend, 2 & 4 Tuesdays, 19 members, interest growing, Mrs. A. D. Clem Sec.

GREETING FROM ILLINOIS.

It is with pleasure we learn of the organization of a State Berean society in Indiana. Knowing how much has been accomplished in other States, through this work for the Master, we pray that through your efforts much good may be done in your State. In the past, there has been some opposition to this movement, thinking that it would separate the younger people from the church and its work, but such is not the object of the Berean societies, but that the young may get into better working condition, develop their talents, and be fitted for more successful work in the cause of Christ.

Since our organization, more than forty of the members of our State society have put on Christ by baptism, and we are certain the work of the local societies and systematic Bible study had much to do in bringing them to the knowledge and acceptance of Christ.

There is much that can be accomplished through the efforts of the Bereans. Let each and every member feel the responsibility for the increase of this work, working in all ways as God would have us do, that when our work is over, we may be worthy of the "Well done" of the Master.

ANNA E. DREW, Pres.

GREETING FROM BRO. WINCE.

I thank the Lord, that our young people are so interested in Bible study. For a year or more I have been seriously pondering the question as to what would become of our blessed cause in the near future if the young members should be as heartless and indifferent to the claims of the truth as many of the old ones have been. But lately there has been a waking up among the seniors and this Berean effort, too, is going to help wonderfully to relieve the distressed and depressed condition of our good cause. Is this Berean work profitable? It surely is. It begins with the young on whom the cause of truth must depend for support, in the near future. It trains them in systematic Bible study and develops the habit of applying the mind to the critical investigation of inspired truth; than which no department of human knowledge is more important; in fact nothing bears a comparison with God's revealed will as contained in his Word. The indifferent and careless never learn his will and ways; so must remain ignorant of what should most concern them. It is the interested who acquire a saving knowledge of the truth. This Berean movement is calculated to awaken a spirit of inquiry as to What is truth? and meets the question with a plain answer in the form of Scripture texts, the meaning of which cannot be called in question. It teaches the young that the truth of the gospel is all important and must not be compromised, nor bartered for aught in this easy and spineless way of saying, "It makes no difference what you believe or in what church you belong." This kind of surrender of the system of Bible teaching exhibited from the traditions that had ridden it is what has thinned the ranks of the faithful and discouraged the hearts of defenders of our noble cause who have done so much and made so many sacrifices in its behalf. Secession will interpose a barrier to this cowardly retreat over to the opposition. It teaches the distinctive features of the faith and that these are vital to the question of human salvation. I bid the movement God speed and lend it my support morally and financially and prayerfully, and ask others to do the same.

JOHN L. WINCE.

ORGANIZED.

The Bereans are an adjunct of the Church of God in Christ Jesus. It is an organization of Bible students, as its name indicates.

It is a steady growing society, and has already proved itself efficient. Personally, I noticed quite a marked improvement among its membership. Its organization (not [illegible] people gave attention [illegible]; but now it seems to [illegible] pleasure, but a matter [illegible] vest to them. [illegible] telps, they [illegible] with Biblical [illegible], and I was [illegible] note the advance [illegible] de in Biblical study. [illegible] ated their assistance [illegible] meetings in neighborhoods [illegible] there were local bands of [illegible] Their enthusiasm created [illegible] terest which adds materially to [illegible] ize of our audiences.

Another thing I must notice, that they have been successful in bringing their young companions to a knowledge and obedience of the faith. I have baptized several of them.

Yours in the blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

OUR HOPES.

1 To have a well organized society in every community where there is a Church. By "well organized" we mean a society which meets regularly and whose members are earnestly striving to grow proficient in singing, essay work, prayer, and "rightly dividing the Word."

2 To keep up correspondence with isolated brothers and sisters, having them study the same lessons as organized societies.

3 To support financially and morally the annual Bible school, thus insuring its success.

4 To educate our young, both boys and girls, to be capable and willing to take an active part in the Sunday school and Church work.

5 To have a President entirely supported, that he may be able to devote his entire time to the Berean society work.

THE INDIANA BEREANS.

Ministerial certificates were granted to D. T. Halstead, S. T. Hook, J. F. Wagoner, J. L. Wince, J. H. Willey, W. H. Wilson, J. A. Burnham, George Neill and D. E. Vanvactor.

REPORT OF CHURCHES.

Bracken: Weak numerically, but not financially, preaching once each month in good weather by Brother Wince. One of the first churches organized in Indiana.

North Salem: 25 good solid members, but not properly organized. Going to reorganize and get to work. Have Sunday school and a Berean Society, two additions.

Hillsburg: 140 names, but scattered over a large territory. A Sunday school. Preaching once a month by Brother Neill, four additions.

Plymouth: Many moved out of town Services every Sunday, Sunday school and a Berean society, three additions.

Pleasant View: Members scattered, preaching once a month by Bro Neill, one addition, Berean society and Bible class.

South Bend: No church building, Sunday school, preaching twice each month by Bro Neill, weekly prayer meeting and Berean society, two additions.

Roll: Regular Sunday school but no regular preaching.

Remember: Total membership 68, resident members 31, preaching by Bro Halstead every Sunday.

Evangelist reported, miles traveled 6086, fare paid $123.10. Sermons 125, funerals 4, baptisms 5, personal visits 100, amount received $691.43, amount due $12.80.

Ministers reports: Brother Wince hopes has built up the churches, baptized two, encouraged Sunday school and Berean work.

Brother Wagoner has preached but little. Brother Halstead being called home his report not given.

At 8:10, Brother Wagoner realizing that the audience was tired, did not deliver the discourse that he expected to, but instead gave a short impressive talk.

At 9:30 there was a song service, and at 9:15 Brother Huggins spoke on "A separate people."

Sunday morning at 10:00, Brother Wince read as a lesson Heb iii. The discourse was delivered by Brother Huggins, his subject being Thoughts.

At 2:30 the lesson for the Communion service was read by Brother Burnham and the service conducted by Brother Wince.

At 3:30 Sister Neill spoke of "The Resurrection."

At 7:00 o'clock Brother Wagoner spoke on "Christ is coming."

The meeting was a grand success, and all that the secretary heard express themselves were highly pleased with the church at Hillsboro. Dinner was served each day at the church giving all a chance for general visits and exchange of greeting. The church there raised $75.00 with which the ministers were paid, two speakers being from other states.

An unusual number came from a distance, among whom were Brother Carl Thompson and wife and Sister Himmelright of Warren County, Bro, and Sister Brotherton of Roll, Bro. Barnes of Bourbon, Brothers Alexander and Aslakson of Chicago, Sister Gesiu Foreston Ill. and Sister Eliza A Rabe of Oklahoma. Many came from surrounding towns, making in all a goodly number to be cared for by the church, which as has been said, did the work so nobly.

Three were baptized during the conference and one on Tuesday following—Brother Omer Parker and Sister Verna Ray of Kokomo, Sister Basels Benge Frankfort, and Sister Hattie Jenkins Michigantown.

May the good work go on till the coming of the Lord.

Conference Report.

The sixth Annual Conference of the Church of God in Christ Jesus, held at Moriah, Illinois is now recorded in past events and one to be long remembered by all in attendance.

From beginning to end it was truly a feast of good things, several were heard to express that it was the best meeting ever held at this place. A goodly number was in attendance, considering our rather isolated situation—several familiar faces seen at our former Conferences were absent—we missed you.

We were very kindly favored by friends, as to entertainment, by nature, as to weather, by Bros. Jas. Wilson, L. E. Conner and J. S. Lindsay for ministry, by the public for their excellent attention and behavior and lastly and most essential of all by the Spirit of God which seemed to guide and instruct.

Meeting was opened on Wednesday evening, October 16, 1907, by sermon by Bro. Conner on "The Coming King"—not being present can give no thoughts presented but dare say some valuable truths were plainly put and Christ's name was honored as he was set forth as reigning King over all the earth.

Each forenoon was devoted to Bible study conducted by Bro. Lindsay. It is needless to say that these meetings were full of instruction and most thoroughly enjoyed by us, especially so, since such opportunities are rare with us—such meetings awaken in us a desire to know more of God's Word to us, and when unfolded by Bro. Lindsay new beauties are seen and it does become more and more a "Lamp unto our feet and a Light unto our path." Its capacities are indeed as Gregory puts it "A stream where alike the elephant may swim or the lamb may wade," and it follows that the more elephantine we become in perusal and comprehension of it the greater will be our enjoyment—and we admit that we at Moriah are more lamb-like than otherwise in our propensities for wading.

On Thursday evening Bro. Lindsay followed Bro. Conner with the sequel "The Coming Kingdom." On Friday evening Bro. Conner's discourse was based upon insurance—topic, "Life Insurance that Insures Life." He showed how that the Life Insurance which we have through Christ was superior to any other insurance policy in that it actually does insure life; while present companies insure only an indemnity at death, not benefitting the insured in the least. But in God's Insurance Company the insured receives the indemnity—life eternal.

On Saturday morning the business session was held; new officers were elected as follows, Pres. Benj. Woods; Vice Pres. John Elliott; Sec. Mrs. C. W. Weaver; Treas. Lewis Weaver. The Secretary being absent, no report was given. The Treasurer's report was as follows: Received $60.00, expended $60.00 from Oct. 1906 to Oct. 1907. The Board of Officers was elected Board of Management—meeting adjourned followed by Bible school.

On Saturday evening perhaps the most practical sermon was preached—the speaker, Bro. Lindsay, having a practical subject—"Petroleum Oil vs. Oil of Gladness." Doubtless, this subject would not appeal to the majority of readers as a practical one, yet the speaker made it apply to every Christian who heard it. To understand it fully one would need to visit this vicinity or another like it and see the numerous oil wells—throughout the country and understand something of the nature of them—Bro. Lindsay assumes that we each possess an oil well—a spiritual one and by Christian practises—reading the Word, prayer and performing all known duties—that is, by unabated labor upon our well we receive a bountiful supply of the oil of joy and gladness—just as the drillers who work upon the oil well—he has to keep it cleaned out and in good repair to obtain the product petroleum. So this field, the wells after yielding a good supply of oil for some time are worked over. The operators are not satisfied. They drill deeper, down to the second sand or second pay and the well yields a much greater and better production—so it should be with us—we should not be satisfied with a moderate blessing but should devote more time and talent to the things which build us up spiritually and we will receive the more abundant recompense.

On Sunday morning at 8:30 Sister Lucy Black and Louisa Woods put on Christ by baptism, Bro. Lindsay administering.

At 10 A. M. Bro. Conner preached an excellent discourse on "The Great Lie and Other Lies"—text "Thou shalt not surely die." Gen. iii. 4. He denounced as firmly as ever the first lie ever told—will not go into detail as to the sermon, for you have all heard the gist of it time after time—yet it is ever new. The most important and most cherished point of doctrine is contained therein and Bro. Conner told of the Banishment from Eden and of the Hope of Restoration so plainly that it would seem that the most skeptical could not help but believe.

Following the sermon was the Communion service, conducted by Bro. Jas. Wilson. This was an impressive service.

The time came when our meeting must close—we realize how much easier it is to do right when Christian influences are constantly around us. We isolated ones, who have not church privileges need your prayers the more.

Bro. Lindsay delivered the closing sermon on the most important question of all "How do we stand with Christ?" Will make no comments on this but will say that the speaker did justice to the subject. We would do well to ask ourselves this question daily and make our calling and election sure.

Bros. Wilson and Conner made very fitting remarks by way of thanks and farewell to the public and the church which added another most profitable Conference session.

May we enjoy many more such, if Christ tarry.

Michigan Conference Report.

Friday evening, Oct. 25th, a small congregation met at the appointed place in Brady to enjoy the good sermon we felt sure awaited us, for Bro. Wagoner had reached the place in time for the first meeting. No presiding officers being present, Bro. Woodward called the house to order, and appointed a devotional committee. A hymn was sung and Bro. Wagoner was asked to take charge of the meeting. He gave a few most fitting words of welcome, with a salutation, quoting our lamented but faithful Brother Joblin's words at a meeting in Indiana "Are you rejoicing in the truth?" After this greeting he gave us a good sermon from Heb ii 3.

Saturday at 9:30 a m Sister E. Barnum led the Social meeting. At its close Brother Wagoner asked that all who believed in and were trusting in God, should stand. Every one rose to their feet. Brother Woodward followed this meeting with a sermon on Job xxiii 10.

After lunch a business meeting was called, with Brother Daniel Paine appointed to the chair.

At 2:00 o'clock Brother Wagoner spoke on the Atonement. This sermon was especially instructive. It will take much study, thought and skill for our young speakers to be able to make a subject plainer, or find every pearl of truth as well as our aged but faithful Brother Wagoner does.

Saturday evening Brother Wright led the Social meeting, and Sister Woodward followed with a discourse from Mark xi 22, Have faith in God.

Sunday morning Brother Woodward led the Social meeting, and after doing some earnest talking himself asked that every one present who was determined to stand by the cause of truth, and the Church, should emphasize their intentions in their testimonies. Nearly all responded quickly and earnestly, determined to continue fighting on the gospel battle field, and to continue their earnest efforts to support the Church of God.

Following this meeting Bro. Wagoner gave an earnest sermon on the Lord's second coming.

After lunch Sister Woodward spoke from John xiv 2, "In my Father's house are many mansions." Brother Woodward presided at the table as the Lord's Supper was once more celebrated.

Sunday evening Sister Barnum took charge of the Social meeting, and Brother Wagoner gave the last sermon—The signs of the Lord's second coming.

Sunday morning it began raining, continued by spells nearly all day, keeping many away from the meeting that had hoped to attend. The attendance was small all through. The cares of fall work keeping some away, sickness detaining others. We believe the Lord will reward those who could not come for these reasons, but what he will do with those who were hindered by General Apathy, I cannot tell. We are afraid however bright the pleasures and riches of this world may look now, the glory of God's kingdom will be lost to very many by their cold indifference.

At the business meeting Saturday arrangements were made for our next annual meeting. First it was decided to have it at Dutton. Next, it being the 50th anniversary of our annual gatherings in Michigan, it was decided to make it a Jubilee Year, and to have a Bible School in connection with the conference, this to begin on Tuesday evening, and the conference proper to open as usual on Thursday evening. Brother Daniel Paine was chosen Chairman on committee of arrangements, he to select six other competent persons to assist.

This, brothers and sisters, means that any one who has any knowledge of the origin of the cause of truth in Michigan in their locality, will gather every item of interest together, and send it to Daniel Paine, Mendon, Mich. How interesting it will be for future generations to read this history. Let us all do all we can to help Brother Paine in this work. Let us go about it immediately, for it will take much labor to correct, revise, condense and arrange these interesting facts.

It was also recommended by the conference that wherever the young people of the Church of God form a young people's meeting, it shall be known as the "Bereans." This is a Bible name for Bible students, and all auxiliaries to the Church should universally bear the same name. Several States have already adopted this name, and we hope it will not be long before a movement will be made to provide the same lessons for all our Berean societies. In union there is strength.

MARY A. WOODWARD, Sec'y.

Dear Restitution.

I just got home from the Annual Meeting at Rollin, Kansas, where the Colony is located. We had a glorious good meeting, and every body enjoyed themselves. Brother and Sister Fulbright were there, (I baptized Sister Fulbright some twenty-five years ago) and Brother A. E. Reuuer from Stark, Kansas was there. I had written to four of our preaching brethren to come, but they failed to get there.

However we had a good meeting—we just let Christ and the prophets and the apostles do the preaching.

We had a good Sunday School at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, and at 11 o'clock I preached on the promise to Abraham, the travels of the children of Israel, and showed that they were a typical people. Psa. cv 7-11; I Cor x 1-11.

At noon we had a basket dinner, and at 2:30 in the afternoon had another sermon "Is baptism necessary to salvation?" Then at 7:30 in the evening the subject was "The Resurrection," with I Cor xv, as a basis. After this came the Farewells, and we sung "God be with you till we meet again."

Many have written to know about the Colony, and I will say that I still think some day, if this age lasts, it will make a very good place to live in. The members here now are poor, and to make a good town takes some little wealth. What is needed first is a good general merchandise store—a good moral man who has the means to put in a first class store can do well here, as the territory is fine. There is a good store building that can be rented or bought.

Then we need a blacksmith, and a wood work shop; also a grain elevator, and a coal dealer. This would also be a fine location for a canning factory for small fruits, corn and tomatoes.

We have an oil refinery. There is plenty of good water, oil and gas; a good house for school and church use, one small store. We need men with means to build houses for the poor to live in. There is plenty of fine land to cultivate, but houses are scarce. The taxes are not half as high as in some large towns.

But Rollin is not Paradise by a good deal, and has plenty of room for betterment. We need men to build up the town and the church as well.

This is all I can say, and if you wish to know more, all I can say is Come and see.

JOHN FOORE.

Bible Themes.

Is the title of the last book issued by Brother John O. Woodruff on miscellaneous subjects, both original and selected. This book contains 480 pages and cost the author $1.25 to issue. A quantity has been supplied us, and we wish to get them into the hands of readers, and offer them at 80 cents each, post paid, while they last.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

When you buy a money order, see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "THE RESTITUTION," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning[illegible]gton, Kan. The price is 10 c[illegible]

A four-page tract in the German language, by Brother M. Joblin of Cleveland, O. Subject, "What Must I do to be Saved?" After getting the opinion of one who understands this language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to M. Joblin, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

NOTICE.

Information wanted concerning an Evangelist known as Blind Raynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Address, E. P. Woodward, Westbrook, Maine.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

Our talents differ, and each one will be held accountable for the use of such talent, whatever that may be. If you have only one, use that.

Some one says, what can I do? Why you can circulate literature teaching the truth if nothing else. There is no one but who can do that. Will that do any good? Oh, yes. Let me tell you something. Some people have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. It would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

WILL all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. B. Robinson will in future be 380 West Main St. Salem, O.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money put in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should keep a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Peerless, Ind, or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies post paid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it forever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled.—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

The Temptation.

A TALK IN DRINK.—TOM IN DRAM CHOKES AND ANNIE WINES.

They say "I'm not smart, and they laugh at me,
But I'm smart enough to let whiskey be!
I've seen crowds who thought they'd have
To try me drinking on beer or wine.
Or they looked at each other with nod and wink,
As Jack brought out their bottle and asked me to drink;
And said "It was healthful, and tasted good,
And would hurt me no more than my daily food."

It was my turn to laugh, and I said that it "bites,"
That the man who drinks, is the man who fights,
And I will not touch what my God says "not,"
To turn myself to a bear-eyed sot;
To weaken my judgment of right and wrong,
To feed my strength and debauch my tongue.
You fellows can vote at the polls, you say!
I, can show my colors another way!

And braver he than the President
Who off to a cocktail dinner went
And—shame to our nation!—thought it was fine
To taste of the toddy and toss off the wine!
Then one of them said, "It's not any use
To try this fellow on strychnine juice,"
And offered to pay for a fine cigar
If I'd smoke with them like a jolly tar.

But I would not have it, nor would I chew
The nasty weed that the Red man grew.
So you see, I've a little more sense
Than Judges of courts with all their pretense,
Than lawyers, and doctors and merchants too
Who fly to the japs when they are blue;
Or are off in a trice for some foaming champagne
To make them grow merry by drowning their pain.

They call me weak-minded and all of such stuff
But I'm braver and stronger than they for enough,
For I know—that the winner, most fully for real
Amounts in a year to a wonderful sum,
A sum that would care for our orphans and poor,
And ope wide to the gospel full many a door;
So, though I'm not smart and they laugh at me,
I'm smart enough to let whiskey be!

Known to God are All His Works.

The question of the foreknowledge of God has been discussed by the religious world for many centuries. Our best scholars have not agreed on this point. While it is not a vital question I think we should study it from a Bible standpoint. Those who believe that "The Eternal One" worked out his plan to the smallest detail will have many hard questions to answer. If we get rid of our preconceived ideas and search the Word of God on this question as we do on that of the gospel we will certainly arrive at the truth. We wish to suggest that God did not reveal all his plan in the beginning but gave it to his followers in detail. His plan is first revealed in Gen i 28. To Adam he said, Multiply and replenish the earth; subdue it and have dominion. The earth was to be filled with his offspring before dominion could be exercised. Nothing is said here that the man whom God created would be placed on trial. Yet we see that they were placed in the garden and under the law with the direction that "eating" thou shalt eat. Adam chose to disobey God's command and partake of the fruit of the tree that God forbade him to touch. The act of disobedience certainly was not in God's plan for it necessitated the passing of the sentence of death on Adam. "Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, Saying, thou shalt not eat of it. Cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return. Gen iii 17, 19. Paul says 1 Tim ii 14. For Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression. We cannot argue that it was in God's plan that Adam should transgress when he violated the law pre-meditatedly. The volition was his own. He evidently knew what the result would be, as the Lord had said. "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." There was a difference in the character of their violation of the law. Eve was deceived through the sophistry of the serpent but Adam did it because he chose so to do. To say that this incident was in God's plan is to say that God arranged that Adam to whom he had promised dominion should fail. This is Calvinism in its purity and destroys free moral agency. The fact that God placed Adam under a law is evidence that he gave him the right to choose. The tree of life was placed in the garden through which they might receive eternal life. The command was thou shalt not eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. If we keep in mind that God's works and the enemies' works are quite different it will aid us in our search for the truths along this line of Bible truth. The Lord God said that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. This could not have been considered in the plan until a Savior was needed. From this time the plan was that the seed of the woman should prevail, and in the end Satan would be bruised. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested that he might destroy the works of the devil, (the enemy). Adam's transgression necessitated the introduction of one of the race who would in the end regain what Adam had lost. The trouble of many is that they want to believe that this seed meant the son of Mary who was born four thousand years later. The desire of many of the prophets was that they might know in detail the whole of God's plan. The details of every plan must be worked out as necessity requires. Let me illustrate. Mr A wants to erect a building. The architectural plans are made but the details must be worked in. The architect did not have in his mind the individual trees that were to be selected to complete the plan. I have said that the disobedience of our first parents necessitated the providing of a Savior in the seed of the woman. This could not have been in the plan previous to the creation of Adam. If it were, God could not have given the first man the power to rule. It is said if the Eternal One did not know, his power is limited. It is impossible to take cognizance of a thought before it is produced. Therefore God does not notice our actions until they have taken place. An evil thought does not become sin until it has found an enlodgment in our minds. It was because of the purposes and desires to do evil continually that caused God to destroy the antidiluvians. He certainly did not purpose this before the worlds were formed as some affirm. If God's thoughts reached to every detail in his plan his creatures are a little less than machines, and therefore unable to do otherwise than was arranged in his plan. The God whom we worship gave man a perfect physical organization that he might do good or evil and was held responsible for his acts. The fact that we are placed on trial and admonished to seek for glory, immortality and eternal life is evidence that we are free moral agents and will be held responsible for our acts. It is written, He that doeth righteousness is righteous. He that committeth sin is of the devil. The transgression of the law is sin. Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God; for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man. James i 13. I call heaven and earth to record this day against you that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may life. These Scriptures all teach us that God has given us the power to choose good or evil. God said to Abraham that his seed should be a stranger in a land that is not their's, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years and afterward they shall come out with great substance. This to my mind is one of the details of which was worked in for a purpose to be known. In Jer vii 31 the prophet said it came not into my mind that you would burn your sons and daughters in the fire. It was necessary that Abram's seed be isolated as a nation in order that the seed be produced. If this people had not been disciplined as it was the [illegible] would not have been able to [illegible] law in every particular. In order to get a strong people as is taken in choosing the best and rejecting the faulty. It is the law of the "survival of the fittest." When the time came that the seed should be produced a woman was found who could not be deceived and God chose her as the handmaid. The angel said to Mary, Hail, thou art highly favored (margin, graciously accepted) the Lord is with thee, Blessed art thou among women; for thou hast found favor with God. Can it be that God knew before the worlds were formed that this woman should be the one favored among all women? We think not, but that his plan was to have a race that should inherit the earth and one of the race should rule. In other words God would rule the earth through the instrumentality of a kingdom. The seed of the woman was to bruise the serpent's head. Abraham's seed is to bless all nations. David's son is to rule over the house or kingdom of Jacob forever. He is to sit on David's throne. He is God's Anointed. Yet we should see that he (Christ) became so through obedience and not because God planned it so from the beginning. In speaking of this man the Psalmist says Psalm cxix. 98 to 100. Thou through thy commandments hast made me wiser than mine enemies. I have more understanding than all my teachers; for thy testimonies are my meditation. I understand more than the ancients, because I keep thy precepts. Jesus won the kingship by obedience to the Father's commands. It is true that the Father gave Jesus the Spirit without measure because he at all times did the things that pleased his heavenly Father, was tempted in all things like unto ourselves, but as a man over his own house was faithful. He poured out his soul unto death. For this God crowned him with immortality. He was the one of all the race that obeyed the law perfectly. Not because God planned it before the worlds were formed but because he sought for the prize that God placed before the race. Abraham was declared to be the father of the faithful because of the righteousness of his faith. So will we be made his sons and daughters because we believe as did our father Abraham. We must work out our salvation if we are ever saved. If we err in the above please point it out and we will thank you.

A Call to Duty.

Let us have a bugle call, and ascertain the number of Gideonites now ready for actual service. No time for sleeping on duty now, for the battle is on. Not openly, as in hostile warfare, but in a more dangerous form. The enemy is lying in ambush. The whole world comparatively are arrayed against the truth.

What do the masses of religionists care for the words of Christ, "I am the life," when they believe they have that life by natural birth? It is so much easier to believe Egyptian mythology, and believing that they have no use for the establishing of Christ's kingdom on earth, as his oft repeated words declare.

But we rejoice that God has a faithful few who believe his Word and are heeding his admonition. Unto such as look for him will he appear to save. Truly we are living in perilous times, and Satan is working with all the cunning craftiness common to his nature, and if it were possible would deceive the very elect. If ever the cause of truth needed true, brave defenders it is Now—Today. The last time we ever heard our brave, beloved Brother, L. L. Chase preach a gospel sermon, was at the Coats Grove Conference. It was seemingly almost a dying effort. He preached a masterly sermon on the Covenants of promise and baptism. It was mentioned by many as being a most convincing sermon.

Afterward receiving a severe criticism from those he least expected [illegible] had built, he said to me, Bro. [illegible] "Have I done wrong?" [illegible] Sister Wines would pay any one for a years' subscription. Try all the above plans for improving the paper, and watch results.

Then if you want good work done by your minister do not meet him always with criticisms, especially before the world. Remember the years of hard work he has done for you, and that he has feelings as well as you have. The devil enjoys getting you into the fault-finding frame of mind. It does not require much brains to do it, but the grace of God can keep you from it.

O friends, stand by the banner of truth. Stand by your faithful preacher. There are only a few of these veterans left, and they will soon be gone. Give them your hearty sympathy and decent support without grudging. Stand by the dear old faithful friend, THE RESTITUTION. If we have nothing but fault finding to do, let us keep silent. The crying sin of Israel was fault-finding. Moses could do nothing to please them, so though he was God's chosen leader. They were constantly longing for the leeks and onions of Egypt. O, that we had stayed in Egypt. Angel's food failed to satisfy their carnal appetite. God has said, Come out of Babylon my people, and that means stay out. But O, the multitude are going that way, and they are so liberal minded in their views. The other way is so narrow; so few going that way, and they won't even sprinkle a baby, or admit one into their church unless they are immersed; and they believe there is no future life for the saints until Christ's return to earth. No, I cannot stay with them.

Have you, dear ones, the words of Christ, Broad is the road that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go in thereat. It is only the few who find the narrow way which leads to life.

O, what danger there is that we fall from our own steadfastness. What will the result be? For if we sin willfully, after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation which shall devour the adversaries.

Your brother in hope.

B. W. WOODWARD.

WHICH ARE YOU?

There are two kinds of people on earth today,
Just two kinds of people, no more, I say.
Not the sinner and saint, for all will understood
The good are half bad, and the bad are half good.

Not the humble and proud, for in life's little span,
Who puts on airs is not counted a man.

Not the happy and sad, for the swift flying years
Bring each man his laughter and each man his tears.

No, the two kinds of people on earth I mean,
Are the people who lift, and the people who lean.

Wherever you go, you will find the world's masses
Are always divided to just these two classes.

And lucky enough, you will find too, I ween,
There is only one lifter to twenty who lean.

In which class are you? Are you among the band
Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road?
Or are you a leaner, who lets others bear
Your portion of labor and worry and care?

The Scapegoat.

And Aaron shall take two goats and present them before the Lord at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. And Aaron shall cast lots upon the two goats, one lot for the Lord, and the other lot for the scapegoat. And Aaron shall bring the goat upon which the Lord's lot fell, and offer him for a sin offering. But the goat on which the lot fell to be the scapegoat, shall be present alive before the Lord, to make an atonement with him, and to let him go for a scapegoat into the wilderness. Lev xvi 7-10.

In the Revised Version it says, Be presented alive before the Lord, to make atonement for him, or margin, over him.

Those who understand what constitutes atonement, and how it is made, will see at once that the live goat represents the living Christ; he that was dead and is alive again. Atonement means agreement; reconciliation after enmity. Fallen man is a child of the devil. The resurrected man a child of God. John viii 44; Luke xx 36. That which brings in resurrection is therefore that by which the atonement is consummated. This is very easy to comprehend as is all truth.

The careful reader knows how reconciliation is brought about by a law of life and Christ is the agent. It is because he lives that we shall live. It was the scapegoat that delivered the people from their sins. And the goat shall bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land of separation; and he shall let go the goat into the wilderness. Ver 22.

I need not explain who bears our sins. Behold the Lamb of God, that takes away the sin of the world. But did we read "make atonement for him" the scapegoat. Did Christ make atonement for himself? Certainly he did. Did he not have a fallen nature when he took that of a Jew of the seed of Abraham according to the flesh? Did he not become a begotten Son,—resurrection? "Until he come out, and have made an atonement for himself, and for his household, and for all the congregation of Israel. Ver 17; also Heb ix 12, "By his own blood (life) he entered in once into the holy place, having eternal redemption." For us, is not in the text, but supplied, left out in the Revised Version because the context does not permit it.

Which lot of the two will follow a fulfillment? Think you it is that referring to the high priest himself? You had better find out by reading Matt v 18. Those who believe that Christ was a substitute, punished instead of the sinner, may well think the scapegoat, presented alive before the Lord, is the devil. He ought to be the sinner's substitute if anyone.

But even that is just. Moses offered himself in that way, but God would not permit vicarious punishment. Ex xxxii 33. The slain goat for the sin offering is Christ, and the bullock of verse 11, and all the other sacrifices; while only the living goat represents the finished work of the atonement, the bearing away of our sins. The atonement was not made by the slaying of the victim or victims, but by the life or blood, carried into the holy place; by which life the cleansing was to be consummated. But it was completed only when the people were actually separated, at last free from their sins. This was the last act of the atonement, just before the high priest came out; and the scapegoat was the agent by which their sins were taken away.

Lev xvi, is the only chapter which gives the details of the process by which the atonement was made. The law is a shadow of things to come; it is fulfilled in that to which it points, and it is easier for heaven and earth to pass than one jot of the law, until all be fulfilled.

We have such an High Priest, who has gone into the true tabernacle, of which the other was a figure, there to appear for us; and every jot of the law concerning his going in, and coming out, will certainly be fulfilled. Our sins brought on us by the fall are not borne away until we are delivered from the body of this death; and until then we groan within ourselves. The scapegoat bears all our sins away into the wilderness; a land not as yet inhabited. Thus our sins go before to judgment—those of the world will follow after, 1 Tim v 24.

The atonement consummated is of course, our actual deliverance from sin and its consequences. Such deliverance is therefore, salvation. When he bears away our sins, our salvation will be revealed, 1 Pet i 5. That being the last act of atonement, it is at that moment this corruption puts on incorruption. That act is passing through the first vail, into the holy place; and without holiness no man shall see the Lord. Then he will wash his flesh in the holy place.

I will site you to one more Scripture, Isa liii 4, Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows; yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed.

All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way, and the Lord has laid on him the iniquity of us all.

Submitted in love,

JOHN FORD.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME LVI. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 13, 1907. NUMBER 42.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 13, 1907.

BROTHER G. E. Marsh writes that he is engaged in a protracted meeting at Hickory Grove School House, near Colo, Iowa, and that the attendance so far has been very good.

THE Plymouth Church had the pleasure of listen to two excellent sermons delivered by Sister M. A. Woodward on last Sunday. She reports that Brother Woodward was able to make a trip to Raisen Center while she was here.

BROTHER [illegible]. Conner, of Cleveland, O., was called here by the sickness of Sister Chaplin-Wickizer, with whom his daughter makes her home. While here he attended Church services, and greeted many old friends of by-gone days.

WE wish to call special attention again to a matter that may seem simple, but is quite annoying at times. Please read over your money order before putting it in the envelope, and see that it is made payable to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Indiana. We ask you to be careful about this because quite recently we received a money order made payable to "The Presbyterian," another to "Yes Institution," another to "The Recitation," another the Post Master had forgotten to sign his name. Frequently orders are made to read "Plymouth, Ill., Iowa, etc." Of course the only thing we can do is to return such, and then there is the extra expense of getting a new order and sending it. This can be avoided by a little care in looking over the order before sending it. So please see to this. Also be sure and address your letter to Plymouth, Indiana. A short time ago we received a letter that had been written and sent some time before. It was addressed to Plymouth, Ill., and after laying there some time, was forwarded to us, as it so happened that some one knew THE RESTITUTION was published in Plymouth, Ind.

The Bereans Column.

Will all isolated Bereans, members of the Illinois Society, send their names and addresses to Mrs. C. F. Gesin, Rural route 2, Forreston, Ill. J. W. Cooper, Ripley, Ill, or Miss Lelia E. Whitehead, 5428 Ontario St. Austin station, Chicago, Ill. Will you please state whether or not you wish to correspond with other Bereans, and with which crowd, the younger or older.

Any Bereans wishing to correspond with our isolated brethren, and so become better acquainted, as is befitting with members of one great family, please send word to any of the above committee.

We wish to remind the Bereans of a matter spoken of at the conference: The Chicago Berean Society makes a special work every year of distributing Christmas dinners to the poor. In a great city there are so many needy cases. Any who wish to help in this work will please send your contributions to Miss Leila E. Whitehead, 5428 Ontario St. Austin station, Chicago, before or up to Dec. 17. The poor you have always with you.

We rejoice to learn that during the Southern Illinois Conference, two more of our Bereans put on Christ in baptism. They are Miss Louisa Woods, Rural route 3, Casey, Ill. and Miss Lucy Slack, Rural route 1, Dundas, Ill. Write them and become acquainted.

MARRIED—On Nov. 6th, Maude M. Button, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Button, of Chicago, to Edwin T. Renner, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Renner, of Lanark, Mr. Lindsay officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Renner will make their home in Chicago. The good wishes of all the Bereans are with our brother and sister. May God be with them and shower his blessings abundantly on this new Christian home.

It may be of interest to many of our Bereans to know that the prophecy we have been learning in Jer xxxi, has been very nearly fulfilled. A company of Americans, who have lived long in Jerusalem tell us that when the building started in Jerusalem, they were excavating and under the second foundation was found a round foundation, as though for a tower. No one knew what had been built there till an old Rabbi, on looking up the records, found that it was the site of the tower of Hananeel. Why had the building began at that point? Then when the building stretched out into the valley, and they began to plow and dig for their buildings, they found so many ashes. Again, on looking up the records it was found to be the place where the ashes of the temple sacrifices were cast. And so in many ways they fold of the actual work, that is the direct fulfillment of these prophecies, being done right in their sight. Let us thank God for the sure word of prophecy he has given to us.

Dear Bereans:

Paul to Timothy, foretells that in the latter times there should be a departure from the faith, and that he fail not in his duty, he furnishes him with instructions to that end. Among other things he says: "Be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity."

In the present day condition, where the corruption of the truth on every side, and it behooves every true follower of Christ to so live that they may show forth the praises of virtues of him who hath called them out of darkness into his marvelous light, and that wherein others may speak against them, may by their good works or actions, glorify God, and these instructions to Timothy, if followed by us, may help to bring forth such results.

"Be thou an example in word" "To the law and to the testimony, if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." "Be doers of the word, not hearers only." "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another with psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts unto God, and whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus."

In conversation. "Let your conversation be as becometh the gospel of Christ. Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying that it may minister grace unto the hearers. Be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you, yet with meekness and fear. Having a good conscience, that wherein ye are spoken against, they may be put to shame who revile your good conversation (manner of life) in Christ.

In charity. "Above all things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness. Charity or love, envieth not, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, beareth all things, rejoiceth in the truth.

In spirit. Whose adorning, let it be the hidden man of the heart, in the incorruptible apparel of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price.

The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness and temperance.

In faith. Without faith it is impossible to please God. This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. As ye have received Christ so walk in him, rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith.

In purity. Seeing ye have purified your souls in your obedience to the truth.....love one another with a pure heart, fervently. Keep thyself pure.

As we study God's Word, let us strive to put in practice the precepts laid down for us, that our manner of life may demonstrate whose service we are in.

ANNA E. DREW.

JESUS WEPT.

Dear Bereans:

By request from a friend to write an article for the Berean Column, I just thought I would touch upon the character of our Lord and Master.

You will notice that I have taken for my subject "Jesus wept." Though it is the shortest verse in the Bible, yet there is so much in it. When we stop to think of him who spake as never man spake, weeping at the grave of Lazarus, the question comes to us why should he have wept when he knew he could raise him from the dead? When he saw the friends and sisters of Lazarus weeping, his heart being so full of love and compassion, caused him to weep.

The Apostle Paul says, Weep with them that weep, and rejoice with them that do rejoice.

There is another place we see Jesus weeping, and that is over the city of Jerusalem. He knowing that it would be a desolation because of the rejection of him, Luke xix 41, says, And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it. In another place he says, O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen gathereth her brood under her wings, and ye would not. He was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. So we see him who was the Son of God, he who received the Spirit without measure, who could heal the sick, cast out devils, and raise the dead weeping over a city, and weeping with them that weep, and surely he must have a cause for weeping.

We read in another place where he says, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head. Why all this for him who was made a little lower than the angels? Surely it was because of the sorrows and trials of fallen man. He [illegible] tasted death for every man, that he might [illegible] from the [illegible] of the grave. He was tried in all points like as we are, yet without sin. I am aware that some people think it is unmanly to weep, even at a funeral.

Dear Bereans, if Jesus was so meek and lowly of mind, let us who have taken on his name try to follow him in all things. He wept with them that wept; let us do the same. Let us be of the same mind of Christ.

Sometimes the trials are many, and seem almost unendurable. To such he says, Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

In Rev xxi 4, we read of a time coming when God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain. What a glorious time that will be, when we shall be free of all the ills the human race is subject to at the present time.

Let us rejoice in the fact that God has raised up Christ from the dead, and will raise up also at the coming.

[illegible] M. HADDERLY.

Dear Bere[illegible]

You k[illegible] Bible plainly teaches t[illegible]us will come again. T[illegible] descend from heaven in [illegible]rand glory. The great day [illegible]d Eastereth.

Are you r[illegible] or are you so taken up with the [illegible]d and its pleasures so as to hardly give a thought to the events that are occurring every day all around us, heralding the coming of our blessed Redeemer to this earth, to establish his everlasting kingdom. Are you ready to meet him?

You surely realize that the day is at hand, and the night is far spent, and we must be up and about our Master's work. Do not let us sit down with folded hands and say "Jesus paid it all."

We have a work to do. Let us pray for one another that we may prove faithful to the end and receive the reward of eternal life.

E. LINDSAY.

POVERTY AND RICHES.

"I know thy poverty," says Christ, to the church of Smyrna, "but thou art rich." Rev. ii. 9.

At first this may seem a strange paradox. A certain writer has said, "There is many a rich poor man, and many a poor rich man."

The testimony shows that the riches of the people addressed, verse 10, consisted of that which was finally to put them in possession of a crown of life.

The truly rich in this world, are those "rich in faith," and "heirs of the kingdom."

James says, "Hearken my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him?"

It is within the power of each and every one to become rich toward God; to become an heir of that inheritance which is incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for us. 1 Pet. i. 4. We are admonished to lay up for ourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt and where thieves do not break through nor steal. Matt. vi. 19.

One may have an abundance of the wealth of this world, for which men so eagerly strive, and yet be poor, miserable, blind and naked, as were the Laodiceans. Rev. iii. 17. They were counseled to buy gold tried in the fire, that they might be rich. It appears to me that faith is a principle element of spiritual wealth. Nothing will sooner dry up the springs of spirituality, and sink us into utter poverty in reference to the things of the kingdom of God, than to let faith go out, and unbelief come in. No wonder, then, that Paul should devote an entire chapter in Hebrews (chapter 11) to this important subject. Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Heb. xi. 1. Hence, hope is an inseparable accompaniment of faith.

Let us not lose faith in God's promises, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy. Let us be "rich in good works," workmen that needeth not to be ashamed.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY NOV. 17.

Gideon and his Three Hundred. Judges vii. 9-23.

Golden Text. "Ye shall not fear them; for the Lord your God he shall fight for you." Deut. iii. 22.

In the last lesson Joshua had brought the Israelites to a positive decision as to whether they would serve the Lord their God, or the gods of their fathers.

At the present time, it is one of the most difficult tasks to wean people away from the gods of their fathers, and persuade them to believe the gospel and be baptized. Every one that preaches or teaches the glad tidings of the kingdom of God knows how hard it is to get even a few to decide and say, "What hinders me to be baptized." Acts viii. 36.

Joshua died. The Israelites kept the Covenant, serving the Lord as long as the Elders lived, that outlived Joshua. The Lord would not help them drive out the inhabitants of the land because they broke his covenant. Judges ii. 20-23.

From time to time God selected Judges that delivered Israel from their enemies. Prominent among them were Ehud, Shamgar, Deborah, and Gideon. Because the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord, he delivered them into the hand of the Midianites, Chap. vi. 1. The Midianites made the lives of the Israelites miserable, and the Lord called Gideon to relieve them. Chap. vi. 11-14. Read the chapter. Gideon—like Moses—thought he was not equal to the task. The Lord—by an angel—convinced him by signs and wonders. Gideon, was also named Jerubbaal—contender against Baal—got all the people to go against the Midianites in the valley of Moreh, some forty miles north of Jerusalem. Chap. vii. 1. All the people—were too many. They might boast of having whipped the host of Midian. Verse 2. Those who were in any way afraid were told to go home. 22,000 went, 10,000 stayed. Ver. 3. The Lord said, Too many yet. There should be a water test. Those that bowed down to drink were to be rejected. Those that lifted the water with their hand to their mouths were to be chosen.

Three hundred lapped—did not bow down—a very small number to go against the Midianites, the Amalekites, and all the children of the east, like grasshoppers for multitude. See verse 12. Gideon—like all the faithful, past and present—had to be tried. The Lord promised that he would deliver the Midianites into his hand.

LESSON TEXT.

9. The same night—No time to wait to get discouraged. If Gideon and his three hundred were not up and active, the enemy would soon be. Though we war not with flesh and blood, Eph. vi. 12, we are told to be vigilant, because our enemy always is. 1 Peter v. 8.

10. Gideon had been called to the work seemingly without a time of patient training, and may have been a little timid, from inexperience. God kindly provided company.

11. What he heard would give him assurance.

12. Without number—Impossible for Gideon—or his three hundred to count them.

13, 14. The Lord led Gideon to hear what gave him the necessary confidence and courage for the battle.

15. He worshipped.—Doubtless he thanked and praised the Lord. This is the action of all who believe and know that God is "A very present help in time of trouble." Psa. xlvi. 1. The host of Israel.—He very likely warned, or asked, the warriors of Naphtali, Asher, and Manasseh, to be ready to pursue the enemy. See verse 23.

16. Gideon has developed into a good General. Trumpets—of ram's horns most likely. Joshua vi. 4. Pitchers,—supposed to be earthenware water pitchers, such as are used in all families. Lamps—Torches.

17. Gideon drills the three hundred.

18. The sword of the Lord and of Gideon—the battle cry. First the Lord, then Gideon.

20. The middle watch—beginning at 10 p. m. and ending at 2 a. m. There was three divisions of time called watches.

20, 21. The three hundred were evidently not armed with weapons to kill. But the blare of trumpets and sudden flash of lights all around produced a panic of terror in the enemy. They cried and fled—did not stop to find out what happened.

23. They slew each other in their blind fear. God had given Gideon and his three hundred the victory.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY NOV. 24.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY.—Rom. xiv. 12-23.

Golden Text. "Judge this rather, that no man put a stumbling or an occasion to fall in his brother's way." Rom. xiv. 13.

In the last lesson we learned that the Lord gave Gideon and his three hundred a complete victory over the Midianites the Amalekites, and the men of the east. It is not quite clear why this lesson is called "World's Temperance Sunday." The world never had such a Sunday, and as far as the Bible is concerned there is no mention of a Temperance Sunday. The world is never temperate, but always more or less extreme.

LESSON TEXT.

12. Every one of us.—As a rule it is of great importance that we consider who the [illegible] is. This letter or book of Romans—was not written to the Romans; but to all in Rome. Beloved of God—called saints. Rom. i. 7. These saints were judging—condemning—one another about matters of eating and drinking—eating flesh—meat—and drinking wine. In verse 10 Paul shows that it is wrong and entirely unnecessary for one saint to judge another, as Christ shall judge all.

13. Let us—the saints—not judge one another any more, but rather judge ourselves, that no one offend a brother, or cause him to give offence, "and overthrow the faith of some," 2 Tim. ii. 18. A very serious thing to do. Verse 15.

14. Persuaded by the Lord Jesus—The Lord Jesus promised to appear to Paul and instruct him. Acts xxvi. 16. Nothing unclean of itself, but to him a brother—saint—that thinks so, it is unclean—a personal opinion.

15. The saint whose faith works by love, Gal. v. 6, loves his brother and will not do that which will offend his brother. He will not grieve his brother by eating meat that his brother thinks is unclean. Christ died for the weak as well as the strong in faith. Then let those who believe there is nothing unclean of itself, eat and give thanks to God. 1 Tim. iv. 3-5, not openly, or carelessly, but exercising temperance—self restraint, for the sake of a brother.

16. So that good may appear good and not give cause for questioning remarks.

17. This verse is written as if the kingdom of God was in existence—established—restored. In the apostle's record of Jesus' words they often use the expression, "The kingdom of heaven is." Those who have believed and obeyed the glad tidings of the kingdom KNOW that the kingdom of God was overturned in the time of Zedekiah, Ezek. xxi. 25-27, and will be RESTORED by the Lord Jesus Christ at his appearing and kingdom 2 Tim. iv. 1. The kingdoms of men are governed by natural needs, wants and ambitions, called in the lesson meat and drink. The kingdom of God will be governed by Jesus Christ and his saints. The faithful of all ages from Abel to the coming of the Lord. Read Dan. vii. Meanwhile those who are waiting for God's Son from heaven, 1 Thess. i. 10, are living lives of faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, love, 2 Peter i. 5-7. This—by Paul is called righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.

18. Such serve Christ and please God. "Approved of men." Many—very many—men heartily approve of the godly conduct of a saint; but refuse, or avoid the doctrine that produces the godly conduct.

19. Let us—the world will not—follow after righteousness, etc., and instruct each other in the things that produce peace.

20, 21. Calls for that kind of temperance that the world carefully shuns. Let us eat, drink and be merry—"Onward with the dance"—is the voice of the world. The righteous only, can truly practice—and even enjoy—temperance—self restraint for the sake of others.

22. Hast thou faith—strong faith. Do not display it before your weaker brother, but before God, and you will not have occasion to regret anything. Allow your brother time to add to his faith—to increase his faith.

23. If a believer's act out knowledge is too limited for him to decide what is proper for him to eat, and not eat, then eat only what he has faith concerning. To do anything "religious" without faith is sin. Let us remember that when Paul was writing about meat it was a time when there was no gospel to speak—a passing from the law to the gospel. Much of the law consisted of the observance of meats and drinks. Some of the then converts were slow to perceive the liberty of the gospel, and had to be kindly and patiently dealt with. The temperance thought in this lesson will be more fully brought out and better understood by reading carefully Chap. xv. verses 1-7.

Next Lesson, The Death of Samson, Judges xvi. 21-31.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

I want to say that Brother D. M. Hudler is here, Westboro, Mo., from Rockwood, Tenn., to hold a series of meetings. Will begin the 13th. The church and isolated members in Missouri, Nebraska and Okla who are longing for good preaching, just write to him at this place. It will be a grand feast to you isolated ones. I know from experience as I am alone here and paid his fare from Rockwood, Tenn., because I know he is poor in this world's goods, but he is rich in the faith and hope of coming victory. I first heard him preach seven years ago last week, at Redington, Nebraska, and many there thought him almost perfect in rightly dividing and presenting God's blessed will, to us poor fallen creatures, but, I must say he is one that never stands still but grows in grace and knowledge.

Your Sister in hope,
MRS. C. W. ENDSLEY.

Married.

Married at the home of the bride's parents in Austin, Ill., Nov. 6th, 1907, Mr Edwin T. Renner and Miss Maude M. Button. Edwin is the son of Brother and Sister John Renner, of Lanark, Ill. He taught school for a while before entering the State University at Champaign, where he completed with honor a course in civil engineering, and is present employed by a Chicago firm. Maude is the daughter of Brother and Sister Lucien Button of Austin. She is accomplished in music, and has all of the lovable traits of a refined Christian young woman. Both of these young people are members of the Chicago Church. This speaks best of all for them.

The occasion was made unusually pleasant by the friends who were present to the number of about sixty. These showed their esteem for the young people in the valuable presents which loaded the tables, and almost filled the room which was provided.

Edwin and Maude start in upon their married life with prospects for a successful and happy future. Let us join hands in wishing them Godspeed in all that they put their hands to. Pray for them that they may so walk in life that when the Life Giver comes, they may be found of him prepared to enter into his glory.

S. J. LINDSAY.

Our system of thought is often only the history of our heart. Men do not so much will according to their reason as reason according to their will.

The children of God have much in hand, and much more in hope.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our name for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trustworthy.

Election.

"In Isaac shall thy seed be called." Rom ix 7. The chosen people were not to descend from all the sons of Abraham. Hagar's son, and those by Keturah, were by election ruled out, though they were the seed of Abraham. Paul affirms of Hagar's son that he was born after (in accordance with) the flesh, but of Sarah's son, that he was by promise. Gal iv 22, 23. By figures he makes these mothers represent the two covenants, the law and the gospel.

Prior to the birth of Isaac, Abraham was deeply concerned about an heir, one born of Sarah, the princess. After Abram's return from the battle that resulted in delivering Lot and other captives from the hand of the [illegible] unto Abram in a vi[illegible] not Abram, I am th[illegible] and exceeding great reward." It was divine encouragement for the despondent patriarch. See Gen xv 1. Something good was couched in this general promise, and on the strength of this and God's promises previously made to him he presses the question that ranks first in his own mind, because first in the divine purpose. "Lord God what wilt thou give me, seeing I go childless, and the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus." Abram was more than four score years old at this time and Sarah in her seventies. The prospect of an heir was one of faith. Abram continued his discourse, "Behold, to me thou hast given no seed; and, lo, one born in mine house is mine heir." Jehovah in answer to this said, "This shall not be thine heir, but he that shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir." On the giving of this promise of a son, Jehovah renews his covenant of the land and that of the numerous seed which was to spring from him and his prospective heir; and ratified in the most solemn manner the covenant concerning the land. There were yet several years of postponement before the heir was born, bringing Abram to his hundredth year while Sarah was ninety. Paul commenting on this remarkable birth says, Therefore sprang also even of one, and him as good as dead so many as the stars of the sky in multitude, and as the sand which is by the seashore innumerable. Heb xi 12. He says of Sarah's faith, She judged him faithful who had promised. The ground of faith on the part of God's children is the faithfulness of him who promised. In Rom iv 18, 19, 20, this same apostle pronounces a fine eulogy on the faith of Abraham. "In Isaac shall thy seed be called." Paul repeats this in connection with the story of Abraham offering his son on Mount Moriah when the mind of the aged patriarch struggled with the question of how God could fulfil the promise of a numerous seed in the line of this only son about to be devoted to death as a victim, by divine command. His faith failed not. He solved the problem in what seemed to him the only way to save the promise from utter failure, by accounting that God was able to raise him up even from the dead. The test was complete when the glittering steel poised in the hand of the father was about to be thrust into the heart of the son. The angel of the Lord was watching this man of faith, and called unto him out of heaven * * * and said, Lay not thy hand upon the lad, neither do thou anything unto him; for now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me. Gen xxii 11, 12. God provided the offering to take the place of Isaac so the problem was solved in a way to save any further shock to the fatherly feelings of the patriarch. Here the promise of a numerous seed is again renewed. All that God promised unto Abraham was centered in Isaac even to the many nations and the kings that should come out of the former. In the 9th chapter of the Roman Letter the apostle says in explanation of the words, In Isaac shall thy seed be called. They which are the children of the flesh * * are not the children of God: but the children of the promise are counted for the seed, verse 8.

All the numerous families contemporaneous with Isaac would rank with the son of Hagar as children of the flesh. The discrimination is in accordance with the sovereign wisdom and will of God who makes no mistakes in his choice of agents through whom to carry out his purposes. Of the two brothers Jacob and Esau, sons of Isaac, the birthright fell to Jacob, and Esau was classed with the children of the flesh. The choice of the one and the rejection of the other was a matter decided before either had done any good or evil, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth. Through Isaac, through Jacob, through the twelve sons of Jacob, as heads of so many tribes, there was to come a numerous seed, a great nation, and in the course of time, by further development a multitude of nations, or many nations as promised to Abraham, and signified by his change of name. The many nations by special promise was allotted to Ephraim, grandson of Jacob. Reuben, the oldest of Jacob's sons, lost the birthright which was transferred to Joseph, and passed to his two sons, Ephraim to have the larger share of the birthright blessing. The blessing runs thus. He (Ma[illegible] also shall be great but his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a multitude of nations. Gen xlviii 19. Moses after pronouncing the birthright blessing upon Joseph, in words that mean, if they mean anything, material wealth, marvelous prosperity beyond any other people, together with military power to acquire by conquest territory belonging to other nations, passes all this surpassing wealth and military strength to Joseph's two sons or rather to their numerous seed, in these words, They are ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh. Deut xxxiii 17. These prophecies and promises of Jacob and Moses are commonly regarded as, either too mysterious to be understood or as empty words or mere poetic rhapsody. The commentators suppose that their meaning was exhausted by what these tribes experienced and did while they were in the land of Canaan and prior to their captivity by the Assyrians. Such a view is too limited to meet the requirements of these prophecies. Their fulfilment belongs to later times. In the days of Jeremiah when Ephraim and Israel had been in captivity more than one hundred years Jehovah was still mindful of what he said to Jacob and Moses. The relationship was not forgotten by the covenant keeping God; for through this prophet he said, "I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my firstborn. Jer xxxi 9. What is said in this prophecy of Jeremiah means nothing less than the restoration to favor of the Ten Tribes and the making good the promise of birthright blessing to Ephraim. Let this be sufficient now on the question of Israel's restoration.

The order of election proceeds thus, Abraham was called to leave his country, his kindred and his father's house and go into a land which God would show him. The family of which he was a member were idolators, and his native land was not to be the future home of his descendants. God made choice of another land. The election of this man of faith was in the purpose of God to make of him a great nation; his seed to be as numerous as the stars of heaven and the sands on the seashore; that this numerous seed would finally develop into many nations, or corporate peoples that kings should spring from him, and that in him and his seed all the families of the earth should be blessed. What a marvelous prospect lay before him! Isaac being his only son all the promises would center in him. For wise reasons Jacob is elected and Esau rejected. From Jacob [illegible] spring and all these come in the election and share alike in the promises pertaining to the land, the nation [illegible] seed, and the blessing of the [illegible] It fell to the lot of Judah, in the [illegible] vine arrangement to give rise to the Messiah, the Savior and [illegible] kings, while the pre-eminent [illegible] to Levi. Just as truly as Judah was elected for the kingly and Levi [illegible] priestly tribe so truly was E[illegible] elected to development [illegible] many [illegible] to be federate with Ephraim [illegible] history of the Hebrew [illegible] the division into two kingdoms [illegible] days of Rehoboam and Jeroboam. Ephraim became a national name [illegible] and [illegible] the children of the flesh [illegible] the federated tribes and [illegible] the federated nations; the latter condition fulfilling the promise to Abraham, the prophecies of Jacob, Moses and Jeremiah. Now since Ephraim in captivity was still God's first born and entitled to the birthright blessing the nation or people named must either be now in the enjoyment of the blessing or will be in the age to come; the promise of becoming a multitude of nations as a part of the birthright can no more fail than the promise to Judah concerning the birth of the Messiah of this tribe, and of the house of David, could fail. The Christ was to spring out of Judah. Heb vii 14. The many nations were to be of Ephraim, Amen. Those expositions who say God is done with Israel after the flesh and nationality must either say the promise has failed, or that at some period in the past, later than Jeremiah's day, Ephraim must have been a multitude of nations, enjoying all the blessings that were to fall on the house of Joseph: and if so this must be their condition at this day.

JAMES L. WILCOX.

Notes by the Way.

On the night of October 10, I took the train bound for Louisville, Kentucky, on the Chicago, Indianapolis [illegible] Arrived there at about 7 o'clock A. M., Oct. 11th. After a wait of about an hour, I took the train on the Louisville and Nashville R. R. for Brunsfield, Ky., about 81 miles south of Louisville. On arriving there I was met at the depot by Bro. Frank Skeels (nephew of Bro. Wm. Skeels, on the Pacific coast) and also his brother-in-law, Mr. Bradley.

I was then conveyed to the Skeels home (two or three miles on the other side of the historic town of Perryville) where I was welcomed by the three Misses Skeels, daughters of Bro. Levi Skeels, now asleep in Jesus.

On Oct. 12th, I commenced a series of eighteen discourses. It was the intention if I had arrived earlier in the season, to have held the meetings in a beautiful grove, near the Skeels home; but as the weather was too chilly to hold meetings in the grove, they cleared out, and fitted up a large and roomy barn, on the Skeels farm, in which to hold meetings. They whitewashed it on the inside, and seated the entire expanse of the barn. It was brilliantly lighted up. They hung from the ceiling three racks, each rack containing three large lamps, and one hung in front of the desk, and others were hung from the posts, besides several about the organ. They also built a pulpit desk, painted it, and covered the top with a scraped cloth. This was placed on a raised platform, which was carpeted. The barn took on the appearance of a large sized church.

The services were very encouraging. The people attended in crowds. Long before the time of meeting, they could be seen coming down the road in carriages, on horseback, and on foot. The house would soon be so filled they would have to hunt to find a seat. Those who could not find seats would stand outside before the large double doors of the barn, which were thrown open. I illustrated most of my discourses both by chart and blackboard, which assisted much in making the subject-matter of the discourses clear.

The attention was simply fine. I feel sure that a good impression was left behind, and much seed taken root, I am assured by personal acknowledgement made to me.

The audience grew larger and larger as time advanced. Two young ladies and one young man confessed the faith, and asked for baptism.

At about three o'clock, on Sunday afternoon, I buried them with Christ in baptism. I baptized them in a three pool, on the Bradley farm. In order to witness this impressive ceremony, the people came from far and near and massed themselves in a great crowd upon the banks of the pool. After a short service, they obeyed from the east that form of doc[illegible] which was delivered unto them, and [illegible] were symbolizing in hope. At the Breaking of Bread.

Rev iii 11. Behold I come quickly. hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown. Jesus had told his disciples he would restore Israel, but did not tell them the exact time, and so they enquired the time, and he replied, Acts i 7, "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons which the Father hath put in his own power," and the same with the coming of the Son of man, we are not told the exact time, Matt xxiv 36. "But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no not the angels of heaven, but my Father only."

Again we read he comes as a thief in the night, or as the flood in the days of Noah, but we are to watch and be ready. Until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled, we are to wait. When the branch is yet tender and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is nigh, as we know this is a sure sign of summer, so we have many other positive signs. 2 Tim i 13. "Hold fast the form of sound words, which thou hast heard of me," in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus.

In holding fast the form of sound words, we have something sure on which we may depend, and as it is all that saves us, that earns for us a reward, may we hold fast to the profession of our faith, as a drowning person might to any sure foundation for safety.

An excellent exhortation to Timothy is—O, Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science, falsely so-called, which some professing have erred concerning the faith. Therefore we ought to give the most earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip. We should not be satisfied with what we have heard, but to grow in wisdom of God's promises. Heb x 21. Having an High Priest over the house of God let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering, for he is faithful who promised. Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works, not forsaking the assembling ourselves together, as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching.

Our conscience either accuses or excuses us for our errors, mistakes and sins; and often rules for good in our conduct if we follow its dictations, so we may aim for a clean, clear conscience; one that will guard us from doing anything adverse to God's will, so we may be more like Jesus our Savior.

Therefore beloved, seeing ye know these things, beware lest ye also being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness. But grow in grace and in knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, to whom be glory both now and forever. Amen.

Your sister in Christ,

ORA COLE.

Dear Restitution:

Your most welcome message of Sep. 11, was duly received. How my mind was stirred by Brother Wilson's communication on that important subject "The circumcision of the Christ." And then truly the last question in the present lesson is very suggestive. 1 Cor x 14-21, 32.

I would be glad indeed to meet that little band once more face to face.

Permit me to speak. Last another grand meeting it was my privilege to attend from July 27-29, and as introductory to this part of the subject, see 2 Cor xi 1-3. "For I am jealous over you with godly jealousy." For we had come from our homes to Webb City, Ark. to worship God together, and encourage one another while waiting for his Son from heaven. 1 Thess i 7, 10; 2 Thess i 3-12. Let us strive to free ourselves as Paul did. Acts xx 26.

I have recently had the privilege of bearing witness for Jesus in several places, and it seems that in consequence am having some of Job's experiences, Job i 12. But we still have hope, and believe that Rom viii 28 is for our consolation.

Pray for us. Amen.

R. A. HUMPHREYS.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Obituary.

Brother Albert S. Butcher, a son of Brother and Sister Butcher of Irving, Iowa, died of that terrible disease consumption at the home of his parents, Nov. 1, 1907. Brother Butcher was born Sept. 29, 1861, in Kokomo, Indiana, and removed with his father and mother to Story Co. Iowa, in 1873.

At the age of seventeen he was immersed by Brother Hubaught.

In 1885 he went to Nebraska, where he married. He was the father of two sons and six daughters, all of whom are living except one daughter and one son who died in infancy.

Brother Butcher's death was especially sad, occurring as it did on the evening of his parents' golden wedding anniversary, which he, with so many other relatives, had returned home to celebrate.

The writer spoke a few words of comfort founded on John xi 23, "Thy brother shall rise again." The funeral was conducted from the Church of God in Irving, and was largely attended

Editor Restitution:

It affords me great pleasure to enclose a money order for the renewal of my subscription for our very valuable paper, THE RESTITUTION. I believe it to be the best paper in the world today.

Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth. Here is the place where we will receive our reward, for behold the upright shall be rewarded in the earth, much more the wicked and the sinner.

HERBERT SWAIN.

Dear Restitution.

I have just got around to send you my mite for THE RESTITUTION, so you will please find inclosed a money order to pay for another year.

We are well and trusting in the Lord our beloved Brother, in these wonderful times. I expect the Lord will soon come for his saints, and form a cloud of saved ones, and then appear to the world. Sure the Lord is very near to come, and I hope and pray we may all be ready.

Your brother in hope of eternal life in Him.

S. E. BAIRD.

Affliction and adversity are not, as we are apt sometimes to suppose, the mere random strokes of a blind fate. They are rather the wisely chosen means whereby the Father seeks to find his way into our hearts, and to bless us with his love.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Bible Themes.

Is the title of the last book issued by Brother John O. Woodruff on miscellaneous subjects, both original and selected. This book contains 480 pages and cost the author $1.25 to issue. A quantity has been supplied us, and we wish to get them into the hands of readers, and offer them at 80 cents each, post paid, while they last.

WHEN you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "THE RESTITUTION," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days should be read by every [illegible] Paul [illegible] and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Evangelist's Notice.

The N. W. [illegible] has selected me again as [illegible] The Brethren have ad[illegible] and California to my [illegible] church [illegible] meetings during [illegible] year should correspond [illegible] at an early [illegible] year's work for this extensive [illegible] which now includes west[illegible] Oregon, Washington, California and Arizona.

Hereafter my home will be Scholls, Oregon, and Address, W. L. Skeels, R. D. 1, Laurel, Oregon.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Beloved, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Robt. G. Huggins, Box G. Oregon, Ill.

A four-page tract in the German language, by Brother M. Joblin of Cleveland, O. Subject, "What Must I do to be Saved?" After getting the opinion of one who understands this language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to M. Joblin, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of [illegible] will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Dance[illegible]." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

NOTICE.

Information wanted, concerning an Evangelist known as Blind Haynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Address, E. P. Woodward, Westbrook, Maine.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

Some one says, what can I do? Why you can circulate literature, teaching the truth if nothing else. There is no one but who can do that. Will that do any good? Oh, yes. Let me tell you something. Some people have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. It would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

WILL all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. B. Robinson will in future be 366 West Main St. Salem, O.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince, Piercetown, Ind. has published in tract form a number of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Piercetown, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A [illegible] years since we [illegible] of judge to build a house of worship [illegible] but rather [illegible] town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. The Last Supper.

The sun that in the westal bowers
Shone down where Sharon's lilies grow,
Had cast its last departing gleams
On Hermon's lofty caps of snow;
And evening with her dusky gray
Had mantled all the distant east,
When on a table, spread that day,—
Was laid the royal paschal feast.

Messiah and his chosen band
Were gathered round that sacred board,
Which called to mind fell Egypt's land,
And the salvation of the Lord.
With strong desire,—the Savior spake,—
Have I desired to sup with you;
This cup will I no more partake
Till in God's reign I drink it new.

And then with dignity sublime
He took, and blessed, and broke the bread,
Which to his church all coming time
Should symbolize a Savior dead:—
And then he gave the grape's rich blood,
An emblem of that crimson flow
From his own heart, the cleansing flood
That washes sin as white as snow.

Ma,—then he said, in grief and care,
You have not left to weep alone;
And you shall in my kingdom share
When I ascend the appointed throne;
O'er Israel's tribes shall be your reign
When to the rightful land restored;—
When I earth's sceptre shall obtain
To rule as Universal Lord.

And then that holy hymn was sung,
That in the long evanished days,
Ere David's harp was yet unstrung,
He sang to great Jehovah's praise;
Then o'er the path to Olivet
The saddened pilgrims make their way
For o'er another sun might set
Would be Messiah's dying day.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 32.

Auntie Willard has told the story of her combat with spiritualism in a graphic way. How happy she was in thus owning Christ before his most bitter adversaries! She did not say as some of our young people are saying now, "There are so few of us, I cannot live a Christian life," but shut her teeth, nerved her arm, put gospel shoes on her feet, and rushed into the battle. Not even to have peace would she keep still. Her business was to evangelize. If there were but few believers, she would make more. If the enemy was strong, and well ambushed, she could attack him in front and rear, and keep up the fight until death intervened or the Master came.

Several times before Brother Cook could close his meeting the champion of the spiritualists had to be told to sit down, and when it was closed at last there was for a time a perfect bedlam of confused voices. For three hours these advocates of the devil's religion remained at the hall, contradicting and blaspheming, saying some things too wicked for me to repeat, and among them that "it was a good thing that Jesus learned the carpenter's trade while upon earth, as he could now build the new Jerusalem, and have it all ready for occupancy when he comes back."

How this grieved Auntie Willard. She hoped that Jesus would soon be avenged. Brother Cook only had the privilege of speaking three times, not counting the nights that he spoke at the union prayer meeting. It was too bad, but the seed that he sowed in tears was not lost. It will be gathered by and by.

Brother H. L. Hastings came next. The Baptist hall was hired, posters were put up, he went one way and Auntie Willard and her helpers another, "through mud and rain from house to house announcing that a 'stranger' would preach at the hall in the evening."

The night was pleasant and there was a good audience, but the Baptists, strangely enough, did not like it, though they had the grace to come out to hear. Instead of rejoicing that the adversary of souls was to be met and foiled in the conflict, they coldly looked on, as if it was a friend who was to be whipped. I cannot understand the meaning of the course they took, unless it was because Brother and Sister Willard, Brother Cook and Brother Hastings were soul-shepherds, waiting until the coming of Christ for redemption.

"In Bunyan style Brother Hastings introduced himself as an Ambassador of Christ, acknowledging only his name and authority; that he was a stranger and a pilgrim on the earth, looking for a city whose builder and maker is God."

This only condemned him in Baptist circles. They would not receive him, but secured the Methodist hall, announced that an indignation meeting would be held there the next evening, simply because Brother Hastings and friends had forgotten to hang out the Stars and Stripes at the place of gathering.

Brother Hastings' "first discourse was a vindication of the Divine character; well calculated to disabuse the public mind of many erroneous ideas, and showing by apt illustration the necessity that we be brought to love holiness here and practice it from choice, ere we can be fitted for Paradise restored."

The scenes that are to accompany the sounding of the seventh trumpet were the subject of his last discourse. Auntie Willard said "it was like an organ touched by a master hand. It made sweet music in the ear of faith." Never before had prophecy and fulfillment been so panoramic to her eyes as in the view there presented.

"First, 'the nations were angry,' a prophecy uttered and its fulfillment before our eyes.

"Second 'Thy wrath is come.' 'Here' said Brother Hastings, 'will be an indignation meeting on a grand scale, and one to which all will be summoned who will, in all things, watch the time of our redemption draweth nigh. Soon our Lord will be revealed from heaven. This silence will be broken by the sound of the trump of God. Those worthy ones sleeping in the earth will hear and come forth. Those who live and are worthy will be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye. These times are perilous and will try all who are of the household of God. Keep yourselves from idols and be not conformed to this world (age); but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable and perfect will of God. Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. Again, I say watch. Your brother watching for the Lord's coming.

God's Wonderful Works.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Psa. xl. 5. "Many O Lord, my God are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to usward, they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee, if I would declare and speak of them they are more than can be numbered."

Many, yes, countless are the ways and plans of the Lord to show his boundless love for mankind. We always read of some new and choice scenery being discovered by explorers and know there are still many scenes of note unexplored, but O what an unlimited amount of beauty abounds us, in our every day life; our eyes not open in the morning but we (perhaps) behold some choice bit of scenery, a beautiful sunrise, or just the daylight. How wonderful and wise the plan.

From the train or car window, many pleasing scenes, and we see room for improvement in plan beauty, all showing his most perfect handiwork, and what is more pleasing to the eye, or soothing to the nerves, than a scene in the country or a visit there? How calm, quiet and peaceful! The flowers of many colors and varieties lending their perfume to the air, and their very presence being enjoyed. The trees standing stately and grand, and the tender branches and leaves sway gently in the breeze. In the spring the young leaves are fresh and tender, the

Is Baptism Essential to Our Salvation?

Mark xvi 15, "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth, and is baptized shall be saved." What is this gospel to be preached? See Mark i 14. Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God. Paul said, I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, (and is baptized), to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. Rom i 16.

Now the word gospel means good news, or glad tidings, concerning the kingdom of God, and name of Christ. Mark i 14; Acts viii 12. See 1 Cor xv 1, Moreover brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; by which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain. For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, (what is first of all) how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures. And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the Scriptures.

Now what must we do to be saved? First, we must hear this gospel before we can believe the gospel. Why first hear it? A very good reason for it—you must first hear a thing before you can believe anything. Paul said in Rom x 14, And how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? Read the next three verses.

So faith cometh by hearing, (hearing what) the Word of God, (the gospel of our salvation), Acts iv 10-12, Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved. This name brethren I declare unto you.

We must take this same upon us by being buried by baptism into his death. Rom vi 3, Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death. Therefore, we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness.

But God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you.

1 Cor xv 1-3, For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures [illegible] sins ye remit they are remitted unto them; and whosesoever sins ye retain, they are retained.

Philip at Samaria, Acts viii 12, But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.

Acts xi 14, The angel said to Cornelius, Send for Peter, who will tell thee words whereby thou and thy house shall be saved. When Peter got the message, he started for Cornelius' house. Peter began his sermon. Hear him: Then Peter opened his mouth and said, of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons. See Verses 35-44, Him God raised up the third day, and showed him openly, not to all the people, but unto witnesses chosen before of God, (witnesses) even to us, who did eat and drink with him after he rose from the dead.

Read on to ver 47, Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we?

Then the Apostle Paul went up to Ephesus, and finding certain disciples, I guess is there ever was any Baptist church Paul found them. Acts xix 1-4, He said unto them, Have ye received the Holy Ghost since you believed? They said they had not, nor even heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. And he said unto them Unto what then were ye baptized? They said, unto John's baptism. Read the verses on and you will readily see that they were not satisfied with their baptism. If they belonged to the Baptist church, as some of the Baptist's claim, Paul broke the church up. When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. And when Paul laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them, and they spake with tongues and prophesied. And all the men were about twelve, and I have never read in the Bible about any Baptist church since that time, nor before that time.

There is only one baptism, and that is the baptism of the Holy Ghost, says one, and every time a man is born again he is baptized with the Holy Ghost, and can lay hands on the sick, and they will be healed. Let us say to you in all candor, you are deceived and are deceiving others. That power was never given to any one except his twelve chosen apostles. Philip at Samaria did not have the power to transmit that power upon his own converts—had to send for Peter and John, see Acts viii 14-15, who when they come down prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost. For as yet he was fallen upon none of them; only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Then they laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost.

One time more: Heb ii, How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation, which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him, (the Lord). God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with diverse miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will.

These latter day disciples can't do many miracles, and are deceiving themselves, and them that follow them. Here comes one, and says, well I have been baptized when I was four weeks old. Do tell me, how much you knew about the gospel. O, I was sprinkled when a baby, and you don't have to know anything about the the gospel when young. Your godfather and god-mother will stand good for you then.

Well do tell me, how was you sprinkled? Did they grind you up into powders, or make you into a liquid form like water, and then sprinkle you?

The word sprinkle comes from the word Raino, to sprinkle like rain, scatter, while baptism is bapto or baptizo, dip, immerse, a burial. You can't be sprinkled into Christ, or even poured into Christ. Nor pray yourself into Christ, nor sing yourself into

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Christ, nor believe yourself into Christ, nor preach yourself into Christ.

Only one way to get into Christ. Read Gal iii 26, For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. (So many, and no more, this is mine.) There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise, (and if ye be not Christ's, then are ye not Abraham's seed, and neither are ye heirs according to the promise).

I will now close this epistle for this time, and will ask the brethren to study this well. This may find us out of Christ. See if our faith was wrong, it is a vain faith; then it will beget in us a vain hope, and if a vain hope it begets in us a vain baptism—hence out of Christ.

JOHN FOOTE.

P. S. Please say to the many brethren who have sent me money for the tract The great Divine Healer, that the last is sent out. Will have them in a few weeks, as they are now in the publisher's hands and will soon be printed. A second tract, The stature of Christ, will also be ready in a few days. I will send them to all who want them, price 10 cents. If you want one and are too poor to pay for it, send your name and I will send it. My days are drawing to a end, and I want to do all the good I can, and as little harm. Address me at 2012 W. 6. ave. Parsons, Kan. J. F.

Asleep in Christ.

Sister Effie A. Albin Cox, died at her home in the City of Indianapolis, Ind. Nov. 13, 1907, after a long and painful illness, at the age of 32 years, 5 months and 9 days. Leaving a loving husband, Addison W. Cox, two children, Helene and Claud, who, amid other relatives and friends, more especially mourn their loss. She with her husband took upon them the all-saving name, and united with the Church of God at Rensselaer, Ind., in the year 1900, and continued immovably steadfast in faith and Godly walk. Her hope was a sweet solace of which she talked much during her sickness. Herself, husband, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Cox, all highly esteemed members of the Rensselaer Church moved to Indianapolis a few years ago, but by no means thereby severing the mutual fraternal interest existing. Being called to conduct the funeral services, held at the home, Nov. 16, 1907, which was largely attended by relatives and sympathizing friends, to whom was presented the blessed and only hope, —final "victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" at his coming. She was then laid away in that most beautiful cemetery in Indianapolis to rest in unconscious, peaceful slumber "until her change shall come," when he shall call her forth.

May you and I be prepared to hear that call that shall summon the holy dead to come forth to life eternal.

Report of Labor.

I. E. Conner, Cleveland, O, began meetings on Monday night, Nov. 11, at Roll, Ind. He gave 5 discourses. On Tuesday night three came forward for baptism, on Thursday night three more. On Friday, at 8 o'clock at the water one more, a young man, a school teacher, put on the Lord by baptism, making in all seven,—six young ladies and one young man. We were much pleased with the efforts of Brother Conner. The meeting closed on Friday night with a full house.

The Restitution.

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Office Editor.

Editorial Committee.

W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

Plymouth, Indiana, Nov. 20, 1907.

The President has named Thursday Nov. 28, as Thanksgiving Day.

Brother J. H. Willey will preach at the Plymouth Church next Sunday morning.

Brother J. L. Wince made his regular monthly visit to the Plymouth Church last Sunday, and gave two of his ever acceptable discourses. Next week we will begin a series of articles written by him on the subject "Moral Evil or Sin."

Some have asked why the date on the label of their paper has not been changed. We ask for your patience. We are not down sick—only about three-fourths, with a severe, hanging on cold. Besides we are short of figures, and can get no more, and this will cause additional labor. We ask your kind indulgence, and will get all done as speedily as possible.

The Papal Encyclical.

The following clipped from the New York Independent is sent us by Bro. George Mitchell of Washington. It shows what the Pope has deemed necessary in order to prevent his people from drifting away into what he believes is error—is opposed to the doctrines of his church. The Editor of the Independent thinks this effort to stifle free thought is the worst thing done by the Catholic power since the dogma of the Pope's infallibility was promulgated. It remains to be seen if the "advanced thinkers" of the Catholic church will submit to be muzzled in this way. Following are the clippings:

Pope Pius X has issued an encyclical on "Modernism," in which he explains the late syllabus, and lays down rules for its enforcement. Under "Modernism" are embraced many errors in biblical criticism, and in philosophy, including the doctrine of immanence. It refers in detail to the various features of modernism and condemns it as dangerous in philosophy, faith, theology, history, criticism and reform, and arrives at the conclusion that modernism is a synthesis of all heresy and must logically lead to atheism.

The encyclical makes the following provisions:

1. The teaching of philosophy, positive theology, etc., is to be carried on in the Church schools and universities, but in a Catholic Spirit.

2. Modernists are to be removed from professorships and the direction of educational institutions.

3. The clergy and faithful are not to be allowed to read modernist publications.

4. A committee of censorship is to be established in every diocese to pass upon the publications which the clergy and the faithful shall be permitted to read. No books or newspapers of modernist tendency are to be allowed in the hands of any pupil in the universities or seminaries.

5. The encyclical of the late Pope Leo XIII prohibiting the clergy from assuming the direction of publications without the bishop's permission, and providing for supervision of the work of ecclesiastical writers is confirmed.

6. Ecclesiastical congresses, except on rare occasions, are prohibited.

7. A council is to be constituted in every diocese to combat modern errors.

The encyclical says:—"Everything must be done to banish from your diocese every pernicious book. The Bishops are to be above all human fear, to trample all fleshly imprudence under foot, and, heedless of the outcry of the wicked, are to remember our prescription and to proscribe and tear out of the hands of the faithful all bad books and bad writings. This is not only a right conferred on them, but a duty we impose on them....."

"The movement of modernist errors is in the direction of agnosticism and immanence—agnostic in that it limits to simple phenomena the knowledge of men and refuses to grant to human reason the power to raise itself to God; and immanent because it explains faith in God as proceeding from the vital want of the human mind. Modernism is not so much a special error as an amalgamation of all the heresies. Logically its double principle of agnosticism and immanentism abolishes the distinction between man and God. Pantheism is its normal result."

The encyclical holds that pride, curiosity and ignorance of scholastic philosophy are the causes of modernism. In concluding the Pontiff says beforesees that the adversaries of the Church will take advantage of this encyclical to represent him as the enemy of science, progress and humanity. To that accusation he replies by acts. He has decided to support by every means in his power the "foundation of an institution which shall group the most illustrious representatives of science among the Catholics, and which shall have for its object to favor with Catholic truth for light and guide the progress of all that can be designated under the name of science and erudition."

THE SUPPRESSION OF RESEARCH.

The Encyclical against Modernism, following, explaining and applying the late Syllabus, is the most important, the most ominous, event in the history of the Christian Church that has appeared since the declaration of the dogma of infallibility by the Vatican Council, and is likely to be even more important than that. A law like this, imposed on four hundred million souls, which absolutely forbids liberty of thought and research to the teachers and scholars of the Church, is a matter of tremendous import. The weight of it is not in the fact that it condemns certain views, but that it forbids to the teachers of the Church the avenues through which any new truth must enter. So radical, so drastic a suppression of thought we could have hardly thought it possible to enact in this twentieth century.

Pius X's Syllabus had gathered the teachings of distinguished Catholic scholars and condemned them. That was endurable. But this encyclical goes very much further. It forbids the clergy to read the books that teach what he calls Modernism. It strangles truth at its birth. It prohibits such doctrines to be taught in any Catholic seminary in which priests are taught, or to be read by any student. It does not allow the knowledge of the higher criticism to enter the seminaries, so as to come to the knowledge of the young men living for the priesthood. Any professors tainted with these doctrines are to be removed. A special and assigned set of studies is to be fixed at Rome for all the seminaries in the world. Modernism, which means particularly the Higher Criticism, is absolutely excluded. The bulk of the Protestant scholars hold and teach that Moses did not write the Pentateuch; the Pope has lately promulgated the teaching that there is no reason to believe he did not, and now, in no seminary or school or pulpit, and in no book or journal, can a Catholic scholar say that he did not write it. That this decree may be enforced the bishops are told that there must be a board of censors appointed in each diocese to see to it that no teaching of Modernism sees the light within their limits. Thus the eyes, ears and mouths of the clergy and laity are closed.

Our readers will ask us two questions. One is, whether such a decree can be obeyed. It would seem that it can. The habit of obedience is deeply infixed, and has been assiduously taught. The clergy have been instructed from youth that they must think just as far as they are told to think and no further. If by any accident they have come to think and learn otherwise, they are silenced. If they go farther than pleases their superiors they are removed from their posts as teachers and sent to work in the Philippines or elsewhere, where they have no chance to teach or to study. If they resist, their means of livelihood is taken from them, and that is usually effective, for what else can a middle-aged studious priest do than to serve in his office? Has not Father Tyrrell, left penniless, now submitted, and had his faculties, his exequatur, if we might call it so, now restored to him by the Pope? Now he can eat a piece of bread. The whole machinery of the Church can be put to work to enforce the prohibitions, for not a bishop, not a Catholic journal, will dare to utter a word of doubt or criticism. Every one is obliged to approve; and when those who know are silenced, how should the great unthinking many suspect that a shocking, a fatal yoke had been put on the Church?

But we will also be asked how the scholarly men in the Church, those who want to study and investigate, will feel when they see their boldest efforts to search for the truth, and all their liberty to speak the truth they have learned, thus inhibited and outraged? Some will resist, but not many. Pere Loisy has sufficient property of his own, so he can, and will, declare that no Pope can strangle his free thought. He will dare excommunication. He is about to publish not only a new book on the Gospels, which will go further than anything he has published before, but he will very soon issue a study on the Syllabus, showing what are the sources from which the Errors condemned were drawn, many from his own writings. Others will groan in silence, or utter themselves frankly only in confidence. How they feel may be judged from portions of a letter written by a scholarly Catholic priest in full canonical standing to a Protestant friend, a copy of which has been shown us, with liberty to publish. He says:

I can thoroughly understand your astonishment that priests should submit to the stringent code that now coerces. I often wonder at it myself, with enlightened priests. This submission is not owing to cowardice, but is born mainly of ardent and unthinking youth. We submit to a great deal in order, by remaining in good standing within the Church, to help the movement for reform and change. If only we may spread a little light, and open a few eyes to see it, we are willing to take the buffeting of ignorant despotism. And then, besides, our wonder that more priests do not revolt against disgraceful intellectual Cesarism is considerably modified when we discover how few priests are in the smallest degree aware of the results and tendencies of modern scholarship. I have been amazed at the ignorance of priests. Theology, in its old scholastic sense, they know. But with regard to criticism proper, in the field of Scripture or Christian origins, nine-tenths of them are in a state of baptismal innocence. I don't [illegible] other out of the twelve or fo[illegible] thousand priests in this country could unearth more than a [illegible] whose libraries contain Ha[illegible]ltzmann, Pfleiderer or even [illegible]. You may be sure our seminaries [illegible]ing care that this state of [illegible] shall continue. Let the eyes o[illegible] and intelligent priests once [illegible], however, and there will b[illegible]s of the water an explosio[illegible] shake Rome's seven hills.

But as a[illegible]eaders—so mournfully [illegible] to the conclusion that t[illegible] reform is more than Rome w[illegible]low, they will cease throwin[illegible] their fires, cease fixing beneat[illegible]al of ignorant mediævalism [illegible] step forth into the liberty of [illegible]nscience and no unshackled mi[illegible]some of us, I think, are wondering [illegible]at day of sorrowful duty is not [illegible]e at hand.

Really, the intellectual situation is very critical within the fold of Roman Catholicism. Pius X. has brought in an era of reactionary repression which is worse than anything of the kind in memory of living men. What will be the outcome for the Church, and for many individual children of the Church is a question which we are now asking with anguish. The via media between tradition and modern learning which Tyrrell and Loisy have thrown open to us is totally rejected by authority; and if we enter upon the road, our traveling must be done by night, so to speak; for a priest who would confess himself a disciple of this school would be summarily disgraced. If Loisy dies excommunicated I fear that not a few of his disciples will come to a similar end.

But there is one hopeful side to all this. I really think that these liberal Cath[illegible] so detested at Rome, will turn [illegible] to be the forerunners of Christ[illegible]eunion. They are holding out to earnest Protestants the hand of fellowship which conservative Catholicity for four centuries have refused to proffer. As their numbers grow—and they will grow—the day will be proportionately hastened when we all who are Christ's followers shall be one in that substantial unity for which he prayed.

And Pius X is a most excellent man, trying honestly to reform the Church, but is guided by the Jesuits, now that the Benedictines and Franciscans in their sad divisions have lost their influence. A good Pope, not a virtuous one who believes that, as of old, June may sit cross-legged before the door to forbid the birth of illegitimate truth.

Brethren, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

The Peace Conference.

We have been asked to tell what was accomplished by the Peace Conference held at The Hauge, and which closed last month. All we can say is to give the thirteen "conventions" that were agreed on by the representatives of the powers. They were in session from June 15 to Oct 18, and it cost several hundreds of thousands of dollars to meet all the expenses.

1 The peaceful regulation of international conflicts.

2 Providing for international prize courts.

3 Regulating the rights and duties of neutrals on land.

4 Regulating the rights and duties of neutrals at sea.

5 Covering the laying of submarine mines.

6 The bombardment of towns from the sea.

7 The matter of the collection of contractural debts,

8 The transformation of merchantmen into warships.

9 The treatment of captured crews.

10 The inviolability of the fishing boats.

11 The inviolability of the postal service.

12 The application of the Geneva convention and the Red Cross to sea warfare.

13 The laws and customs regulating land warfare.

The right to sign these will be open till June 30, 1908.

Dear Restitution.

I see that the brethren through the columns of The Restitution, are writing of the early history of the Church. I have a few items that I would like to contribute, which may be of interest to some of the older brethren.

In reading one of Sister Wince's late letters, I see that she makes mention of Brother J. V. Himes' paper which was published in Boston. My husband, J. P. Weethee, was also a contributor to that paper. But being unable through its columns to discuss the life and death only through Christ, he became a helper and a contributor to Brother George Storrs' paper "The Bible Examiner."

He was also an intimate friend of Brothers Cook, Marsh and Turner. I have heard him speak many times of the good meetings which were held in Rochester, N. Y.,

I have heard him relate many pleasant incidents which occurred in the little church during his pastorate in Boston.

One cold winter night, near Christmas time, as one good brother shook hands with Sister Weethee, and bade her good night, he slipped into her hand a twenty dollar gold piece. I assure you this kindness meant much to them, as a pastor's salary, in those times was very small.

I have heard him refer to a great tent meeting which he held in Rochester, N. Y. There were many converts, and people were so anxious to hear of the coming of the Lord, that they lingered around until after the midnight hour. I have also heard him speak of a converted Indian girl, who was the neice of Black Hawk. She took an active part in the meetings, speaking and singing. I cannot recollect her name, but she did much for the cause. I should be glad to know if she still lives. I have her likeness in an old daguerretype. In the picture she has on her head a crown, and what I would take to be a shield on her breast. She is clothed in white, with her hair falling about her shoulders.

Mr. Weethee referred many times to his work in Cincinnati, relating how Brother George Fry came and took him to his home after a long illness of typhoid fever, where he had perfect rest and quiet for six weeks. Brother Fry was ever after a life-long friend. He visited us in our quiet "College Hill" home, spending with us what I think was his eighty-fifth birthday, which occurred on July fourth. How well I remember the day when we accompanied him to Athens, and placed him aboard the B. & O. Southwest train. As he entered the vestibule with what a gracious bow and wave of the hand he bade us goodbye. God grant that when we enter the vestibule of the Celestial City we may meet him there with the same sweet smile and outstretched hand to welcome us and speed with him who bought us, who taught us and paid for us a worthless price, a blessed eternity.

I will give the following letter which may be of interest to some:

New York, March 28, 1850.

Dear Brother Weethee,

As the time is so near in which we expect Brother Robinson will leave us, I am requested by the deacon to request of you a decisive answer whether we may expect to be favored with your labors among us, as the pastor of the Hester Street congregation. I believe that there is no place where your presence is more needed, and where your labors would be more blessed of the Lord.

We can't suffer the interest in the Master's cause to go down, or even lose its interest here in New York. May the Lord guide you in judgment and direct all your steps.

Please reply as I may say I have heard from you by next Sabbath.

Yours truly,
A. R. Warner.

He answered this call, and held a six weeks' meeting, after which he baptized thirty people in East river in one day, standing in ice cold water for four hours. Yea they shall come from the east, from the west, from the north, and from the south and sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven.

Brethren, be diligent, for soon the king shall come forth from out his ivory palace, to meet his beloved Bride, who is clothed in white, embroidered with wrought gold. Kings daughters shall be among this noble company.

By faith I see the angels hurrying to and fro finishing the last robes the saints shall wear, beating out the last golden crowns on which is engraved the name of our God. The name of the City of our God, which is New Jerusalem, and my new name, which no man knoweth but he who receiveth this crown. Listen now and hear all the hosts of heaven shouting and saying, Rejoice, rejoice, rejoice, and be glad, for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready.

Behold now the mighty Conqueror as he comes forth leading this victorious army, clothed in white and riding upon white horses.

May we all who read this enter into his presence, where there is fullness of joy, and at his right hand where there are pleasures forever more.

Mrs. Ella Dwinnell.

Bible Lessons.

The following letter will serve to introduce this series of lessons, and we can assure our Brother that they will gladly received into the columns of our paper.

Editor Restitution:

I am preparing an outline on the "Purpose of God in creating the earth and man." I will enclose the first two numbers, with a few questions. My object in furnishing these outlines is to awaken an interest in Bible study. If you think them worthy of a place in The Restitution you can use them and more will follow. We feel the need of a systematic course of Bible study that will cause the student to think.

Your Brother in Christ,
D. C. Ramsey.

An Outline of God's Purpose
No. 1.

1 Man created. Why? Gen i 26-28.
2 Man put on trial. Why?
3 Man's failure.
4 The law.
5 Its penalty. Gen ii 17.
6 The first judgment. Gen iii 15-19.
7 Retributive or Corrective. Which? (a) Death penalty, sentence to penal institutions.
8 Distinguish between purpose and plan.
9 Adam and Eve permitted to multiply and fill the earth. Gen iii 24.
10 The Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. Rev iii 8.

Questions.

1 State briefly God's purpose in regard to the earth and man. Isa. lxv 18.
2 Why were Adam and Eve put on trial?
3 State the result.
4 What was the penalty of the law? Gen ii 17.
5 Did Adam and Eve suffer this penalty? Gen v 5.
6 How was the law satisfied? Gen iii 15.
7 Could Adam and Eve hope for eternal life through the promise to the seed of the woman.

Number 2.

1 Enmity between the seeds. Gen iii 15.
2 Back to suffer death. Rev v 9, Heb ii 14, 1 John iii 8.
3 How and when?
4 Jesus said, It is finished. John xix 30, John xvii 4.
5 What was finished?
6 Cain the one seed. Abel (the other, (Representatively.)
7 The two sacrifices.
8 I have gotten (a man the Lord.) A ruler. Gen iv 1. Heb. "Jeh eth Yehweh." Study this expression carefully.
9 Abel's sacrifice accepted, Cain's rejected. Why?
The object of this sacrifice. Gen iv 7. Marg. have the excellency.

Questions.

1 What do you understand by enmity between the seeds?
2 Why should each suffer death?
3 Distinguish between the character of the death of the seeds.
4 How could the law "thou shalt surely die" be satisfied?
5 Has Christ's death on the cross any allusion to this law?
6 Was it necessary that Jesus should suffer a violent death? Explain the answer fully.
7 Did we suffer a violent death?
Rom. vi.

Bro. Underwood:

I received the 15 extra copies of The Restitution with my father's death notice in them—it was very kind of you to send them. I would like some one to answer this question in The Restitution. I have heard some say the "Ark of the Covenant" was used for putting the candlesticks, etc., used in the tabernacle service into, as the Israelites were wandering about in the wilderness. I have looked, and searched, and can find nothing in the Bible to give me reason to believe it was put to such a use. I have supposed it was called the "Ark of the Covenant" because in it were placed the tables of stone on which were written the "ten commandments, and that it also contained a "golden pot full of manna." And "Aaron's rod that budded," and that later in the history of the Israelites it contained only the "tables of stone"—am I right.

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things in which smiles and kindness and small obligations given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.

Poetry.

What Jesus Tells Me.

What Jesus tells me I want to do,
I want to trust him and always be true,
I want to serve him and always do right
And have a bright crown in the land of delight.

He's coming! He's coming! before very long
And then you will hear the rejoicing and song.
Be ready! Be ready! The trumpet will sound,
And the dead will come forth from the dust in the ground.

The Bride he comes to the Lord in the air
Forgetting never Her's crown and care.
So what Jesus tells me, I want to do,
I want to trust him and always be true.

Let Us Watch and Be Sober.

There has never been a time in the history of the church that the above admonition should be heeded more than at this present moment. The voice of one of God's prophets has not been heard for nearly two thousand years. There is a period of silence that has never been since the beginning of the race. In Heb i 1, Paul says we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip. (Margin run out as a leaking vessel). In Heb i 1, 2, he says, In times past God hath spoken to us by the prophets, but now in these last days he hath spoken to us by his Son. In this we are admonished to listen to his Word and be sober. Instead of the voice of the true prophet we hear around us the voice of many false ones. God's creatures are running riot after the false theories that are being preached. Men and women claiming that they have been aptized with the Holy Spirit and have the power of Jesus and his apostles. The apostasy has never been more noticeable than at this time. The old harlot's daughters are multiplying and growing bolder in their announcing the false doctrines. It is difficult to find faith on the earth.

You need but notice the movements of the nations to see that they have failed to serve God's purpose and like the kingdoms of the past they must give way to another form of ruling. In tracing the history of the four universal empires we see that each lasted as long as it served God's purpose. The rise and fall of these kingdoms were permitted by our heavenly Father. When they became so corrupt that they were no longer useful they passed into other hands. Such has been the history of all governments since Nimrod the mighty hunter founded the first universal empire. For about twelve hundred years the kingdom of iron held sway. The time came when it no longer served the purpose for which it came into existence. Then it passed into the hands of others and is in that condition today. Not one of the empires of the east will trust the other. Millions of dollars are being spent every year in building their land defences more strongly. Their navies are becoming a burden to to them. This is all being done in the name of peace. During this time a peace Conference is held and proved to be a failure. The warning comes to us that they cry, Peace, peace when there is no peace. Let those who have taken upon themselves the name of Christ, Watch and be sober. Socalled Christendom is drunk on the wine of her fornication. Human governments have proved a failure. There is an apathy everywhere you go regarding religious matters. If you urge men and women to accept the plain teaching of the Bible they answer you that the religion of their fathers is good enough for them. Or what difference does it make what we believe so we are honest. Our whole political, religious, social and industrial fabric is honeycombed with corruption. I do not wish to be a pessimist but these things are true. Society is so divided that the Eternal One has no longer a place among them. God is good and good is God rules among them. They can look no further than being morally good. The rich exclude themselves from the poor. The millionaire forms an exclusive society without regard to morals or religious belief. They give grudgingly of their wealth to relieve the needs of the worthy poor. Look at our industrial affairs. There is no confidence to be placed in our business world. Embezzlements of funds is of daily occurence. "The get rich quick policy" takes men off their feet and very often ends in suicide or prison. Men are thought honest today but tomorrow they are found defaulter for many thousands. In such cases the depositors are the ones who suffer. In our leaves his flock and feeder. Then a State (Ohio) a few weeks ago a cashier of one of our banks concluded to end his life by putting a bullet through his brains. When an accountant was given the bank books it was shown that they were $330000 short. One day he was thought to be honest, the next he was known to be a defaulter. Our daily papers are filled with murders, suicide and divorces. Nothing secure but God's promise. Paul says, 2 Tim ii 19. The foundation of God standeth sure (steady), having this seal. The Lord knoweth them are his. By his seal we will be known. A few days ago we read in one of our daily papers that the Chicago banks had notified the presidents of the railroads of the west that they could not furnish them coin to pay their laborers. The amount falling due soon is forty million dollars. If you have a deposit in a trust company you must give them 90 days notice that you want your money. Confidence has been so disturbed that fear is everywhere felt. There is great need of a just ruler. One who will not judge after the seeing of his eyes or the hearing of his ears. One who will judge the people with righteousness, and the poor with judgment. In his day the righteous shall flourish. His name shall endure forever. We need but read the fifth chapter of James to see where we stand in this age. "Go to now ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted and your garments are motheaten. Your gold and silver is cankered—the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days. Behold the laborers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth, and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth. Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton. Ye have nourished your hearts as in a day of slaughter." What a picture we have here painted. None of God's elect can stand with such. Blessed is that one who having eyes and can see and having ears and can hear and can understand the words of the living God. His Word is both spirit and truth. Through his Word we are sanctified and made clean. The apostle says, In all things watch. The time of our redemption draweth nigh. Soon our Lord will be revealed from heaven. This silence will be broken by the sound of the trump of God. Those worthy ones sleeping in the earth will hear and come forth. Those who live and are worthy will be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye. These times are perilous and will try all who are of the household of God. Keep yourselves from idols and be not conformed to this world (age); but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable and perfect will of God. Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. Again, I say watch.

Your brother watching for the Lord's coming.

God's Wonderful Works.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Psa. xl. 5. "Many O Lord, my God are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to usward, they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee, if I would declare and speak of them they are more than can be numbered."

Many, yea, countless are the ways and plans of the Lord to show his boundless love for mankind. We can always read of some new and choice scenery being discovered by explorers and know there are still many scenes of note unexplored, but O what an unlimited amount of beauty about us, in our every day life; our eyes cannot open in the morning but we (perhaps) behold some choice bit of scenery, a beautiful sunrise, or just the daylight. How wonderful and all-wise the plan.

From the train or car window, are many pleasing scenes, and we see no room for improvement in plan or beauty, all showing his most perfect handiwork, and what is more pleasing to the eye, or soothing to the nerves, than a scene in the country or a visit there? How calm, quiet and peaceful! The flowers of many colors and varieties lending their perfume to the air, and their very presence being enjoyed. The trees stand stately and grand, and the tender branches and leaves sway gently in the breeze. In the spring the first darker green, and then tinted yellow, crimson, or brown by the frost; and a season of summer is going only to be followed by the uncompleted beauty of frost and snow. Let us not forget the wonderful rainbow, which is always a pleasing and interesting sight, and when we see it we can remember it is a sign of a promise that is older than the Covenants of Promise. And what about those who cannot see the blue and starry sky, or mountain peak, or ocean;—take them in the country too, and they will soon hear the sweet song of birds, sending forth a flood of melody that fills the heart with thanksgiving for the presence of the song birds, and be pleased with their way of praising God. When God made the earth he pronounced it good. "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork; day unto day uttereth speech and night unto night showeth knowledge. One generation passeth away and another generation cometh, but the earth abideth forever." We are glad for this earth for our reward, if we are faithful.

"The heaven even the heavens are the Lords: but the earth hath he given to the children of men."

I have left many of God's wonderful works unnamed, but for all his love for us we sincerely say, Praise God from whom all blessings flow.

Ora Cole.

Puffed Up or Built Up?

There is a vast difference between things puffed up and things built up. Puncture a balloon and the huge gas bag at once falls flat to the earth, but there are things built up that will withstand the impact of a locomotive under steam.

It is surprising how a little knowledge will puff some folks up, while others, with a well-laid foundation of divine love, will sustain a superstructure of knowledge without becoming top-heavy.

If a preacher is going to make a successful bid for fleshly or worldly support he will likely have to stock up in that which will command their attention; but if he is going to "feed the flock of God"—the "little flock," which it is the Father's good pleasure to give the kingdom—"over which the Holy Ghost hath made him an overseer," then that is another matter and he will have to go where he can get suitable feed for lambs. Shooting error with sky-rocket oratory, eloquence and rhetoric may furnish entertainment for awhile to those whose only care is for such things; but the hungry sheep and lambs that are to grow and become strong and useful and bear a fleece, there is nothing like having something tossed into the crib within reach that is good for food, that will satisfy hunger; and then, when they are filled, can go forth to the streams and drink of the water of life and lie down and ruminate over what they have eaten.

To do all this rightly and successfully the under-shepherd will have to learn—what? Well, learn how to preach—of whom? And learn what to preach—from where? These are important matters. Well, good schools are good; good books and good teachers are good; and all should be employed at the proper time and in the right order. Knowledge is a good thing provided it enters something besides a gas-bag; but "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing," sometimes to some people, while a good deal might have the salutary effect of making them feel how little they really do know. Doubtless an under-shepherd, with all his other gettings, can do no better than to get wisdom from the Great Shepherd—"the chief Shepherd"—who said, "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." Matt xi 29, 30.

And somebody else will find peace and rest by following up the ministry of such an one who has been to the great Shepherd of the sheep and learned of him—a lot of them will find it; and they will bless the day they found it; bless him who is the source of it and he who was God's minister in giving it to them.

A good salary is a good and needful thing, but the peace of God filling the soul for filling his sheep with heavenly food will set better, even in poverty, than a good salary will feel in the pocket of the man who has displeased his Master by running after people with itching ears after fables.

"But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his [illegible] so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ." 2 Cor xi 3. Not a simplicity that is foolishness in the hearts and minds of God's true people, but a foolishness "to them that perish." 1 Cor i 18.

It would certainly have been a strange misfit for David, whom God selected and anointed for a special work, to have gone over to Goliath and the Philistines to learn how to tend a flock of sheep! He not only knew better how to do that than they, but, under God's guidance, he could and did beat them at their own game, and with their armor or implements, or by some Titanic power, getting a huge boulder up above them and rolling it down over Goliath, or any other method of supposed scientific or philosophical warfare: but by the selection of a smooth pebble from the brook fitted to the sling-less [illegible] accustomed to using. This [illegible] work under God's direction. [illegible] pebble thrown under his [illegible] hand will do more effectual work [illegible] a whole broadside of artillery [illegible] does not approve.—C. E. Topics.

The Curse of the Shirk.

Many persons plume themselves on their negative goodness. They boastingly declare that they are not drunkards, nor thieves, nor gamblers, nor liars, nor bad people. But all the negative virtues in the list cannot make one particle of positive righteousness. Our great leader requires something more of us than mere inoffensiveness. Positive and active obedience is indispensable. One who stands still in his tracks while the battle between right and wrong is raging is a shirk, because he comes not up to the help of the Lord against the mighty.

We have seen the different shirk. He may feel some [illegible] in his own freedom and the [illegible] ness of his neighbors, but his [illegible] is not sufficiently intense to [illegible] m to do any thing. The for[illegible] ed against the pure and go[illegible] ghty. The enemies of the [illegible] re mighty. The support of t[illegible] is mighty. The elements w[illegible] bine to ruin the young [illegible] the enemies of our souls ar[illegible] The Lord has lifted up [illegible] d against them, and [illegible] to follow him. If any [illegible] ough interested in this c[illegible] put on the armor of God a[illegible] or the right, the cause will fa[illegible] end, because he came not up [illegible] lp of the Lord against the migh[illegible]

The coward[illegible] among us. He is afraid. [illegible] is a contemptible infring[illegible] is more common than most o[illegible] hirk. We do not mean physical [illegible] rdice. That is not very common. [illegible] every great fire or flood, or shipwreck or battle, there are many surprising displays of physical courage. There are always men ready to risk their lives for others whom they never met before. But moral courage is another thing. The courage to stand up for the right at all costs is all too rare. Where are the men who are willing to lose money, or lose their situation rather than flinch when moral issues are at stake? There are such men, but they are not so numerous as we wish they were. The man who hears the trumpet calling all who will to enlist under the banner of the Lord, and holds back for fear of some loss or ridicule or scorn, is a coward, and will share the curse of those who come not up to the help of the Lord against the mighty.

Happiest Boy in the [illegible]dom.

Once there was a king [illegible] had a little boy whom he lovel[illegible] gave him beautiful rooms to li[illegible], and pictures, and toys, and b[illegible]s. He gave him a pony to ride, a[illegible]n row-boat on a lake, and servants. He provided teachers, who were to give him knowledge that would make him good and great.

But for all this the young prince was not happy. He wore a frown wherever he went, and was always wishing for something he did not have.

At length, one day, a magician came to court. He saw the boy, and said to the king: "I can make your son happy, but you must pay me a great price for telling you the secret."

"Well," said the king, "what you ask, I will give."

So the price was paid. Then the magician took the boy into a private room. He wrote something with a white substance on a piece of paper. Next, he gave the boy a candle, and told him to light it, and hold it under the paper, and then see what he could [illegible] The boy did as he had been told, and the white letters turned into a beautiful blue. They formed these words: "Do a kindness to some one every day."

The prince made use of the secret, and became the happiest boy in the kingdom.—Sunday School Gem.

An Inside Experience.

I have had a lot of experience in the booze business, playing it both ways, and I solemnly swear that it's a losing game, no matter which side of the bar you're on. When I pelted from one thirst parlor to another, with a crowd at my heels, putting out money to buy liquor for people who didn't need it any more than I did, it was a losing game. I don't mean the money part so much as the rest, although I never took a nickel of change once my money was laid on the bar. And opening a gin mill is worse than patronizing one. You have to help with everybody, and Jeff, with his frosty front, couldn't stand it for a week, even if the gang would stand for such a poor mixer as he is.

I've owned upwards of half a hundred saloons in my time, and have traded in red liquor emporiums from here to, well, all over, and there's nothing in it either way. I have proved that I didn't care for fire-water, by dropping it for over two years, and you can bet you couldn't pull me into the owning end of a jag factory, not with all kinds of inducements.

My advice to the men who are on either side of the bar is to cut the whole thing, and change their luck while they have a chance. Don't I know? Why, to be able to give the above advice I've paid out bundles of money, and wasted years learning the lesson. And this advice is worth a bank account to any young man who will follow it.—John L. Sullivan.

Virtue.

Virtue is often a negative quantity. The man who has no temptation to do wrong, and is so circumstanced that he finds it most natural and easy to do right, has no special occasion to plume himself on his virtue, and is not to be held up as a pattern, by any means.

For instance, Cæsar could name a man who never drinks. He never did drink, he never wanted to drink, he does not like to drink, and—he doesn't drink. That is not virtue. He could name another who did drink, who always did drink, who drank to excess, who does like to drink, and who, after a long and manly struggle, succeeded in getting the mastery of himself and does not drink.

That is virtue. Yet the world will praise the one because he never drank, and though it applauds the other for conquering his appetite, remembers the time when it seemed to have conquered him. Let us praise virtue and applaud it, let us make certain that it is virtue before the demonstration begins.

People who bring into this world hot tempers, strong impulses and fiery passions, are certainly to be pitied, but not blamed unless they give way to them without effort; while they control and conquer they deserve the highest praise. The more fortunate ones, whom nature endows with cooler blood, genial, sunny tempers and more deliberate ways, are certainly to be congratulated, but never praised. The time will come when half the things that men complain of in their fellows will be treated as infirmities rather than as faults; when they will be cured, and not punished.

The Social Card Party.

I have been in the saloon business, with a gambling-room attached, for the last four years, and claim to know something about what I am now going to tell you. I do not believe that the gambling-den is near so dangerous nor does it do anything like the same amount of harm as the social card party in the home. I give this as my reason: In the gambling-room the windows are closed tight, the curtains are pulled down, everything is conducted secretly for fear of detection, and none but gamblers, as a rule, enter there; while in the parlor all have access to the game, children are permitted to watch it, young people are invited to participate. It is made attractive and alluring by giving prizes, serving refreshments, and adding high social enjoyments.

For my part, I never could see the difference between playing for a piece of silver moulded in the shape of money and silver molded in the shape of a cup or thimble. The principle is the same.—One who knows.

Religious Intolerance.

An incident occurred in Malta, in connection with the visit to that little corner of the British Empire of Mr. John McNeill, the renowned evangelist, which will assuredly not be left where it is. Mr. McNeill obtained permission from the government authorities to hold services in the Theater Royal. These were extremely successful, awakening much interest and accomplishing much good. But they aroused the angry opposition of the Roman Catholic archbishop of the island. He wrote the governor protesting against the use of the theater for the theater for the Protestant mission, the ground of his protest being, first, that the theater was not a place allotted to the Protestant "cult" and next, that the mission was in consequence an outrage upon Catholic sentiment, and an injury to the Catholic religion, "which is," he said, "the religion of Malta."

In the end, after certain negotiations, the governor unfortunately gave in to the prelate, and orders were issued for the services to come to an end. Mr. McNeill and his friends obeyed under protest, and representations have been made to the Colonial Office, which one cannot but feel confident will prove successful in preventing any repetition of such religious intolerance in a part of the British dominions.—Record of Christian Work.

When the apostle spoke of "perilous times" to come, during which men will be "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God," he likely was not far from giving an accurate picture of conditions prevailing today, in many places at least. To such an extent has the desire for popular entertainment grown, that at least five of the larger ocean steamers are to be fitted with a stage, and an auditorium for theatrical purposes. It would seem that the many comforts and conveniences of the modern steamer, already provided, are insufficient to satisfy the incessant craving for excitement and amusement, as furnished by the modern theater, hence the innovation proposed. Whether the introduction of the inflammable scenery of the theater will be advisable on a steamer, where escape from fire at best is difficult, if not impossible, is also a question. In connection with the above, it is interesting to note that Mr. Henry Clay Frick, the Pittsburg millionaire, recently paid the enormous sum of $100,000 for a box in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, entitling him and his family to its privileges for the season. While men like Mr. Frick spend their thousands for the fleeting things of the world, the cause of Christ languishes, and must beg for the pittance it eventually receives. Surely, we need a renewal of the love of God that will beget a better spirit.—Gospel Messenger.

At the departure of the children of Israel from Egypt, China was seven hundred years old; and when Isaiah prophesied of her she existed fifteen centuries. She has seen the rise and decline of all the great nations of antiquity. Assyria, Babylon, Persia, Greece and Rome have long since followed each other to the dust; but China still remains, a solitary and wonderful monument of patriarchal times. Then look at the population of the country, roughly estimated at four hundred millions. Every third person that lives and breathes upon this earth and beneath these heavens is a Chinese; every third grave that is dug is for Chinese.—Sylvester Whitehead.

Christianity is no longer regarded as a religion of services, today the right emphasis is being placed on "service." The value of a man's religion is determined by this: Is he helping anybody else? Is he worth anything in the service of the world? Service is the modern message of the church of Jesus Christ. Service is the climax of Christianity's mission in the world.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY DEC. 1.

The death of Samson. Judges xvi. 21-31.

Golden Text. "Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might." Eph. vi. 10.

Samson is one of the most remarkable characters in the Book of God—The Bible. The various events of his life are full of thrilling interest. The wonderful concerning him began before he was born. The promise that he would be born was given under much the same circumstances as that relating to Isaac. Gen. xviii. 10. The promise of Isaac was given to his father Abraham. The promise of Samson was to his mother. He was to be a Nazarite to God from his birth. His mother was warned not to drink wine nor strong drink, nor eat anything unclean. And he—the son—would begin to deliver Israel from the power and tyranny of the Philistines. Such was the promise and instruction of the angel of the Lord to the mother of Samson. Judges xiii. 1-5.

The law governing a Nazarite is found in Num. vi. By a vow, a man could be a Nazarite for a time. Samson was one all his life. Bible commentators have—from the natural standpoint—dilated on the shortcomings, the errors, the folly, and glaring sins of Samson. This is not to be wondered at. Those who are not spiritually minded, can only talk or write according to the flesh—the natural man. Truly the Lord has not spared in the record of the life of Samson. His follies are plainly told, and not excused. But what is the mind of the Spirit? Rom. viii. 27. The child grew and the Lord blessed him. Judges xiii. 24. Remember, He was to begin to deliver Israel from the Philistines. He chose a wife, a Philistine girl. This led him to have an occasion against the Philistines to punish them, and we are told, "It was of the Lord." Chapter xiv. 4. Yet no one professing to believe God will charge him with folly. Samson's wife and her friends tricked him—tried to fool him. For this he slew thirty of them. Read Chapter xiv.

For various reasons he burned the corn, vineyards and olives, and smote the Philistines with great slaughter. Again, he slew a thousand of them. How was he able to do all this? Ans. "The Spirit of the Lord came mightily upon him." He was thirsty and faint. He called on the Lord. The Lord heard him, and by a miracle gave him drink. The Lord was with him. Chapter xv. He went to Gaza. The Philistines conspired to kill him. He rose at midnight, and carried off the city gate-posts and all, and so escaped. The Lord was with him. He fell in love with another Philistine woman. The lords of her people—with promise of great reward—pay—induced her to find out where his great strength lay. Three times he pretended to tell her. On trial she found his stories false. Daily she urged him to tell. She made him miserable. He told. She had him shaved.

LESSON TEXT.

20. He awoke, and tried to arouse himself as at other times, but the Lord was departed from him. He had broken the Nazarine bond.

21. There is scarcely a sadder word picture than this. Samson blind, bound and grinding, a slave, a prisoner.

22. His hair began to grow again. His enemies had not taken this into account. Had not thought of it.

23, 24. The lords and the people. The high and low all rejoiced, and praised their god Dagon for having delivered their enemy Samson into their power. Their fear of Samson was completely dispelled.

25. They were so delighted and merry that they did not even suspect that as he did wonders of strength for their amusement, he could do something to their hurt.

26. He made a pretext or pretense of being tired and wanted to lean against the pillars—the main supports of the house.

27. The great gathering were having "a good time."

28. And Samson called unto the Lord. Let us be sure to mark, and to remember that Samson—like David—never for a moment recognized any other God than the God of Israel. "In the day of my trouble I will call upon thee, for thou wilt answer me; for thou Lord art good and ready to forgive, and plenteous in mercy, unto all them that call upon thee." Psa. lxxxvi. 5-7. "That call upon thee." Psa. cxlv. 18, 29, 30. With full faith [illegible] was heard, and would be answered he took hold of the pillars. The Lord was with him. The Spirit of the Lord came mightily upon him, Chap. xv. 14. The house fell, many were killed, and here in these few simple words the account of the death of Samson, the strongest man that ever lived. He died forgiven. He died in faith. Heb. xi. 32.

Next lesson, Ruth's Wise Choice. Ruth i. 14-22.

P. NEBL.

WE wish to call special attention again to a matter that may seem simple, but is quite annoying at times. Please read over your money order before putting it in the envelope, and see that it is made payable to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Indiana. We ask you to be careful about this because quite recently we received a money order made payable to "The Presbyterian," another to "The Institution," another to "The Restitution," another the Post Master had forgotten to sign his name. Frequently orders are made to read "Plymouth, Ill., Iowa, etc." Of course the only thing we can do is to return such, and then there is the extra expense of getting a new order and sending it. This can be avoided by a little care in looking over the order before sending it. So please see to this. Also be sure and address your letter to Plymouth, Indiana. A short time ago we received a letter that had been written and sent some time before. It was addressed to Plymouth, Ill., and after having there some time, was forwarded here, as it so happened that some one knew THE RESTITUTION was published in Plymouth, Ind.

Our Helping Fund

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trustworthy.

Virtue rarely passes unrecognized by the world. A few distorted optics may fail to recognize her features; but it would be as easy to conceal the rising of the noon-day sun under a mask, as her resplendent features.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

WE have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Bible Themes.

Is the title of the last book issued by Brother John O. Woodruff on miscellaneous subjects, both original and selected. This book contains 480 pages and cost the author $1.25 to issue. A quantity has been supplied us, and we wish to get them into the hands of readers, and offer them at 80 cents each, post paid, while they last.

WHEN you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "THE RESTITUTION," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

Evangelizing Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

W. L. SKEELS.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Quarterly Healers, by Uncle John Moore. Just for the last days. Should be [illegible] by every thinking Christian. [illegible] 3, Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and [illegible] seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived." Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help up to send these Pearls out among people.

Send orders to Moore, at 2012 W. Corning [illegible]ons, Kan. The price is 10 cents.

Evang[illegible] Notice.

The N. W. C[illegible] has selected me again as [illegible]. The Brethren have ad[illegible] and California to my fi[illegible]ay church or isolated [illegible]at meetings during [illegible]reece year should correspond [illegible]me at an early date so I c[illegible]y year's work for this extensive [illegible]ry which now includes west[illegible]gon, Washington, California [illegible]zona.

Hereafter [illegible] will be Scholls, Oregon, and [illegible] W. L. Skeels, R. D. 1, Laurel[illegible].

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all [illegible]ed brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Beloved, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Roht. G. Huggins, Box G, Oregon, Ill.

A four-page tract in the German language, by Brother M. Joblin of Cleveland, O. Subject, "What Must I do to be Saved?" After getting the opinion of one who understands this language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to M. Joblin, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of [illegible]all room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ballroom Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. B. Branson, Niles, Mich.

NOTICE.

Information wanted concerning an Evangelist known as Illing Haynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Address, E. P. Woodward, Westbrook, Maine.

Wanted.

By an experienced teacher of public and private schools, a position in private family, to teach the usual public school branches. Address Miss Lucy W. Horner, Tobaccoville, Va.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

Our talents differ, and each one will be held accountable for the use of such talent, whatever that may be. If you have only one, use that.

Some one says, what can I do? Why you can circulate literature teaching the truth if nothing else. There is no one but who can do that. Will that do any good? Oh, yes. Let me tell you something. Some people have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. It would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

WILL all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. B. Robinson will in future be 866 West Main St. Salem, O.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wines wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wines as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wines, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

No More Sea.

"And there was no more sea."—Rev. xxi 1.

I.

Summer Ocean, idly washing
The gray rock on which I lean;
Summer Ocean, brandly dashing
With thy hues of gold and green
Gently swelling, wildly dashing
O'er you island-studded scene;
Summer Ocean, how I'll miss thee,—
Miss the thunder of thy roar,
Miss the music of thy ripple,
Miss thy sorrow soothing shore,—
Summer Ocean, how I'll miss thee,
As along thy strand I range,
Or, as I sit here and watch thee
In the moods of endless change—
Mirthful moods of morning gladness,
Musing moods of sunset sadness;
When the dying winds caress thee,
And the sinking sunbeams kiss thee,
And the crimson cloudlets press thee,
And all nature seems to bless thee,—
Summer Ocean, how I'll miss thee,—
Miss the wonders of thy shore,
Miss the magic of thy grandeur,
When "the sea shall be no more!"

II.

And yet sometimes in my musings,
When I think of what shall be,
In the day of earth's new glory,
Still I seem to roam by thee,
As if all had not departed,
But the glory lingered still;
As if all that made thee lovely,
Had remained unchangeable.
Only that which marred thy beauty,—
Only that had passed away,
Sullen wilds of Ocean-moorland,
Bloated features of decay,
Only that dark waste of waters,
Line ne'er fathom'd, eye ne'er scanned,
Only that shall shrink and vanish,—
Yielding back the imprisoned land,
Yielding back earth's fertile hollows,
Long-submerged and hidden plains,
Giving up a thousand valleys
Of the ancient world's domains.
Leaving still bright azure ranges,
Winding round this rocky tower,
Leaving still some placid stranches,
Where the mermen baths at noon,
Leaving still some lake-like reaches,
Mirrors for the silver moon.
Only all of gloom and horror,
Idle wastes of endless brine,
Haunts of darkness, storm and danger,—
These shall be no longer thine.
Backward ebbing, wave and ripple,
Wondrous scene shall then disclose;
And like earth's the wastes of ocean
Then shall blossom as the rose.

Moral Evil or Sin. No. 1.

No greater problem forces itself upon our attention, demanding solution than that of sin. It is every where present; on every portion of land and sea where human beings exist sin exists. It is indigenous to every clime. If there are a few square miles of the globe's surface where it is not, the only thing to be done in order to its existence there is to transfer a living man or two—and it is there. It is not a hidden thing to be searched for. It is not a theory to be proven by argument. There is no negative side to the question of its existence. It towers above us like some huge mountain threatening to fall on us and crush us. It is outside of men in actual deed and inside of them in the lusts of the flesh. Out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies. So said the great Teacher. Sin is loud, speaking with countless tongues; bold and defiant. It parades itself on street corners, and when opposed by humanitarians it asks for legal protection and gets it. Natural evil reveals itself as a punitive force to modern eyes; in pain and privation, misery and madness (insanity), even in earth's fairest scenes and loveliest spots there is suffering in various degrees of intensity. Anciently calamities which happened to cities as that which overthrew Sodom and Gomorah were regarded as judgments from the Almighty in punishment of sin; though were such calamities to come upon the wicked cities today learned men would ascribe them to purely natural causes, looking at them as the effect of the operation of blind laws undirected and uncontrolled by Jehovah for that specific end. It may be well that no inspired prophet is on the ground to proclaim them judgments for sins heaped up until Divine forbearance is exhausted and patience worn out, for this would reflect unfavorably on the boasted civilization of modern times, and put science out of the question. The higher critics want to bring every thing to the test of science and what science cannot explain they reject as spurious. Bible miracles are put by them in the category of things imagined by the superstitions and ignorant writers of early ages. So according to the view of these wise (?) men God has made no protest against sin by a supernatural revelation and supernatural works. Now, while I may not be able to prove to, even reverent students and believers of God's Word, that modern calamities, such as the destruction of Lisbon by earthquake, the partial destruction of San Francisco by the same cause, and the utter demolition of Pelee, were God's special protests against the acknowledged surpassing wickedness of these places; it is held by this same class of students that the destruction of cities and overthrow of governments, whose doom was foreshown by Hebrew prophets, were in vengeance of wickedness that had filled the measure limited by Divine justice and wisdom—in the language of the Scripture reached the point where wickedness was said to be "full." Such were God's overwhelming protests against enormous moral corruption, corruption so great that it would spread like a contagious disease until it overspread the world of mankind involving all in a condition of moral ruin utterly, hopeless because a self-consistent God could not raise them from this base condition. This is why Jehovah made his vigorous protest against the wickedness of the Canaanitish tribes when he was about to establish his own people in the land. To incorporate such a mass of moral leprosy with Israel would have resulted in their ruin, and the defeat of Jehovah's good purpose to bless all the families of the earth through Abraham and his seed. In Israel centered the hope of the world. An experiment like that of mingling God's people, with the most licentious nations of the world of that day would have resulted in bringing them down to the same level of brutishness that characterized these aboriginal inhabitants of Canaan. Infidels have a strange kind of fellow feeling for these lecherous tribes festering in their foulness; a feeling that would have barred Israel out of the land, or letting them in would have recommended intermarriages with a view to improving(?) both Israel and the Canaanites. The fact is that Israel would have been dragged down and the Canaanites not a whit elevated by the union. Having failed to procure a curse upon Israel, and so defeat them in battle Balak wished to contrive some other way to effect their ruin. Balaam proposed craftily, that the Midianites should send their wives and daughters to seduce the Israelites to participate in the idolatrous debaucheries attendant upon the worship of their gods. This strategy of Balak and Balaam would have resulted in the complete moral ruin of Israel but for Divine intervention. Under Jehovah's direction an army of twelve thousand men was mustered against the Midianites to avenge Israel. The men were slain and their strong cities and fortresses demolished. The women and children were taken captives. Moses' anger was kindled against the leaders of the army for saving these women who had seduced Israel through the counsel of Balaam. These should have been slain along with their guilty husbands and brothers. So they were executed on the order of Moses, and with them every male child while the female children were spared. With customary humanity, under the general law of Israel in time of war the women and children were taken captive. Men in arms forfeited their lives. The women and little ones were dispersed among the people where they found homes, and where their condition would be vastly improved over that of paganism. But here in the case of these Midianites it was entirely different, and imperiled, for the safety of Israel and the future well being of the human race, that these captive women should be exterminated, and also the male children, for these would grow up to be vicious men, and with the remembrance of the past, would avenge the death of their parents. The measure enough never was executed in the interests of home and family life, in the interest of decency and morality, in the interest of generations to come whose very existence would be imperilled by their being spared. Infidels never grow tired talking of the cruelty of Moses in ordering the extermination of these women and boys. The loss to Israel was twenty-four thousand men who died in the plague. The infidel does not think of the costly effect to the lives of the Midianites. God had delivered his people from Egyptian slavery and was leading them by the hand of Moses and the angel of his presence into a land of freedom, theirs by right of promise, where in world made of them a great nation under a law that would discipline them for the high and noble purpose of extending through them blessings to mankind for all time. His good purpose was not to be defeated by Balak and Balaam and a few lecherous Moabites and Midianites who were morally and physically rotten; to have spared whom meant nothing else than debauchery, disease and death to all Israel. This destruction visited upon these benighted pagans may seem a terrible infliction of vengeance; yet every reasonable person of any, viewing the consequences both near and remote, will say, For his mercy endureth forever. When [illegible] Joshua, he views such destruction [illegible] the ground for exclaiming, "His mercy endureth forever." The destruction of the Midianite seducers near the border of Canaan reverberated from Jericho and the destruction of the seven tribes of the land after Israel entered it was in mercy to the chosen people, and to mankind at large for the ages. These terrible judgments upon wicked and debauched nations to and on the border of Canaan show how or in what light God regards sin. These are his awful protests against moral evil, especially the sin of impurity that saps the foundation of individual and national existence. Paul alludes to such impurity as sin against the body. These monstrous iniquities and terribly destructive sins of the ancients abound today in our great cities reeking with moral pollution. How much worse were Sodom and Gomorrah, Pompeii and Herculaneum than New York and London and Paris? The debasing sins of the old cities of the ancient world on which the judgments of God fell, approached nearer a universal condition than are the same sins in our modern cities. Ten righteous persons were not found in Sodom. Had the ten been there it would have been spared the awful doom that overtook it. It is not likely that Pompeii and Herculaneum ranked above Sodom in the number of righteous persons in the precincts of each, although Christianity had at that date been promulgated throughout Europe these cities may have been the ones against which the apostles shook the dust from their feet as a witness. Does a similar doom await the great cities of today for the same shameful practices. A few righteous ones persistently decrying the abounding evils of the times may avert the impending doom. God looks upon sin today as he did in the day of prophets and apostles. He hates and abominates it and is still waging a conflict against it.

Hickory Grove.

"Now still and cool and dim the woodland line,
The goldenrod's bright flame has died away,
The gleaming blue has vanished from the skies,
The Autumn's red grows fainter day by day;
The gilding radiance of the sunshine's gold,
The gay hues in the leaves that danced about—
All, all are gone, October's tale is told
And all her many colored fires are out.
The earth has donned a robe of sober brown,
A restful shadow hangs o'er plain and wood;
The leaves, in faded heaps, have nestled down
As if to rest from frolicking were good.
Like pillars in a temple, old and grand,
Their tall, dark columns soaring toward the sky,
In long, dim woodland aisles, the bare trees stand,
And spread their fruitless branches far on high."

On the sixth day of the present month we left our home in Marshalltown, Iowa, and took train for Colo. The brethren would have met us at this place with a conveyance had we not preferred to walk the four miles from the village to Hickory Grove, where we were to begin services. Our way led across level prairies clothed in rustling corn, through hilly woodland roads shrouded in the variegated autumn leaves, along a narrow foothog over a pretty little brook to the pleasant home of Brother and Sister Joseph Fish, where we were at once made welcome.

In the evening we began our meeting in the school house with a very good attendance, which continued to the close, twelve days later. At times the seats were all filled, and some of those who came were compelled to stand.

While a variety of subjects were presented, we endeavored in each discourse to emphasize the fact that salvation is to be obtained through faith in "the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ."

At the conclusion of our Saturday evening service we were given cause to rejoice by a young man who desired to be immersed. On the following day, having found a place in the nearby stream that was not yet frozen over, we baptized the candidate, Chester Dickinson, in the name of the Lord Jesus. It gives us especial pleasure to introduce this young brother to the household of faith, as we know him to be a young man of sterling character in every respect. Pray with us that God may grant to him a long and useful life, "fruitful of golden deeds," to the end that he may "obtain an abundant entrance into the kingdom of God."

We cannot close our report without first making mention of the help afforded us by the young people.

Among those who assisted the most materially in our music, were Brother Herbert White, who used his violin to great advantage throughout the meeting, Stella Fish who acted very efficiently as our organist, and Lulu and Hazel White who added much to the Sunday evening service with a beautiful duet.

Space forbids that we should tell in detail of the visits we enjoyed at the homes of the brethren, and the spiritual uplifting we ourselves received as a result of meeting and communing with so many of God's dear children, so we will only say the meeting at Hickory Grove was truly a successful one.

G. ELDRED MARSH.

How can we love God whom we have not seen if we do not love our brother whom we have seen. Let no man think he has more love to God than he manifests toward his neighbor. Jesus became human that we might become divine; humanity is the son of God. Personally God does not need our love, but humanity does need our love and all of our heart's sympathy.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christian King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Obituary.

Emory Eliel Brooks was born in the town of Pembroke, Genesee Co. New York, Oct. 6, 1828, and died at Scholls, Oregon, Sept. 21, 1907, being seventy-eight years, eleven months and fifteen days old at the time of his death.

He moved to Michigan with his parents when he was eight years old, receiving his education in a common district school. He helped his father clear up 130 acres of land in Lenawee County, town [illegible] Rome where they made their home.

In 1852 he crossed the plains to California, being six months on the way. He remained in California two and a half years, prospecting for gold and doing other work connected with mining.

Wages at that time were high, and so was everything else accordingly. When he had accumulated about two thousand dollars, which was quite a large sum in those days, he returned home by way of the Isthumus of Panama, and bought a tract of land consisting of eighty acres in the neighborhood in which he formerly lived.

In 1856 he married Miss Martha J. Taylor, and to this union were born five children all of whom are now living except one, being N. B. and D. E. Brooks of Goldendale, Wash., C. H. Brooks of Scholls, Oregon, and Mrs. Jennie Griffin of Dinubia, California. His wife died in March, 1869, and in 1870 he married Miss Almira Smith. To this union were born three children, E. H. Brooks of Oakland, Ore., Mrs. Orrie Lawrence now deceased, and Rollin H. Brooks of Scholls, Oregon.

In 1874 he crossed the plains again with his family, but this time in place of walking the most of the way, he came over the Union Pacific to San Francisco, and thence by boat to Portland Oregon, soon afterward he purchased 240 acres of mostly uncleared land near Scholls Ferry.

He lived to make a pleasant place out of the timbered land purchased, and see his children grow up around him, giving each one upon becoming of age, a small tract of land or its equivalent in money, to begin their struggle of life with. He had the respect of his neighbors, and was always ready to assist in making public improvements in the neighborhood.

His parents being Methodists, he was brought up in that faith, but after his marriage he joined the Free-will Baptists, remaining with them until he moved west. When Brother Prosser came preaching the Kingdom of God and all that pertained to it, he was the first to receive the truth. He never lost hope, but died a firm believer of the gospel.

We laid him to rest in the Mountain Side Cemetery, waiting the resurrection of the just. The funeral was held at the family residence. An appropriate talk was given by Bro. W. W. Jaquith. All the children were present but Mrs. Jennie Griffin of California.

Now the laborer's task is o'er,
Now the battle day is past;
Father, in thy gracious keeping
Leave we now thy servant sleeping.
Earth to earth and dust to dust,
Calmly now the words we say;
Left behind we wait and trust,
For the resurrection day.
Father, in thy gracious keeping,
Leave we now thy servant sleeping.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 866 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

The Restitution.

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Office Editor.

Editorial Committee.
J. H. WILLEY,
W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

Plymouth, Indiana, Nov. 27, 1907.

Brother D. C. Robison writes Nov. 22, that he is with the Brush Creek, Ohio, Church, and speaking each evening to good audience of attentive listeners. Elsewhere in this paper will be found a notice of his tract, a new edition having been issued.

Brother J. H. Willey preached for the Plymouth Church last Sunday. It was unfortunate that sickness and other reasons kept so many from being present. The discourse was most excellent, showing much labor had been expended in its preparation. The design God had in the creation of man was most ably shown. We wish Brother Willey could arrange it and let it be printed in The Restitution so that others could be benefitted thereby.

We have received a copy of the Student Text Book, issued by Brother W. H. Wilson. Having just received the work, we have had no opportunity for critical examination of it. In mechanical get up it is well done, with good binding, large type, and good paper, and of convenient size to handle. As for the subject matter we are quite safe in commending it to our readers, as the well-known ability of Brother Wilson is sufficient to guarantee its excellence. Notice of this work and others issued by the same author appears elsewhere in this issue of our paper.

The subject of having our annual Love Feast again this year has been brought up. We have always enjoyed the letters of testimony, setting forth the faith and hope of our people every where, and will be glad if all will take hold of the matter and write a short letter for the Love Feast issue the first of the year. We would like all of the older ones to write—you who have been long in the strife, and can tell from experience what it is to trust the Lord always. We wish that every one of the Bereans would consider that they have a special, an individual invitation to write a letter for this paper. In Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and other places, there have been a goodly number from these societies and other bands of young people, that have been added to the Church lately. We want you each to take a part in this, and testify of the goodness of God, and your faith in him, and the hope you have in his promises. Write short letters, so all will have a chance to express their feelings.

The following letter dated at South Bend, Ind. Nov. 24, will serve to notify the Indiana brethren of the present intention of Brother George Neill to go to a new field in the State of Virginia. We all regret very much to have Brother Neill leave us, but trust that in the community to which he goes he will be able to do good work for the Master.

Brother Neil reports that on Nov. 21, he immersed Sister Maggie Benge, of Kokomo.

Brothers and Sisters of Indiana:

My year of service in this State will end the last of this coming December, having begun my work in January, 1907. Although many of the brethren have urged me to serve another year, I have accepted a call from our brethren in Virginia, feeling that their needs are greater and their available laborers fewer than that of Indiana. I have made many friends in Indiana, and have been accorded hospitable and warm hearted treatment at the hands of the brethren. Many localities have responded to the appeals for greater activity.

My prayers are that Indiana may be blessed with laborers better fitted than I, who will carry on the work.

Sincerely your Brother,

George Neill.

The Bible and the "Higher Critics."

"Higher Critics" and "Higher Criticism" are terms applied to a certain class of Bible investigators. Not only are these terms applied by others, but by themselves as well.

It is well to be critical, but to be critical implies two essentials—the weakness of the thing criticised and the superior ability of the critic. Unless these essentials be conceded, the folly of the proceeding is apparent. To be acknowledged as a critic, must create in the recipient of the compliment a greater or less degree of vanity. The higher the esteem in which the object criticised is held by the masses, the greater the vanity of the one who assumes the role of critic.

As children, we were taught to reverence the Bible as the Word of God. We grew into that reverence because we reverenced the ones who taught us. Until we come to mature years, we accepted the Word as a matter of fact upon the testimony of those who had the care of us in our earlier years. Now we must begin to give a reason for our hope. Without going into detail, suffice it to say that fulfilled prophecy; the complete victory of the Bible throughout the ages over the worst forces of evil that were ever hurled against a book, so that today the Bible is the widest read book in all the world and the cheapest, and the further fact that the precepts laid down by that book are capable of taking those who have reached the dark valley of despair and moulding them over into beings filled with righteousness and hope, are sufficient reasons for the most of us believing the book to be all that it claims for itself—the product of inspired minds.

The Bible, in whole or in part, has stood the test of thousands of years. The oldest critic lives not to exceed a hundred. How great, then, must be the vanity of the one who assumes to criticise such a book.

In a review of the editorials of his Biblical World (published by the University Press of the University of Chicago, a Baptist institution) of recent issue, the Record-Herald of Chicago quotes at length, as follows, "In the large circles of Christian thought the old eschatology is gone, probably never to return. The Apostle Paul looked for the appearance of Jesus in the clouds of heaven, and was not without hope in the early years of his missionary activity that this return might come within his own lifetime. It must be an ever diminishing circle of Christians whose faith will find nourishment and inspiration in looking for the fulfilment in their day of the hopes which history has long since shown the early church to have mistakenly cherished."

Again: "The continuance after death of a life enough like the present life to be comprehensible to one who is in the midst of this life is probably beyond the possibility of scientific demonstration."

From these wise men of the University of Chicago we learn, then, at least two things, when boiled down, to amount to this:

1st, That Paul and the early church were MISTAKEN concerning the great Christian hope—the coming of Christ.

2nd, This hope being a mistake in so far as the Bible sets it forth, it becomes necessary to resort to science for hope of a life to come, and here is an acknowledgement by scientists that science does not demonstrate any such a hope.

This amounts to infidelity in its worst form. What have Voltaire, Paine, or Ingersoll ever said in denunciation of the Bible hope that would more certainly destroy the hope of the Christian than the above! When it comes to a matter of common honesty, the palm must go to the above named infidels rather than to such "higher" critics. Christians knew just where to locate outspoken infidels, but in the other case we find again a fulfilment of Psa xli 9, "Yea, mine own familiar friend, in whom I trusted, which did eat of my bread, hath lifted up his heel against me."

This is what Judas did. If the "higher" critics must take the position they do, why are they not honest enough to come out avowedly against Christ and his teaching and refuse to eat his bread? Christ is all he claimed to be or else he is the grossest fraud ever palmed off upon the world of suffering humanity.

Some may try to comfort themselves with the thought that this is but a single aggravated case of "higher" criticism, but I tell you No! Those who permit themselves to fall into this spirit of criticism with the thought that there is any place this side of avowed infidelity where they may safely land are mistaken. It is a sort of drunkenness that does not stop until it lands its victim in the gutter of despair. Let none of our brethren think it safe to discredit little or much of the Bible. It may be that there are some statements that our minds cannot fathom, but it is safer to suspect that our finite minds are at fault rather than the Word that has stood the test of time. The apostles of our Lord, as well as he himself, defended their faith to the bitterest death. Would our critics do as much?

Work in Arizona.

I am in Arizona again. I reached the Territory, with the cipalay days of Oct., and was soon at work at Arlington. Man's use of God's storage of productiveness and fertility as drawn from the rivers in Central Arizona has changed thousands of acres of desert into prolific fields of wealth and beauty. Arlington is fifty miles west of Phoenix, on the border of these fields toward the east and the unreclaimed desert westward.

I reached [illegible]ld Conference work just in ti[illegible]fill the request of brethren, [illegible]y asked me last summer [illegible]n in Oct. Began meetings [illegible]ington Oct. 31st, spoke ten [illegible]s the Territorial fair at Ph[illegible] the drawing card, I closed m[illegible] giving a recess, for the fair. [illegible]ld seem strange to the majorit[illegible]my readers to close meetings, in order to give the audience opportunity to attend a fair 50 miles away, or rather, that numbers attending meetings should not be reduced. A number went, the preacher went, meeting closed a week (don't criticise) I saw the fair; the principle excitement was the speed of [illegible] horses, as is usual I suppose, although I have seen very few. Do not enjoy them much.

At the close of my "ten nights" in the pulpit, I called to obedience, and two responded for baptism. I must tell you all about them. Last summer when at Phoenix a call came to me to come to Arlington with the probability that baptism and marriage services would be requested. My return to Oregon interfered with the plan. These happy young people were married, but not baptized. The then Miss Perry is now Mrs. Anderson, and her husband, Andrew Anderson. They were still inclined to obedience, and were anxious to fully understand the gospel that they should obey with willing hearts, they made known their wish—and we were made glad! So meetings were resumed November 17th. But as a little frost freezes Arizonians to their fire sides, the attendance was not as large as we long for. But some good is in progress, souls that were almost subjected to bondage by the cunning of law teachers and professed keepers are beginning to realize more clearly that "we are not under the "law." They are grasping more firmly the facts of the two covenants. When the nature and object of the covenants is understood, and that the Sabbath is the sign of the law covenant, Ex xxxi 16, 17, and that the sign of the New Covenant is the new commandment is love; "for by this shall all men know that ye are my disciples" because you keep the Sabbath? No! "If ye have love one for another." It would do violence to grace to suffer the law Sabbath to be a sign of the new covenant. A covenant that was old, decayed, vanished away should not logically continue its sign!

I was glad to read of the work of Bro. W. H. Wilson among my relatives in Kentucky as reported Nov. 13th. I have in view as a possible outcome of this trip a work through Texas; a visit to my native State, Ohio. And on the return trip, to my work in Oregon and Washington, the privilege of visiting members in Western States. The prospect that this tour will be made, brightens!

Sister Gibbs, Editor of Word and Work is showing an interest in the plan as shown by the following from a personal letter, "We are on the Texas and Pacific railroad, and no doubt you will pass this way. I will use my influence for meetings along your line of travel. I have prayed and worked to the end that some of the evangelists from other States [illegible] Texas, a wide field of labor [illegible]t truly is ripe here."

[illegible] encourages me.

Questions.

1 What is a parable?
2 How many parables did Jesus speak that we have record of?
3 Why did Jesus use parables.
4 Do above parables tell of conditions before or after the coming of Christ?
5 Specify chapter and verses wherein each of the above parables may be found.
6 Analyze carefully each of the above parables and state three distinct features of the kingdom described in each.

To the Household of Faith greeting:

The Ripley, Ill., Church has again had the pleasure of having a series of meetings conducted by Bro. S. J. Lindsay. Good audiences assembled each evening for two weeks to hear him preach, except one evening which was too stormy to get out. He in his kind way preached the gospel unto them. God's plain and positive plan of redemption, the restoration of the kingdom and the glorious reward in store for Christ's people. By these precious truths the hearts of three were reached in the vigor of life and put on Christ by baptism. These young people are Fred Paisley and wife Emma and Frank Lanning. We are hopeful that they will be earnest workers with God till the end of life's journey, or the coming of the Lord.

May we all of precious faith so live that we may meet in the kingdom of God is my prayer.

Jennie Cox.

"To secure the special mercies peculiar to God's saints should be the aim of every young convert."

An Extended Trip.

I am about to take an extended trip through Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana. I expect to call at each place I visited last year, and such new ones as may write and arrange for them. The expense will be much less while I am passing through your State.

Yours in the Blessed Hope,
W. H. Wilson.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Mosheim & Maclaine's Ecclesiastical History, ancient and modern. Two large volumes, over 400 pages each. $2.00 for the set.

Kitto's Cyclopedia of Biblical Literature. Two volumes, containing near 2000 pages, of information most valuable for the student and scholar. Price $2.00.

Dr. Robert Young's Translation of the Bible, both Old and New Testaments. Valuable for any one. Price $1.50.

Dr. John W. Nevin's Summary of Biblical Antiquities. Over 400 pages, especially valuable for a teacher of youth, profusely illustrated. Price $1.

Romanism and the Reformation, by H. Grattan Guinness. About 400 pages. Price $1.

The Book Opened; an Analysis of the Bible, by Alfred Nevin. Over 300 pages. Price 75 cts.

Views and Reviews in Eschatology, J. H. Pettingell, 500 pages. Price 75 cts.

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Coming Age, and The Eastern Question, two large volumes, by our lamented Brother, J. P. Weethee. The two for $3.00.

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

Some have asked why the date on the label of their paper has not been changed. We ask for your patience. We are not down sick—only about three-fourths, with a severe, hanging on cold. Besides we are short of figures, and can get no more, and this will cause additional labor. We ask your kind indulgence, and will get all done as speedily as possible.

A Troublesome Individual.

The employee who is afraid of doing too much is not the sort who ever becomes very valuable to his employer or to himself. His aim seems to be to do just enough to save him from censure or dismissal. He saunters instead of walking; he does everything with a sort of lackadaisical air, as if he were performing a greatact of condescension in waiting upon you at all; he says y-e-s and n-o as if every letter cost a dollar, and they were the last he had; he gazes out of the door, away off yonder, while you ask him a question, and then tortures you with y-e-s or n-o. He makes all his preparations for departure before the hour, so that not a minute of his own time is lost; he does as he is told, but no more; he never thinks of how he can advance his employer's interest in some unbidden way, and has not intelligence enough to know that when cultivating the habit of thought of the business of his employer, he is laying up capital, and strengthening his own resources for the time when he shall start a business of his own. There are many such employees as this, but few will mourn to see their tribe diminish.

The Worth of a Conviction.

It is as true on the highest authority that according to a man's faith it will be unto him. His power in the world—his power over himself, his power over others, his power over difficulties—may almost unerringly be measured by his convictions. If he believes something—believes it with all his heart—he is a power in the direction of that belief. If he lacks conviction, if he does not believe anything so positively that his belief has possession of him—that it takes hold of his whole mind and soul, and makes him ready to do everything, to endure everything and to dare everything in its behalf—all the talents in the world will not make that man a great man, or enable him to accomplish a great work in the world.

Poetry.

Names and Order of the Books of the Old Testament.

The great Jehovah speaks to us
In Genesis and Exodus;
Leviticus and Numbers too,
Followed by Deuteronomy.
Joshua and Judges sway the land.
Ruth gleans a sheaf with trembling hand;
Samuel and numerous Kings appear,
Whose Chronicles we wondering hear;
Ezra and Nehemiah now,
Esther the beauteous mourner show;
Job speaks in sighs, David in Psalms,
The Proverbs teach to scatter alms;
Ecclesiastes then comes on,
And the sweet songs of Solomon;
Isaiah, Jeremiah then
With Lamentations takes his pen;
Ezekiel, Daniel, Hosea's lyres,
Sweet Joel, Amos, Obadiah's;
Next Jonah, Micah, Nahum come,
And lofty Habakkuk find room;
While Zephaniah, Haggai calls,
And Zechariah builds his walls;
And Malachi with garments rent,
Concludes the ancient Testament.

Jacob Have I Loved But Esau Have I Hated.

When we first learned the truth this text was hard to understand. While we did not believe the doctrine of election as taught by Calvin yet we could not understand the full meaning of the text. There is no doubt that the doctrine of election is taught in the Bible. How could a God of love hate one of his creatures, was often asked by myself. Alex. Campbell gives this text as follows: Jacob have I loved but Esau have I slighted. The trouble exists in believing that God had elected a certain number from the foundation of the world to receive eternal life.

An election cannot take place until the conditions of God's plan has been complied with. Adam was placed on trial that his election might be made. His failure rendered his election impossible. The election has always been made according to the grace of God. Mary, the mother of Jesus was elected because of her worth. The angel said: Hail! thou that art highly favored (graciously accepted or much graced. Marg.) the Lord is with thee; blessed art thou among women. Evidently the election came because of the worth of the maiden. She of all the race was found worthy to be God's favored handmaid. Keep in mind that an election cannot take place without a certain fitness. Abram was called from his own land and from his father's home because of his special fitness to fill a place in God's purpose. When Almighty God appeared unto him he was directed to be perfect. (Marg. upright, sincere.) The Almighty God was to make a covenant with him which was Thy name shall no longer be called Abram but Abraham for a father of many nations, (on the condition that thou art perfect) have I made thee. This covenant was sealed with blood. The penalty for the violation of it was that, "that soul shall be cut off." There is an incident in the life of Moses that illustrates that God requires perfect obedience to his covenants. Moses during the years he spent in the land of Midian had neglected to circumcise his son. The Lord (Eloah) sought to kill him. Zipporah saved his life by circumcising her son. Ex. iv. 24, 26. Abraham was required to keep this covenant of circumcision and also to be perfect. The position to which Abraham was to be elected was a very important one. To be the father of many nations and the father of the seed that would bless all nations. God is selecting a good heredity for his Son. It is well to remember that Abraham has not yet been elected.

Soon after the covenant of circumcision was ratified Abraham and Sarah were promised and given a son. They called his name Isaac. In the birth of Isaac Ishmael was rejected but not hated as may be seen in the following, Gen. xvii. 20. "As for Ishmael, I have heard thee: Behold I have blessed him and will make him fruitful and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation. But my covenant will I establish with Isaac." Isaac had none of the wild Egyptian blood in his veins, Ishmael's would make a good temporal ruler but not a fit person to obtain God's excellency. His posterity became very numerous and powerful in the land, while Isaac dwelt in tabernacles as in a strange country. He like Abraham looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. Abraham was called to offer his only son, Isaac as a burnt offering. Without wavering he did what God commanded. After having done this the Lord God said, Now I know that thou fearest God, seeing that thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me.

The promise made to Abram was without conditions, viz: Because thou HAST DONE this, etc. From this time Abraham's faith was counted to him for righteousness. He was elected to the position of the father of the faithful. Abraham was also accounted worthy to a resurrection from the dead. Ex. iii. 6; Luke xx. 37, 38.

These promises were made sure through his faithfulness. It was not that he offered his son, but because he believed that God could raise him, (Isaac) again from the dead. Now to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace but of debt. But to him that worketh not but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness. Rom. iv. 4, 5. Our father, Abraham could claim nothing for the act of offering his son, but it was credited to him because of his faith in him who promised that in his seed all nations shall be blessed. God elected Abraham because of his faith in the promise concerning the seed. Dare any one say that Abraham would have received the promise had he staggered at the command? Again we see that God elects in the selection of Jacob instead of Esau. This was done before the birth of the children. Neither having done any good or evil. This was done that the purpose of God might stand according to the election not of works but of him that calleth. The question for us to determine is whether Jacob could have obtained the excellency without a trial and producing a perfect life. Abraham was required to be upright, sincere, so must Jacob.

His election before birth did not assure him an election to a resurrection from the dead and a position in the kingdom of God. This he must work out with fear and trembling. Jacob starts out and has quite a checkered life. His procuring Esau's birthright through deception was not being sincere. It was the means of driving him from his home. His life while with Laban cannot be commended. It is not upright to cheat as he did Laban concerning his flocks. We admit that Laban was dishonest, but this does not justify Jacob's behavior. Finally Jacob was compelled to stand the test. He must face his brother Esau whom he has wronged. He knows his brother's disposition and love of riches and concludes to gain his favor by giving gifts and acknowledging his right to rule in the land. Jacob sent messengers to his brother and commanded them to say, Thy servant Jacob says, etc. In this he calls Esau his lord. His fear of Esau led him to seek the God of his father Abraham, and the God of his father Isaac. In this prayer Gen. xxxii. 9 to 18 we see Jacob taking shelter under the promise made to the fathers not because he had been elected before his birth.

The true birthright must come through the righteousness of faith. Jacob here pleads protection through the promise made to Abraham and Isaac. In this his pleadings were for a part in the resurrection and a position in the kingdom of God. He obtained it when he became sincere and would not let the "Eloah" go until he blessed him. It was a struggle for the excellency, yet he gained it. The Eloah said, Thy name shall no more be Jacob but Israel; for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed.

The history of Jacob's life shows as must all who seek for the excellency that it can be obtained only through faith, repentance and obedience, and the living of an upright life. From this time it is through Jacob that the seed shall be called. Did God hate Esau according to our use of the word? Certainly not. Esau said unto Isaac, Hast thou but one blessing my father? bless me, even me also, Oh my father. Then Isaac gives to him a temporal rule. Behold, thy dwelling shall be of the fatness of the land, and of the dew of heaven from above, and by thy sword shalt thou live, and shall serve thy brother; and it shall come to pass when thou shalt have the dominion, that thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck.

Permit us in closing to explain the statement in Rom. ix. 13. "Jacob have I loved but Esau have I hated." Read Mal. i. 2, 3. "Was not Esau Jacob's brother? saith the Lord; yet I loved Jacob and hated Esau, and laid his mountains waste and his heritage waste for the dragons of the wilderness." In this there is no mention made to the two sons of Isaac but to the nations called by their names. The Lord God destroyed Mt. Sin the heritage of Esau's descendant because they fought against Israel as they were on their way to Canaan, the land that God promised.

Let us accept the apostle's admonition: Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth.

Your brother, seeking for the truth.

Random Thoughts.

Dear Restitution:

I have a few thoughts on marriage and its relationship. I think many people have strange ideas on the subject. Especially some who profess to believe the Bible. I have heard such expressions as "I am not obliged to obey my husband, I did not promise I would;" or the minister omitted the word obey, etc., and the other day I saw in a newspaper that in a certain state where women vote and hold office that a certain woman had been elected to the office of Justice of Peace, and that she should say she would never use the word obey in performing the ceremony of marriage, etc., just as though that made any difference. Now, so far as I know, neither the law of the State nor the Scriptures require any invariable form or set words to be used in performing the ceremony. The duties of husbands and wives do not grow out of any set form of words. No matter who performs the ceremony whether pope, priest, minister, justice of the peace, or according to common law even, so long as they become husbands and wives, their duties to each other are the same. The duties of husbands and wives grow out of the relationship of husbands and wives. Whether the wife promised to obey, or the husband promised to love, etc. makes no difference. Neither Paul, Peter nor our Lord himself ever said to a husband you must love your wife, or to wife, you must obey your husband because you promised you would, when you were married. If a man and woman agree to, and do become husband and wife, it becomes the duty of the husband to perform the duties of the husband, and the wife the duties of the wife. And these duties grow out of the relationship—because they are related to each other as husband and wife, not from any agreement, other than the agreement to enter into the relationship. And so with parents and children. It is the duty of parents to bring up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and the duty of children to obey their parents, not because of any agreement or promise, but because of the relationship as parents and children. So also with masters and servants. It is the duty of a servant to obey his master, and the master to render to the servant that which is just and equal to the service rendered. True there is some liberty or choice as to whether we will enter into such relationship, as master or servant, but if we do enter into such relationship, we must perform the duties required by said relationship. But the child is born into the relationship to its parents without any choice, still it is its duty to obey its parents. With husbands and wives there is choice or consent as to their entering into that relationship, but if they enter into that relationship, they must perform the duties growing out of that relationship. No choice in the matter! God requires it.

Now let us read a little of what Paul says, Eph v 22, Wives—he is not speaking to one wife in particular, but wives in general)—wives submit yourselves unto your own husbands—not to some other woman's husband but unto your own husbands. As to the Lord! For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church and he is the savior of the body. Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let wives be to their own husbands in every thing. I think I need make no explanation as I could not make it more clear. But let us read on—and we will see Paul is equally explicit to husbands. Husbands love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church and gave himself for it, that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the Word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish, so ought men to love their wives as their own bodies. He that loves himself, for no man ever yet hated his own flesh; but nourishes and cherishes it, even as the Lord the church. For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall be joined unto his wife, and they two shall be one flesh. This is a great mystery; but I speak concerning Christ and the church. Nevertheless let every one of you in particular so love his wife even as himself, and the wife see that she reverence her husband (husband). Now just as it reads, is it not very beautiful? If both husbands and wives generally would only literally do as there instructed, what a happy people we would be. But we are told that that would not suit us in our day, we are too advanced for such teaching. Then I fear our advancement is in the wrong way! Now what is the trouble with the teaching of Paul? Why it makes woman a slave and so on. On the contrary has not the teaching of Paul done more to elevate woman from slavery? What condition of woman in the countries where Paul's teaching has been seen or heard? Has not the teaching done more to elevate woman to her place by the man's side instead of under his feet? Now what is there in the teaching of Paul, or any other of the Scriptures that you object to? You don't like the idea being the head of the woman, and the woman to obey or to be in subjection to husband? Well, would you reverse it and make the woman the head of the man, and man to obey or be in subjection to the woman? Do you think that would be better? Do you object to what Paul says to the man? or only what he says to the woman? Let us see what he says to the husband. Husbands love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it. So ought men to love their own bodies; he that loveth his wife, loves himself. For no man ever hated his own flesh—you in particular so love himself, and the wife see that she reverence her husband. You think it a hardship for wife to be subject to, reverence such a man? You think Paul is any harder than he is on the husband? you think that any one would take delight in being obeying, and reverenced by husband? But if the husband will do as he pleases, and have no respect for her wishes, or to please him or her only as she is a slave, you think there is much love and living or that any woman would or could so long have loved the church, and gave himself for it. But where the wife disobeys, I think it very difficult for the husband to do as Paul says. If the husband obeys the wife, may for the wife, but the other is pretty sure to do so it was in the beginning when the woman disobeyed, and then followed after. Had the woman gone first to disobey there would have been no second. Think we had better take Paul's teaching to both husbands and wives as it is, and both try to practice the same, and there would not be the number of divorces there are now, which are a disgrace to any country.

Much more may be said, but for the present I stop here. I hope sometime soon I may be able to write a few more thoughts.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 38.

"The Blessed Hope" had been presented to the people of Hammonton, by God's true servants—Bro. Cook and Bro. Hastings, and they had rejected it, and in so doing, had condemned themselves. Auntie Willard thought it very strange and her husband had wept over them and had cried to God that their eyes might be opened.

The cry of the [illegible] Hosea xi 8, 9, 12, was upon her heart. "How shall I give thee up Ephraim? How shall I deliver thee Israel? How shall I make thee as Admah? How shall I set thee as Zeboim? My heart is turned within me, my repentings are kindled together. I will not execute the fierceness of mine anger; I will not return to destroy Ephraim; for I am God and not man; the holy one in the midst of thee * * * Ephraim compasseth me about with lies and the house of Israel with deceit. But Judah yet ruleth with God and is faithful with the saints." And she prayed, "O God! may it be so with many of these, the professed people! Thou hast a few names, even in Sardis which have not defiled their garments, and they shall walk with me in white, for they are worthy." How this comforted her. Some of these, her neighbors, might yet be led to accept and rejoice in the truth. Anyway "the Judge of all the earth would do right." She "loved to cast responsibility and all judgment upon him who judgeth righteously, and rejoiced that he is God and not man, unto him that loved us and washed us from our sins in his own blood, could she commit all judgment.

She says, in exhortation to the called ones, who like herself and husband were out in the highways and hedges, striving to compel men and women through the presentation of God's tender message of love to come to the marriage feast—"Let not those faint who are thus called to labor, apparently without successful results. From Abel down through a long line of patriarchs, prophets, apostles, martyrs and in our own Lord himself, do we find companionship. Said Jesus, "We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced, we have mourned unto you and you have not lamented." They would not be charmed, charm he ever so wisely, said Paul, the chief apostle. For I think God hath set forth us the apostles last, as it were appointed to death; for we are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men. We are made for Christ's sake * * * even unto this present hour we hunger, and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling place. And labor working with our own hands; being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we endure it; being defamed, we entreat; we are made as the filth of the world, and are the off-scouring of all things unto this day. 1 Cor iv 9-13. Of prophets it is written—They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword; they wandered about in sheep skins and goat skins [compare this with the white-cravated, kid-gloved gentry of the present day who profess to be following in their footsteps] being destitute, afflicted, tormented [of whom the world was not worthy]; they wandered in deserts and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth. Heb xi 37, 38. This was their reception in the name of the Lord! Of the whole phalanx, with Jesus at their head, down to the last and least testimony for him it may be said, Who hath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? Isa liii 1.

But bless God! apparent defeat in this army is glorious victory, every defeat is a triumph, for it ends in the destruction of the foe. Indeed there is no such thing as defeat here. Thanks be to God who always causes us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the savor of his knowledge in every place. For we are made unto God a sweet savor of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish; to the one we are a savor of death unto death, and to the other the savor of life unto life. And who is sufficient for these things. 2 Cor ii 14-16. But our sufficiency is of God.

Praise his name! He has condescended to start the only through train to the celestial city. All who take a through ticket are insured a safe conduct. Terms—step on board, leaving all behind, yielding implicit obedience to the conductor—the Lord Jesus Christ. This immense train from paradise lost to paradise restored, with its ample accommodations, for all the sleeping saints from Abel down, is drawing near the celestial depot; yet, there is room for all who desire to take passage. Just hold out the signal—a broken heart and a contrite spirit, and you will be helped on board. Who will embrace the golden moment? The Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that is athirst, come. And whosoever will let him partake of the water of life freely.

It is a familiar illustration that Auntie Willard gives of the gospel plan and yet it is one of which we do not tire and which even the little children can grasp, for believing that this earth will be the future home of Christ and his saints, and being baptized into that faith we may have a safe journey to the New Jerusalem is very much like getting on board a train.

But I must now revert for a few moments to things in our own section of the country. When mentioning our Advent preachers, I inadvertently left out Dr. Beardsley of Goshen, Indiana. Auntie Willard must have known him. He was the means of bringing our dear Bro. Good, who now lives in Marion, Ind., into the truth. He was a brother of Miss Rosa Beardsley, who died recently at an advanced age in Michigan, and was an active worker in the cause of truth, long after Auntie Willard left for the east. And other workers were busy holding meetings wherever there was an open door.

Father Logan must have been up this way about that time, stirring up the people about six miles south of where we live. He had a large number of young people about ready to obey, but the members of the church in the neighborhood grew alarmed, and as soon as father Logan left sent for one of their preachers, who persuaded the young converts that there was not much difference between the faith of the Advent people and their faith, and got them all to join his church. How he could tell such falsehoods we could never see. It was a great disappointment to us all. As father had also held meetings there—a Sister Roberds and her husband being located in the place—she is a woman of strong faith and as immovable as Gibraltar.

Bro. Clark was busy too. How angry one of our Methodist friends was, when this faithful brother held a meeting in our school house and sang,

The Judge will come, but not the same
As once in lowly form he came.

He did not believe that the Lord was coming over, and left the meeting.

Obituary.

The following clipping concerning the death of Sister Mary Comstock is just received from Mrs. G. W. Bartlett. We are sorry it was not sent in sooner, as our Sister died last August.

Mary Comstock was born in Janesville, Wisconsin, Sept. 1, 1841, died Aug. 16, 1907.

She moved with her parents to Albany, in the spring of 1845, where she has since resided. She was the second in a family of eight children, three of whom, together with her father and mother, have preceded her. She leaves two brothers and two sisters, Mrs. S. H. Flint of this place, A. L. Comstock of Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. G. W. Baker and A. B. Comstock of this place, and many other relatives, and a host of friends.

She was "Aunt Mary" to every child of her acquaintance. Her genial happy disposition had endeared her to all. She was a steadfast friend, and always strong for the right.

About twelve years ago she united with the Christadelphian body and remained a consistent member for the remainder of her life.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Baptist church conducted by Rev. A. H. Zilmer of Milwaukee. Interment at the Gap Church.

BROTHER, If you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically with How to study the Bible and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages. Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 32 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 32 pages, 25 cts per 100.

At the Breaking of Bread.

Yea, verily, I count all things to be refuse that I may win Christ, and be found in him, not having a righteousness of mine own, (which is of the law) but which is through faith in Christ. That I may know him and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his suffering. If by any means I may attain unto the resurrection from the dead. Phil III 8-11.

To me Paul is a most interesting character, both before and after his conversion. He was full of zeal and energy, but before he was converted it was manifested in an evil direction, he surpassed all in his efforts to overthrow and stamp out the truth. His own words are these, I verily thought with myself I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus, which things I also did at Jerusalem, and in the synagogues, and even to strange cities. He had a zeal for God, but not according to knowledge, it being the tradition of his fathers, that he was a man who stood high among men of his day. If any man thinketh to have confidence in the flesh, I more. Circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews, as touching the law a Pharisee, as touching the righteousness which is in the law found blameless. I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day. Now while all these things were gain to him, he says there was no knowledge of Christ in them. Therefore I count these things to be nothing for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, and from the beginning of his ministry until the end came, persecutions awaited him on every side, but he shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God, entreating his followers to walk in accordance to the precepts of the truth, by which they had been called.

He labored with his own hands not only for his own necessities, but for those with him. I have coveted no man's silver or gold or apparel. This alone was a wonderful statement that Paul was able to make. His labor had been of love.

There are few Pauls today. Where are we to look for his like? To bring the question home to ourselves, are we following Paul as he followed the Christ? Are we as anxious for others as he who said I could wish myself accursed for my brethren's sake. Is our eye single, fixed on the one object? O, if we could only catch his spirit. When we review his sufferings and hardships he endured, and the privations, stripes above measure; his stonings, his shipwrecks, in perils of robbers, from his own countrymen, and among false brethren. When we think of his weariness, his painfulness, fastings, cold and nakedness, his watchings, and constant care of all the churches, just think of him saying as he calmly surveys them all. None of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself. I count all things but refuse that I may win Christ. Forgetting these things that are behind and reaching forth I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Let us offer ourselves as living sacrifices, which is our reasonable service. Let us not live for ourselves, but for the glory of God; that at the end of our journey we can be able to say together with Paul, I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteousness Judge, shall give me at that day, and to all who love his appearing.

United States bank notes are redeemed, though they be torn into strings and woven into a bird's nest, or chewed up into lining for a rat-hole, or in the shape of pulp from a cow's stomach, or a dog's. Frequently a roll of them burnt into ashes is taken, gently flattened, the top note deciphered, then lifted off by touching its surface with a sticky paper, then the other side deciphered; that same process gone through with for the next, and so on through the roll; every note often being thus identified, and thousands of dollars—or perhaps only two or three—being safely pocketed by the owner.

Thus, even an earthly government, with its limitations, toils to discover to whom it has made promises, and to keep those promises. "How much more your Father which is in heaven.

Announcement.

Quarterly Conference of Northern Illinois, of the Church of God, will convene at Lanark, Ill. Dec. 7, 1907. Am desirous of hearing from the brethren that intend to come, so we may arrange for their comfort while here.

Come and give us one more good meeting.

J. M. GLOTFELTY, Treas.

We wish to call special attention again to a matter that may seem simple, but is quite annoying at times. Please read over your money order before putting it in the envelope, and see that it is made payable to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Indiana. We ask you to be careful about this because quite recently we received a money order made payable to "The Presbyterian," another to "Vee Institution," another to "The Recitation," another the Post Master had forgotten to sign his name. Frequently orders are made to read "Plymouth, Ill., Iowa, etc." Of course the only thing we can do is to return such, and then there is the extra expense of getting a new order and sending it. This can be avoided by a little care in looking over the order before sending it. So please see to this. Also be sure and address your letter to Plymouth, Indiana. A short time ago we received a letter that had been written and sent some time before. It was addressed to Plymouth, Ill., and after laying there some time, was forwarded here, as it so happened that some one knew THE RESTITUTION was published in Plymouth, Ind.

Our Helping Fund

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trustworthy.

Virtue rarely passes unrecognized by the world. A few distorted optics may fail to recognize her features; but it would be as easy to conceal the face of the noon-day sun under a mask, as her resplendent features.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

---

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

When you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "THE RESTITUTION," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

Account Giving.

There is certainly a great day of accounts coming, when our Lord will reward every one according as her or his work has been.

The great concern of each one should be, What have I done upon which to expect reward? If you should judge yourself, what would your judgment be?

Our talents differ, and each one will be held accountable for the use of each talent, whatever that may be. If we have only one, use that.

[illegible]re, what can I do? [illegible]ircumstate literally [illegible]ruth it nothing else. [illegible]nd she but who can do that. [illegible] that do any good? Oh, yes. [illegible]me tell you something. Some [illegible]ple have bought several copies of "Pine Woods Bible Class" and lending them to their friends and neighbors. It being easy and attractive reading, most people will read it. It is bearing fruit already. I have just been told of a man who had become discouraged. He had listened to preachers of different denominations, and found they contradicted each other. He began to drift into infidelity, when a Brother put a copy of Pine Woods Bible Class into his hands. Now in place of infidelity, he is rejoicing in new found light. If would take too much space to tell of other cases. Try this work, and add some stars to your crown.

The Students Text Book is already an assured success, and will be printed after I get home from this present trip.

I desire that all who want it, to send in their names in advance, that I may know how many to print. All you order now, you will be sure to get when printed. The price will be fifty cents.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Will all concerned take note, the address of Brother D. C. and Sister N. B. Robinson will in future be 366 West Main St. Salem, O.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the name Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Peace.

"If sin be in the heart,
The tiniest sky is dull and the sunniest weather.
The eye no longer sees the lambs at play together.
The dull ear cannot hear the birds that sing so sweetly,
And all the joy of earth is gone unpolished.
If sin be in the heart.

If peace be in the heart
The wildest winter storm is full of calm and beauty.
The midnight lightning feeds the flowers the path of duty.
Each living creature is a source new and holy sympathy.
The very trees and stones reflect a ray of glory.
If peace be in the heart."

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:

A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JAN'Y 22, 1908.

As there are five Wednesdays in this month our next issue will bear date of Feb 5.

BROTHER Wines was with the Plymouth Church last Sunday and gave two excellent sermons.

BROTHER Willey reports having a good meeting with Church in Clinton County, though there is much sickness there.

In the list of books on page four of this paper Gibbon's Rome, Jamison F. & B. Commentary, Rollin's history and the Westbee books are sold.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

We wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

THE substance of the Sermon as written by Brother Halstead is given at the request of some who heard it, and others who heard of it. Brother Halstead is past 80 years of age, and in the reasonable order of things human, he will not be able for very many years longer to give us such able discourses. We all thank him for making the effort to write it out for our paper.

BRO. Lindsay made us a pleasant visit last Saturday. The report of his meeting is given in another part of this paper. He went to Burr Oak on Monday to begin a two weeks' meeting. The visible result of Brother Lindsay's meeting at Argos is very encouraging. We believe that many quite successful meetings are held when there is no outward show of gain. Instruct in the right way—God's way; then invite obedience—entreat. The result is with God. Your part is done.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY FEB. 9.

JESUS AND THE WOMAN OF SAMARIA. JOHN IV. 1-42.

Golden Text. If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink. Jno vii 37.

In the last lesson Jesus was in Jerusalem talking to Nicodemus. He left and came to Judea, where he made many disciples. Those who believed him and were baptized. This caused considerable trouble.

LESSON TEXT.

1 Jesus left Judea for Galilee ... was more than one way. He ... the one that led through Sa... near the piece of ground Ja... gave Joseph. Gen xlix 22. And ... to Jacob's well about noon.

7-9 He asked the woman of Samaria ... drink. She was surprised that ... should have anything to do ... a Samaritan. Read 2 Kings xvii.

10 The gift of God—the Holy Spirit is the gift of God. Acts viii 20. Also eternal life. Rom vi 23. In this instance Jesus doubtless referred to himself. John iii 16. Living water—the gospel—good news—of the kingdom. The gospel of Christ, the power of God to save—to give eternal life. Verses 11-15, 16-18. Jesus knew she had no husband. He testified that she was truthful.

19 She was convinced that he was a prophet. Jesus could tell of past, present and future.

20 This mountain—Mount Gerizim in Samaria about 35 miles north of Jerusalem. Deut xi 29, where the Samaritans built a temple.

Jerusalem the place to worship—God said I have hallowed this house—the temple—to put my name there. 1 Kings ix 3.

21 Both temples were and are destroyed. Of the temple in Jerusalem, not one stone that was not thrown down. Matt xxiv 2-22. There are thousands of people professed worshipers of God, who could not give an intelligent, plain answer to the question, What do you worship? Salvation is of the Jews—very few people give this a thought. It is true both in the case of the saints and the nations in the age to come.

23 Worship in Spirit and in truth—another way of saying, Those who obey, from the heart the glad tidings of the kingdom. God is a Spirit—this statement stands. No comment will improve it.

25 Jews and Samaritans knew—in a way—that God had promised the Messiah, the Christ, the King of the Jews.

26 Jesus revealed himself directly and emphatically to this woman of Samaria. She has been commended as "a vile degraded outcast." The Holy Spirit in John did not use any such words.

27 His disciples had not yet been told to preach to every creature. Mark xvi 15, but they were wise enough not to question their Master.

28 The woman was so interested—interested—and seemingly delighted—that she forgot what she came to the well for.

29 She ran with the message, Come and see a man.....and as he had told her what no ordinary man could, she concluded that he must be what he claimed to be—the Messiah.

30 She was a success—they came.

31-38 Is very interesting but does not enter into the subject of Jesus and the woman of Samaria.

39-41 The Samaritans came, they heard, they believed—in two days. Truly this must have been a foretaste of the days to come when the Lord is here with his saints and possessing the kingdom. Dan vii 13 18. The tide of false doctrines is so strong, tradition so skillfully and pleasingly presented that it is hard to break away from it. It takes people weeks, months and sometimes years to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, to believe that he is the Messiah, the Christ, the coming King over all the earth. Let those that believe stand fast in the glorious liberty and let no man take our crown.

Next lesson—Jesus heals the nobleman's son. John iv 43-54.

P. NEILL.

Our New Year's Love Feast.

Brother Underwood,

I wish to write a few lines for THE RESTITUTION if not too late. I noticed your kind request for all to write a few lines at least, and reading so many letters of encouragement in the number of Jan. 1st, from so many of the dear ones that we knew in days gone by, and to know that they are still so firm in the one faith. As we have been busy moving around since coming to Corning, California, we neglected writing until too late. We feel that we ought not to put off until tomorrow what we can do today, so we take this opportunity to let all our dear brethren and friends know our whereabouts, and to let them know we are as firm as ever in the one faith, and we have ever thanked God for the privilege of hearing the one faith nearly thirty-five years ago, and we often think of the dear preaching brethren that did so much good in years gone by. Some now sleep in Jesus and some are still working faithful while stricken in years like wife and myself. May God still bless their efforts, is our prayer. On account of my wife having rheumatism so bad at Wenatchee, Wash. we have moved here away from all of the one faith that we know excepting our son-in-law, Brother Stewart and family which moved here with us, and we dont know as we will be able to do any good in our old age here. We would be glad to hear direct from our old acquaintances, brothers and sisters, and if any of the dear brethren should becoming this way we would be very glad to have them stop and see us. Within find five dollars to be used to pay for THE RESTITUTION to those not able to pay for it.

From your Brother in Christ.
WM. MILLS.

Dear Restitution:

We want you another year, we are sorry we could not have written for the love feast but we are glad we can renew our subscription. May God bless all the dear ones everywhere; and let us be faithful. God bless the dear old paper.

Your brother and sister,
JOHN & MARY ALLARD.

Dear Restitution:

I see in THE RESTITUTION there are some more love feast letters. Well, we don't want to miss saying a few words if it is not too late. One more Christmas and New Year's have past, and we are still spared while others have been laid to rest, and we are thankful to our heavenly Father for his kind and protecting care over us the past year, and our prayer is that he will still keep a faithful watch over us for the next year. Well, we have been trying to serve our blessed Master to the best of our ability. Dear brothers and sisters, let us still press on to the prize that is awaiting us. I dearly love to read those letters from the Bereans and also other letters in THE RESTITUTION. I see Bro. J. T. Prime and wife's name in the paper, I often think of them. Dear ones of the precious faith, dear brothers and sisters, remember us in your prayers.

Your brother and sister in the blessed hope.

L. E. & M. F. FOSTER.

A DIRECTION.

Selected by Mrs. Edward Duncan, for all the dear brothers and sisters scattered abroad, especially the little Church at Clarksville, Iowa.

What shall my wishes be
For you this coming year
What shall it be?
Just this, that life be glad,
That faith and hope be near
Friends that are true and true
Life's wholehearted faith to bear,
With God the rest.

What can I send to you
In greeting for the day?
Words fit for one true
To tell you that for you
I think, I hope, I pray.
And is true welcome to the Full assurance that the way
Is right for you.

Could I with finite sight
Just plan for you aright
Your happiness.
Then would I choose for you
All that is sure and bright,
Life without care and pain,
Life without sorrow's night
Nor storm nor stress.

But as I may not choose,
A faith-winged wish shall speed
Over hill and wold,
That God's unerring care
Supply your every need
His love through doubtful paths
In ways of peace may lead,
His face unfold.

Editor Restitution:

Please find inclosed one dollar and a half to pay our subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year. I also enclose a list for some leaflets that I see advertised in the paper. We love the dear old paper and wish that more of our brethren would take it, there are so many good things in it. I pray that our Father in heaven will enlighten the mind and guide the hand of every one that takes up their pen to write for our paper.

Your Sister, in Christ.
MRS. S. S. TETREROW.

Dear brothers and sisters:

New year's greeting to all. On the arrival of my paper Jan. 1, I began reading the poetry "Slipping Away," and laid down the paper after reading all the letters. The last name, Jesse Harrold, my heart was filled to over flowing, and I could withhold no longer. I said to myself, I will do the best I can, to express the love I have for Jesus and his followers. I united in his cause over thirty years ago, have met with some rough and thorny paths, but as I look back over the way, they were for a purpose. I had to be tried to see if I would stand the test. I had not studied the guide Book well enough to know the way by heart, and would take the wrong path often, which would prove the same as on a journey in this present life. I have had no desire to turn back, and seek worldly pleasure. No indeed. I am on the way to the kingdom of God, and the way looks brighter as I am nearing the end. Pray for me that I may be a useful servant in his vineyard, that when Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory. Your sister in Christ.

MRS. N. G. CALKINS.

Dear Brothers and sisters:

I send greetings. It cheers us to read the letters from them as I am one of the isolated ones. I have no preaching, the Bible and the papers are all I have to cheer me in my lonly life since husband died. Then we have a great High Priest that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession, for we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

ABIGAIL G. WINCHESTER.

Dear Restitution:

To all of like faith a happy new year. I like to read the good letters from all are so well. I will write a few words also. Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of Herod the King, behold wise men came from the east to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that was born King of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east and are come to worship him. God grant that we may be wise enough to see the star and ever keep it before us, the great light of the world, and likewise worship him with thanksgiving, praise and joy. Thanking God, the Father, every day of our lives for that light, the great gift of his Son, that we through him may have life. Let us cling close to him day by day that we may not fail. Let our motto be, Onward in his cause, trying to do more than ever before for him who is an ever present help in times of trouble and need, and he has invited us to come to him that he may help us to bear them. I would say to the young in the faith, Cling to him, study God's Word, that you may know what he wants you to do, keep it ever before you, it is the only way to keep close to him, for if we do not the world will creep in and soon draw us aside, and before we are aware of it we are being drawn away further than we realize. So to be strong we must keep close and study to be approved of him, and God's blessing will go with you. Yours in hope,

E. L. CHOSE.

Editor Restitution:

I will forward the pay for the dear RESTITUTION that I might have done before this if I had got at it sooner. The new year's greeting is to all and as I am a little late, it is better late than never. Well, it is forty-five years since I was baptized, and I have no desire to turn back but pass on to the end. I send my paper around to ones that can't afford to buy, and want to this year try harder than ever. With love to all. Pray for me that I may hold out faithful.

Yours truly,
MRS. FANNIE NORRICK.

Dear brothers and sisters one and all
I will write mine now at our Editor's call,
For all to write who love the Lord
And believe he'll soon come to bring his reward.

To come and gather his jewels home
When he shall reign on David's throne.
When he shall reign all wars shall cease
And man with man will be at peace.

And the saints all robed in garments white
Shall live in that land where there is no night,
Where the golden fruit of life's tree grow
Will quicken the soul to live so.

How my aching heart longs to be there
In that beautiful world no bright glare,
Where no sickness or death will ever come
To disturb the dwellers of that happy home.

I am sick and weary of this world's crime
And long for a holy, a peaceful clime
To live with the vigor of endless life,
And be compassed no more by scenes of strife.

My eye is fixed on the world to come,
And I walk by faith through the earthly home
And often inquire, when I kneel in prayer
With anxious heart, "Are we almost there?"

I am waiting to hear the trumpet sound
When the Day Star dawns, and with joyous bound,
I rise to meet the Lord in the air,
I can say indeed, "We are almost there."

CARRIE BOWLES WELLMAN.

Since writing the above I have the days' mail. Here is a letter from Sister S. J. Hicklin, formerly of Troutdale, Oregon. She writes, My Dear Sister, I have thought of you every day, but have always had a sad heart. Lloyd died Oct. 20. He so wanted to live to be with his mother, and I just cannot tell you how I miss him. He has been my companion so long, and was so good and kind to me. He requested that 2 Cor xv, be read and explained at his funeral. We could not get Brother Skeels, so had another man conduct the funeral.

Here next is the dear old RESTITUTION with the Love Feast letters. In scanning over the letters here is my cousin Jesse Harold, who is still rejoicing in the coming of the Savior. There are other familiar names, but my eye catches the name of J. T. Prime and wife. How glad I am to learn that I have been instrumental in encouraging an old soldier of the cross to press forward toward the high calling that is in Christ Jesus. Let us never grow weary in well doing, for we will reap if we faint not. So each day brings its joys and its sorrows.

That this year may bring the long looked for Master is the prayer of one looking for him.

C. H. W.

Dear Restitution:

As this is the beginning of another year, I will pen a few lines to let the household of faith know that we are still in the land and among the living. And that we are still striving to walk in the "straight and narrow way that leads to life." We feel that the Lord has been with us, and we are not unmindful of the many blessings which we have received from his bountiful hand through the past year. Our hearts go forth in thankful praise to him who gives us richly all things to enjoy. He has given us his Word, the gospel of the kingdom, and enlightened the eyes of our understanding, that we may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of his glory of his inheritance in the saints, (Eph i 18) and this is worth more to us than all earthly treasures, and now we rejoice to know that we are not in the condition we were a year ago. For by reading Eph ii we find that aliens from the commonwealth of Israel have no Christ and strangers from the covenants of promise have no hope and without God in the world. Now this was our condition, wasn't it dreadful? No wonder we think the Lord has done wonderful things for us, he provided a way for us to put on his life giving name in baptism, by sending Bro. Wilson to baptize us. O, praise the Lord. "I will praise the Lord with my whole heart. The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein. He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered. the Lord is gracious and full of compassion. He hath given meat to them that fear him, he will ever be mindful of his covenant. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. A good understanding have all they that do his commandments, his praise endureth forever. Psa cxi. Now we ask an interest in the prayers of all those that love the truth, remember that we are isolated and how hard it is to live right where we never have the privilege of meeting together with those of like faith. Yes, we are all alone, shut up to the truth, and surrounded by unbelieving thousands, yet no one to talk with on that theme of themes, which is above every other to us. With best wishes to the household of faith wherever they may be. We remain in hope of eternal life, when Jesus comes to reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously (Isa xxiv 23) as King of Israel, Luke ii 32, 33; Psa lxxxix 3, 4; Matt ii 6.

MRS. A. J. MARTIN,
MRS. HARRIET CRUMRINE.

To the friends of truth:

As the time has come for us to express with thankful hearts our love to our heavenly Father for all the blessings we have enjoyed for the last year, and may we all be strengthened by the mingling of sentiments through the love feast, is my fervent desire.

C. E. PENROD.

Brother Underwood:

I will try and drop a few lines to ask you to wait on me a little longer for the subscription of the dear RESTITUTION as I am not able just at present to send the money, but will as soon as I can. THE RESTITUTION is all I have to read and know how faithful the brothers and sisters are. I have not heard the good gospel preached since I came west, and that is nine years, have not meet one of our loved ones. I am entirely alone, I let my neighbors read the paper and talk to them of our faith, but they don't seem to care about it as most of them are Methodists. This is a very wicked place, all they seem to care for is money and the worldly ways. I see dear Brother Hudler's name in the paper. He is the last preacher I heard preach the good gospel of the kingdom. Oh, how I would like to hear him once more and be able to have him come here and preach for us. I have two growing up children that ought to hear good preaching. This is a lovely country, Mount Hood and Mount Adams in a distance, Columbia River 6 miles from where we live, the little Salmon River goes by our place. The main crop is fruit, land is worth $150 to $300 an acre. I will close my letter and will renew my subscription as soon as possible. I remain faithful to the blessed faith of the gospel of the kingdom.

MRS. J. H. DAVIS.

Dear Restitution.

Enclosed please find $1.50 for my renewal to our paper, as it is about all the truth we get, as there are only a few names of us in this part of Arkansas. We cannot do without our paper. We are still in the faith, looking and watching for the soon coming of our Lord and Savior.

Your sister in Christ.
MRS. OSCAR CARTON.

Dear Restitution:

For the past three or four years, the Church of God in Salem, Ohio, has held a series of special meetings just after New Year's, beginning with the first Sunday and continuing two weeks. Last evening closed the present course. We are more than pleased with the result. The attendance was from good to best, the attention was excellent, and nearly all expressed pleasure. Quite a good many came who had never before been at any of our meetings. The question is, "What shall the harvest be?" Our motto has never been put in words, or it would be something like this, TRY, and keep trying. The first four discourses were presented by our son, U. D. Neill, now Virginia State Evangelist. The audiences were what we call large, and all seemed to enjoy the sermons. We, wife and I, took up the work, towards the end Brother and Sister Robison came home, after an absence of some three months. They kindly accepted an invitation to help. Bro. Robison presented the topic, "Will the Kingdom be restored." In his answer he left nothing to be desired, Sister Robison discussed the subject, "In my Father's house are many mansions." This closed the series. Our present reward is summed up in the words, We have done what we could.

P. NEILL.

Editor Restitution:

Elder S. J. Lindsay of Oregon, Ill., held a series of meetings at the Church of God at Argos, Ind. These services lasted two weeks and closed Sunday evening Jan 19. The meetings were a success from first to last. We had good crowds at all times, both from the country and in town. The sermons were instructive and all gave the best of attention. More than this five came forward for baptism, and on Sunday afternoon, Mrs. May Fish, Mrs. Ralph Ellis, Miss Delpha Bradford, Miss Ethel Bradford, Mr. Ludie Nichols, were baptized at Huff's Lake, one half mile north of Argos.

QUESTIONS.

1 What was the custom of Jesus when he prayed?

2 What did Jesus tell his disciples to do when they prayed?

3 How did he tell them not to pray?

4 Who did Jesus teach his disciples to pray for?

5 Did Jesus set an example? Where?

6 Do the Scriptures give us an account of any who followed the example of Christ?

7 Did Jesus pray that those who persecuted him should be with him in his kingdom?

8 Did Jesus pray that any special class should be with him and where recorded?

Explain Matt xviii 23-35 Col iii 13.

Some minds are like sieves; they retain all that is worthless, while that which is good passes through them.

They are safest who are most in their closets, who pray not to be seen of men, but to be heard of God.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is represented by some one known to be trust worthy.

Poetry.

Knocking, Ever Knocking.

"Behold, I stand at the door and knock."

Knocking, knocking, ever knocking?
Who is there?
'Tis a pilgrim strange and kindly,
Never such was seen before—
Ah, sweet soul, for such a wonder,
I unbe the door.

No—that door is hard to open;
Hinges rusty, latch is broken,
Bid him go,
Wherefore with that knocking dreary
Scare the sleep from one so weary?
Say him—no.

Knocking, knocking, ever knocking?
What? still there?
O sweet soul, but now behold him,
With the glory-crowned hair;
And those eyes, so strange and tender,
Waiting there.
[illegible] Open! Now behold him,
How, so fair.

[illegible] that door? Why will thou vex me,
Coming over to perplex me?
Lo! the key is stiffly rusty;
Many-fingered ivy vine
Sealed it fast with twist and twine;
Weeds of years and years before,
Choke the passage of the door.

Knocking! Knocking! What? still knocking?
He is still here?
What's the hour? The night is waning—
In my heart a drear complaining,
And a chilly soul unrest!
Ah, this knocking! It disturbs me,
Scares my sleep with dreams unblest!
Give me rest,
Rest—rest.

Rest, dear soul, he longs to give thee;
Thou hast only dreamed of pleasure,
Dreamed of gifts and golden treasure,
Dreamed of jewels in thy keeping,
Waked to weariness of weeping—
Open to thy soul's own Lover,
And thy night of dreams is over—
The true gifts he brings have seeming
More than all thy faded dreaming!

Did she open? Doth she? Will she?
So, as wondering we behold,
Grows a picture to a sign
Pressed upon your soul and mine,
For in every breath that liveth
Is that strange mysterious door;
The forsaken and benumbed,
Ivy-gnarled and weed-bejungled,
Dusty, rusty, and forgotten—
Their the pierced hand still knocketh,
And with ever patient watching,
With the sad eyes true and tender,
With the glory-crowned brow—
Still a God is waiting there.

—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

The Bereans Column.

Dear Bereans:

Jesus has gone away to receive for himself a kingdom and to return.

He promised his disciples to return and receive them that they might be with him.

When he said to the high priest who sought his life, I am the Christ, and shall be seen coming in the clouds of heaven, the high priest said he had blasphemed and thought he should be put to death. But after his death and resurrection as the disciples stood watching him ascend into heaven two angels stood by them and said, This same Jesus shall come as ye have seen him go.

This was the hope of the Thessalonians who turned from idols to serve the living God and to wait for his Son from heaven. 1 Thess. i. 10.

Paul told them that at the Savior's coming, his sleeping saints should be raised immortal, the living changed and caught up with them to meet him, and be ever with him.

Letitia Murray.

Dear Bereans:

Let us consider the subject of patience for a short time. Paul wrote to the Hebrews, "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doeth beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us." We are afforded excellent examples of patience in the life of Job; that of Christ, and the lives of his apostles. These men proved the statement found in James i. 2-4.

For what are we to wait so patiently? "Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord," is an exhortation found in James v. 7, and so it is the coming of Christ that we are to wait for. Patience is necessary for the hope that we profess to have. We are promised that the Spirit will help us to be patient if we do our duty as God would have us do.

Let us wait with clean hands and a pure heart, not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is, for if we sin wilfully after we have known the truth there is no more sacrifice for our sins but a certain fearful looking for of judgment.

Grace M. Williams.

Dear Bereans:

I will send you a good hymn, and if you would like to have the music to it, I will copy it off for you.

I know that my Redeemer liveth,
And on the earth again shall stand,
I know eternal life he giveth,
That grace and power are in his hand.

Chorus.—

I know, I know that Jesus liveth,
And on the earth again shall stand;
I know, I know that life he giveth,
That grace and power are in his hand.

I know his promise never faileth,
Through Word he speaks it cannot die;
Though cruel death my flesh assaileth,
Yet I shall see him by and by.

I know my mansion he prepareth,
And where he is I cannot falter;
O wondrous tho't for me to ponder,
And he at last will come to me.

Ida Bessie.

CONVERSATION.

Nothing can be more instructive than the every day conversation we hear, and too often unite in among those with whom we mingle in passing through life, so let us beware, and not converse upon vain matters.

Let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ. Phil. i. 27.

The Word of God forbids conversation of certain kinds, and suggests to us proper subjects upon which we should speak.

Paul says: "Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth but rather that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto thy hearers."

Let us not be careless about our conversation, and let us abstain from conversing upon unprofitable subjects vulgar anecdotes. It is better to remain silent.

Let us not only abstain from conversing upon vulgar topics but from listening to the filthy conversations of the wicked.

Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. A good man out of the treasure of his heart bringeth forth good things; an evil man out of the treasure of his heart bringeth forth evil things.

Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content with such things as you have; for he has said "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.

As he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation. 1 Peter. i. 15.

Bereans, let us remember "our conversation begins in the heavens, from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body according to working whereby he is able, even to subdue all things unto himself. Phil. iii. 20-22. Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.

Refrain from vain conversing. Let us put off all these; anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy communication out of your mouth, and let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom: teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 10.

The very day that Auntie Willard, Sister Mary H., and Mrs. Sympkins were fasting and praying for poor Mr. Sympkins, Auntie Willard's mind was also directed to the lost condition of her own dear son, Lyman, who had in some unknown way contracted the baneful habit of smoking cigars. She "laid his case before him and told him among other things that he must give up this habit, or she should have no influence to open the way for him to go to Normal School to prepare for a teacher as he so much desired to do." "He rebelled and thought her hard, but she was firm." "She told him he could as well move the rock of Gibraltar with a handspike as to move her from that position."

She then "came down stairs and told his father," who took the same position. She "then called the child to come to his father while she and her Mary upon these precious words, of Jesus, 'Bring thy son hither,' (Luke ix 41,) knelt and prayed for him that he might be healed; that the dreadful demon (tobacco) might be cast out and 'enter no more into him.'" And in like manner they prayed for Mr. Sympkins; "that the demon, alcohol, might thus be destroyed." Auntie Willard "then went to the room where her husband and son were talking, the same words pressing upon her,—'Bring thy son hither,' and after repeating them she asked her husband to go with her and carry him to Jesus." He did so and a blessed time they had. The child (18 years of age) was in tears and when they rose, told her that he would now repeat to her, what he had already told his father, that "he had abandoned the use of tobacco forever." And she hoped in God that it was even so."

We will go back now to the prayer-meeting at Mr. Sympkins. Auntie Willard says—"I went, bound in the Spirit that I must relate not only the work of the Spirit of God in our own family some months before in raising Caroline from the jaws of death by diptheria in answer to prayer, on the information of James v 14, 15, but also the two cases already related of our son and Mr. S. I did so at proper time and great was my freedom and many were in tears when I closed. O such views as I had at that time of the necessity of a clean 'Body' being formed, 'cleansed from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God,' and that to such a body God would add the gifts of his holy Spirit as in primitive times. I was abundantly paid for the heavy cross I bore. Bless God! The meeting was a very remarkable one in many respects. The thoughts of some hearts were revealed, and the devil was aroused, which made us know that Jesus was not far off.

An Elyman, in the guise of a Universalist, had been the only individual who with his family, had for weeks come to this meeting with the exception of myself—and sometimes, my Mary. On this occasion he arose, and in his slimy serpentine way, began opposing the Bible, by laying stripes on us. Just as he was about to shew the practical evils of our doctrine Bro. Sympkins rebuked him, saying—'a prayer-meeting is not the time to discuss doctrine.' He took his seat evidently much nettled, and when meeting was out, said 'he should not trouble our meetings any more, but that he would go from house to house but what he would put this doctrine down,' said 'he had been much injured and rebuked, etc.'

On the next Monday morning another Mary joined me in fasting and prayer for the fallen man—Mr. Sympkins, and in the evening, went over to his house to have a special season of prayer with him and to encourage him to open his mouth in prayer for himself. We found that both he and his wife were over to the Universalist's house, but they soon returned, bringing with them a son and brother-in-law of the Universalist. We did not flinch, we told them what we had come for, and sang and knelt down to pray. After we had prayed, we asked Mr. Sympkins to pray, as we had asked the Lord before we left home that he might pray that night. We told him how we felt about it, and that we knew not how to rise until he did open his mouth, before the Lord. We prayed around the second time, then asked him again if he could not pray? He said, he felt too unworthy. We still encouraged, but finally our faith failed and we arose without the blessing. The two young men sat up all the time, now and then putting up the fire, etc.

Mr. Sympkins sang with us again at the close of the meeting

I've stood in the war,
We all shall be free when the Lord comes.

His wife said as she followed us to the gate, 'He would have prayed if those men had not been here.'

On the next Tuesday evening, our meeting evening—the same men were present again but a company of devout caring persons were also there; one Christian sister making prayers and praying herself, vocally, for her dear brother present who expected the next Friday to leave for the war.

We opened the meeting with Scripture and singing, then turning, asked Mr. Sympkins if he would not pray? He shook his head and we did the best we could ourselves. When the meetings closed, all seemed faith to leave the house. The candidate for war in tears, and Mr. S.—told me he was encouraged and thought I would soon hear his voice in prayer.

On the following Lord's day, their son returned, with his finished military suit, to take a last farewell at home. He had seen a Mr. T., on the cars, and had asked him to come to his father's on Sunday and hold meeting.

We returned from Mr. Budden's just in time to eat a bite and go. Mr. T. said some good things and some very poor things, as he is an immersed soulist. When our turn came round we yielded ourselves to God, to be spoken through if he had any message of comfort from us to them. And he did so speak to these afflicted ones. The weeping mother tried to give utterance to her grief, but soon lost command of herself and swayed about the floor, until caught and held up by her friends, finally settling upon the neck of her son who placed her by his side, in an apparently unconscious state.

When all was quiet, we proposed prayer, and were much blessed in the exercise.

At this juncture Elyman—the Universalist arose and referred to a Scripture quoted by us, viz: 'Lo! I come to do thy will, O God!' Shewing from them words of Jesus, that he came to do God's will, which was to save the world, and he would do it, quoting for proof, 'Ask of Me and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession' and that 'every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth, and in the sea, was heard to say, Blessing and honor, and glory and power be unto him that sitteth upon the throne and unto the Lamb forever and ever!' I immediately (impelled by God's Spirit, I think) opened to the second Psalm, and when he sat down, I arose and read 'Yet have I set my King upon my holy hill of Zion,' etc. And closing with, 'Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron. Thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel,' adding, when this is done, then all that are left, in heaven and in earth and sea will be heard praising God, and took my seat. No one replied and we sang the Doxology and closed. He stood at the gate as I passed out and I gave him my hand and passed on.

Auntie Wince.

Selections.

The Gospel. No. 4.

"In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed."

HOW LONG WILL THEY BE BLESSED?

As long as the promise is of force.—The promise is unlimited, and therefore the blessing must be not only complete, but perpetual. The seed must continue to bless the nations, endlessly. The means provided to bless the nations show this. We do not provide large means to attain a small object. We do not provide means for a long journey when we only wish to go to the next town. So God's instrumentalities to bless the nations will be adapted, and limited to that peculiar work. They will not extend infinitely beyond the work which they were created to perform, but they will be just extensive enough to do the work assigned them, and no more. They will not exist beyond the end for which they exist.

THE SEED SHALL BLESS THE NATIONS.

The seed shall exist for this end. They must live as long as this work is to be done. The duration of the life of the seed, then, will show how long they will bless the nations. Christ was raised from the dead to sit on his father David's throne, to bless the nations. He is to sit on that throne as long as the sun and moon endureth.—He is to live after the power of an endless life. He is to live forever more. The object, then, for which he lives is endless. The blessing of the nations.

THE INHERITANCE.

The seed are to inherit the earth.—It is to be to them an everlasting possession. It is to be a world without end. The earth, then, is to be the inheritance as long as the seed live.—The nations will be blessed by the seed, as long as the seed possesses this inheritance, for it is for this object the seed are to possess the earth.

THE GOVERNMENT.

The government which the seed will establish on their own inheritance over the nations will continue as long as the seed and their inheritance exist. The government is to stand forever.—It is not to be left to other people.—It is never to be destroyed. It is to be continued as long as the sun. And of it there is to be no end. The government is provided for the people or nations, and as the government is without end, so the people or nations, for whose blessing it is ordained, must continue. Governments cannot exist longer than the subjects who are to be governed. Thus we learn that the seed, the inheritance, and the government, the means to be used for blessing the nations, are to be endless. Therefore, the blessing of the nations must continue without end.

THE NATIONS WILL ALWAYS NEED TO BE BLESSED.

The end always determines the character and the extent of the means which are necessary for its accomplishment. An endless government is provided for the nations, to bless them.—Therefore, they will always need to be blessed. This government over the nations will be given to the seed of Abraham, that all people, nations, and languages should serve him, as long as the sun and moon endure. The nations then will continue to need such a government as long as it will exist.

Every department of society needs a head, a righteous headship. Every family need a head. Every school district, every town and county, and nation needs a head. The world needs a head, a righteous Rulership, and always will need it. To meet this necessity, God has provided, that the saints shall be complete in Christ, the head of all principality and power.—Thus, the seed of Abraham, Christ and those that are Christ's, will continue a complete rulership for the world, of which rulership there shall be no end. This is the great necessity of the world. Almost in vain do we strive to reform the world, while wicked rulers bear rule.

God saw the world in ruin, gone away from him, without God and without hope. He saw it in its degradation, and wretchedness, without a righteous rulership. He saw it under the Prince of the power of the air.—He saw its every necessity, immediate and remote, he resolved to bless and save the world. He revealed his purpose in the gospel. He determined to provide for the world a righteous Rulership, which shall bless all nations.—To bless the nations as God purposed to bless them, there must be a government. This government must continue as long as the blessing is needed. It must not be destroyed. To secure this government, those who are to be rulers must live as long as the government is needed. They must have everlasting life. To secure this life, they must be raised from the dead, so that they can die no more.—To secure this resurrection, they must be accounted worthy to obtain that world, to inherit the kingdom. To secure this worthiness, they must believe the gospel. To secure this faith in the gospel, the gospel of the kingdom must be preached among all nations, to take out of them a people for his name. Thus it is that the object to bless the nations, suggests, controls, and adapts all the means of the gospel to this one end.

If unto us a child is born, a son is given, it is that the government may be upon his shoulders, and that, of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end upon the throne of David. If the gospel is preached, it is the gospel of the kingdom, which is to have no end. If faith is enjoined, it is that we may become heirs of the kingdom. If repentance is enjoined, it is in view of the kingdom. If baptism is enjoined, it is that we may become members of Christ's body, and joint heirs with him to this kingdom. If it is enjoined that we continue faithful unto death, it is that we may be worthy to obtain that world, and be associated with Christ in his throne, and have power over the nations.

Thus it is that all the means of the gospel are for the establishing of a righteous Rulership over the world, which shall have no end. Thus we have shown that the means for blessing the nations are to be perpetual, and therefore the blessings must be.—Joel A. Simonds, 1856.

Obituary.

James B. Smith was born in Logan County, Kentucky, Aug. 31, 1819; died January 9, 1898, aged 88 years, 4 months and 9 days. Married to Elizabeth Celer in 1842, afterward moved to Newton County, Missouri, and in 1861 they moved to Jefferson County, Kan., and in 1887 moved to Crawford County, Kan., where he remained until he fell asleep in Jesus. Ten children were born unto them, three died in their infancy, seven of them lived to be grown, six boys and one girl. Rasbury C. Smith died Sept. 30, 1882. William J. Smith died June 10, 1902. Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, wife of J. B. Smith, died Nov. 2, 1875. He afterward married Mrs. Elizabeth A. Carter in the year 1877. She died Jan. 23, 1892. There are five children now survive, those being Tom Smith of Cedarvale, Kan., Mary Scott of Center, New Mexico, Lum Smith and John and Bob, the three last mentioned all of Crawford Co., Kan. Uncle Jimmy as we call him, has fallen asleep in Jesus. One more less left us, making us one number less at Lightning Creek Church. How long Bro. Smith belonged to the church I have forgotten, but over 30 years at least. He was a faithful member in his time, always at his post. He has lived to a great age, 18 years on borrowed time, as David said Psa xc 10, The days of our years are three score years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be four score years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away (or he hath passed them, margin).

James iv 14, Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanishes away, or pass away, or fly away. But he has come to his grave in full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season. The dear children have lost the father, earthly parent. The grandchildren have lost their grandpa, the church one of their number, the neighbors one of their citizens. Over forty years he lived in Crawford Co., Kansas, suffered a great deal on the account of the great rebellion and with sickness and hard times. He had his share of hardships with the rest of us here on the frontier of the newly settled country, but he has gone from us. In now resting in the charnel house, the place where the bones of the dead are deposited. Our text is, "At rest," Rev xiv 13 and Job xvii 13 to end. The people showed to us the high respect they had for Uncle Jimmy, a very large funeral procession surely. Now, children and grandchildren, if you want to meet father and grandfather in the kingdom, you want to become a member of the true body or Church of God, by being adopted into God's family, become an heir of God and a joint heir with Jesus Christ, live right and when Jesus comes you will then inherit the kingdom of God and eternal life.

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above price.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Indiana Bereans, Greeting:

Brother Neill's resignation has made me your President. I wish to express to you my willingness to help you in any way that I can.

Let me urge you to continue your study and the holding of regular meetings. Great good has already been accomplished, and we must not let this work retard. Let us understand and be about our Father's business, ever keeping in mind his promise to the Little Flock.

Address me at 515 E. Pennsylvania Ave. South Bend, Ind.

May God bless and prosper your meetings.

EVELYN K. HANSEN.

THE middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so too. The price to Canadian subscriber is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, if any one refuses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

WE wish to call special attention again to a matter that may seem simple, but is quite annoying at times. Please read over your money order before putting it in the envelope, and see that it is made payable to THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Indiana. We ask you to be careful about this because quite recently we received a money order made payable to "The Presbyterian," another to "The Institution," another to "The Restitution," another the Post Master had forgotten to sign his name. Frequently orders are made to read "Plymouth, Ill., Iowa, etc." Of course the only thing we can do is to return such, and then there is the extra expense of getting a new order and sending it. This can be avoided by a little care in looking over the order before sending it. So please see to this. Also be sure and address your letter to Plymouth, Indiana. A short time ago we received a letter that had been written and sent some time before. It was addressed to Plymouth, Ill., and after laying there some time, was forwarded here, as it so happened that some one knew THE RESTITUTION was published in Plymouth, Ind.

WHEN you buy a money order see that it is made out for the amount you wish to send—that it is in favor of "THE RESTITUTION," and that the right State is named. When an order is drawn on Plymouth, Pa. or Ill. we cannot cash it, but have to send it back. Be careful and see that your post master gets it "Indiana." Don't send a lot of stamps; they get stuck together, and we cannot use them. Sometimes a person buys stamps and then has the letter registered. An order is cheaper and safer, but if you cannot get an order and must register, then put the money in, and send that.

NOTICE.

If any of the brethren desire copies of the photograph of the Illinois Conference of 1907, they may receive them by sending to E. L. Curtis, Photographer, Oregon, Ill. The price is 55 cents each. If any who have paid for their pictures have not received them please notify me at once. Address at Oregon, Ill.

EMMA L. SMITH.

Wanted.

By an experienced teacher of public and private schools, a position in private family, to teach the usual public school branches. Address Miss Lucy W. Horner, Tobaccoville, Va.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Subscribe for THE RESTITUTION to be sent to a friend. It will cost you but little—the result of seed sowing is safe in God's hands.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Br. Auer Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

W. L. SKEELS.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

NOTICE.

Information wanted concerning an Evangelist known as Blind Haynes, who traveled some years ago in Kansas, selling a pamphlet written by himself, entitled "When will Christ come?" Is he living? If so, where? Who has a copy of his book to sell, or loan for a short time? What firm published his book? Information will be thankfully received, and it is of importance.

Address, E. P. Woodward, Westbrook, Maine.

Evangelizing Notice.

The N. W. Conference has selected me again as Evangelist. The Brethren have added Arizona, and California to my field of labor. Any church or isolated brethren that want meetings during the Conference year should correspond with me at an early date so I can plan my year's work for this extensive territory which now includes western Oregon, Washington, California and Arizona.

Hereafter my home will be Scholls, Oregon, and Address, W. L. Skeels, R. D. 1, Laurel, Oregon.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Beloved, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Robt. G. Huggins, Box G. Oregon, Ill.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 420 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

A four-page tract in the German language, by Brother M. Joblin of Cleveland, O. Subject, "What Must I do to be Saved?" After getting the opinion of one who understands this language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to M. Joblin, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Piercelon, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

A few years since we were struggling to build a house of worship in this town. We had no brethren here and myself and wife, with a little outside help built the house. She donated eighty odd dollars out of her own private purse towards this building. She took boarders at a very reasonable rate to raise the money. As an appreciation of her untiring efforts along this line I have made her a present of all the profits from the sale of this book. Every lover of truth ought to have this book to read and loan to his neighbor as it teaches, and defends, the truth upon this subject. I therefore hope every reader will order one and thereby help to some degree a poor woman who has done so much for the cause we love. The house is the nicest house of worship in this town and belongs to the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. The price of this book is only 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

We need what is due us on subscriptions and trust all who know themselves to be in arrears will remember us. We appreciate the favor.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk or loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

The Throne of David.

Lord, where are now thy promises
Of old to David made?
Hast thou, O God, forgotten them,
So long they were delayed?
Thy Word was pledged, securing
His children should remain
For evermore enduring
Upon his throne to reign.

And e'en tho' they rebelling
To thee should faithless prove,
In chastising them thy promise was
Not to forget thy love—
Why then in desolation
Rest thou his throne cast down,
And in thine indignation
So long profaned his crown?

How long, Lord, shall his glory cease?
His throne in ruins lie?
How long shall he be made the spoil
Of every passer by?
Can thy covenant be broken?—
Thy faithfulness e'er fail?
Can the oath which thou hast spoken
Be, Lord, of no avail?

Lord, look upon Jerusalem,
Canst thou thy Word forget?
Thou said'st, "Mine eyes and heart shall there
Perpetually be set."
Oh! mark her desolations,
How long shall she remain
A captive midst the nations,
Bound by their cruel chain?

Israel, thine ancient people,
Like chaff before the blast,
Far from their land, an exiled race,
O'er all the world are cast;
How long wilt thou forget them?
By thy delivering hand;
Oh! gather them, and set them
Once more on their own land.

Yes, Lord, thou dost remember
The oath which thou hast sworn,
And thou dost the reproaches mark
By thy Messiah borne;
Long as thou art delaying,
Him thou at length wilt bring,
His grace and power displaying,
To reign as Israel's King.

Joy shall be thine, Jerusalem,
For David's Son shall reign,
To thee shall Israel's scattered race
Be gathered back again;
Thus as the Son of David
Shall God's own Son be known,
In Zion, o'er the saved,
To reign on David's throne.

VOLUME LVII. Read PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 5, 1908. NUMBER 5.

Selections.

The Gospel. No. 5.

Now of the things which I have written this is the sum. I have shown

That the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.

That without the gospel, and without faith in it, there can be no salvation.

That there is but one gospel. If any man preach any other gospel let him be cursed.

That the gospel had been, and is now perverted, and to the extent it is perverted the Scriptures are misunderstood.

That the belief of the gospel unites us to God, to his purpose, and plan. The belief of a perverted gospel separates us from God, from his purposes, and from his plan. Hence, the importance of our subject.

I have shown that we are to understand the gospel, just as we understand other enterprises.

1. By its purpose.

2. By the means used to accomplish that purpose.

That when we understand these two propositions, we understand the subject to which they relate. The end always suggests the means and adapts them to its accomplishment. The end is always the controlling power in any enterprise. That it is by this rule we are to understand the gospel.

1. We want to know what the object of the gospel is. What definite thing is to be accomplished by it.

2. We want to understand the means by which its object is to be reached.

In this way we may understand with certainty what the gospel is.

I have shown that Paul in his writings refers us to the promise made of God to Abraham, as the promise which was fulfilled in the resurrection of Christ, to the promise made to the fathers as the promise for which he hoped, to the promise and oath of God to Abraham, as the hope of all Christians, and as the promise which gives Christ his position as the seed of Abraham. And that this promise was the gospel, by which God would justify the heathen through faith. That therefore the gospel which Paul preached, was the gospel preached to Abraham, and that there is no other.

I have shown that this promise which Paul said was the gospel, was made to Abraham in the 12th chap. of Gen., and confirmed to him by the oath of God in the 22d chapter, and renewed to Isaac in the 26th chapter, and again renewed to Jacob in the 28th chapter. That the gospel was comprehended in this saying: "In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." That what the gospel was in the time of Abraham, was the gospel in the time of Christ, and is the gospel now.—That it cannot be changed, for God's purpose is immutable.

I have shown that the thing promised in the Gospel is,

1. That all the nations of the earth shall be blessed, as the ultimate end.

2. That the seed of Abraham shall bless all nations, as the means, or instrumentality.

That the promise to bless all nations, by the seed of Abraham, comprehends the whole of God's purpose in the gospel.—That the blessing the nations comprehends the whole of his ultimate purpose. That the seed of Abraham comprehends the whole of the means to be used for the accomplishment of that purpose. That the promise assumes that the seed will always remain one class, and that the nations will always remain another class. That the seed and the nations will always sustain the same relation to each other that they do in the promise. The seed will bless the nations, and the nations will be blessed of the seed. That the promise is unlimited, and therefore the blessing will be complete and perpetual.

I have shown that the blessing the nations will be according to what the prophets have said, that they shall learn war no more. That all nations shall serve God.—That the glory of the Lord shall fill the whole earth. That the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the whole earth as the waters do cover the sea. That the will of God will be done in earth as it is done in heaven.—That there shall be no more sickness, nor pain nor death, but curse. That God has promised to bless the nations. This is the object for which the world was made, and for which the seed was promised.

I have shown, 1. That Christ is the seed. That he was the son of David, the son of Abraham. That he took on him the seed of Abraham. That he was the seed to whom the promises were made. That his name is the only name by which man can be saved. That he gave his life for the life of the world, and therefore that Christ is the seed through whom all nations shall be blessed.

2. That those that are Christ's are also the seed of Abraham, and heirs according to the promise, and that they are joint heirs with Christ. Then, Christ and those that are Christ's are the seed.

I have shown that Christ came in his Father's name. That he was appointed and approved of God. That he loved the world so that he gave his life for the life of the world. And that because he was faithful to him that appointed him, he was raised from the dead, so that he can die no more. And that those that are Christ's, are with him, they are justified by faith.—They have purified themselves as Christ is pure, they have been faithful in a little, they have overcome, and that because they have been found worthy, they will be raised from the dead so that they can die no more. Thus the seed of Abraham will be qualified morally and physically to bless the nations according to the promise.

Christ was despised and rejected of men. He came unto his own and his own received him not. He was put to death.—He did not bless his own nation, but it became cursed. Those that are Christ's have been as sheep in the midst of wolves.—They have been hated of all nations.—They have not blessed the nations. The seed then have never occupied a position in which they could bless the nations.

I have shown that the seed will bless the nations, when they inherit the promise. They are now only heirs to the promise.—They will inherit the promise when the Lord returns from heaven, having received the kingdom. When they shall be raised from the dead. When it shall be said unto them, Come ye blessed of my Father inherit the kingdom. Then the seed will bless the nations.

I have shown that the seed will bless the nations by ruling over them. That Christ will occupy the throne of his Father David. That the government shall be upon his shoulder, and that his dominion shall be from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth. That those that are Christ's will sit down with him in his throne, and have power over the nations. Thus the seed will bless the nations by ruling over them.

I have shown that the seed will bless the nations, so as to meet all their necessities. That they will do all that the prophets have said shall be done. That they will bless them in the highest sense of blessing. They will bless them till every annoyance which they now experience is removed.—Until every curse is succeeded by a blessing. Until all nations whom God has made shall worship before him, and glorify his name. Until to him every knee shall bow and every tongue shall confess, that Jesus is Lord to the glory of God the Father.—Until all things shall be subdued unto him, and until the will of God will be done in the earth as it is in heaven. To such an extent will the seed bless the nations.

I have shown that the seed will bless the nations as long as the nations need to be blessed. That the government was provided to bless them. That therefore they will need to be blessed as long as the government exists. That the seed live to bless the nations. Therefore the nations will need to be blessed as long as the seed live. That the inheritance to which the seed are heirs, is for the blessing the nations, therefore the nations will need to be blessed as long as the inheritance lasts. That as the seed are to have eternal life, so that they can die no more, and as the inheritance is to be an eternal inheritance, a world without end, so the nations will need to be blessed, as long as the means to bless them are to be used. Therefore the seed will bless the nations as long as the seed, the inheritance, and the government exists.—As long as the sun and moon endure, throughout all ages, world without end.

THE OBJECTION SAYS,

1. That the gospel is God's purpose to bless the world. To bless it completely and perpetually, so as to meet all its necessities.

2. That the seed of Abraham are the instrumentality by which this work is to be accomplished.

3. That to accomplish this work the seed will become a righteous rulership over the world, which rulership shall have no end.

4. That every duty urged in the gospel is for this end.

If the gospel is preached, it is the gospel of the kingdom. If Christ is preached, it is done by preaching things pertaining to the kingdom. If faith is enjoined, it is that we may inherit the kingdom. If repentance, it is because of the kingdom. If baptism, it is in obedience to the gospel of the kingdom. If we suffer with Christ, it is that we may reign with him. If the Lord is to come, it is to sit upon the throne of his glory. If the resurrection, it is that we may reign, and sit with Christ, and have power over [illegible] any are Christ, and peop[illegible] they [illegible] nate Gr[illegible] —Joel A.

Moral [illegible]. No. 7.

SUBJECT OF VICE ESSENTIAL TO VIRTUE.

"There must be examples of sin and vice in sight in order that a comparatively small number of well disposed individuals may see how hateful sin is, and how misery and suffering follow as inevitable consequences the practice of sin. That the few who are striving to unfold virtuous characters can only do this by moral evil, in various forms, being conspicuous, and in tempting and alluring distance of virtues home." The good do not run the schools nor is it fitting that they should patronize them. If they conducted them they would in the nature of things be bad. And so, if they patronized them. Those who argue that sin is useful in this world as a means to a good end, and that evil a virtuous character in the few, never stop to think at what a fearful cost heaven's few favorites were put in possession of good characters. They never look at the overwhelming numbers of those who set the examples of vice, and hold out allurements calculated to make a strong pull on the moral stamina of the good. This vast aggregate of evil does you say are on the broad road to destruction, and yet you say the vices the sins and the crimes of these doomed wretches, were according to Jehovah's purpose, in harmony with his will, and needful to the one beneficent end, the salvation of the few. Ah, you theorizers who reason after this fashion have problems on your hands that the logic of Aristotle is powerless to settle. You have been piling up paradoxes. Reconcile them if you can. Are you not fearfully wrong? Wrong in saying that God created sin; wrong in saying that it is in accord with his purpose. Wrong in your efforts to show God's complicity with sin and Satan, and thus shift the responsibility to the Divine side. Wrong when you argue that the fall opened the door of knowledge to the race. Wrong when you say man would have been as destitute of character as a new born babe had sin not been introduced.

So long as men assert the usefulness of sin, so long will sin, by such a view have a measure of dignity attaching to it. What is useful ought not to be undervalued in any economic system. The saloon keeper is not much disposed to argue the usefulness of his business, but he is not slow to assert his right by legal sanction, and from this expects, accorded him, from the community a measure of respectability. But according to the theories I have been examining sin is regarded as useful and as having the sanction of Jehovah, and is thus doubly in right to carry on its business.

I have at my elbow a commentary, by Professor George Bush of New York City University. His work was first given to the public sometime prior to 1863. The Commentary is on Genesis. In giving his view of man's fall, he has this to say. "Even with our present imperfect vision, aided by the light of Christianity, we are able to discover some signal benefits arising from that catastrophe which to a superficial view might appear fraught only with fatal and unhappy consequences." These words set before us, the fall as the happy occasion for bestowing benefits on a portion, a small portion, of the race. When Mr. Bush comes to enumerate the signal benefits arising from the fall he says, "Had not Adam fallen Christ would not have redeemed mankind. Had there been no sinners, there could have been no Redeemer, and no redemption. The mercy of God, the most engaging of all his attributes, and the consummation of all his excellence, would have been unknown to the universe." True enough. No Redeemer; and no redemption needed and no mercy displayed, because no poor sinners toward whom it could be displayed. What is mercy but love extended in pity and compassion to a human creature who has by obedience forfeited all claim to God's favor—forfeited life itself. Were there no human so unfortunate then divine love would be lavished on the race obedient, and deserving of it. The fall, introducing sin into the world was the unhappy occasion for God's love to be turned on unworthy creatures and so exercised, became mercy love. Would there have been any loss to the universe if man's fall had never marred its harmony? and any loss to Jehovah because of the absence of sinners toward whom he might chose to grant pardon and life? Surely not. Or rather has there not been a tremendous loss to the race in what would have been its heritage by right of creation had not the fall changed conditions and relations? The complaint, so extensive with the reading and belief of the Bible, is that Adam was very naughty to transgress God's law, and entail upon his children "death and all our woes."

"O all the soul works of tongue and pen
The saddest are it might have been."

It is no strain on human thought to think that the race obedient would have had life extended endlessly, and every needed blessing granted to go with it by the loving Father. We can not conceive of any other than a happy condition in a world free from sin. Just think of what would be at this moment, the earth filled with an obedient population, and all praising the Great First Cause. None defiant: none, as now, quarrelling with their Maker. I think of this as a gain to Jehovah, so to speak. Sin for six thousand years has silenced the voice of praise in countless millions, and substituted cursing and bitterness in hearts that would instinctively adore the Sovereign of the universe.

Bush goes on to say that in addition to benefits and advantages arising from the fall "We.....are compensated in this way of attaining higher happiness than if our first parents had continued in their integrity." But how did Mr. Bush know this? He offers no other reason for thus concluding except this, "That the terrestrial Paradise presents only a faint image of the celestial Paradise of God?" One Commentator held the idea of a Paradise in heaven to which the immortal soul of the righteous goes at death. This is all fanciful. It would be very difficult to conceive of a more heterodox plan every way to promote man's happiness than the Paradise he lost.

A man obedient and progressive with his faculties unimpaired by sin would be as well supplied for happiness at any time in the future, as another man would possibly be who had passed through the experience of sin, and been redeemed. Adam was not destined to a Paradise in heaven and if he were there, does it surpass in beauty and loveliness the primal Paradise on earth, the abode of our first parents. The idea of enhanced happiness as the result of the fall is only a conjecture. If the Paradise in heaven(?) is so much better than the one on earth, and fitted to yield a greater amount of happiness, then it follows that there was room for improvement in the one on the earth, which improvement Jehovah would surely have made when our first parents advancement had reached the proper point for the change. Here it is pertinent to ask, Is the sick man happier after his recovery of health than he was before he became sick, when he felt that the world was created especially for his enjoyment, and how often would he wish his sickness repented? Every man desires uninterruptive health believing that the greater amount of happiness will be his as a consequence. He is not concerned about the skill of the physician, nor the kind attention of friends who in case of sickness are ready to extend the helping hand.

I believe the world at large, if it were a matter of choice would prefer uninterrupted health and die of old age, though the marvelous skill of the whole body of learned physicians and surgeons would never be known by the intelligent universe. Would the world be poorer in the absence of sickness as the "happy(?) occasion." For the display of medical and surgical skill? It is true if there never were any sinners there could be no opportunity for the display of mercy on the part of Jehovah. Did he before the fall desire the opportunity of showing mercy to a great number, and did he on the other hand desire the opportunity of exhibiting his wrath on a much greater number? It was surely not in accordance with divine goodness and love to desire, wish, or plan for the fall in order that the same divine goodness and love might execute vengeance upon the unnumbered millions of the human race; the foreknown disobedience of the great majority of Adam's children warranting the doom. The feelings of the Great Judge are reflected in a very different light from of the judges of Inquisitorial courts, who gloated over the writhing and groans of their helpless victims. Says, the Sovereign Judge "I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth; wherefore turn and live." Ezek. xviii. 32. So if Jehovah is loath to inflict retribution on those who deserve it, it is not at all reasonable that he desired the fall in order to display his mercy on such as would ask for it. He could have lavished his love on the entire race and been spared the pain, so to speak, of inflicting death on so many. Let no one imagine that virtue could not be in a world free from sin. "What is virtue, if it be not the free action of our powers according to their proper laws. The struggle with evil is only one exercise of these powers."—Hudson.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEB'Y 5, 1908.

SISTER Woodward will preach at Plymouth Church next Sunday, February 9.

THE Sunday School lesson by Brother P. Neill is late reaching us for some cause, and we are compelled to go to press without it this time

KING Carlos of Portugal, and the Crown Prince Luiz were killed by assassins at Lisbon, Feb. 1. Prince Manuel, aged 19, has been proclaimed King.

PLEASE don't send us this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robinson's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

BROTHER S. J. Lindsay held meetings at Burr Oak, Ind., the past two weeks. We are not informed as to the outcome as yet. He goes to South Bend for this week, and next week will be at Plymouth.

WE wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

A PERSONAL letter from Brother George Neill tells of a series of six meetings held about twelve miles from Woodstock, Va. where he is now located. He seems pleased with his new field of labor, and the outlook for good. However he has a warm heart for the friends in Indiana, and wishes to be remembered to all. He promises to send us reports of his work, and we assure Brother Neill and Sister Neill also, that we cherish only kind and pleasant memories of their intercourse with us, and we will always be glad to hear from you.

WORD comes from Brother W. H. Wilson telling of his work in and near St. Louis. Two had asked for baptism, other were deeply interested, they were about to organize a small Church. Brother Wilson says "God's hand is surely in this work." Not a bit of doubt about it, so press on, for soon He will come, and the Farmers will be rewarded. Remember brethren, it is not those who are "investigating" [illegible] that will uproot the faith of the weak ones of the Household; neither is it the one who goes about misrepresenting and endeavoring to undermine the character of his brother. No, no, there is no mention of reward for any such, no matter how energetic they may be. Do good to all men—do only good to men—especially do only good to those of the Household of Faith; go on your way telling the good news of the Kingdom of God, and all about the King and His promise to come again, and explain how all signs indicate that He is almost at the door, and if you do this faithfully you will hear the words "Well done" spoken, and receive an invitation to the marriage supper with the Lord. Strive on, brethren, the prize is in sight.

What is Christianity?

Why! believing the sayings of Christ and acting on that belief, of course. When a minister talks until he has worked his congregation up to a certain pitch by moving their impulses he has not given them any gospel, he has only said, if they will be Christians they will go to heaven when they die and be happy, not a word to tell them how to be Christians or subjects for eternal life. Christ says my Word shall judge you at the last day. What is some of his Word? He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved. But the minister has not said one word about belief. And as for baptism, he said it is not of any account, not at all necessary for salvation. A B. B. minister here in Dutton said that last Friday eve, and because a minister said it some believed it. Which will you believe reader, God or man? Peter says, There shall be false teachers among you.....and many shall follow their pernicious ways by reason of which the way of truth shall be evil spoken of.

We certainly have the false teachers and many are following them. Even after their timely warning, and then they wonder why we will not work with them. We have heard from those who ought to known better, such expression as this, I have been attending meeting lately, and I never knew what Christianity was before. O my friend that feeling that mastered you was not Christianity, but simply your impulses were touched, a sort of magnetic influence takes hold of people, the singing was selected purposely to move your feelings, the urgent appeals to your immortal soul (which you know is as false as Satan) has touched your impulses and you mistake that for Christianity. You have not learned one beautiful truth of God and his future for man, for what the minister has said about going to heaven is as false as that other falsehood, your immortal soul, and when he tells you all you need to do to get saved is to come forward, kneel, and pray, that or the Bible is false for listen, wherefore remember that ye being in times past Gentiles in the flesh, that at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world, Eph. ii. 11-12, why were you in such a hopeless condition. You had no knowledge of the way of salvation, we were not God's chosen people and needed much done for us to become members of his body, and his flesh and his bones—his family.

What must be done, For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. Was there any other way to put on Christ? If there was it never has been revealed to us Gentiles; and further, If ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. Now the adoption papers have been properly made. You are in God's family circle. Now you are a Christian, go on to perfection, that when Christ who is our life shall appear you may appear with him in glory.

Yours for God's way.

At the Breaking of Bread.

The fifth chapter of Romans, selected by Sister Townsend, was read, and was the occasion of excellent remarks by Brother Robison, calling attention to the connection between the last part of chapter four, and the beginning of chapter five. And to the beautiful complete and satisfactory provision that God through Jesus Christ had made for our salvation. This loving and benevolent arrangement is just suited to our needs, and admirably adapted to our make up. He then asked if all understood faith, adding that it was Abraham's unwavering faith that put life into the story that God told him—The promises.

Sister Robison brought greetings from the brethren every where they had been, also special greetings from the isolated ones. She then spoke of the great deliverance the Lord has made for us, and that the promises were given because we stood so much in need of them. They furnished food and support for our love and faith, because they expressed the love of God for us.

Sister Neill spoke on access by faith and because we had access by faith into the grace of God, we could glory in tribulations. All who had been justified by faith, and had obtained peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, had to suffer tribulation, less or more according to our surroundings. But tribulation was valuable to the believers, because it wrought patience, leading to experience and establishing hope. And hope maketh not ashamed because tribulation, patience, and experience had secured for us the love of God.

Sister Cole spoke of the hope that maketh not ashamed. A hope that so fortified us, and gave us such joy to impart to others, quoting Rom i 16. For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. We all enjoyed the services Sunday.

P. NEILL.

Dear ones in the Anointed.

It is my heart desire to be found at the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ among that "little flock" to whom the Lord of hosts shall say, "And they shall be mine" in that day when I make up my jewels. I am not only much concerned about my own eternal welfare, but also in the welfare of the Church of God, therefore I would like to bring a few thoughts on tithes or tithes giving before the brethren, which should be a very important subject to a child of God, and in order to find out what about it we must go to our dear companion the Bible. Under grace I fail to find a commandment, which tells us, Thou shall give one-tenth to the Lord, and so it can't be a commandment. But tithe giving was used even before the law was given to the children of Israel and why should we not practice the giving of tithes, when it proved to be a blessing even before the law of Moses was. Let me draw your attention to Gen xiv. where we learn of Abram who after his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer was met by Melchizedek, king of Salem, who brought forth bread and wine, and he was the priest of the Most High God. And Melchizedek blessed him and said: Blessed be Abram of the Most High God, possessor of heaven and earth, and blessed be the most High God, who hath delivered thine enemies into thy hands. And he (Abram) gave him (Melchizedek) tithes of all.

In looking closely at this instance we find that God had not yet made his covenant with Abram, the Hebrew, but as tithes were paid in God as a sign of homage and gratitude, so Abram's giving tithes of the spoil to Melchizedek, was a token that he owed his success and victory to be from God. Now brethren, when we wish to claim the inheritance, which God has promised to Abraham, it seems to me reasonable that the deeds which proved to be a blessing to Abram, the same may not be of any harm to us, in the contrary if the deeds proved to be a blessing to Abram, the same deeds acted in good faith (not commandment) will also prove a still greater blessing to the children of God.

Let me use the instance of Abram giving tithes of all to Melchizedek as a type and let us see how beautiful an anti-type we have in the partaker of the Lord's Supper. The presiding elder at the Lord's table brings forth bread and wine, which represents the Lord's broken body and shed blood and bids us the children of the most High God to partake of them in remembrance of him, till he comes. When we in return would follow the example set by [illegible] the Hebrew, and give to [illegible] elder or to the treasur[illegible]ll, what can pre[illegible] as a [illegible] dom to [illegible] member [illegible] "Greater this." [illegible] all to [illegible] us th[illegible] who w[illegible] to pay tith[illegible] But they said, [illegible] robbed thee? In tit[illegible]ings. And now hath wh[illegible] the sons of Jacob. Ye are cursed with a curse, ye have robbed me, even this whole nation, Mal. iii 8-9. But now God turns right about leaves the sons of Jacob and speaks to us his children and continues in Mal iii 10. Bring ye (who are the ye? I will answer it later) all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. Beloved in the Lord! How dare we expect God to open the windows of heaven to bless us, before we brought all the tithes to the altar of the Lord. But God does even encourage us to do so by saying, "Prove me now herewith." Brother, sister did you ever test God by giving tithes of all to him?

For answer to the question above: Who is the ye? I will quote Mal iii 16-17. Then they that "feared the Lord spake often one to another; and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before them that feared the Lord and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them as a man spareth his own son that serveth him."

Beloved do you wish your name recorded in the book of remembrance or do you wish God to bless you out of heaven's windows? I find only one way we may be able to ask the favor of God, which is by bringing all our tithes into the storehouse of our God! Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I (Paul) have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, 1 Cor xvi 1-2. It seems to me that Paul exhorts us still to do more for the Lord than one tenth, but when we start out on our race set before us, we should pay tithes to the Lord. In other words. The church of God should have a standard in giving, which like Abram of old would be one-tenth, and then as God do prosper us, to increase the amount even if it would reach one-half of our income. If we would do this, then it would be true, There is meat in my house and to spare. But as we are neglecting our duty to God in giving tithes, is it any wonder that our treasury is empty, or that no work, no not even improvements can be done in the service of our Lord and Master?

May these few lines which have been submitted with all the love of God be received in the same manner as given and may the dear Lord add his blessing thereto, is the humble prayer of your brother in the Anointed.

Our Love Feast Letters.

Dear Restitution:

Christmas greetings, "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all people, for unto you is born this day in the City of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. And suddenly there was with Gabriel a multitude of the heavenly host singing and praising God, saying: "Peace and good will to man, and glory to God in the highest." Well might they sing peace and good will, for there lay cradled in the manger the Prince of Peace. Well might they say glory to God, for there lay slumbering in the manger the Redeemer of the world. Well might they say glory to God in the highest, for there lay cradled King of Kings, and Lord of lords.

Well might the shepherds say: "Let us go quickly and see this thing that has come to pass, and they found it even as the angels said; the babe wrapped in swadling clothes and lying in a manger.

See, how the wise men are coming, from that far off land, directed by the finger of God, which appears to them as a guiding star, till it stands over the lowly place where the young child was born. Well may they pour out their royal treasures before Him and offer before Him this kingly gift, their frankincense and myrrh with their precious gems, as the nations shall do when He sits King of kings in the Holy City at Jerusalem; for the gates of that city shall not be shut by day, for we read that there shall be no night there. And they bring their gold and silver and precious gems, and pour them down at His feet. The gems that adorn many a monarch's crown, shall yet be brought and offered before the mighty Monarch who sitteth upon the throne.

Well might the angels repeat strain after strain of this sweet anthem, for the King of kings and Lord of lords, hath been born.

I believe this angelic host mingling with the saints, sing and praise God anew each Christmas day, saying, glory to God in the highest, peace on earth, good will to men, for unto us a child is born, and unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon His shoulders, and He shall be called Wonderful Councellor, of the Mighty God, of the everlasting Father, the Prince of peace.

See again this mighty host led by Gabriel, Michael, and Rahpiel, joined by the redeemed of all ages.—Heaven and earth are filled with their sweet songs of praise, as they say: "Let us be glad and rejoice, for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready."

"Yea the great coronation day hath come, the day for which all other days were made."

The angels are now making this wondrous crown of glory, which shall adorn the brow of Him who shall sit upon the throne, King of kings, and Lord of lords, before whom [illegible] monarchs of earth shall bow.

Brethren, let us be ready with our robes pure and white, for we have all been invited to attend the coronation of the great King Immanuel.

Yours looking for the soon coming King. Your Sister.

MRS. ELLA DWIGGINS.

Dear Old Restitution:

Never in the history of the world has there been so many reasons for Christian people to rejoice and be glad as at the present moment. Nineteen hundred years ago the angels joined with the people in rejoicing because a Savior had been born. Thirty-three years and a-half later, the rejoicing of people from all nations of the world, ascended to the throne of God. Multitudes upon multitudes rent the air with their shouts in response to the glad words of Peter, on that pentecostal day. What a grand and glorious beginning was made by Peter and his co-laborers when the three thousand, made up of both Jews and Gentiles, made the good confession by publicly acknowledging that Jesus was the Redeemer of the world. The great proclamation made by Peter, on that occasion still stands firm as the everlasting hills. Let us continue to rejoice.

R. S. DWIGGINS.

Dear Brothers and sisters:

We were so happy to hear of you, and your good works once more through THE RESTITUTION. May God bless your sweet hearts, for writing those loving letters, and precious sermons. How they lift me up, and make us to sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. We are still striving against sin, and hope by the grace of God through our Lord and Savior, to meet you all in his soon coming kingdom.

Sincerely your brother & sister.

P. C. MYERS.

Dear Res. Continued:

Enclosed please find money order to pay for THE RESTITUTION for 1908, also one dollar to add to the supply fund for those who are not so situated as to be enabled to pay for the paper. I wish the year 1908 will be a more prosperous year than any previous year. May God bless you all who so earnestly are working to spread the good news. This is the prayer of your sincere Sister in Christ.

NELLIE SAMUELS.

Dear Restitution:

Enclosed please find a money order for one dollar and fifty cents for which please renew my paper for this year. I feel as though I cannot do without the dear old RESTITUTION, it is so much pleasure to me to read it.

We read in Matthew vii. 14. Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there are that find it. May I so live that I will be counted as one among the few.

I remain your Sister waiting for the second coming of Christ.

MISS NELLIE ROGERS.

Dear ones of like Precious Faith:

This is somewhat late for your Love Feast, but we often hear the remark, Better late than never. We have enjoyed a feast of good sermons here by Bro. Hudler, but he has been called back to Tennessee to further [illegible] and immerse a number who have become interested under his preaching a few months ago. I love to read of still others being immersed into Christ. For ye are then Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. I often think of you all and pray that every one may continue faithful until Jesus comes. He is not coming as a thief in the night to those that are looking for him. But ye are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of light and the children of the day. We are not of the night nor of darkness, therefore let us not sleep as do others, but let us watch and be sober. For God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him, wherefore comfort yourselves together and edify one another even as also ye do. I close begging an interest in your prayers. A sister.

MRS. C. W. EASLEY.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed you will find an order to set my subscription abroad another year. The 14th of January I was of age—three score and ten. I have read your paper a good many years, and prize it so much I would not know very well how to get along without it. I should miss it very much, as it is all the preacher of the gospel that I have recourse to except the Bible. I pray the Lord will bless you in your work.

Your Brother in hope,

THOS. F. RICE.

(The following letter was belated by being "miss sent," and is now nearly a month old.)

Dear Brother Underwood:

Yours of recent date was duly received. Very sorry to hear of your sickness, and trust you will have a speedy restoration to health and strength. Sickness disarranges all our plans and we must abandon for a time the work in which we are engaged. Yet at such times we see more clearly the grandeur of the Christian hope, which looks beyond all these discouraging conditions to the time when "mortality will be swallowed up of life," when "this vile body will be changed and fashioned like unto his glorious body." Then can we with patience endure the afflictions of life. It is only when sickness and distress come that we can appreciate the blessings of health and physical vigor, and can look forward with trust and confidence to the time when we shall be delivered from sickness and the fear of death.

Oh, that we might all be ready for the Master's coming, and the fulfilment of those blessed promises which our Father in his mercy has given to those who love and obey him.

How I wish our people would adopt the tithing system; then there would be funds to spare, and our ministers would have support, and our religious papers would have no occasion to be constantly calling for relief.

Please publish the following short obituary notice:

Died, at the home of A. L. Corbaley near Waterville, Wash., the infant daughter of Brother and Sister J. B. Shepherd, aged seventeen days. Some words of consolation were spoken by the writer from God's Holy Word.

Your Brother in Christ,

A. L. CORBALEY

Dear brothers and sisters:

I will say in all that I am well and still enjoy reading THE RESTITUTION very much. I am poor in this world's goods, but rich in faith. I have taken the paper so long I cannot think of doing without it, and I thank you for continuing it to me.

Your Brother waiting.

G. W. SMITH.

Dear Restitution:

I send you New Year's greeting and all the loved ones of the precious faith. I am very lonely since my dear husband passed away eight months ago. He loved the paper so much. His suffering was terrible, having cancers of the face for fourteen years. One eye was out. He would read the paper when only a line or two at a time. He was patient and kind to the last as a Christian. He showed to the world what a Christian could bear. I ask for your prayers that I to may be faithful. Yours in Christian love.

P. NEILL.

Dear Restitution:

Amid the trials and pressing sorrows of this life, and the scoffing and wickedness of these last days, we still hold fast to the faith and blessed hope of the appearing of the Life Giver. We have been separated from those of like precious faith for many years and long for the association of those who know the truth and walk in its light. Dear ones, let us keep ourselves unspotted from the world, that we may be accounted worthy to receive a crown of immortality.

MR. & MRS. C. W. RUSSELL.

Brethren, beloved in the Lord:

I thought I would join my little mite with the love feast after so long a time. I wish you a happy Christmas and a loving New Year. I may be a little late, but Christ says, "He that is first shall be last, and he that is last shall be first." Dear brothers and sisters, how it cheers my heart to hear from the dear ones of the one faith and true gospel. I am always glad to read the kind letters from each and every one of you. It does me lots of good as we have no preaching here now. I must speak of our conference we had last fall. It was the best meeting I ever attended. There are our ministers, I must speak of them, Brother Wilson, Brother Conner, and Brother Lindsey. I am glad to hear of the good they are doing, preaching the gospel to a dying world. Now all you young people who have started on your journey, stand firm and be unmovable till Christ comes. For my part I am trying to serve my Master and doing what I can.

Your Sister in Christ.

MRS. R. C. ELLIOTT.

Editor Restitution:

I enclose post office order for $2.00, the balance over my subscription you may put to any use you deem proper. I am now advanced in years, and an old subscriber to THE RESTITUTION, yet I find it more interesting than ever, and always in accord with the "sure word of prophecy." Our Heavenly Father will surely prosper your efforts for good.

Yours very truly,

J. MORRISON.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed find an order to pay for the paper to be sent to the person named. May God bless the message which THE RESTITUTION carries to those who do not yet believe.

Yours in the faith.

The Revelation of Christ.

ADONAI YAHWEH, (he shall be Rulers) One of the names of Christ.

Exalted on the Mount Zion,
Adonai Yahweh stands,
Of Judah's tribe the lion!
Her armies he commands.

He comes to break oppressions,
To set his captives free,
To pardon their transgressions,
To seal their liberty.

He comes to rule the nations,
In judgment and in might,
The captains of salvations,
The Lord of life and light.

The roaring of his ire,
The heavens and earth shall hear;
Hailstones, and coals of fire,
Shall fill the world with fear.

Upon his flesh of weakness,
The Spirit-Dove came down,
To preach, in words of meekness,
The gospel of his name.

Now, as a Son of power,
The Spirit-Lord appears,
And as the day rise her dower,
He puts away her tears.

In the streets of Edom
Her wounds fell,
Revealing things long hidden,
To his own Israel.

Now his quick tones of thunder,
Which haughty ear shall know,
And all shepherds wonder,
And perish, wailing woe.

Once, in a still, small voice,
He taught the ways of peace,
And bade "the poor" rejoice,
In hope of sin's release.

Now, as the sound of waters,
He speaks, and it is done;
He buries his arms for slaughters,
The living Man of one;

The One, of his creation,
The One he died to save
From death and hell's damnation—
The victor o'er the grave.

The children of the like-mess,
The brethren of his name,
The body of his brightness,
Instinct with burning flame.

The first fruits of his passion,
The purchase of his blood,
The martyrs of confession,
The kings and priests for God.

Sing, ye redeemed, his praises,
Hail Jesus, King of kings!
His glory your defence is,
His strength, your shadowing wings.

His righteousness possessing,
Adonai of the East!
Yours is the house of blessing,
Yours is the marriage feast.

Be Ye Perfectly Joined Together.

After Paul had planted the gospel at Corinth and had departed, there arose divisions among them. Some even denying the resurrection and bringing in other heresies, until word was sent to the apostle which resulted in his writing this letter. It seems very strange that those whom the apostle had begotten through the gospel should so soon depart from the faith. We find the fleshly mind the same every where and in all ages of the world. Jesus said to Peter when he confessed that Jesus was, "The Christ the Son of the living God. Blessed art thou Simon Barjona, flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but my Father who art in heaven." This confession was perfectly joined to God our heavenly Father. Paul expresses this truth more fully in Eph iv., in which he speaks of the oneness of the body, by stating that there is one body and one Spirit, one hope of your calling, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of us all who is above all, and through and in you all. He further states that we should be no more children tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive. But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ. From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compact by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love. In this chapter Paul gives us a measure that we may well apply to ourselves as individual members of the body of which Christ is the head. Our lives and our faith must be perfectly joined to the head, even the Christ. In John xvii, Jesus says, I have given unto them the words (the words of the kingdom) which thou gavest me, and they have received them and have known surely that I came out from thee and they have believed that thou didst send me. To be perfectly joined we must have the faith and the works which are joined together and compacted. The religious world has copied the moral principles of the Christ and they live them and are like the young man who came to Christ with the question, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life? They can accept only one side of the question, and depend on their moral life to assure them eternal life. When the eternal One revealed himself to Abraham, Gen xvii 1, He commanded him to "walk before me, and be thou perfect," (margin, upright, sincere). To be perfect then is to walk before God and be upright and sincere. The religious world wants to be perfect through their morals, such they cannot be. First they must be perfectly joined to God by the faith of Abraham, and then walk thus before him. Righteousness was counted to him by faith. Paul says Abraham believed God. John says if we receive the witness of men the witness of God is greater. If we accept not the witness of God we have made him a liar.

In this Scripture we can see the importance of receiving the gospel of the kingdom of God which Paul declares to be the power of God unto the salvation of every one that believeth. It matters not how perfect and seemingly strong is the building that we construct if it is not built on the covenants of promise, it has a sand foundation and cannot stand. We may begin building on this foundation and take to ourselves heresies that will nullify the gospel as did many of the body at Corinth. We are admonished to take heed how we build. Paul likens the body of Christ to the human body. Now if the human body receives adulterated foods and poisons it will become weak and enfeebled. It will finally become so filled with impure blood that disease becomes settled in every organ until death ends all.

With this thought before us should we not exercise care as to what we believe and how we live? Why should we as God's children differ from the world? Peter says, Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should show forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light. We have been chosen because of our fitness to fill the position in God's kingdom. Jesus was chosen as the supreme ruler and put on trial. He proved himself loyal on all occasions. His testimony is that he always did the things that pleased his heavenly Father. In 1 Cor vi 2 Paul states, Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? If the world shall be judged by you are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters? He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of the Lord.

If we cannot judge between truth and error will God select us as a ruler in his future government? We are admonished to give heed how we hear and what we hear. If we have the faith of Christ and add to it the Christian graces they make us that we shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. What a beautiful figure we have in John xv. I am the true vine and my Father is the husbandman, (vine dresser). Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away. Now we are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you. As the vine draws nutritious matter from the soil in which it has been planted so must we draw our strength to live from the soil in which we have been planted. We are expected to do more than this. We must create largely the atmosphere in which we live.

As followers of the Christ we cannot breathe this atmosphere polluted by false doctrines and the traditions of our fathers. It requires more strength to live an isolated life than one connected with those of like precious faith. Which ever may be our position we must walk with God. Where there are two or three who have named the name of Christ, they should meet and show to the world that they are the children of God. You should not forsake the assembling of yourselves together as the habit of some is. There are many helps along the way if we but apply them. Bible study is one of them. We should study the word to show ourselves approved of God, not for the purpose of whipping those around us. Some hold the truth in unrighteousness. In conclusion let us admonish you to be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment. Your Bro. in the hope of a perfect unity.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 41.

Auntie Willard went home, found her Bible class in waiting and spent an hour and a-half most pleasantly with her interested listeners. A precious little company then gathered around the table of the Lord, and partook of the sacred emblems of his broken body and shed blood, and were greatly blessed. A union prayer-meeting was then held in Summit Hall, and thus closed Lord's day—Sept. 15—1861.

The 17th, another prayer-meeting was held at the house of Mr. Symptkins, and a real Gideon Victory was given to Auntie Willard. The rain was falling fast and something seemed to whisper in her ear, "Now is your time, no one will be there to-night, and I will give you the victory. Go in this thy might and thou shalt prevail."

She sat down alone, telling her dear little Bowley to come soon. She said "his feet were like lead's feet, so tight was she in view of the victory that was to be hers." "Glory be to Heaven's King" was on her tongue continually.

She "found the family at tea, but almost a shout of joy was her reception." She says, "I had never seen them so glad to meet me before. And said, "We are going to have a blessing to-night!" "Yes," replied Mrs. Symptkins "I have felt it all day." But, let Auntie Willard tell the story herself. She says, "I told Mr. Symptkins, I should hear his voice to-night. His son in-law, a believer, was there, also Rachel Taylor, whom I had taken as a daughter—Bowley, and two of their youngest children, and just as we were singing the last verse of a hymn, selected by Mr. Symptkins, one of the young men, who sat up all the time at a former meeting, came in.

The hymn began—

"Come let us use the grace divine,
And all with one accord,
In a perpetual covenant join,
Ourselves unto the Lord."

I then read the three last verses in the third chapter of Malachi and knelt to pray, my prayer being little more than a pouring out of my soul to God in the assurance that He was with us, and would open the mouth of whomsoever He pleased. Then Mr. Symptkins opened his mouth. "He 'blessed God that he had praying neighbors who could not bear to see him lost.' Confessed how the had resisted their entreaties to call upon His holy name' and how 'he had at last made up his mind, if he ever had another opportunity, he would not slight it,' then 'it had rested with such great weight upon his mind,' etc. He then repeated the second verse of the song sung—

"Give up ourselves through Jesus power
His name to glorify,
And promise in this sacred hour,
For God to live and die."

He had great liberty and prayed at considerable length. His poor wife shouted as he began but maintained her equilibrium all through. The son-in-law followed in a most feeling manner, then Mrs. Symptkins, and great were her ecstasies. The children then joined with me in the Lord's prayer. Then I offered thanksgiving to God for what he had done for us, and also prayed with great freedom, for the first time for the young man sitting up. As we all rose I gave Mr. S "My heart and hand, to meet him in the better land," then gave my hand to the sitting up young man, and begged him to come to Christ, saying "Wont you come in Christ, my young friend? Wont you come to Christ?"

Before I got around Mr. Symptkins set up a beautiful hymn. Then I rehearsed the call of Gideon, and the victory, closing with, "I am glad it rained to-night for had it not, this room would have been full and they would have said, 'It is because we are all here that he prayed,' and now as there is no one here the praise will go just where it belongs,—All to God." They all shouted assent and we dispersed praising the Lord. The young man wished to borrow one of our hymn-books so we made inroads into the enemies' camp. O praise the God of Jacob! We felt that Mr. Symptkins was given us in answer to prayer; that the demon was cast out to enter no more into him. God's honor was at stake and He had vindicated it for his children who trusted in him and confessed his words before a gainsaying people."

But little more is recorded in Auntie Willard's diary about this Brother Symptkins, but there is enough to show us that "the hand of the Lord is not shortened that he cannot save." And "that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation unto every one that believeth." Jesus can indeed "save to the uttermost all who come unto God through him." It is only because we do not work in faith and long patience that we do not save more of those who have sunk into the very depths of sin.

The latter part of 1863, and the early days of 1864 found Bro. Symptkins, "declining very rapidly" but with "hope in God, that he would be saved." He had been made our brother by Christ's all-atoning blood. His repentance and faith had been real; there being no record of any after fall. He died Jan. 11, 1864, giving the dear ones gathered around his bedside, "his heart and hand, to meet them in the better land." Auntie Willard, looked upon him "as a brand plucked from the burning." How significant the words!

She "praised God for the hope of the resurrection as she gazed down into the cold grave upon the lifeless form, as they closed it up." "I am the resurrection and the life," and "Behold I come quickly!" was her consolation as she turned away, and left Bro. Symptkins to rest until Gabriel's trump shall call him forth on that glad day. Of the after history of the family there is no record.

Shall we read one more in this precious diary? I love to turn its pages. The story of that prayerful, devoted life, so full of unceasing, loving service for the Master, rebukes me and shows me how far I have come short in doing the work in the vineyard that my Lord left for me to do. How indolent, how cowardly, I have been, when brought face to face with such poor lost sinners as she sought and saved! Will God ever forgive me?

But—You want to read the story of "the out law"—the man who threatened to burn Auntie Willard's home when she first went to Hammonton.

Auntie Willard says, "He was about 30 years of old. Had a wife much older than himself who had children nearly as old as he was. Yet she was smart and good-looking and had seen good days, but knew nothing of the love of Christ in her heart. I went to the house in God's fear. Found the man at home but on the last approaches as he was tired. [illegible] to a call from his wife b[illegible] He was perfectly so[illegible]thing for several [illegible]told them b[illegible]s, and [illegible]ot Script[illegible]n. I had gr[illegible]ssurance at fo[illegible] I felt my [illegible]hen at t[illegible]n and co[illegible]my God love[illegible]lived with me a p[illegible]nister, during which t[illegible]emed to repent of her sin[illegible]e very ig[illegible] norant, not knowing even her letters, and now seemed as reckless as before.

When I started to leave they all asked me to come again, which I gladly promised to do the next week. Thus I practiced all summer, taking my charts and reading and talking as the spirit gave me utterance. The man drank not a drop during this whole time, not even stopping work on the fourth of July. I went twice that week fearing that he might be led off, yet all was well. One night my dear Sister S., went with me. I felt at this time the greatest desire that they should express their thoughts in prayers, but, they were silent and we finally left. But my heart was so sad and heavy, that I told Sister S. my feelings when we were but a little way from the door. She urged that "we go back and tell them just how I felt, and that I could not leave them without hearing their voices in prayer." We did so, and with tears I entreated them to join with me, if only in the Lord's prayer. We dropped upon our knees and did indeed mingle our voices as well as our tears before the Lord, and I truly left with hope.

AUNTIE WILLARD.

From Arkansas.

Sitting all alone in my office looking out at the falling snow through my window, I thought of those of like precious faith scattered throughout the country, and felt that I would like to say a word to them through the dear old RESTITUTION.

The years are rolling by, and as they pass, one by one of the old soldiers of the cross fall asleep. Our time will soon come. But it is glorious to think that our sleep will be short. It is so sad to read of the death of one of like faith for there are so few of us, and it seems that our preachers are all growing old. Have we no young preachers coming on to take the place of the old ones?

If not, is the Church of God doing its duty? In all this beautiful southland, there is not one of the faith that is devoting his time to the preaching of the gospel. Some how all of the faith are poor so far as this world's goods are concerned. There are thousands in this part of the country who never heard of the gospel of the kingdom. What a field for missionary work. It does look to me like the Church of God could keep at least one man in the field in this part of the country. The thought struck me last year, that if each member of the church would only give one dollar, it would support my family while I preached the word. I made the proposition through THE RESTITUTION and was assured the brethren would respond, I went to work. But only a few responded, I sent the dollar back to the sender with a few exceptions. But while I was in the work, I converted some to the truth. Among them was Elder Weaver of the Second Adventist faith, a fine speaker; a man of good character and a deep thinker. But like the rest of us, poor. But I have not entirely quit. I am still working as I can, and as my health will permit. I have been in bad health for some time. Was taken down in September 1907, with a bad case of pernicious abcess. A surgeon was called, and an operation performed, but the place was never healed, and another operation is the only remedy, but I am not able to have it done. I have been preaching all I could however under the circumstances. In Dec., I held a four days discussion with a disciple preacher on the kingdom of God, and the nature of man. While he was very unfair and ungentlemanly, some good was done. On the fourth Sunday in each month I have been preaching at Havana, Ark., a little town on the rail road where we have a number of scattering brethren. Here we have succeeded in leading quite a few into the truth. On the first Sunday in each month, when able to get there, I preached at another place where I have led a few to see the truth, and among them a "Hard Shell Baptist" preacher. He was once the most prejudiced man I ever saw, but he would come to hear, and come to fight. Finally he was present when I preached upon this subject of the kingdom. My text was, "Behold a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment." The Lord gave me great liberty, and at the close, with tears in his eyes, he came to me and said, "Doctor, that certainly is the truth." Since then he has come out openly and boldly for the truth. On the third Sunday, I have been preaching at Waveland, Ark. Some time ago, I received a letter from that place wanting me to come and baptize some parties. I took the train and went. Found two young men ready for baptism. I found them well instructed in the "things pertaining to the kingdom of God," and after making the "good confession before many witnesses," I buried them with Christ in baptism.

A few days later, I received another letter wanting me to come back and baptize some more. I went, and this time there were two young ladies ready for baptism. I found them well informed, and buried them also in baptism. A few weeks ago, I received a letter from Chismville, Ark., wanting me to come to that place and baptize a young man, but circumstances were such I could not go. The cry comes from many places, "Come over and help us." But for want of means and health, I cannot go. What a field, if there was only an opendoor. It seems that the people want the truth, but there is no one to tell it to them. I fear brethren, we are not doing our duty. Is it not the duty of the church to preach the gospel? Is it not as much one members duty to preach the gospel as another? If we cannot preach with our tongues, we can preach with our means. Just a little from all, would keep some one in the field all the time. God is now visiting the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name, and the gospel is his means of calling them out. If we would do our duty, we would have some young men coming on to take our place. I love to tell the story of Jesus and his love. I love to preach the "glad tidings of the kingdom of God," and had I the means I would certainly do it. I don't say it boastingly brethren, God forbid that I should, but I have preached it without money and without price, in this part of the country, and have converted most all of the faith here. And when I think of the many I have converted to the truth, I rejoice and give God the glory. I am now fifty years old, and it would be the happiest thought of my life, if I could devote the balance of my days preaching the Word. In a future article I will tell you of the churches here and the house of worship we have built.

Mrs. Daniel requests me to say to the brethren, that if any of them have ordered the Daniel-Cargile debate, and failed to get it, to let her know, as she is very anxious that all should get it. Pray for us brethren. Your Brother in Him.

T. J. DANIEL.

Obituary.

Merritt Elliott was born in Winnebago Co. Ill., Dec. 6, 1845. Died at his home in Central Point, Oregon, Jan. 17, 1908. Aged 62 years 1 month and 13 days. When but a lad of 16 years Bro. Elliott enlisted in the cause of country on the 12th day of Dec. 1863, as Private in Company A. 12 Ill., Cavalry and served to the end of the war. He was raised in the Abrahamic faith and showed his willingness to obey the truth by being baptized when only 19 years of age.

Bro. Elliott was united in marriage to Miss Ella Stevenson Aug. 1868. To this union was born four children, Zudah, Elva, Cora and J. P. Elliott. Sister Elliot died Aug. 23, 1875. Bro. Elliott was again united in marriage to Miss Melissa Kelso. To this union was born two children, Mable and Mildred Elliott. Bro. Elliott was a kind and devoted husband, a loving father, a true and faithful Christian, although sorely afflicted for a number of years previous to his death he never faltered in his belief. He was patient, kind and loving to the end, always looking forward to the time when his frail and pain worn body would be changed and fashioned like his Redeemer's immortal glorious Body. He has been the means of bringing many to see the truth and has been the leader of the little flock of believers here ever since they were organized, and now that the enemy death has taken him from us we feel almost like sheep without a shepherd. As we saw the funeral train bare him away 'mid the stars and stripes, and a multitude of sorrowing friends and relatives we realized how bravely he had fought two great battles, the battle for his country, and of life. We believe he could say with Paul, I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the Righteous Judge shall give me at that day: and not to me only but unto all them that love his appearing. Bro. Elliott leaves a widow and four children, Mrs. T. M. Jones, Mrs. Joseph Hoogland, Miss Mildred Elliott all of Central Point, and J. P. Elliott of Tacoma Washington, 18 grand children, and a host of friends to mourn his loss. May we not forget the lesson of endurance he has taught us and strive to meet him in the kingdom of God when Jesus comes is our prayer. MR. & MRS. J. C. WILSON.

QUESTIONS.

1 Who conspired against Christ?
2 Why was Christ's betrayal necessary?
3 Why did Judas betray him?
4 Of what significance is the betrayal price?
5 Knowing the trial that was awaiting him, why did Jesus pray that the cup might pass?

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 806 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

AN OUTLINE OF GOD'S PURPOSE.

NUMBER SEVEN.

1 The Eternal One—Almighty God, All Shaddai. All reveals himself to Abraham, Gen xvii. I am the Almighty God. Abram's name changed to Abraham.
2 The promise enlarged, Gen xvii 5-9
3 Abraham's character. Walk thou before me; be thou perfect, upright, sincere.
4 Isaac promised. Abraham's faith, Rom iv 19-22, Heb xi 17 19.
5 Faith counted to Abraham for righteousness, Rom iv 3-15.
6 Isaac and Ishmael. Their blessings, Gen xvii 19 and 21, Gen xvii 20.
7 The two blessings compared.

QUESTIONS.

1 Define Bethel, Peniel, Immanuel—
2 Note Bethel, Bethsail, Peniel, Penuel, Immanuel, Immanuel.
3 How are these names associated with the revelation of Almighty God (All Shaddai), to Abraham, Gen xvii 1.
4 Distinguish between Abram and Abraham.
5 What did God require of Abraham.
6 Describe Abraham's faith. Heb xi.
7 Compare Isaac's and Ishmael's promise.
8 In what respect was Isaac's blessing like that of Christ.

NUMBER EIGHT.

1 Abraham's trial: Isaac offered, Gen xxi.
2 God's purpose in directing this.
3 The resurrection taught.
4 The free woman, Gal iv.
5 The bond woman, Gal iv.
6 Isaac's marriage.
7 Forbidden to marry an alien.
8 Rebecca—trace her genealogy.

QUESTIONS.

1 Describe Abraham's trial in the offering of Isaac.
2 What does "I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heavens, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore" mean?
3 To what seed does Gal here refer?
4 Why would not God accept Ishmael as the one through whom the seed should be called?
5 Who is the free woman, and what promise came through her?
6 Who is the bond woman, and what blessing came through her?
7 What lesson of faith do we learn from these two characters?

REMARKS.

This is a very important lesson. It gives us an insight into Abraham's faith. Paul says "His faith was counted to him for righteousness." Abraham was required to walk with God. To be perfect; that is to be upright, sincere. There is an element in his faith which is truly commendable. While he as yet had no son and his body dead, and Sarah barren, he was asked to believe that his seed should become as numerous as the stars of heaven, and as the sand on the sea shore. God taught him this by giving him a son in his old age. This was a pledge to Abraham that his seed should become numerous. This faith did not allude to his fleshy seed but to his spiritual seed.

This promise was made through Isaac, whom Paul declared was born after the Spirit. His fleshy seed was to serve in Egypt four hundred years, after which they would be brought out and given the land under the promise that they would be obedient to God's commands, Ex xix 5. Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice, indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people, for all the earth is mine.

The fleshy seed had their opportunity, and like Adam lost. The kingdom of God will not be restored to them. It requires some study and care to separate the promises made spiritual and fleshy Israel. Abraham's supreme test brought to him the promise written in Gen xxii 16 17 18.

By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, because thou hast done this thing, and hast not with held thy son, thine only son; that in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies. And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice.

This promise was made because of obedience. This seed was counted through Isaac and Jacob, and terminated in Christ. Gal iii 8 16 29. You should study carefully from iv and ix Gal iii and iv.

D. C. Robison.

Have Patience.

Learn to put a right construction on all God's dealings with his church and with thy soul. With regard to his church, there may be a time wherein thou shalt see it not only tossed, but, to thy thinking, covered and swallowed up with tears; but wait a little, it shall arrive safe. This is a common stumbling-stone, but walk by the light of the Word, and the eye of faith looking on it, and thou shalt pass by and not stumble at it.

The Church mourns, and Babylon sings—sits as a queen; but for how long? She shall come down and sit in the dust; and Zion shall be glorious, and put on her beautiful garments, while Babylon shall not look for another revolution to raise her again; no, she shall never rise. "And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence, shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all." Rev. xviii. 21.

Be not hasty; take God's work together and do not judge of it by parcels. It is indeed wisdom and righteousness, but we shall best discern the beauty of it, when we look on it in frame, when it shall be fully completed and finished, and our eyes enlightened to take a fuller and clearer view of it, than we can have here. Oh, what wonder, what endless wondering will it then command.—Leighton.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners reques'. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

W. L. Seekels.

Evangelizing Notice.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Beloved, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart into you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Robt. G. Huggins, Box 6, Oregon, Ill.

NOTICE.

If any of the brethren desire copies of the photographs of the Illinois Conference of 1887, they may receive them by sending to E. L. Curtis, Photographer, Oregon, Ill. The price is 35 cents each. If any who have paid for their pictures have not received them please notify me at once. Address at Oregon, Ill.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs. Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Poore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Poore, at 2013 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in ab envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 966 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have an arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance houses will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the best Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. Daniel.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 626 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, sets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid on us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of paper when ordering books and tracts, and for from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

The "Crown of Glory."
1 Peter v. 4.

The warrior round his temple,
May bind the laurel wreath,
A curse is on its greenness,
The curse of blood and death;
A blight will quickly wither,
The fairest wreath of bay,
But the Christian's "Crown of Glory"
Will never fade away.

On the brow of earthly monarchs
May sparkle many a gem,
And gold, and pearls, and jewels,
May deck their diadem;
It shines with earthly lustre
It will tarnish and decay
But the Christian's "Crown of Glory"
Will never fade away.

How proud the mighty Conquerors
Crowned in Olympic games,
They deemed that deathless honors
Entwined around their names;
But decay attends the parsley wreath,
The olive and the bay,
But the Christian's "Crown of Glory"
Will never fade away.

With angel harp of melody
And palm branch in his hand,
The saints 'mid circling spirits, round
The sapphire throne shall stand.
His song shall be enduring
As heaven's eternal day,
For the Victor's "Crown of Glory"
Will never fade away.

Life's storms are o'er forever,
His earthly course is run,
He's passed death's icy river,
His Master says, Well done;
Come join the heavenly harpers,
Redemption's story play
For the blood bought "Crown of Glory"
Shall never fade away.

Christ's Pre-Existence.

The writer has been an advocate of the pre-existence of Christ, for a number of years. He recognizes that much that was written under inspiration, of Christ to come, was merely prophetic. But he also recognizes that there are texts that cannot be disposed of on the theory of prophetic imputation, without doing serious violence to the obvious meaning of language and words. And he sincerely believes the subject to be a vital one, in its relation to the plan of salvation.

With this introduction to the RESTITUTION family, whose enjoyable and profitable acquaintance he has but just recently been privileged to form, he desires to submit a few of those texts in support and defense of the position that Christ actually existed previous to his incarnation, not merely prophetically but personally.

In John vi 62, Jesus says, "What and if ye shall see the Son of Man ascend up where he was before?" In the same chapter he had assured them that he "came down from heaven." John vi 38. If Christ was not in heaven personally before he came to earth, he was not there at all in any sense, and his hearers were deceived. If a man should tell me that England was his home, and that he came from England, and that he was going back to England, and then I should discover that he had never been to England at all in his whole life time, but that he just had the promise of going to England, I would lose all confidence in that man, and class him with deceivers, because he might have told me the truth. Jesus could as easily merely have said "what and if ye shall see the Son of Man ascend up," and then paused without adding "where he was before." If he had never been there. This text can not be taken prophetically, because it points backward instead of forward.

In 2 Cor viii 9, Paul says, "For ye know the grace (favor, condescension) of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty, might be rich." If Christ's first actual existence was in poverty, and he did not exist previous to this time, and choose this poverty for himself, this text might better be blotted from the sacred page. If he did not come as a sacrifice, as well as a sacrifice, he already half stripped of the credit and honor which his redemptive work entitles him to. If Christ was not pre-existent, he left no riches to come here. Then he sacrificed absolutely nothing for our sake, up to the cross. His life of obedience prior to that time was for himself. Then it was not true that he became poor for us, if the poverty of his earthly life was his first and only experience of things. Neither are we able to apply this text prophetically, because it also points back instead of forward.

In 1 Pet i 10, 11, Peter says, "Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you. Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow." It was not the Spirit of Christ in the sense of the spiritual life that these prophets enjoyed, but the Spirit of Christ communicating by revelation things to come. How could the Spirit of Christ, give an intelligent communication centuries before there was a Christ?

In John xvii 5 Jesus prays, "And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." Jesus is not here asking for something which was merely promised him before the world was, but for something which he had before the world was, and which he prays to have back again. These words of Christ doubly link him to pre-existence inasmuch as they testify to a condition of glory and the possession of glory which he had with the Father, before the world was. That prayer was answered, and testified to by himself in Matt xxviii 18 when after his resurrection, he asserts "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth."

In Heb ii 16, Paul says of Jesus' incarnation, "For verily he took not on him the nature of angels, but he took on him the seed of Abraham." This was Christ's own choice, not merely the portion assigned him by the Father, as shown in Heb i 9. If Christ was not pre-existent how could he choose?

The writer understands that the being who announced himself to Joshua, by Jericho, as "captain of the host of the Lord," Josh v 14, 15, was none other than Christ, as no other being under God was entitled to that position.

Neither does the writer question the identity of that individual being who appeared in the "burning fiery furnace," Dan iii 25, of whom an astonished king said, "Lo, I see four loose men, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt, and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God." Dan iii 25. And truly this was the Christ. And in the light of many texts that can be readily cited, the writer recognizes and accepts of Christ's presence and joint labors with the Father in the creation, indicated by God's own words, "Let us make man in our own image, and after our likeness." Gen i 26.

We do not understand how this same Christ could 4000 years later enter Mary's womb, and become incarnate as man. The mystery of his conception by the Holy Ghost is inscrutable when viewed as the beginning of his career, or as it means to perpetuate a career already begun. God has seen fit to couch that mystery in a few simple words, "The Word was made flesh." John i 14.

Christ's pre-existence does not necessitate his immortality in that state. The objection to his pre-existence, on the score that an immortal being could not die, is an assumed difficulty. If it pleased the Father, he could have endued us his Sons without the fullness of the divine attributes, even as we become sons of God, in this life, without it appearing what we shall be. 1 John iii 2. The whole redemptive scheme is one of transformations. A change of nature was necessitated for Christ to accomplish his work. He descended the scale of being, passing below the angelic nature, and taking the Abrahamic. Again he ascended the scale of being "being made so much better than the angels," Heb i 4, making it possible for the elect body also to ascend the same scale.

The obedience of Christ for himself, should not be confounded with the sacrifice of himself for others, which was a totally different thing. If Christ as a pre-existent being did not measure his redemptive work for us, and chose the sacrifice of himself for us, which was entirely outside of his own personal obedience for his own personal salvation, then his offering was not voluntary but compulsory. And in that case, then, the sacrificial features of Christ's work could not have been exacted of him, without violating the law of his own being and every principle of justice, and he could without any disobedience to God, have refused the offering of himself in sacrifice, and still won his own personal salvation by exact obedience to God's law. And in that case the whole redemptive scheme would have fallen by virtue of its own weight, and Christ alone would have survived.

Respectfully submitted.

REPLY.

In THE RESTITUTION, issued December 18, 1907, the reader will find an article written by us entitled, "Christ Pre-existed Prophetically." Bro. Ohmart, who has advocated Christ's pre-existence "for a number of years," and who "believes the subject to be a vital one," has criticised our composition in the above article. Brother Underwood sent us the brother's article with these words of explanation: "Your article entitled "Christ Pre-existed Prophetically," has brought forth the enclosed. Perhaps you had best answer it and then we can print them both together, so they will show plainly the different views." We are not personally acquainted with Brother Ohmart; but the mild, good spirit in which his article is written is enough to touch and thrill one with a responsive one that is an humble servant of the Lord's Christ, and that the love of God has been shed abroad in his heart by the Holy Spirit. I assure him that in the remarks which I am now about to make on his article I have not designed to "beat him" in the sense of "getting the best of him in the argument." There is too much of such sensual boasting and carnal pride among our brethren. Let us go down in the dishonor of defeat rather than offend my brother. Matt xviii 6. Brother Underwood desires to have both views presented together, and for this reason we make a few remarks on Brother Ohmart's position.

It is not necessary to review his article by offering criticisms on each point in a seriatim manner. For the sake of brevity we will examine John vi 62, which is the best text he has quoted in proof of Christ's pre-existence. It must be obvious to the reader that if this passage fails to uphold the Trinitarian theory of pre-existence for which our brother pleads, the other texts quoted by him are impotent to do it. This passage reads, "What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascended up where he was before?" Believers in Christ's pre-existence usually quote this Scripture with a smile; it sounds real good to them. They assume that the word "ascend" means to personally go to heaven; that the phrase, "where he was before," means heaven; and that Christ personally existed in heaven "before" he came to the earth. It is easy to assume that all this is true; it would be safer to prove that it is. Personal pre-existence has not, does not, and cannot, exhibit this passage of Holy Writ. We must always interpret a text in harmony with its context, and upon this sound fundamental principle of interpretation is tried 1 John vi 62, the doctrine of Christ's pre-existence is chased away like a vision of the night. Christ had just uttered some "hard sayings" which had filled his disciples with murmurs. John vi 60, 61. The Lord seemed surprised that his followers should be offended at his words. That their offense at him was serious is evident from the statement, "From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him." v 66. When Jesus noticed that they were offended at his words, he asked them in the language of surprise, "Doth this offend you? What and if ye shall see the Son of Man ascend up where he was before? Now whatever "ascend" means, and "before," and "where he was before"—whatever these words and phrases mean, it was something that would give offense to the disciples. According to the theory of pre-existence, the substance of our Lord's meaning is about this: Do my words offend you? If so, what a terrible offense it will be to you when you see me ascend to heaven, where I was an angel before I came to the earth in an "insolvable" manner! Blow, now. Can our friends tell us why the ascension of the Lord would offend his people? Is it historically true that the disciples got offended when the Lord ascended to heaven? Go to the record and see. "He led them out as far as to Bethany, and lifted up his hands, and blessed them. And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. And they—were offended? Careful, now. "And they worshiped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy; and were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God." Luke xxiv 50, 51, 52, 53. Instead of offense they had blessing, joy and praise.

But to return to John vi 62. Anabaino, translated "ascend," means "to go or come up." See Young's Concordance. Now when we read of Christ or anyone else ascending we know that the idea is that they went "to go or come up" somewhere; not necessarily to heaven, for we read of Festus ascending "from Cesarea to Jerusalem," Acts xxv 1, and of Jesus "ascending up to Jerusalem." Luke xix 28. It is possible for a man to ascend, therefore, without going to heaven. What did Jesus ascend or go to Jerusalem for? To die the death of the cross. Luke xvi 31-34. And what and how was that death accomplished? As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up, (Hupsoo, to exalt, to elevate, not on high.) The serpent made by Moses in the wilderness was placed on a pole, lifted up, set on high, that all the Israelites who were bitten by serpents, might look upon it, and live. Num. xxi 8. Christ, in fulfilling this type, was lifted up when he was crucified on the cross. Hence he speaks of those who crucified him in the words, When ye have lifted up the Son of Man. John viii 28. If I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me. This he said, signifying what death he should die, John xii 32, 33. Notice that Christ in order to signify what death he should die, says that he would be lifted up from the earth. He did not go to heaven when he was lifted up; he died on the cross. It would be impossible for him to be lifted up without ascending. Therefore the meaning of John vi 62 is evidently this: Doth my sayings offend you? Then what a terrible offense it will be to you when you see the Son of Man ascend, or be lifted up in crucifixion on the cross, and die—return to where he was before he was born. Remember that a dead man is said to be as he was—in the same condition he was in before he lived, Eccl xii 7. Did the death of Christ offend his disciples? Listen: All of you shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad, Matt xxvi 31. The hope of his followers went out with the life, Luke xxiv 21, and they had to be instructed into a lively hope, again. 1 Peter i 3. When Christ, the Shepherd of the sheep, John x 2, was smitten, the flock became offended, and were scattered abroad. But the doctrine of pre-existence destroys the beautiful harmony of the text, and makes the Lord virtually say: What an offense it will be to you when you see the Son of Man go to heaven, where he was before he came here! Later he did ascend; and we positively deny that a single disciple became offended at it.

Like Brother Ohmart, we think this subject is a vital one. If by their fruits ye shall know them, Matt vii 20, is a proper test of men, it is equally true of doctrines. Judged by this standard, the pre-existence of Christ is a false doctrine. It blurs the most beautiful parts of the truth with clouds of darkness, and denies some of the fundamental principles of the gospel. By way of warning, we briefly make the following observations on the mischievous results of the dogma:

1. After quoting the words, Came down from heaven, John vi 38, our Brother says: If a man should tell me that England was his home, and that he came from England, and that he was going back to England, and then I should discover that he had never been in England—"I would lose all confidence in that man. According to this illustration, Christ would have to be born in heaven, as the man was born in England; Christ would have to come from heaven, as the man came from England, which is a denial of Christ's birth, though not intended to do it. There is nothing but confusion in the theory no matter which way you look.

2. The brother says that the angel of the Lord, called the Captain of the host of the Lord, Josh v 14, 15, and that mysterious being who appeared in the burning, fiery furnace, Dan iii 15, was none other than Christ. According to this illustration, Christ must have been born in England; Christ would have to come from heaven, as the man came from England, which is a denial of Christ's birth, though not intended to do it. There is nothing but confusion in the theory no matter which way you look.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 12, 1908. NUMBER 6.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked, eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, the prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

appearances, slipped from the memory of Paul when he wrote unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation? Heb ix 28.

3. Of angels it is said, Neither can they die any more. Luke xx 36. The saints are to be made equal to them at the resurrection. If Christ was one of these angels, it is hard to understand how he could become so changed as to die. If it is possible for an angel to become so changed that he can die, then the saints who have the promise of becoming equal to them in nature, might experience an involvable change to mortality, and have to die again! With such disastrous possibilities in prospect, eternal life is robbed of its glory. This difficulty has been seen by the advocates of Christ's pre-existence, and hence the suggestion: Christ's pre-existence does not necessitate his immortality. Let that go for what it is worth. Mark this statement: A change of nature was necessitated for Christ to accomplish his work. He could not do the work in the angelic nature; he had to do this in the Abrahamic! Very well. If what one then, was his pre-existence? What was the difference between Christ's nature previous, after the necessitated change occurred? None whatever. Then if Christ pre-existed in a nature which had to be changed, for Christ to accomplish his work, and after the change had been wrought he was of the same nature we are. His pre-existence was without aim, design, and purpose. It is useless and meaningless. Cast it to the moles and to the bats, and let us stay by the truth in all its simplicity and beauty.

ROBT. G. HUGGINS

Editor Restitution.

I am reading with much pleasure and profit S. J. Lindsay's articles in The Restitution on Old Testament Types and Shadows, and notice that the writer uses the word Satan several times when in my humble opinion "Serpent" would be more in keeping with the wording of the account in Gen., and more in harmony with unadulterated truth. I would suggest that when we write or speak of "Satan" that we use the translated form, and I have no doubt but that Bro. Lindsay knows just what the English of the word is.

I am sorry to notice that several of The Restitution writers make "Satan" much more prominent than the writers of the Bible do. I think it would be better to leave "doctrines of devils," etc., with the old mother of harlots and her daughters and let us purge ourselves entirely of the old leaven and preach and write the Truth in a pure, unadulterated form.

I have often felt that it would be the proper thing for some of your contributors to write exhaustively for The Restitution on this subject. I feel that it is extremely absurd and out of harmony with the characteristics of God to attribute to Him the creation of such a devil as is believed in by the popular church people. Yours for unadulterated truth.

Seizing Opportunities.

A lady once writing to a young man in the navy, who was almost a stranger, thought, "Shall I close this as anybody would, or shall I say a word for my Master?" Lifting up her heart for a moment, she wrote, telling him that his constant change of scene and place was an apt illustration of the Word: "Here we have no continuing city," and asked if he could say, "I seek one to come."

Trembling she folded it, and sent it off. Back came the answer: "Thank you so much for these kind words. I am an orphan, and no one has spoken to me like that since my mother died, long years ago." The arrow shot at venture hit home, and the young man shortly after rejoiced in the fullness of the blessing of the gospel of peace.

How often do we, as Christian young men, close a letter to those we know have no home "as anybody would," when we might say a word for Jesus! Shall we not embrace each opportunity in the future?

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEB'Y 12, 1908.

Our paper is mailed a day early this week, as we wish to enjoy as much as possible the meetings held here by Bro. Lindsay. His meeting at South Bend closed last Sunday evening.

On account of Brother Woodward's sickness, Sister Woodward was unable to fill her appointment at the Plymouth church last Sunday. We hope that with good care, and the favor of our Heavenly Father, that he will soon be restored to health.

We give all space possible to correspondents at this time, and thank all for the very excellent articles sent our paper. We are always glad to get such. Even though there may be small differences on some points that do no violence to the fundamental principles of the gospel, if all write in a kindly spirit, with an earnest endeavor to find the truth, none should object. Harsh words and criticisms always offend. We should avoid giving offense.

Elsewhere in this paper will be found a notice of the death of our beloved Brother J. O. Woodruff. He had reached an age far in advance of most men, and the long years given to him were used in sounding out the message of a soon coming King, who will change the rulership of the world from the oppression of the people that now exists to one of righteousness and justice. In this work Bro. Woodruff spared not himself nor his money. He was a man among men in this respect. His ALL belonged to him who had bought him, and Bro. Woodruff believed in rendering all the service and homage he could. Let us emulate his example.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY FEB. 16.

Jesus heals the Nobleman's son. John iv 43-54.

Golden Text. The man believed the Word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and went his way. John iv 50.

In the last lesson Jesus was in Samaria city. From there to Cana in Galilee is about 35 miles north. From Cana to Capernaum about 25 miles northeast. Capernaum is on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee at the north end. It was one of the cities whose doom Jesus predicted. Luke x 15.

LESSON TEXT.

46 A certain Nobleman—a man of high rank, an officer in a king's court, a rich man of honorable name. Whose son was sick—the sickness was beyond human skill. "The doctors had given him up." Could not be healed by any physician. Luke viii 48.

47 The nobleman heard Jesus was in Galilee.....he besought—begged, entreated him to come with him and heal his son. This case is very similar to that of the centurion—captain of an hundred men, who first sent for Jesus to heal his servant, then sent word that it was not necessary to come, but just to say the word. "And my servant shall be healed." Luke vii 2-9. Jesus said he had not found as great faith in Israel—among his own people.

The nobleman showed his faith by his works, coming all the way from Capernaum to Cana. Faith if it has not works, is dead. Jas ii 17. Without faith it is impossible to please God. Heb xi 6. We see then that faith pleases both the Father and the Son. Jesus gave marvellous results for faith. To those who have faith now, there are not wonders of healing, but "Exceeding great and precious promises." 2 Peter i 4.

48 Except ye see signs and wonders—a trial of faith is much more precious than that of gold. 1 Peter i 7.

49 The faith of the nobleman was equal to the occasion. He desired no sign. Sir, Master, Lord—just come down ere—before my child die—his faith was all sufficient for the time being. "While there is life there is hope." His faith did not go beyond death and the grave.

50 Go thy way, thy son liveth—what a joyous satisfaction these few words gave. If you have ever, with feverish, prayerful anxiety, watched a sick loved one laboring for breath, then falling into a sleep that looked like death, but woke refreshed. "The worst was passed." Do you remember your great joy? Also, you know the mind and heart of the nobleman. Why did he have joy and gladness? Because he "Believed the Word that Jesus spake to him." Faith is the substance of things hoped for." Heb xi 1. Faith gives the mind a positive, absolute certainty that the thing hoped for is, or will be.

51 The servant knowing his master's anxiety, hastens to meet him with the glad tidings, "Thy son liveth."

52 On making inquiry about the time of recovery, he found it to be at one o'clock, the hour that Jesus said thy son liveth. This was assuredly marvelous. No living man, by either human power or skill could do such a thing.

53 He therefore believed, and all his house, family, household. He believed—they believed—that Jesus was just what he claimed to be. The Son of God who had come to attend to his Father's business. Luke ii 49.

54 The first miracle was turning water into wine. John ii 1-11.

It might be well now to enquire, How did Jesus heal the nobleman's son? He was some 25 miles from where the boy lay sick. All the faithful believe that God can use his power any where, every where. This power is called, in the Bible, the Spirit. In special manifestations—miracles—it is called the Holy Spirit. An excellent idea—or conception—can be got by reading Psa cxxxix.

Jesus had this power at command, and he knew that if he said the word, the power would be immediately used to heal the boy. The nobleman—by faith—knew that Jesus could heal his son Jesus—by the Spirit—knew that the nobleman had faith. He spoke the word, "Thy son liveth." The son was healed.

Remark. "A prophet hath no honor in his own country." A prophet—a public expounder—of the glad tidings of the kingdom, does not receive due respect from kindred friends or neighbors. Jesus was no exception. But God is the rewarder. Heb xi 6.

Next lesson. Jesus at the pool of Bethesda. John v 1-18.

Old Testament Types and Shadows. No. 5.

Several communications have come to me relative to the preceding articles under the above heading. My correspondence outside of these letters is already too great and I find that I must confine myself to answering inquiries relating to this subject through the columns of THE RESTITUTION. I am especially pleased with the kindly spirit with which all communications have been written. I will take up first a series of questions presented by Bro. James Browning of Chicago. His letter is as follows:

"My dear Brother:

In view of the kindly spirit of your letter and the generous invitation, I embody in the following questions a few difficulties that arise from reading Types and Shadows.

Yours for the truth,

JAMES BROWNING."

Question A. If Adam was on probation because created under the law of sin and death, is the believer, who has been made free from that law, still on probation? Rom viii 2.

Answer: A question in answer. If the believer is free from the law of sin and death, why does he yet suffer the penalty of that law? The believer is free only according to the contract that he has with Christ. That contract makes us free only at the resurrection. We as believers are free at the present time only prospectively. The believer is on probation or trial. There are many other passages of Scripture which must be understood in this same light. "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren." 1 John iii 14. "He that hath the Son hath life." 1 John v 12. These with other sayings of like statement are understood in the light of the terms of the contract which is, When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Col iii 4.

Question B. Did the "glory and honor" with which our Lord was crowned, precede or follow his suffering? Heb ii 9.

Answer: I will give the Diaglott version of this text. This alone will answer the question.

"But we behold Jesus, on account of the suffering of death crowned with glory and honor, having been made for a little while inferior to Angels, so that, by God's favor, he might taste death on behalf of every one." Evidently he was not glorified until he arose from the dead. So far as he was concerned, he could pray the Father (John xvii), "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do," and, because of this he had no need to see death for himself. His taking death upon himself was a sacrifice which he made for others. No man took it from him, he gave it. He had power not only to lay it down, but also to take it again. This could never be said by one resting under the penalty. When life is required as a penalty, it is taken.

Question C. Is there a remote reference in Heb ii 9 to the "glory and honor" received from God while on the Mount of Transfiguration? Luke ix; 2 Pet i 17.

Answer: Types, figures, shadows, and visions are given only as foretastes of the real. The scene on the Mount was but a vision of the future glory. The language in Matthew quoting Christ, makes it but a vision. This vision but spoke of his future glory.

Question D. What passages indicate that our Lord had the right to take upon himself the nature of angels, before he became obedient unto death?

Answer: Heb ii 14-39. This language implies choice on his part. He had no right to choice until he had proved himself worthy. To take this text in another light would argue pre-existence for Christ, giving him a choice before he came into the world. He reached perfection for himself only through being tried and tempted as we are. He reached beyond and obtained possible perfection for those who were under penalty of death by making a present sacrifice of the life that was his. He was in a position to choose life or death—the nature of angels or of Abraham's seed. At the Father's commandment, or request, he chose the latter, but not until he had a right to choose. The same thought is found in Phil ii 5-10. By his obedience he had attained unto a stature which made him equal with God so far as life is concerned. He did not regard it a robbery to make himself equal with God in the matter of life, but he chose rather to take upon himself the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men, and became obedient even to the death upon the cross. This he did for the glory which was set before him. Please turn to this passage and read it carefully.

There are three other questions which will be answered in No. 6.

"The Birth of a King."

Synopsis of address delivered Christmas week, before the Epworth League, 61st St. M. E. church, New York City.

The subject selected for discussion this evening has been applied to him who was born in the city of David, conveying the somewhat erroneous impression that the Savior of mankind was born a King, whereas on the contrary he was but heir presumptive to the throne and kingdom of Israel—a king prospective—a king to be—as it is written "For that cause I into the world, for that purpose was I born." "To be testified in due time." The object and purpose of the Christ's first advent was that of a Savior only, "The minister of the circumcision"—"To confirm the promises made to the fathers." And indeed at the time of the birth of Jesus, it was a Savior, not a king, that Israel most needed, Judah were but vassals of the Roman Empire and Israel as sheep lost among the nations, and it will be admitted that the message of the angel from heaven to the shepherds on the plains of Bethlehem was addressed directly to Israel, namely, "To you is born this day in the city of David, a Savior, who is Christ the Lord." It was the accompanying angelic choir who brought in the refrain "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." The Savior came to Israel. The expression of peace and good will included all men. He that was born "a Savior," was "The Christ the Lord" spoken of in their prophets. Intimating that this Savior born to Israel, would eventually, as "Christ the Lord" cause righteousness and peace to cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. But he must first save the lents of Shem—the Shemitic or Hebrew race. To this end, the long promised Savior, the "child of hope" was born—"The Son was given" upon whose shoulders, as "Christ the Lord" the government would eventually fall. These shepherds were undoubtedly, men of Israel versed in the oracles of God—men—and could understand the angelic [illegible] in no other way, in the light of their prophets. Isa ix 6.

This Savior was "called Jesus because he would save his people (Israel) from their sins." The name Jesus was the name by which he was known throughout his ministry, to the apostles and early church. Repentant sinners were baptized into the name of Jesus for the remission of sins. The blind received their sight, the lame walked and the dead were brought back to life again by the name of Jesus. And Peter with the other apostles testified that "The God of our fathers raised up this same Jesus and exalted him a Prince and a Savior to give repentance to Israel and the forgiveness of sin." And Paul adds, "There is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved, but the name of Jesus of Nazareth." "In whom we (Israel) have redemption through his blood the forgiveness of sin." Such was the mission of Christ at his first advent namely—"A Savior who is Christ the Lord"—as expressed in his own words. "To heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and the recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised. To preach the acceptable year of the Lord." Luke iv 18.

I have dwelt at some length upon the mission of him who was born a Savior—his mission throughout the present age. Because it is very necessary to first understand clearly the object and declared purpose of his first advent, before we can intelligently understand the importance and necessity of the second, and perceive the beauty and harmony of God's plan of salvation as revealed in the old and new Scriptures. It was absolutely necessary that he should as Savior, first "die for the sins of his people," that he should place them firmly upon the conditions of the new covenant, that he should "translate them from the power of darkness (the Unrisen) into the kingdom of his dear Son" before he could assume the office and authority of King of kings and Lord of lords—"Christ the Lord."

This Savior, heir presumptive and prospective King affirmed "My kingdom is not of this world." Although his kingdom was in the world, it was not of it. His kingdom had come not with observation, with ostentation and visible display, but as a grain of mustard seed, co-affirming the prophecy of Daniel, "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed." The kings here referred to being the ten kings symbolized in the ten toes of the feet in the great image of King Nebuchadnezzar's dream, and in the ten crowned horns upon the beast that rises up out of the sea, Rev xiii 1. In the days of these ten kings, "Who shall mingle themselves with the seed of men," Dan ii 43. Even the ten tribes—ten kinged—kingdom of Israel, the Anglo Saxon race of the present age, is the God of heaven setting "up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed?" To be possessed, or taken possession of by his "dear Son."—"When he comes in all his glory and all the Holy Messengers with him." Then shall he sit down upon the throne of his glory. "The throne of his Father David."

What does all this mean to you and I and to the world? Much very much. Everything: Because it is written "The promise that he has promised us is Eternal Life." That this life "is hid with Christ in God and when he who is our life, shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory." Because it is written, "He that overcometh I will grant to sit with me on my throne, even as I have overcome and sat down with my Father on his throne." Because it is written, "He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass, like showers that water the earth. In his day shall the righteous flourish and an abundance of peace as long as the moon endureth; he shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth, all kings shall fall down before him, all nations shall worship him." Because it is written, "The law shall go forth from Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. They shall beat their swords into plow shares and their spears into pruning hooks and shall learn the art of war no more, and every man shall sit under his own vine and figtree none making him afraid."

All this and much more has been made possible and assured unto us by him who was born a Savior in the City of David. The fruition of which alone can and will satisfy the crying necessity of a world groaning under the burden of sin. The prayer and hope of the church the body of Christ. "Even so come Lord Jesus come quickly."

Idol Worship.

Man is naturally a religious being, hence a worshipful creature. He must and will have some object of worship for his thoughts to center around, and in his mind he adores it. We need not go to Hindostan, Siberia or Siam, China or the South Sea Islands or the frozen regions of Lapland or Greenland or travel the wilds of Africa, and visit the gold mines of South America or ransack Burmah, or Independent Tartary, or stand upon the banks of the Ganges, or enter the temple of Juggernaut to find worshipers of idols. Covetousness is idolatry, therefore we have idol worshipers in our midst and all around us, some worshiping the Virgin Mary, St. Patrick or St. Augustine or some other canonized saint, some are worshiping their fine farms, houses, horses, their furniture, gold and silver pay heaps a fine building built for the worship of God but used once a week to display fine apparel, for more people have bowed to the god of fashion than ever bowed at the waves of Ganges, perhaps these same worshipers are shouting over their beautiful music, pouring from the throats of hired musicians who never experienced one thought of God's goodness. Some are worshiping the creature in the pulpit, and believe his words instead of God's. How often in the expression used, "I tell you we have a dandy preacher" which simply means he does not cross them in any of their worldly devices. Again some are worshiping strong drink, remember the word says, No drunkard can inherit the kingdom of God. If the apostle was correct and covetousness is idolatry, we can only pity poor humanity, and ask God to have mercy on them. Over and over we are warned of the danger of this as common a sin. May we who are looking for Christ's second coming think seriously of this matter. Let us remember the words of the sacred writer, But if our gospel be hid it is hid to them that are lost, in whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not. 2 Cor iv 3 4. We can hardly conceive the hold the god of this world has on the masses of humanity. Our prayer is may God save his waiting people from the prevailing sins of our times. We are commanded to abstain from all idol worship. Even the worship of angels. Worship God. Rev. xxii 9.

H. W. WOODWARD.

"Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." Isa ix. 1. These words were uttered nearly seven hundred years before the birth of the Savior, and they were as a warning to the church. God who knew all things from the beginning, realized that there would be a time when the world would be in darkness, and would be in need of a light. In the second verse we read, "For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people." Dear ones of like precious faith, it seems as though the church of God was becoming enveloped in darkness as to the coming of our Lord and Savior, it seems to be in a luke-warm condition, caring more for the temporal affairs of life, than for the eternal blessings that God has promised to the faithful. The apostle Paul has given us warning as to the condition of things in the latter days. In 2 Thess. ii. 1, 3, "Now we beseech you brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and by our gathering together unto him, that ye be not soon shaken in mind, or be troubled, neither by spirit, nor by word, nor by letter, as from us, as that the day of Christ is at hand.

Let no man deceive you by any means. Now comes the answer, he says, for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition."

In Matt. xxiv. 24, Jesus has given us warning as to what to expect in the latter days, he says, "For there shall arise false Christs and false prophets, and shall show great signs and wonders: insomuch that if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect." In this age of darkness and fabulistic teachers, it behooves us to "Arise and shine," and manifest to the world the light we have in the glorious gospel of Christ. He says, Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven," Matt. v. 16. O; Dear ones in Christ, the strongest sermons that are preached are by our every day life, and conversations. Paul says, "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling symbal." 1 Cor. xiii. 1. We should have charity one toward another, for the simple reason that we are none of us perfect, but we should strive daily to overcome our evil inclinations, for none but the overcomers are promised an inheritance with Christ, Rev. iii 12, 21.

Submitted in love.

Obituary.

Died at Elizabeth, N. J., January 25, 1908, John O. Woodruff, in the nine-first year of his age.

This announcement will be read with interest and sorrow by a wide circle of the household of faith and friends in this country and Great Britain, with whom brother Woodruff has made acquaintance, and corresponded during over half a century of effort to sow the Word of the kingdom.

It has been my pleasure and profit to know Brother Woodruff for forty years, and intimately for twenty-five years; and can testify of him that, in greater degree than with any person I have ever known, "His delight was in the law of the Lord, and in that law did he meditate day and night," of all men whom I have known in a very wide acquaintance there is none of whom it could be said that the Word of the Lord dwelt more richly. I have met preachers who could recite great quantities of Scripture, but upon whose life it made but little impression. With Brother Woodruff, in private conversation, or in public testimony the divine Word came to his lips spontaneously as though part of his nature, and always appropriate and effective. Surely he had been "begotten again by the Word of God which liveth and abideth forever."

He was born in Elizabeth in March, 1817, and for over ninety years his life has been an open book to be known and read of all men, and during that long pilgrimage there was none who could say of him that he had not "done justly, loved mercy, and walked humbly with his God."

Brother Woodruff has outlived two wives, both of whom were intelligent lovers of the coming and kingdom of our Lord. By his first wife he leaves two children, N. Ogden Woodruff, and Abbie T. Moore, wife of brother Charles Moore. The first Mrs. Woodruff will be remembered favorably by thousands because of her widely circulated pamphlet, "A Letter to a Friend on the Covenants of promise."

During his later years our brother has devoted his time and money to publishing and distributing a number of books chiefly on the themes of the coming and kingdom of Christ, and Conditional Immortality; believing it to be his duty to bear witness to these truths. Four volumes thus circulated are "The Scriptures Opened" by Robert Ashcraft; and three works of his own compilation, being tracts, essays and fugitive papers by various authors that he put in permanent form and issued in handsome volumes, entitled, "The Word of the kingdom," "The Word of Eternal Life," and "Bible Themes."

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. John Donaldson, pastor of Union Course Baptist Church, Brooklyn; who spoke eloquently and earnestly of the resurrection of the dead as the only hope of life beyond the grave. The Rev. Dr. Thames of the First Baptist church, Elizabeth, and the undersigned helped in the services. We laid him at rest in Evergreen cemetery, Elizabeth, waiting for the Master's call to come forth to new life.

None who knew the life and character of our sainted brother but will join in the prayer, "Let me die the death of the righteous; and let my last end be like his."

Editor Restitution:

Bro. S. J. Lindsay closed a two weeks meeting at Burr Oak, Sunday night Feb. 2nd. Fairly large audiences attended nightly. One young Brother united with the church and several expressed a desire to obey the gospel and put on Christ by baptism in the near future. We hope they will not delay this important ordinance and become an heir to the promises. Bro. Lindsay preached sixteen gospel sermons and all only those who will not hear, were strengthened and learned many of the glorious truths of God's Word. Bro. Lindsay begins a weeks meeting at South Bend, Feb. 3rd. Your Brother in Christ.

Encouragement.

"I will not say thee nay."—1 Kings ii. 30.

Ask on, my child, ask on!
I will not say thee nay;
Breathe out thy longings in the ear,
Of thine own king today.
Faith cannot ask too much
Love cannot be too free
Draw near with humble confidence
And put thy trust in me.

Ask on, my child, ask on!
I've blessings to bestow
Rich with my love, that where received
Will make my heart o'erflow;
Sweet flowers that ne'er can die
Rare gems of varied hue
And wondrous perfume that my heart
Loops to disclose to you.

Ask on, my child, ask on!
Tho' thou art faint and weak.
Thy King hath boundless stores of strength
To give to those who seek;
Give but an upward glance,
Lift but thy feeble cry
And swift as lightning flash I'll send
A plenteous supply.

Ask then, my child, each hour,
Even as the moments fly;
For time is passing quickly on
And years are rolling by;
And as thou journey'st Home
Sing out upon thy way;
The King himself hath promised me
"I will not say thee nay."

2 Corinthians v. 1 to 4.

In our early Christian life we found this Scripture very hard to understand. It is one of many texts given to prove the doctrine of the immortality of the soul. The general exposition given is that the earthly house here spoken of is the human body and that house not made with hands is our resurrected body. That this can not be so applied we wish to prove by Scripture. In the 18th verse of the fourth chapter the apostle writes, While we look not at the things which are seen but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal. In this Paul is comparing the temporal and the eternal things. The things which we see are temporal, the things which we do not see are eternal. Now in Rom viii 18, Paul writes, I reckon that the sufferings of this PRESENT TIME are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us. Here we have the present time (temporal things) and the things to be revealed in us (the eternal things) compared.

In further proof we give the following, Indeed the earnest expectation of the creation longs for the revelation of the sons of God (the eternal things). For the creation was made subject to frailty (not voluntary, but by him who placed it under); in hope that even the creation itself will be emancipated from the slavery of corruption, into the freedom of the glory of the children of God. For we know that the whole creation groans together and travails in pain together till the present time. And not only it, but ourselves also possessing the first fruit of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within (or among ourselves,) waiting for Sonship,—the redemption of our body, (Diaglott Translation) The creation was made subject to frailty and has an earnest expectation for the revelation of the sons of God, or waiting for the sonship,—the redemption of our body. The creation in these texts embracing not only the earth but man.

With these thoughts before our minds we are now ready to notice 2 Cor v 1 to 4. For we know that when our earthly house, which is a tent, is destroyed we have a building from God an house not made with hands, eternal, in the heavens. But yet in this tent we groan, earnestly desiring to go permanently into our habitation which is heavenly, and surely if we go in, we shall not be found destitute. But yet, we who are in the tent groan, being burdened; not because we desire to go out, but to go permanently in, that what is mortal may be swallowed up of life (McKnight). I give this translation because it is much clearer than the common version. Our earthly house in verse 1 is called a tent, and an unsubstantial building liable to be removed. Our present political, social, industrial and religious arrangements make up the earthly house which must in time give way to the more substantial [illegible], the kingdom of God, as the [illegible]al cosmos. In Heb xi 10, Paul [illegible]s that Abraham looked for a [illegible] which hath foundations whose [illegible]r and maker is God. This pre[illegible]smos built by man is in every [illegible]ular a failure. For six thousand years human governments have proven a failure. The one that will have a foundation is that just government over which Christ and his saints will rule. Its foundation has the purpose of the Eternal One to stand on. If we accept that this earthly house is our human body we have as the sects say an outer man the human body and an inner man the soul. In the second verse the writer says in this tent we groan earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven. Is it not true that every prayer we utter is, Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly, and that God's will be done on this earth as it is done in heaven? Who would not pray to be delivered from the body of this death. This present world is given over to all manner of strife and lawlessness. This old cosmos is much like the Israelitish cosmos in the day of that wicked prince when God said: whose flay is come when iniquity shall have an end. This present arrangement is becoming deluged in blood and murders, and God's forbearance cannot last much longer. In the fourth verse we read, In this tent WE groan (not our immortal souls) being oppressed; in which (oppressions) we desire not to be divested, but invested that the mortal may be absorbed in LIFE, Diag. The climax here reached is that the mortal may be absorbed in life. To the Philli 20, 21. Paul writes and expresses the same hope. Our polity begins in the heavens from whence also we are expecting a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ who will transform the body of our humiliation into a conformity with his glorious body, according to the energy by which he is able even to subject all things to himself. Our polity (government) begins in the heavens. Our polity will be made up of heavenly rulers of which Christ will be the head. When this creation is redeemed from its present corruption the eternal things will have been inaugurated. Then will this present, corrupt, political, social, industrial and religious fabric become a part of the heavenly cosmos. Then there will be ONE RULER who will rule in justice and equity. The old cosmos will have been destroyed. Let us all pray and work for the accomplishment of God's purpose; viz., As truly as I live all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord. Num xiv 14. I wish briefly to call attention to a few thoughts in verses 5 to 10 inclusive. We are always confident knowing that whilst we are at home in the body we are absent from the Lord. What body is here spoken of? Answer not the human body. Why? Because we cannot be absent from ourselves. The pronoun we includes the all. It cannot be made to relate to something within us. The body and the we must be two distinct and separate objects. Is it not reasonable to say that this body is that body of which Christ is the head, the church. Col i 18. When we are freed from the present surroundings, that is invested with the life, we will be present with the Lord. This can only be accomplished when Jesus descends from heaven and gives us our immortal bodies. In the eighth verse Paul writes, We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body and to be present with the Lord. Is not this in perfect harmony with the hope expressed in 2 Tim iv 8, Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; (the day of his coming) and not to me only; but unto all them also that love his APPEARING. In the first verse of this chapter he tells us what he will do when he comes, shall judge the living and dead. Paul's hope was centered in the resurrection when Christ should appear. In the tenth verse the word body appears again. Does it mean body? Let us see. We must all appear before the tribunal of the Anointed so that each one may receive the things through the body, according to what was performed, whether good or bad, (Diaglott,). We ought first to determine who will have the privilege of standing before the tribunal of the Anointed. We have only become his by faith, repentance, and obedience. Is it not reasonable to say that only those who are worthy can stand there. The Psalmist says, The ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous. Young's translates, the wicked RISE not in judgment. Psa i 5. Therefore we believe that the overcomers alone have a part in this tribunal incident. The word body in this verse must mean the same as in verse eight. We must receive for the things performed through the body (the church). We are held accountable for the things performed while in the ecclesiastical body and not while aliens, [illegible] that time we were without Christ having no hope and without God in the world. We were then aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise. But now having been reconciled both unto God in one body by the cross are no longer strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints and of the household of God. Our acts are noticed when we become a part of the body of which Christ is the head. We must all appear before the tribunal of the Anointed SO THAT (in order to) the receiving of the things through the body. For the things we have performed while in the body. Now if we live righteously in Christ Jesus we will stand or rise in this judgment, and if not we will not stand or rise. For Jehovah is knowing the way of the righteous, and the way of the wicked is lost. (Young).

Your brother waiting for the deliverance of our earthly house.

Moral Evil or Sin. No. 8.

Jehovah's grand and beneficent purpose. Now inasmuch as sin is love in defiance of God's will, here he chides of the first man, endowed as he was by his Creator with that marvelous attribute freedom of will; here as something outside of Jehovah's purpose and in conflict with good, is it to remain eternally and keep up the conflict? or is it temporary and to be succeeded by an eternity of peace? The latter is a commonmotion to be devoutly desired by good men and angels; yet the great majority of the professed Christian world has seen have indulged no such hope however much they may have desired it. Believing in the immortality of the human soul, and rejecting universal salvation they have held the theory that unnumbered millions of the race have been tortured in eternal torture, and countless millions more will yet be tortured to the same awful fate and along with the endless sufferings of these grave endless sinning. Endless suffering and endless sinning have been the terrible burden of faith with many and no agency of faith with some. While Jonathan Edwards could believe compassionately while writing down his speculations on the destiny of the finally impenitent, as a theologian, but as a man he often walked his room for hours together with tears of grief in view of the supposed destiny that awaited his fellow men yet out of Christ. And yet Edwards along with all Calvinists believed that God decreed, appointed and predestined before the foundation of the world, a definite number, to eternal woe with no possibility of any mitigation of their suffering. Edward's God was much harder hearted than himself. The Author of the Conflict of the Ages, though differing with Edwards on eternal decree and foreordination, was similarly distressed in view of the eternity of suffering that he thought was the certain doom of the great majority of his fellow beings. He says For a time the system of this world rose before my mind, in the same manner, as far as I can judge, as it did before the minds of Channing and Foster, I can, therefore, more fully appreciate their expressions of their trials and emotions. But I was entirely unable to find relief as they did. The depravity of man, neither Christian experience, the Bible nor history, would permit me to deny. Nor did reason or Scripture afford me any satisfactory grounds whatever for anticipating the restoration of the lost to holiness in the future state. Hence for a time, all was as dark as night. This last sentence is to be understood in the light of the fact that he afterwards found relief in his theory that man pre-existed, and in his pre-existent state sinned and that for the sum total of his sins God could justly subject him to infinite duration of pain. Channing found relief in universal restoration, and I think Foster did too. It has been nearly fifty years since I read his Notable Letter. Foster, Channing and Beecher were not the only men who distressed their minds over the supposed eternity of suffering and sinning. Albert Barnes may be quoted as another example of the agony of faith. He was known not to cherish any doubts as to the certainty of eternal suffering, nor did he accept the theories of the ones heretofore named, nor does he tell us that he found relief from past conflict. He faced without a twinge of doubt the commonly accepted doom, described by himself as a condition of hopeless despair in the midst of infinite torments without the possibility of alleviation. Viewing God's infinite love and power, his ability and willingness to save some, he raised the question as to why he did not save all the race, and put an end to sin and woe for ever. After going on at some length in this strain of anguish he delivered his oppressed mind in these words, "I have never seen a particle of light thrown on these subjects that has given a moment's ease to my tortured mind; nor have I an explanation to offer, or a thought to suggest, that would be of relief to you. I trust other men—as they profess to do—understand this better than I do, and that they have not the anguish of spirit I have; but I confess, when I look on a world of sinners and sufferers; upon death-beds and grave-yards; upon the world of woe, filled with hosts to suffer for ever; when I see my friends, my parents, my family, my people, my fellow-citizens; when I look upon a whole race, all involved in this sin and danger, and when I see the great mass of them wholly unconcerned, and when I feel that God only can save them, and yet he does not do it, I am at once dumb. It is all dark, dark, dark to my soul, and I can not disguise it." To my youth I suffered using much mental anguish, as I meditated on the terrible scenes in the fabled hell as they had been portrayed to me by men gifted with marvelous powers of description, and who had gathered up all the literature on the subject, from Augustine down to Spurgeon. Both Dick and Cummings wrestled with the problem of the eternity suffering, but unlike Barns and Edwards they indulged a faint hope that God would at some time in the future put a stop to the torture of his rebellious subjects, either by striking them from being, or restoring them to his favor. The doctrine of endless anguish as the penalty to be inflicted on those who fall of the grace of God carries with it a burden that does not attend the contemplation of temporary evil, ending with the destruction of the finally unreclaimed. So good men have suffered a tremendous excess of mental worry over what was not in the purpose of Jehovah, while all along through the centuries lay in every grave of men the true solution of the problem of moral evil: to which brilliant intellects blinded themselves by believing the doctrine of inherent immortality. God's good purpose is to rid the universe of the foul stain of moral evil by blotting from being those who persistently and defiantly set at nought his counsel, and spurn the offer of mercy. The threatened penalty for sin is plainly revealed to be destruction complete and irreversible of life and body. The question of future punishment has been ably and exhaustively discussed in the last sixty years. The literature of this subject is enormous, so much so that it would appear strange if it is not found in all public libraries of any considerable size, in our own country, Great Britain and Europe. It has enlisted in its favor and advocacy some of the greatest minds of the present age. Nor has the defense of this view been confined to churches holding the doctrine of conditional immortality, but in churches boasting of their orthodoxy; men eminent for piety and learning have broke over the bars of creeds and given to the world ably written treatises on conditional immortality, and the destruction of the wicked. Thus quite a large number, in spite of early education and the influence of church association has thrown the weight of their talent on the side of a doctrine so unpopular. This fact shows that the doctrine in question is plainly on the surface of revelation, and easily discovered by honest minds.

Notes by the Way.

I left home on the night of Jan. 3 for Lebanon, Illinois, 26 miles from St. Louis. Arrived at St. Louis about seven o'clock, a. m. Was met at the depot, by Sisters Jennie and Kathryn Townsend; we then journeyed together by street car for their home, at Lebanon. On arriving there, I was heartily welcomed by their mother Sister Townsend.

I first met this family some over five years ago, when I was summoned by telegraph, to perform the last sad service over a father and husband, who had fallen asleep in Jesus. It was a severe trial through which they were called to pass, his kindly Christian conduct, had drawn our their affections. The "Blessed Hope," is a sweet consolation to them. They realize that

"We're hunting down the storms of time,
We don't get long to stay;
These stormy clouds of darkness
Will turn to brighter day,
Then let us all take courage,
For we're not left alone,
The Life-Boat soon is coming,
To gather the jewels home."

On the occasion of my first visit I baptized two of the family into the sacred name of Jesus. Since then, others have yielded obedience to the requirements of the gospel. No public place being available we held parlor meetings, for nearly a week. Some interest seemed to be awakened. One especially, manifested a decided interest. God is now taking out from among the Gentiles, a people for his Name! When the Gentile message strikes an interest in some person, it is evident that such an one is "called of God, and then, it behooves such a called one to "make their calling and election sure."

On the occasion of the first meeting on Sunday, a Sister Logan, Superintendent of the Dodd's Hygenic Home, at St. Louis, attended the meeting. She then invited me to come to St. Louis, and hold meeting, after the services should close at Lebanon.

I accepted of the invitation. Sister Kathryn and Jennie, accompanied me to St. Louis.

Sister Logan tried to secure the hall used by the Russellites, in which to hold meeting, but this was absolutely refused, unless I could endorse and preach two doctrines.

1. I must believe that the person of the Son of God never had a beginning, that this Son was co-existent with, and as old as his Father.

2. I must believe in the supernatural personality of an Arch-foe, Opponent, and enemy of man, and the great eternal called the "Devil."

Such propositions may suit the tastes of the ignorant and superstitious, whose minds are befogged with the Wine of old Babylon, but they had no response in me.

Dr. Dodd's then offered Sister Logan the use of the Hygenic Home, which she accepted.

Meetings were then held in the Home, before Doctor, patients, nurses, and other help, besides those invited in from without. Two made application for baptism. By one means and another, a scattered element of believers about the city and suburbs, which did not know of each others existence, were brought together; so that we can have an organization of some fifteen members.

They are going to get together and try and do something for the dear Redeemer's cause. This congregation will be blessed in having elements among them, who are well-qualified to lead, and push matters.

During the time I was holding meetings in the Hygenic Home, I stayed right there in the Home, and learned what it is, and what they are accomplishing.

They have made a special study as how to live, in order to possess good health. They have studied the chemical analysis of food, and its effect upon the various digestive organs of the human system. They have also made a special study of how to cure disease without the use of medicine. In drug-medication, all drug compounds designed to reach some special portion of the human system has always to reach it through the medium of the stomach, and in the course of time must ruin that organ, and afflict the human system, with all manner of complicated diseases. This they seek to avoid by eliminating drug medication altogether.

Patients at the table are served with the kind of food, the chemical make up of which will suit the disease they are afflicted with.

In their treatment of disease, they use animal magnetism, massage treatments, electricity, all kinds of baths. Full baths, electric baths, steam baths, sponge baths, spray baths, salt glows, leg, sits, and foot baths, dripping sheets: full, half and quarter packs, compresses, fomentations, oil and alcohol rubbings, etc. In this way, they effect cures, without the use of poisonous drugs which always damage the digestive organs.

Another important matter is, that drugs only doctor effects, without removing the cause of these effects.

I enjoyed my week's stay at the Home, and sat at the table with them, and partook of their hygenically prepared food.

My work in St. Louis seemed almost like providential direction.

When I left home, I had no thought of holding meetings in St. Louis. In fact, I did not know of one single believer residing there. Without my seeking this was thrown right upon my pathway. Result—two applications for baptism, and fifteen members to form a church organization. The work is simply glorious. I am willing to go forward, as far as my financial resources will permit in this "out-post" work, but when that ceases, I am powerless, and by force will have to stop. Nevertheless, if the Lord has a work for me to do, he will somehow provide the way.

"Our Master hath taken his journey
To a country that's far away,
And has left us the care of his vineyard,
To work for him day by day."

By invitation I went over to East St. Louis, and preached once there. I also discovered some little interest there.

I have just learned of the address of another member living in St. Louis. Doubtless there are still others there. Now, if there are any such, want you either call upon, or address, Miss Gertrude Logan, care of Dodd's Hygeian Home, 4518 Washington Boulevard, St. Louis Missouri?

While in St. Louis, I also called upon and stayed over night with Sister Butterfield, and her two sons.

I found her in affliction. She has just buried her son Norman, a boy about fifteen years old. I was so sorry to know that Norman had passed away.

"Then pilgrim, worn and weary,
Persevere, the goal is nigh;
The prize is straight before thee,
There's resting by and by."

I next took the train at St. Louis, Missouri, for Fullen Mines. Was met by Bro. Morse, and conveyed to his hospitable home. On arriving there was warmly greeted by Sister Morse. I was once before at this place and held meetings jointly with Elder John Fenen.

The Methodist people very generously opened their commodious church building in which to hold meetings, and every way treated us kindly and with much respect. And when the meetings closed, gave us a cordial invitation to return and continue the meetings in their house.

The meetings were well attended throughout the entire series. A noticeable feature was the close attention paid to the preaching of the Word of Life.

One lady said, "I see that you explain the Scriptures by the Scriptures." That certainly must be more satisfactory than explaining them by the opinions of men.

The daughter, Sister Sadie Morse, is attending High School at De Soto, Mo. She however returned home on Friday night, to spend Sunday. I was pleased to see Sadie once more.

The meetings having closed at this place, I returned to St. Louis. I was met at the depot by Sister Logan. We then crossed over the river to East St. Louis, and went to the home of Sister Welton, where I remained and rested as best I could a few days in their cheerful and comfortable home.

On Sunday morning Sister Kathryn, and Jennie Townsend, accompanied by their mother, came to spend the day with us. We were cheered by their presence.

Sister Kathryn remained a few days. When I left, she accompanied me to the Union depot, at St. Louis, Mo., where I started for Morse Mill, Mo., and at this date am holding meetings at this place. Will report this, at another time.

"My longing heart cries Savior come,
Creation groans for thee;
The weary pilgrim sighs, O come!
Bring immortality."

I wish to say, that those wishing The Students Text Book, Pine Woods Bible Class, Canning Devised Fables, etc., may send to my home address while I am on this trip, and your orders will receive prompt attention.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. Wilson.

Brother, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Please don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Fiore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

We wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 42.

Auntie Willard continues, "By and by this dear sister went with me again to the outlaw's house, but oh! what a house we found—an anguished mother and a saddened wife! That morning, the war-fiend had been there and carried off, the husband and father and the bacchanalian fiend had been and had taken possession of the son, there and thereafter was, proved to the earth with sorrow. As in the other case, we were tempted to withdraw, but the same good spirit induced us to stay, and mingle our tears and prayers with hers. The poor, miserable son, strayed from room to room and from chair to chair, muttering and swearing just as the demon led. After he had eaten supper he was quieted and then we kindly addressed him, saying, we had come as usual to pray with his kind mother and asked him to kneel with us. 'O yes' he said and we knelt and felt a comfort in commending this poor broken heart to God. Her husband went away sober, not having drunk in this whole time, and has written, making every arrangement for the support of his wife. Thus I will hope.

On Sunday evening, Sept 7, 1861, she came over to prayer meeting, bringing both her grown daughters and her little one, and wept as she left. O that she would come to Christ!"

We wish we knew more, but the history of this family is cut short here; the diary only running to Jan 26, 1864. There is only one more record made in reference to any of its members, and that is of having enjoyed a good season of reading and prayer with the poor, undone young man, who was found muttering and swearing at the prayer meeting above described. We shall only find out the ending of the story in the day of blissful meeting in the kingdom of God.

But, there is still the story of the third drunken man and his family. "The same course," says Auntie Willard, was pursued here, that had been taken so successfully with the other man and his wife. The charts were taken over and explained, etc. It was a large family and like the first one mentioned—that of Mr. Symptkins—was of long settlement here and the men were neighbors in all respects; check—by—joke have they gone in the service of Bacchus for some 30 years. There are some 7 or 8 sons and one daughter at home, the sons all following in the footsteps of the father, and I might say of the mother too, for although she does not drink herself, she makes the beer and ale to sell, that her family drink, therefore as Sapphira of old she is privy to it all. Their house has been the resort for the whole region for such drinks, it being the only place where they could be obtained. Thus meetings were strangers to that house, and to the neighborhood. She had been a Methodist for some 30 or 40 years, but long had left off caring for anything and everything, except how to make and save a cent! To all human appearance this was her character and she ruled her house with a rod of iron. She had no education, nor wished her children to have any if it cost a cent; therefore they were scarcely able to read. It was her daughter who smutted her hands so violently at neighbor Symptkins' the night he first prayed, and it was at this time that I proposed having a meeting at her father's, she was very anxious to have us come, so I went to two or three of the sons present and asked them. "O, yes," was their united voice. On Wednesday evening, I went down to see if the parents were willing, I asked them both, she replied, "I don't care, just as the old man says." He rejoined, "It is just as she says, I'm willing." She slapped it back upon him with, "You know it's just as you say, so now what you talkin' bout? If you want it here, say so, and if you don't want it here say so," etc. He then answered, "I'm willing, I'm sure." So I took it for granted we might go down the next evening, and pray and talk and sing with them. The novelty of it brought out quite a crowd for several weeks and she became quite interested and would invite all she saw to come to "our meeting" as she was pleased to call it. By and by all left me, then I took the charts and never did I see any one more interested in anything than Mr. B——was in these. He would get close to the stand to see and hear all that was to be heard and seen. His wife said he was reading his Bible all his spare time and had read it much more than ever before the past winter and spring. All this encouraged me but when the fourth of July came, his enemy got the better of him and all were disheartened but myself, I still hoped in God, last week we had a good time talking with him at the close of the meeting. He seems to like to have me urge him to come to Christ in faith and obedience. O that he may come! The 19th of Sept., 1861 (two days after that happy meeting at Mr. Sympkins) I with six others repaired to his house again for our Thursday night prayer meeting and met some nine or ten others. We again had a Gideon victory. Bless God! Rachel and Lyman both rose with two others, thus testifying that it was their wish to live for God. Afterward Rowly arose making five in all! At the close Lyman said 'he felt determined to live for God.' While he was saying this I held his hand, and had just imprinted upon his cheek the holy kiss of love, when I asked the friends to again kneel with me and help me praise the Lord. I felt greatly comforted in showing before all that he was giving up the dross and seizing the gold, only giving up that which would injure and ruin him for both worlds, to receive in return the good of both worlds. O how wise in the true light it is, to choose the service of God here and with it, have all that is worth enjoying here in this life, and in the world to come, everlasting life! The war was truly pushed into the enemy's camp and sure signs of victory were seen."

Again, as in the other two cases, the record stops abruptly, and what became of the reforming drunkard, we can only surmise, was he kept from temptation thereafter? We cannot answer. He probably perished by some rebel bullet, and if not, all trace of him was lost by the removal of Auntie Willard from Hammondsport to Haddonfield, before his return from the war.

Indiana Brethren, Greeting:

Brother Neff's resignation has made me your President. I wish to express to you my willingness to help you in any way that I can.

Let me urge you to institute your study and the holding of regular meetings. Great good has already been accomplished, and we must not let this work retard. Let us understand and be about our Father's business, ever keeping in min I his promise to the Little Flock.

Address me at 515 E. Pennsylvania Ave. South Bend, Ind.

May God bless and prosper your meetings.

The middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, If any one refuses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

W. L. SPERRY.

Evangelizing Notice.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren living in the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to me? Believed, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Robt. G. Huggins, Box 61, Oregon, Ill.

NOTICE.

If any of the brethren desire copies of the photograph of the Illinois Conference of 1887, they may receive them by sending to E. L. Curtis, Photographer, Oregon, Ill. The price is 55 cents each. If any who have paid for their pictures have not received them please notify me at once. Address at Oregon, Ill

EMMA L. SMITH.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Hooker vs. Latter-Day Hedgers, by T. [illegible] John Peters.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it: but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is a well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 308 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will send by ten cents post paid. Send to the Author L. S. Bramoth, Niles, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Plerceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies post paid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notices.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." By T. J. Daniel Millems, Elder John A. Cargile disputes.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magnolia, Ark. Your loving brother,

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scriptures, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages. 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled: "The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

IMPORTANT.

All persons subscribing or should give their name, post office, and state, plainly of the briefly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, express order, Money by personal check [illegible] or letter at [illegible] and [illegible] Money sent in unregistered letters is at [illegible] the receiver.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in favor of "The Restitution" and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post office order is dated, not ill, or Peru or Other.

When you write, [illegible] and [illegible] both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent and state if you wish the name changed, as we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance if the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a letter order in his own name and send it, expect for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is dishonest [illegible] but she was—as we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes [illegible] and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid as we [illegible] knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the habit [illegible] paper when ordering [illegible] and order from that. It is [illegible] advertised as stopped only by the [illegible] and in plenty of time.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for their selves.

An author from only spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be stretched to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box, [illegible] has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

"They Say."

"They say"—oh, well, suppose they do!
But can they prove the story true?
Or, count yourself among the "they"
Who whisper what they dare not say?
Suspicion may arise from naught
But malice, envy, want of thought.

"They say"—but why the tale rehearse,
And help to make the matter worse?
No good can possibly accrue
From telling what may be untrue,
And is it not a nobler plan
To speak of all the best you can?

"They say"—well, if it should be so,
Why need you be the tale of woe?
Will it the bitter wrong redress,
Or cause one pang of sorrow less?
Will it the erring one restore,
Or comfort to "go out no more?"

"They say"—Oh, pause and look within,
See one thing heart inclines to sin;
And lest in dark temptation's hour
Thou, too, shouldst sink beneath its power,
Pity the frail, weep o'er their fall,
But speak of good or not at all.

Religion.

You are probably familiar with the definition usually given of the meaning of the word "religion" that it comes from the Latin words Re—again and Ligio—to Bind—to bind again. Cassells Bible Dictionary gives a slightly better definition—from "Religino" to gather together, to collect again. Religion is an original [illegible] element in man's nature just as much so as memory, music, time, etc. It consists of or finds expression in man's feeling of moral obligation and dependance toward God. One writer has aptly expressed it,—"Religion is that which furnishes the true ground of obligation." Some critics would have us believe in a natural and revealed religion. Natural, that is the knowledge, love and fear of God from the standpoint of human reason. Properly speaking there can be no natural religion, for the simple reason that the natural mind could have no proper idea of God. Religion is not a product of human reason. It is not anything which originated from human inquiry or study. It is the result of revelation. It is from God and therefore infallible. Although man has invented false religions just as he has tampered with everything else.

We may divide religion into two parts. 1. Doctrine—that which is received by faith. 2. Worship—the performance of our duties of love and obedience toward God. The external subject of faith. The two go hand in hand. No works without saving faith. No faith which has not some evidence. Jesus ii. Religion must have both faith and works to be religion. The whole family of man, in all ages, in every portion of the globe, worships something he believes to be a superior being.

Man saw movements he had not set in motion—results brought about though an agency of his—he was compelled to acknowledge the presence of power he could not control, which did not come from him and which was mightier than he—the result was his idea of a God. Upon this principle religion (so-called) developped among the heathen. The Indian through friction produced sparks from the skin of a reindeer. He also observed the Aurora Borealis, then coming from a cause to an effect, he concluded that reindeer were in the sky rubbing each others backs. The result was the worship of the gospel reindeer. And so with all forms of idolatry and heathen worship, and I make bold to say the basis of many creeds of today.

It would be difficult indeed to trace back to the origin of the Teutonic—Mohammed—Zoroaster—or any other form of religion which have existed, but it is interesting to note that the oldest of these, Confucianism, [illegible] only some 2400 years B. C. Zoroastrianism only 500 B. C.—Brahminism in 450 B. C., and Buddhism to 250 B. C. A close examination of nearly all forms of religion show that while they differ widely in their worship, there is one general principle upon which the doctrine of each is based. The immortality of the soul. This has taken various forms according to the intelligence of the people. The savage believed in the degeneration of the soul in the future—The Chinese believed in a continuous life, just as the present one—the Brahmins in transmigration from the lowest order of animal life to the very Gods and then all over again—and modern Christianity? that the soul attains the perfection herself—that it cannot in this life. Barbe Gould says, "Paul had his fastings, watchings, scourgings, his perils of waters, robbers, brethren, Jesus his thorny crown, the Apostles suffered martyrdom, all on account of their fidelity to God—These dieth as the fool dieth—No hope for them without an immortal soul." Mr. Gould has evidently forgotten that Jesus said "I am the resurrection and the life," and Paul that he had hope of a resurrection out from among the dead.

There is one passage in McClintocks' and Strongs' Bible dictionary which you and I Brothers and Sisters will appreciate more than the publishers. It is as follows.—"Far in the distance behind Buddhism, Brahminism, Zoroastrianism, and Confucianism there lies a primitive faith of great power to which our attention is called in Heb. xi. 2. To this primitive religion all the latter forms of truth, error and idolatry, owe their origin, whether we can or cannot trace their genealogy." We heartily endorse the statement. This faith by which the Elders obtained a good report and which Jude says was once delivered to the saints, is the true religion, the acceptance of which fulfills the true ground of obligation. What was this primitive faith? Nothing more or less than the faith of Father Abraham. What was the faith of Father Abraham? Nothing more or less than at some future time redeem his promise that in him and his seed should all the families of the earth be blessed. Gen xii., and Gal iii. Jesus says John viii. 56. Abraham saw my day and was glad. Why? Because he saw with the birth, crucifixion and resurrection of his seed the Christ, the first steps toward that grand epoch when man should be in harmony with God again, and the will of God be done in earth as it is done in heaven.

We find the faith in Egypt at the time of Joseph, when Pharaoh the 1st was in power. Gen. xli. 38. But note the difference at the time of Moses, Ex. v. 2. Pharaohs knew of the faith during the reign of the good King Melchizedek. Gen. xiv. But how quickly forgotten after his death. The land of Canaan was under the influence during the reign of the good Melchizedek, Priest of the Most High God, Gen. xiv. 18. But remember it during the times of Joshua. Moreover Jacob was under its influence during the sojourn of Abraham, but Joshua xxiv. 2. says, "They served other gods." Midian enjoyed the true religion during the life of Jethro, father-in-law of Moses, but after his death the people had no more love for the people of the Lord. How comes it that successive generations were soon found in reign—ignorance and idolatry. Rom. i. 28 answers very nicely. Revelation has been found in every age and we soon find instead of the gospel, the Sacred Fire fire and serpent worshipers of Persia, the Sphinx worshipers of Babylon, the people of Assyria, Greece and Rome, worshipping the Griffin. The Egyptians the Apis. The people of Bengal and Bhutan, the ox and five buffalo, at last run down to today with 88 distinct creeds and their numerous satisfactions in American slums. But in conclusion I am reminded of the definition of the word Religion.

This carries us back to creation, where we find man, Adam, in harmony with God. Then his disobedience and the curse. Adam then had before him the future history of [illegible] race. The never-ending conflict, the weary labor, the sore pain, the deep sorrow, all ending in death and return to dust.

There is another thing Adam saw—the blessed promise Gen. iii. 15, of a seed who should right the wrong he had begun. The Fathers also realized Adam's downfall—they realized man was at enmity against God. They saw in the promise of the seed the gathering together again in harmony of God and man.

GEORGE NEAL.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 43

In former papers I have spoken of Rachel Taylor, a motherless girl whom Auntie Willard had taken into her home as a daughter.

She had come to live in the Willard home the 2nd of July, 1861, and was to be sent to school and treated in all respects as if she were an own child. But early in September she became discontented on account of the loneliness of the place and would have left, had not a friend of hers interfered for her sake, all unknown to Auntie Willard, and persuaded her to remain. Auntie Willard, treated her kindly, told her "She was pleased with her work," and that "she would be happy to have her remain," but never urged or asked her to stay, but about a week after she had made up her mind to do so, she came to Auntie W.—to inquire about some household duty, when the latter felt impressed to talk and pray with her as she had done many times before. Always at these times she had had great liberty, and Rachel had invariably shown much feeling, but this time "She was lifted above measure and could say just what she wished and all that she wished and felt the sacrifice consumed."

After the prayer, she took up her Bible and "pointed Rachel to several Scriptures showing her lost condition by nature and how by faith in the gospel of the kingdom, and by obedience to the ordinances of God she could find refuge in Christ and begged her to read them for herself, and try to see herself in the glass of God's holy Word."

Rachel "sat as if she wished to say something," and Auntie Willard waited, "At last she spoke and said 'Mrs. Willard, I want to call you Mother, you have cared for me like a mother.' This was said with tears, and Auntie W.—quickly responded. "Yes, my child, this is just the thing I wish you to do. I have been about asking you to do so for several days but now I am so glad I did not, for now I know you wish it yourself."

A mother's kiss was imprinted upon the motherless cheek, and with warm caresses of the head she was welcomed into Auntie Willard's heart and family, being desired to call Bro. Willard, father.

Then Auntie W.—told her that "she wished her to go to her heavenly Father, as she had received such a token as this for the asking and ought to be encouraged, and that she felt assured she would give herself to him, and then she would be the richest girl in the world—she would have a Father in heaven and two fathers on earth" "All But dye, flushed." said Auntie Willard "was like a bird in spring among other songsters in the branches, hopping from spring to spring to his native grove. And when the time came for her evening duties, she pushed open the parlor door and peeping in with smiling face said, "Mother, we are ready for worship." "Well daughter," Auntie Willard replied and as she passed her, Rachel said, "Father is in your room playing the flute," and this was done with such evident pleasure to herself, that it gave great joy to Auntie Willard's heart, and in the silence of the night she awoke and thanked God that he had given her such a daughter receiving it as a token that her sacrifice for him in giving the message—"My Lord is coming back," to her fellow man was acceptable to him, and he had [illegible] of all care." This [illegible] had taken on the 10th day of September and it was on the evening of the 12th, as before related that Rachel, Lyman and two others, followed a little later by Rowland—rose in that memorable Thursday prayer meeting, at Bro. Symptkins, and [illegible] their wish to be enrolled as servants of the living and true God.

I could not think of leaving this part of her story. It tells, as no words of mine could tell, the tenderness, sweetness and devoutness of her life, and character.

Rachel was ultimately adopted by Bro. and Sister Willard but in a year or two married a young law student by the name of Russell, who had been brought into the truth at her home, it was thought that he would become a minister of the gospel, but how it turned out, I do not know. They went to the State of Vermont, where they are still living. Rachel, had a brother Henry, who was also a convert to the doctrine of life only through Christ, and whose love and respect for the Willard family was almost unbounded. I think he became a public speaker. He lives in Philadelphia and is totally blind.

In a letter to myself dated Jan. 17, 1862, Auntie Willard speaks of a dear little girl of 15, a Miss Lucy Canfield, as one of those who had hoped in Jesus' name a year before, but who had not yet been immersed. She came to Auntie Willard as she was going into the hall, the evening of the day the letter was written and said, "Mrs. Willard will you please sing the hymn,

"Just as I am without one plea
But that thy Blood was shed for me,
And that thou bidst me come to Thee
O Lamb of God I come!"

She acquiesced, and about twenty voices joined in sweet harmony, singing the six verses through, then Bro. Willard read the 53rd of Isaiah describing "the Lamb led to the slaughter, and Auntie Willard said this is the same Lamb about whom we have been singing, and when the reading was through, asked someone to quote the passage in the New Testament calling him a Lamb and one repeated "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." A moment was then given for any one who wished to do so to confess this Lamb of God, and a young Mrs. Nichols at once arose, and said "I want to stand up for Jesus; I love him and want to serve him all the days of my life." She then knelt and prayed for herself, and for her father and mother that they might become Christians, and be a happy family. Her father's name was Reeder and it was at his house that the first meeting was held in the hedge and where that dear sister Christy was found. Mrs. Nichols and husband were the ones who walked three miles to ask Bro. and Sister Willard to come to Mr. Reeder's and hold meeting. Mr. Nichols was now in the army, and Mrs. Nichols also offered prayer for him. A profound interest now seemed to pervade the room, and Auntie Willard lifted up her voice in a grateful note to God for such a token of his love and prayed that this might be but the beginning of good days to that band. And did not the angels in heaven rejoice over these repentant ones?

It may seem a trivial thing to some the turning of a sinner or two from the road of death into the way that leads to everlasting life, but how much grander a thing it is than the casting of a president, or the coronation of a king!

It may not seem worth our while to record the names of converts, but the apostles in their letters joyed in giving us at least some of the names of the dear ones who had come into the household of God and we too love to keep in memory, those whom our hands have snatched from the devil's power.

There were at this time from 19 to 25 in Auntie Willard's family. The morning service was held in the hall at half past seven, breakfast being over. Just think of it! Such a family to provide for, and yet the worship of God never neglected, the salvation of others never lost sight of, for a moment. Auntie Willard's health was much better after her removal to Hammontown, and in one letter to my mother she said "she was doing all the work for a family of twelve with no other assistance than that of her sons." That must have been before Nelson went into the army.

In the letter to me of Jan. 17, 1863, she speaks of a mammoth tailor-shop that Bro. Willard and a Mr. Subers had started, not only to help themselves, but also to tide others over the hard times. Both she and her niece—Sister Sallie Reter, had opposed it, fearing "they could not carry the Ark of God along with it, and that it would not otherwise prosper. Mr. Subers was perfectly willing that 10 minutes be spent at 9 o'clock in the morning in reading the Scriptures and prayer, and so that was made the custom of the day, Brother Willard planning and laying hold to help, and thus a great and effectual door was opened for usefulness," for people came a radius of six miles to obtain work and those who could not be there for worship were given tracts.

This tailorshop is nowhere mentioned save in the letter, and the fact that they had such a shop accounts for the largeness of her family.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY FEB. 23.
JESUS AT THE POOL OF BETHESDA.
JOHN v 1-18.

Golden Text—Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses. Matt viii 17.

Jesus came from Cana to Jerusalem, about fifty miles.

LESSON TEXT.

1 A feast of the Jews—the Passover John ii 13. One year since Jesus cleansed the temple.

2 Sheep market—sheep gate. Neh iii 1. Bethesda—house of mercy.

3 A great multitude of blind, halt, withered, weak, feeble, helpless humanity. What a sad, pitiful sight Jesus saw. He had the power to heal all. At Capernaum, all they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto him; and he laid his hands on every one of them and healed them. Luke iv 40. He did that in fulfilment of Isa liii 4. See Matt viii 16, 17.

At the Pool of Bethesda he healed one man.

4 An angel—a messenger—troubled, agitated—stirred the water at times. How often is not stated, but enough to have many afflicted wait with the hope of being healed.

5 Think of being almost helpless thirty-eight years. It is not hard to guess that this was one of the worst cases, if not the very worst of all that multitude.

6 When Jesus saw him He—saw almost the hopeless condition of the man. The only faint gleam of hope was that being at the spot some one might help him get to the water in time to be cured. It would appear that the movement of the water was for a very short time only, as those who had an ailment must hurry to reach it while it was troubled.

Wilt thou be made whole? The question did not awaken any hope. If it did it was not expressed. Sir, I have no man. How he got near the pool is not told. We may safely infer that he was too poor to hire an attendant.

8 Rise, take up thy bed and walk. This must have been an astonishing order, or command to a man that had not been well for thirty-eight years, and with but the faint of hope of ever being well.

9 The command and the power to obey was instantaneous. If we may judge from the record the man was so amazed he was speechless.

10 It is not lawful. The religious Jews—Scribes and Pharisees were particular only about outward observance, Matt xxiii 23-28.

11 He that made me whole. The one whose word had power to heal an [illegible] had the power of human soul, has a right to be obeyed, even if it was the Sabbath. We may well wonder, if a Pharisee or Scribe had been impotent, would they have objected to rising and carrying their bed on the Sabbath?

12 Who gave you command, or leave? They expressed no delighted surprise at the outburst of cure.

13 He did not know. Jesus had disappeared in the crowd without giving the bewildered man time to think about him.

14 Sin no more. This leaves us to understand that Jesus not only healed him, but forgave his past sins. The Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sins. Luke v 24.

Lest a worse thing come unto thee—what shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, and lose his own life? Mark viii 36. What advantage to be healed, and his sins forgiven, and come short of everlasting life—the promise of Jesus, John vi 40. It is better to enter into life halt or maimed.....than to be cast into everlasting fire. Matt xviii 8.

15 He told the Jews it was Jesus. This assures us that Jesus told him much that is not written here. It is also a pleasure to know that he was not afraid to tell the Jews who it was that made him whole.

Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of Man also confess before the angels of God. Luke xii 8.

This lesson is full of interest for earnest thinkers. The story of Jesus at the pool of Bethesda is in a low and simple words. As far as healing is concerned, the story shows that to be healed of what may be called an incurable disease is good, but gives no promise of this life nor that to come. Even forgiveness of past sins of no advantage unless we live a godly life, waiting for God's Son from heaven.

Next lesson. Jesus feeds five thousand, and John vi 1-21.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with Him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, the acceptance of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEB'Y 19, 1908

WORD from Sister Woodward tells us that Bro. Woodward is still sick, and the bad weather will not help him to get out, but be a hindrance.

THE meetings held by Brother Lindsay at this place have been quite well attended considering the weather, and the number who are sick in our community. The intention is to have the meetings continue over next Sunday. On last Wednesday three who had attended the meeting at Burr Oak came here and were baptized by Bro. Lindsay. They are Brother Chas. Hill and his wife Eva, and Sister Lola Akey. We are glad for this evidence of the power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and trust others will see the beauty of the Old Testament, and come accepting unto it ere too late.

IT SEEMS as if peace and harmony cannot exist among the nations for long at a time. With Peace Conventions and Alliances to promote harmony it would seem as if all would be sweet and nice. But the next turn of the wheel all is changed. Turkey and Persia had trouble over boundary lines. Russia aids Persia to get the best of it. Now Russia is weakened and the Sultan has a fine army, and attempts to reoccupy the disputed districts. Russia would again interfere, when all of a sudden the whole "concert of Europe" is upset. Certain railroad lines projected by Austria and Germany interfere with Russian designs, and Italy and England are brought into it at once. All sorts of wild talk, such as an Anglo-Slavo-Latin compact is indulged in, with others as equally impracticable. In the meantime the Sultan is the one man who is clapping his hands, as the quarrels of others are sweet morsels under his tongue.

WE are asked to explain why England is so interested in Portugal—why she is so interested in keeping the present government in power, and maintaining peace in the nation. When we understand the condition [illegible] but a short time since King Carlos had made himself obnoxious to several factions in Portugal. There is a "Pretender" who claims rights, and also a party who favor a republican form of government. Then of course they have the socialist element that exists everywhere, and which is so abused by having attached to it the anarchist, who would defeat the intent of real socialism. The result was King Carlos, and his oldest son were killed. Who by does not here signify. England is under treaty with Portugal to not only aid her in case of attack from without, but to maintain the government. In a time of peace, and in a quiet way the form of government might be changed, and not affect this compact, but under the excitement attending the assassination of these two, it would be hard to control matters. Hence England's hand was put forth. When Manuel was proclaimed King; his first plan was to keep his father's advisers in their several positions. And he said "Franco was my father's friend, and he shall be mine." As Franco was the man who had advised Carlos in doing the things that had angered the nation so, to maintain the new King, and also, Franco would be a task indeed, so King Edward immediately notified Queen Amelie that if the people were to be asked to rally to the support and acceptance of the new King, then Franco must be gotten rid of. This was done, and a new cabinet was formed. Now the reason for this interest on the part of England. The fact that Portugal owns islands in different parts of the world furnishes the answer. English supremacy depends on her navy. Coaling stations are necessary to the operating of ships, especially in times of war. Hence an alliance between England and Portugal. Should disturbances in Portugal threaten and injure German interests there, it would be easy for Germany to demand some island belonging to Portugal as a set off to damages sustained. Should another power ask privileges in the Azores, the Cape Verde archipelago, Madeira, or in Delagoa bay, a rival would gain, and the loss would not affect Portugal nearly so much as it would England. Hence we see England's activity and anxiety in the matter. We trust this will explain the situation and answer the Brother's inquiry.

Selections.

"Hope of the Resurrection."

There is nothing so repulsive to our natural instincts as death. There are few people who do not feel a cold shudder creeping through and through them whenever they realize the thought that they must die, and have the coffin-lid screwed down upon their forehead, and be covered up with clods in the damp, dark ground. But the hope of the resurrection of the just throws a radiance around the death-bed and the grave, and helps to reconcile us to the mysterious change. To a good man the sepulchre is but a gateway to the better world,—the resting place for the wasted and wearied body previous to going forth into the bliss and honors of a divine and eternal kingdom. Its shades are but a quiet night anterior to an everlasting day. Death is but a sleep, which presupposes a future awakening. "An eternal sleep" is a contradiction in terms,—a miserable solecism,—a mode of speech, the very paruseology of which brands the atheistic invention with absurdity. Sleep is but the temporary suspension of animation for the purpose of refreshment and invigoration. It is always succeeded by a waking. And such is death to the Christian. Jesus has transmuted it into a refreshing sleep, from which we shall early arise, in renewed strength and glory, for the scenes and employments of a day which shall have no night. The New Testament nearly always speaks of the departure of the believing as a sleep. Jesus said, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go that I may wake him out of sleep." "The saints which slept," is familiar phraseology to the reader of the Scriptures. "David, after he had served his own generation, fell asleep." As the first martyr died, Luke said he "fell asleep." Paul comforted the mourning Thessalonians, by assuring them that their pious dead "are asleep,"—only "asleep,"—to be waked to life again when Jesus comes. And so all the saints that have departed this life are said to "sleep in Jesus."

And what a reunion of hearts and exchange of happy gratulations shall crown and crowd that day! What glorious meetings and triumphs will then be celebrated! What devout and anxious hopes shall then be consummated! The [illegible] seems say, "Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust;" and they shall obey his call, and rise to praise him forever. Then will the once afflicted saints of every age and clime "stand dressed in robes of everlasting wear." Then shall those who denied themselves and took up the cross receive their crowns. Then shall the wisdom of their "respect unto the recompense of the reward" be vindicated forever. Then shall God glorify his Son by transforming millions into his glorious image. And "then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory."

Earth, my brethren, has been a theatre of some splendid victories, the fame of which has filled the world and echoed along the corridor of ages. But never has earth beheld such a triumph as that which shall be realized at the resurrection of the just. Then shall be enacted another genesis, more glorious than the first. Then shall be performed another exodus, more illustrious than that which Moses led. Then shall truth triumph over error, and faith over unbelief; humility over pride, life over death, and immortality over the grave. Then shall the cross give way to the crown, and corruption to glory; and from the mold and ashes of every Christian's tomb shall come forth an undying form, radiant with the transforming touch of Deity—a dear-bought but sublime and imperishable monument to the resurrection and the life. The graves of the patriarchs shall open. The scattered dust and ashes of prophets, apostles, and martyrs shall be gathered. Unknown saints of God that have died in garrets, and cellars, and barns, and dungeons—and lowly and despised poor in Christ who sleep in potter's-fields—shall spring forth from their unnoticed graves in sublimer glory than ever adorned the illustrious Solomon.

Then shall the waiting saints, of all lands and ages, mysteriously transferred to the bridal halls of heaven, join in holy fellowship to celebrate with untold joy the sublime epiphany of their redeeming Lord, with all their varied tongues in heavenly concord singing the triumph of that salvation for which they lived, and hoped, and suffered.

"O, sweet surpassing fable, and yet true!
Scenes of accomplished bliss! which who can see,
Though but in prospect, and not feel
His soul refreshed with foretastes of the joy?"

And what adds to the peculiar joy of some, is that they will never die at all, but shall "be changed in a moment in the twinkling of an eye at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed." "The dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them." And what a thought is this, that there perhaps are some listening to me who shall never know by experience what death is! Those of Christ's people who are living when he comes, shall of a sudden feel the thrill of immortality careering through them, and find themselves transported to join the children of the resurrection. The humblest and obscurest, the tower with the highest, all shall be taken together. The angels shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other. And they shall live and reign with Christ a thousand years. "And so shall we ever be with the Lord." And thenceforward forever shall the song be sung:

"Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men.
And he will dwell with them.
And they shall be his people.
And God himself shall be with them,
And be their God.
And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes;
And there shall be no more death.
Neither sorrow nor crying.
Neither shall there be any more pain:
For the former things are passed away."

Verily, "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection!" Was there ever conceived such a system of grace and glory as that which constitutes the gospel of Jesus? How precious are its promises! How transporting are its hopes! How it meets the vast desires of humanity, and pours consolation into the hearts of the children of sorrow! What is there to compare with it? Atheism, with its eternal sleep, may stupidly think of and render it somewhat callous to the woes of life, but how sad and cheerless is the epitaph which it writes on the tomb! Heathen philosophy, with its transmigrations and feeble guesses, may excite some dull zeal for futurity; but how clumsy is the destiny which is set before man! It is only Christianity, with its resurrection and another life that can at all rouse man into a proper consciousness of his dignity, or awaken the lofty and mighty aspirations that well up from his heart. This is our glorious hope, the price of which cannot be equalled with gold.

And how devoutly thankful should we then be for what God has done for us and purposed concerning us! How should our hearts soften at the contemplations before us, and swell with emotions of love toward so great a benefactor! How should we be concerned to find out the will of such a friend, and seek to approve ourselves of him! How gladly should we set ourselves to do his gracious commands, and to keep his loving counsels! In him is our strength, our hope, our joy. He is not ashamed to be our Lord, and surely we should not be ashamed to be his people. "Looking for that blessed hope, even the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ." Let us, then, give ourselves to him, body and soul, as a living sacrifice, which is our reasonable service. Let us fully identify ourselves with Jesus, knowing that when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." And especially, let us not forget that "every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he (the Savior) is pure." He hath prepared for us a city; but "there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination or maketh a lie." It is only "the holy" who shall have a part in the first resurrection. "The fearful and unbelieving, and abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burns with fire and brimstone, which is the second death." It is only "unto them that look for him" that "he shall appear the second time without sin unto salvation."—The Last Times.

Corn in Egypt.

There was famine in Canaan, and there was corn in Egypt. Some one told Jacob, in the soreness of the famine, that corn was to be had by sending to Egypt. Who told the news we know not, but it was good news, blessed news, news which saved the lives of those who heard it, and which brought deliverance to those who otherwise might soon have starved and died.

And such news as this is sent into all the world today, tidings from a land of plenty sent out to a land of want, and need, and suffering, and sorrow. What more joyous employment can there be than carrying this good news? What work is more fitting for those who love their kind, than to tell in the abodes of want and misery and famine, that there is corn in Egypt, that there is plenty for all the hungering sons of Jacob, that there is food upon the heavenly table, that in the Father's house there is bread enough and to spare.

There was only one matter which greatly interested the family of Jacob; it was the question of corn. If the messenger that brought them tidings had told them "There are pyramids in Egypt, there are obelisks in Egypt, there is wisdom in Egypt, there is wealth in Egypt, there is grandeur in Egypt," all these things would have been to them mere idle tales, while they were oppressed with want, and about to perish with hunger. The only thing that turned their eyes to Egypt was the fact Egypt had corn. And so in the world's need and want and hunger and distress there is one theme ever interesting, ever new, it is not the story of the greatness, the magnificence of the world to come; it is not the tale of the splendors of that heavenly city which has no need of the sun; it is not the record of the eternal power of him who made the worlds; but it is in the one fact that he who made man and loves him and has provided redemption, has in the treasures of his bounty, bread enough for every hungry soul, water enough for every thirsty soul, peace for the troubled, joy for the suffering, rest for the weary and life for the dead.

Oh ye, whose hearts are filled with other thoughts and other things, let the hunger which comes upon your souls drive you to him who offers heavenly bread. And let those who have heard of the divine fullness, of the heavenly plenty, tell in every home where suffering, and affliction, and starvation reigns and dwells, the story of the matchless bounty of the heavenly Father who giveth the bread to satisfy the longings of a hungry world. Perchance in seeking for corn in Egypt we shall find that there is a Joseph there also—One whom we have despised and rejected, and hated and spurned; but yet who in our extremity is still our helper, and whose yearning heart breaks out in tears of sympathy, as he sees us at last self-humbled and helpless at his feet, and seeking his mercy and forgiveness.—Common People.

The Eternal Rock.

What a commentary upon the word, "Whosoever falls on this stone shall be broken," is the whole history of the heresies of the church and the assaults of unbelief! Man after man, rich in gifts, endowed often with far larger and nobler faculties than the people who oppose him, with indomitable perseverance, a martyr to his error, sets himself up against the truth that is centered on Jesus Christ; and the great divine message simply goes on its way, and all the babblement and noise is like so many bats flying against a light, or the flight of the wild sea-birds that come sweeping up in the tempest and night, against the hospitable pharos that is on the rock, and smite themselves dead against it.

Skeptics well known in their generation, who made people's hearts tremble for the ark of God,—what has become of them? Their books lie dusty and undisturbed, whilst the Bible stands, with all the scribblings wiped off the page, as if they never had been! Opponents fire their small shot against the Rock of ages, the little pellets fall flattened, and only scale off a bit of the moss that has gathered there.

My brother, let the history of the past, with other deeper thought, teach you and me a very calm and triumphant distrust about all that people say now-a-days, for all the modern opposition to the gospel will go as the past has; the newest systems which cut and carve at Christianity will go to the tomb where all rest have gone; and dead, old infidelities will rise up from their tombs, and say to the brand-new ones of this generation when their day is worked out, "Ah! are ye also become like one of us?"—Alex McLaren.

The Impregnability of the Bible.

"But the Word of our God shall stand forever."

That the Bible is more than an ordinary book all must admit. That it has come to stay is evident. It was assailed in the dark ages; it has been stormed down to the present by the haters of the Christian religion. It yet survives, with no diminution in readers, but a constant increase, until instead of a few books written in one language, we have today the book written in the various languages of the world, and within the reach of the poorest.

From time to time there has been a class who have assailed the authenticity and truthfulness of the Bible—but every effort to destroy the veracity of this Word has proved a failure. The Bible stands, and has brought comfort to the hearts of men and women all down the ages. Souls today would sink beneath the awful load of sorrow, were it not for the comfort that God's Word brings to them.

It is a satisfactory thought in these days of unrest, when seemingly the confidence of people is so shaken that we hardly dare risk anybody, or anything, that the Bible will not be precious promises cannot be impugned.

Truly the Word of God stands, and will stand when all else has failed. The banks of earth may suspend, a note of promise may be protested, but every promise of God will be fulfilled, and the book of heaven will never fail.—H. A. Mitchell, in Christ.

The Final Doom.

Matt. xxv. 41-46. It is noteworthy that our Lord, in describing the doom of those on the left hand in the day of judgment, lays to their charge none of those sins which society has agreed to consider especially sinful. They are not accused of murder, of drunkenness, of adultery, of theft, or of other forms of outbreaking wickedness. So far as we could judge, they may have been all of them professors of Christianity, churchgoers, persons of sober and respectable life; and evidently the charge that is made against them takes them utterly by surprise. It was simply a charge of neglect. They had failed to love their neighbors as themselves. It was not that which they had done, but that which they had failed to do which brought them the curse of the King, and doomed them. "I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me not in; naked, and ye clothed me not; sick and in prison, and ye visited me not."

Evidently the condemnation of the King falls upon their ears as a terrible surprise. Their answer is ready, "When saw we thee an hungered, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee?" It was because they had neglected to do this even to the least of his brethren that he pronounced upon them the terrible doom.

In that awful account of the rich man who was tormented in the flame, nothing is told of his wickedness, his vileness, his cruelty, or his oppression. It is not said that he lied, or stole, or cheated, or defrauded, or was drunken, or dissolute. But he was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day. He wore the best clothes he could get, and lived in luxury, while poverty, and wretchedness, and misery lay uncared for at his door. This was the charge brought against him; and a similar charge seals the lips of those who go away in sorrow from the presence of the Judge.

Let us see to it that our lives are of a different character, and that we so actively serve the Lord and his people that we will escape the doom then pronounced, and enter with joy into the presence of the King.—Christian.

Silence That Is Golden.

It is easy for one to poison a person's mind concerning another. There is measureless ruin wrought in the world by the thoughtless speaker. Characters are blackened, friendships are destroyed, jealousies are aroused, homes are ruined, hearts are broken. Let us never take up an evil report and give it wing on breath of ours. Let us never whisper an evil thing of another. We know not where it may end, to what it may grow, what ruin it may work. Words once spoken never can be gotten back again. We had better learn to keep the door of our lips locked, and say no evil of any one. This is the silence that is golden.

WE wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robinson's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Old Testament Types and Shadows. No. 6.

A continuation of Bro. Browning's questions.

Question E. Can you suggest a way in which the pre-existence of Christ could have been pre-figured in Adam, the type? Assuming that doctrine to be true.

Answer: No; not as a personality. Adam doubtless existed in the mind of the Father before creation as you and I existed in his mind. Read Eph 1:3-4. This text shows that we pre-existed as much as any text in the Bible shows that Christ pre-existed. From such texts the Mormon church base their doctrine of the pre-existence of all of us.

Question F. I have discovered that the original of the word tempted, is in John 6:6 rendered "prove." Can this passage be explained in harmony with the popular idea that "temptation" always means an inducement to do evil?

Answer: While I cannot see that this question has any slice of bearing on the subject in hand, yet I will venture my opinion. Prove, tempt, test, etc., are words that are used synonymously by the translators in the King James version of the Bible. God created man not only for his pleasure, but also to extend to man a pleasure as well as an existence. God is a great active force. He rejoices in that which he creates. Activity is a law of the universe which is long created. In nature, [illegible] activity stagnates. The activity of the lumber running stream deepens it. This same law will apply to man, the creature of God. Had man been created perfect, this law had been broken and man would be a mere machine. In my judgment it is perfectly clear trials or tests are as necessary a part of man's existence as any other feature of his being. It seems to me that there has been something read into the word "temptation" that vulgarizes the word. If we will read it "test" or "trial" we will more nearly arrive at truth. We all have friends. Before they can become our friends we test or try them. The better they stand the test, the better we enjoy their friendship and our best friends are the ones who have suffered most for us; whence the old adage, "A friend in time of need, is a friend indeed."

Question F. What are the evidences that go to show that our Lord was tempted to show "whether he had more merit than was in the type"? as opposed to the thought that he was tried to prove that he WAS morally above all others.

Answer: I do not have comprehension enough to see the difference. If he was morally above all others and his overcoming showed this, does not this show that he had more merit than all others including the type?

I take this opportunity to thank all who have written me kindly upon this subject. I am subject to correction if my thoughts are wrong.

Report of Meetings.

Brother S. J. Lindsay came to South Bend, Feb. 3rd, and began a series of meetings, which continued one week. The sermons were very instructive and while there were no additions to the church much good was done. The members regretted that arrangements could not be made to continue the meetings another week, as a number were interested and are searching the Scriptures to learn if these things be true. Many expressed a wish to have Brother Lindsay come again.

The Bible and its Doctrines.

The Bible is the book into which all the writings of the Old and New Testament have been collected and incorporated, and which we firmly believe is a revelation from God to the children of men. Hence it is called the Word of God. And so firmly is it believed by some that the Bible is all divinely inspired, we hear the imprudent expression, "I believe every word of the Bible from Genesis to Revelation." And the presumption is that these persons have sole reference to King James' Translation of the Bible, and not to the pure original. But it is well known by Bible students who understand the Hebrew and Greek languages, that our common version is incorrectly translated in many places, and we know is perverted in not a few passages from the original.

The apostle settles this question of divine inspiration, 2 Tim iii 16, as follows: "All writing inspired of God is profitable for teaching, for reproof, for instruction," etc. The supplied word "is" is left out of the Revised Version because it is not in the Greek, and is a perversion, and is not true. I have put in "writing" instead of "Scripture" because it is the meaning of the Greek word, and has been used by Paul in this sense, for the sacred writings had not been gathered and combined, as since, into a book, which is now called the Holy Bible.

It may not be known to all the readers but is true, that King James instructed his translators to make the Bishop's Bible, which was the Latin, Papal Version, the basis of the English Version, and to change as little as the original and other versions would permit. And all may not know that the translators had access to only eight manuscripts not older than the tenth century, whereas, now, there is access to many manuscripts several centuries older, and therefore more reliable, as a whole, because of well known spurious passages and other corruptions, which were deemed necessary to fortify the doctrine of the Trinity. The spurious passage of 1 John v 7 has been left out of all late versions, and also the last clause of verse nine of Eph iii, inserted to prove that God created all things by Jesus Christ, making him the Creator which would contradict many other passages that positively teach to the contrary.

Now that the translators were also instructed to produce a version in harmony with the doctrines of the Church of England, which would include the pronunciamentos of the Church Councils of Bishops, not only embracing the hell-torment myth, but Trinitarianism, both of which have been such a frightful source of infidelity, is very evident from the fact that the ecclesiastical word baptizo, in its various forms, was not translated, thus showing the version as to doctrines, to be a sectarian production. Hence it is easy to see how and when the mythical hell-name—not from the Bible, but from the Papacy, through the State Church of England!

It was unfortunate for the Church of Christ and the world that the English Version of the sacred Scriptures, which has swayed, undoubtedly, the Christian sentiment of the civilized world, was not made what it should have been, namely, a correct and faithful translation of the original.

The results of this great error of translation, with the spurious passages foisted into the version, have been seen and woefully realized in the distractive divisions of the church into hundreds of sects, seriously crippling her power and influence by giving to her enemies a potent weapon, which they have not failed to use in poisoning the minds of men against the Bible and Christianity. And, here let me say, and it is said with sorrow, the great body of Adventists has thus suffered from the same source. And, we shall never see alike so long as so many, being wedded to pre-conceived opinions, refuse to admit the incorrect translation of passages they quote to prove their cherished doctrine.

The Bible in its original purity is a harmonious production, but, in the common version, and also in the English and American Revisions, are many contradictions caused by the perversion of the original, as we will proceed to show.

There are two classes of passages quoted on the subject of the Godhead. The first class teaching that there is only one God, who created the heavens and the earth with his own hands, and the second class in the New Testament, teaching a plurality of gods, or that Christ, the only begotten Son of God, is God and Creator of all things. Here, as all must see, is a palpable contradiction, which is not found in the original, as we shall show.

The correct translation of the first class of passages has never been disputed, while that of the second class has been by able and truth-loving translators. Hence we must accept as genuine, and believe what Jehovah, the God of Israel has declared in the first class of passages, to which we now call your serious and careful consideration.

Gen i 1, In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.

Although the word Eloheem, rendered God, is in the plural form, it cannot mean a plurality of gods, for this would be in contradiction of the many declarations to the contrary, and not in accordance with the definition of the word, which is—superior, mighty, supreme, The great God that formed all things, Prov xxvi 10. "Is there a God beside me? Yea, there is no God beside me. I know not any." Isa xliv 8. "I, even my hands have stretched out the heavens, and all of their hosts have I commanded." Isa xlv 12. Of old hast thou, God, laid the foundation of the earth: and the heavens are the work of thy hands. They shall be loosed, Heb. avad, to loose, not perish, but thou shalt stand. Psa cii 25, 26. I am Jehovah, the King of Israel; I am the first, and I am the last, and beside me there is no God. Isa xliv 6. This language of Jehovah explicitly and emphatically cuts off the plurality of Gods, notwithstanding the plural form of Eloheem, and the—Let us make man in our own image, because it is Jehovah—one personality—who thus speaks. Thus saith the Lord, Jehovah, he that created the heavens and stretcheth them out, he that spread forth the earth. Isa xlii 5. Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard that the everlasting God, the Lord, Jehovah, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? xl 28. Have we not all one Father? hath not one God created us? Mal ii 10

There are other passages on the same point, but are not the above sufficient to show that the one God, Jehovah, created the heavens and the earth, and that, too, without any other to help him, seeing that he is Almighty and had only to speak and it was done, in his own way and time, and he commanded and it stood fast.

But Christ settles this question, beyond all equivocation, if his words were believed. He says, For in those days shall be affliction, such as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created. Mark xiii 19.

Christ never claimed to be God, but only the Son of God, and the Son of Man; and, no inspired writer has claimed for him more than he claimed for himself, according to the original, as we will show later.

The fact that it required both the divine and human natures to constitute the Christ, the true Messiah, and that such a personage did not exist only in the purpose and plan of salvation, as a Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, until he was born of a woman in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, explicitly and emphatically disproves the pre-human existence of Christ, as believed and promulgated by the churches of the world.

The great truth evolved in the above presentation of truthful facts, is that the pre-human, divine—existent being was, and is God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who created the heavens and the earth by his own hands. And, this is clearly shown by Christ in his memorable prayer by the following language: And this is life eternal, that they may know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent. Jno xvii.

The apostle confirms the above words of Christ, For though there be that are called gods, whether in or on earth, as there be gods many and lords many, but to us there is but one God, the Father and one Lord Jesus Christ. But Paul is made to contradict these words by the incorrect translation of Col i 15, and Heb i 2, as will be shown.

The apostle again says, One God and Father of all. Eph iv 6. Now a Mediator is not a mediator of one, but God is one, Gal iii 20, not three nor two. But Trinitarians claim that there are three Gods, as before named, and then to cap the climax, they claim and boldly assert that these three personal gods are only one God—a mathematical absurdity.

The infidel says, I can't accept Christianity until it can be proven that a son is no old as his father; for I know that a father must exist before a son in order to beget a son. And this is true. Christianity is thus judged and rejected—not by the Bible in its original purity, but—by that erroneous Papal dogma Trinitarianism, which Protestants have unwittingly received and promulgated to the great detriment of the church and world.

Evangelistic Work.

My work in Arizona began Oct 31st at Arlington and closed Jan 19th, '98, in Phoenix, the capital of the Territory. It was considerably oppressed on account of the uncertainty of my health and the uncertainty of my plans to go on into Texas with the double motive of regaining my former health and gaining converts to the Master through belief of the gospel of the kingdom and a practical knowledge of the duty of the servants in the use of the talents, "pieces of money" or opportunities he has given to each and every servant that he has called to work for him. On this occasion I candidly told the brethren the situation. I was laboring a hard proposition. Should I go on to Texas with the important hope that the change of climate, continued, would bring back my health and energy? or shall I return to the rainy climate of the northwest, and do what I might under the systematic work of Oregon and Washington? A practical answer came that day in a donation of $101 from the brethren for traveling expenses. It meant emphatically, the end. I started Tuesday evening, 31st. It helped me to know that all their love and enough of their money went with me to assure expense for numbers of miles.

We reached Tempe where our labor had added a number in obedience. Here our beloved Brother Corbell boarded the train to hand me a letter from himself and his afflicted but faithful wife urging me to provide myself with warmer under wear than I had needed in Arizona, as soon as I reached Texas. Here was love in advice and with a parting hug (I am not ashamed of the scene). It was some like the scene of nineteen hundred years ago—the affection. But the country, the method of travel so different. We moved on to Tucson, Arizona. I had been instructed at Phoenix by Bro. J. M. Pike, that I should sit on the right hand side of the car at this place, and have the window up and his two sons Bros. Valley and Freeman would be likely to come to the train. By calling the help of the porter I complied with the request. The young, highly esteemed brothers were under the window of the car at one o'clock in the night with uplifted faces and hands and each with a liberal donation to carry the gospel to Texas. The younger brother Freeman had begun the proclamation in connection with my work in Washington near a decade ago, I hope his voice has not grown weary—his hand has not. Don't give up the use of your mental talent, my dear young brother, even if you meet discouragements. The rest of us meet them, I met them soon after my last good bye to you. I had gone but a short distance into Texas, almost to Odessa, when I took intensely sick, could not tell whether it was heart failure, paralysis or nervous prostration. I called the attention of the passengers. They secured a stimulant. It gave partial relief. They notified the conductor who stopped the train at Odessa and sent a passenger to summon a doctor, who came aboard and injected strychnine into my arm to set the blood to moving. He stayed with me till we reached Stanton; where he secured a livery rig to haul me to Bro. Taylor's one-fourth mile from the depot. I can now report to our dear Arizona brethren a part of the expenditure of your liberal help toward evangelizing Texas. The doctor charged $25.00 for his car ride and treatment. The livery $1.50 for hauling me one-fourth mile and I am alive; and was able to talk on the following Sunday in Stanton to a fairly good hearing in the Christian church on my best of all mottoes, "And now abideth faith, hope, charity; these three but the greatest of these is charity," substitute "love" for "charity." I wish to be able to tell it over and over in Texas and in States northeastward beyond. Brethren, do not let the fact that I am being shown "how frail I am discourage you any place that I have planned to come. Though before I came to Abilene, Texas, I was discouraged over having expenses met, but discouraged more concerning health. I have reason yet to believe that God will not suffer his Word to return to him void. In Abilene, Texas, I visited the home of Sister Gibbs widow of Bro. W. L. Gibbs, deceased last April, which is also the home of that religious periodical with the suggestive name Word and Work." When I saw the exhausting effect but energy of this frail woman who has continued to carry the burden after her husband was snatched suddenly away by our common enemy I renewed my resolution with the thought that there are other callings more nerve exhausting than evangelizing, even in Texas.

I close my letter by urging my readers to sustain your publication. Don't be exacting with your editors, give them a chance for their lives and give their papers a chance, not only by doubling the subscription by continuing your own name, but by furnishing the names of others. My visit here has shown me the task and nerve strain on our editors as I have never known it. I suppose it will be unrequited when I respond to the invitation from The Restitution office, as I hope to be able to do. Address Abilene, Texas, at present.

At the Breaking of Bread.

The following Scriptures were selected and read by those present.

Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God; therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. 1 John iii 1.

Whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world; and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. 1 John v 4.

Let us who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for a helmet, the hope of salvation. 1 Thes v 8.

How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him. Heb ii 3.

Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven. Acts i 11.

Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation. John v 28, 29.

Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us; for it is written, cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree. Gal iii 13.

We desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest: for as concerning this sect, we know that every where it is spoken against. And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging; to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening. And some believed the things which were spoken, and some believed not. Acts xxviii 22 24.

When Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, he said, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God! For it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. Luke xviii 24-25.

Godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content. But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition. 1 Tim vi 6-9.

Let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ; that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one Spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel. Phil i 27.

God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us; that thy way be known upon the earth, thy saving health among the nations. Psa lxvii 1, 2.

Oh, that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion; when the Lord bringeth back the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad. Psa xiv 7.

And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it. Isa xl 5.

Our Love Feast Letters.

Dear Restitution:

My subscription is about expired. Enclosed find postal order for a dollar and a half to pay for the paper another year. I could not do without it—it is all the preaching I have. God bless The Restitution and the dear brothers and sisters that make it so good. Your sister in Christ.

CLARISSA CAMPBELL.

Dear Restitution:

Enclosed find two dollars, please renew my subscription to my paper another year and please send the paper for three months to each of the following names. I do enjoy reading The Restitution so much. We have no church here, have not heard a sermon preached since Bro. Green died. I was baptized in the faith when I was eighteen years old, am still strong in the faith once delivered to the saints. I wish the brothers and sisters would pray for me that I may be faithful till the end.

As ever your sister.

EUGENIE STEVENS.

Dear Brother Underwood:

Enclosed find 50 cents to pay on The Restitution. Would gladly send more but I am in such poor circumstances I cannot send any more at present. I have such poor health I cannot do very much hard labor. Still continue, dear brother, to send me the dear old Restitution for it is so much comfort to me to read it. I am still striving in the one faith. Christ the King will come, I do not think it will be very long we will have to wait. The Lord be with you and bless you and all the brethren and sisters in the blessed work of the Lord is my prayer.

B. W. REESE.

Dear Restitution:

Please find enclosed $1.50 for which extend my subscription one more year.

I have not been baptized yet but hope to be in the near future. I am still looking for the Master upon whose shoulders the government of the nations will rest throughout all eternity. I am some 15 or 16 miles from any meetings or where there is any preaching, so I do not get to go very often. But nevertheless I keep the Bible and Mr. Wilson's Text Book for my study. I find it a great help in the study of topics.

Between The Restitution and the text I find great pleasure in the study of God's Word. May God's blessing rest upon all those who uphold for the one gospel and the one hope.

Yours in the hope.

O. C. JONES.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed please find P. O. Money Order for $1 50 for subscription to The Restitution for ensuing year.

May the Lord in his love knit us closer together in the unity of spirit, and keep us in these days of peril. Have we purified ourselves as he is pure? We shall be like him when he shall appear if we take heed to his words. Yours in love.

B. W. WAGONER.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

We are thankful once more to see so many nice letters in The Restitution from the household of faith; it surely does us good to read one another's words of praise. We are some 15 miles from our church at Brushcreek. But we had the pleasure of having our able Brother and Sister D. C. & N. B. Robison with us. We had 10 discourses, we had an attentive audience and good attention, and we had 2 Bible studies on the Saturday evenings with fair attendance. We had for lessons the 8 chapter of Romans, and second evening 15th chapter of 1 Corinthians. And Brother Robison our noble teacher who can make it so plain a child can understand it. Let us all be watchful for we know not when the Bridegroom cometh. Be watchful is our prayer and may we be found worthy when he comes.

N. S. & E. WESTFALL.

Dear Restitution:

I for the first time avail myself of the opportunity of greeting all through The Restitution and the plan of the New Year's Greeting by the letters published in the paper. I never have been so situated as to hear the gospel of God preached but very seldom, almost always been in the far west where but few of the true faith and the church were to be found, but having the word of God, the Scriptures of truth ever by me and having sufficient of the faith to take the steps necessary, that is obedience and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ, and ever since endeavored to so live as to keep alive the hope of the gospel the blessed promises of God. I [illegible] say that I am none the less firm in the faith, and looking for the return of the Lord the Son of the living God and the setting up of the kingdom of God and reign of Christ upon the earth. And I do rejoice in the hope of the life to come. I read with much pleasure the many letters of the faithful in The Restitution, all helping me to hold out faithful to the end. I am now old being in my seventy seventh year. I am pleased to say I have been a reader of The Restitution for many years, and endeavored to have it read and especially by those whom I hoped to have gain a knowledge of the true plan of salvation. The able articles published in the paper being of much use and advantage generally to give light upon and knowledge of Bible truths.

I have however been annoyed by a few articles in the paper, that is because the passages of Scripture referred to in the articles were only cited but not quoted, and the persons to whom I had given the paper did not know the language of the passages as but very few do so as to quote them, and very seldom, in fact I think safe to say never do go to the Bible and hunt up the passages, and some have held that passages were not what the argument in the article seemed to imply, else the writer would have quoted the language fully. And some who desire to cavil will say, ah, this new doctrine is false and the writer knew it or else he would have quoted it, and they sometimes make use of such to try to bring our doctrine into reproach.

It would be a pleasure to me hereafter to see all articles and arguments supported by the full and complete quotation of all passages of Scripture referred to, and failure such quoting would aid me in my efforts to spread the truth. And now again I desire to greet the brethren and sisters by those few lines of greeting. I have labored to get together, in order to add my testimony, by means of this New Years Greeting, and do hope to cheer some one or more on the way, as I am cheered by the many who write and cheer me away here in my distance from where so many of you writers are. So you have the blessed privilege of hearing the gospel preached. I wish to assure all as I promise the Lord in my prayers that I am determined to keep the faith as it is in Jesus and look with hope for the soon coming of the Lord.

2 What was God's purpose concerning them previous to their birth.
3 What do you understand by "Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated?" Mal i.
4 Was Jacob justifiable in supplanting Esau? Give reason for your answer.
5 What was Jacob's character while serving Laban?
6 When did Jacob become justified? Gen xxxii 9 to 13, 28 to 30.
7 Who was the lord of this land? (Canaan). Explain fully.

D. C. ROBISON.

"In this age of 'perplexity' when the hearts of men are 'failing them for fear,' and the love of many waxing cold because iniquity abounds, the safe thing is to stay just where God placed you, and do the thing he first called you to do. God has not changed though circumstances have. His 'gifts and callings are without repentance.' He knew those peculiar trials were coming when he first called you to that work and because he knew you needed the educational influence of those trials, he permitted them to come. God says, 'Let every man abide in the calling wherein he is called.'"

Election.

"Known unto God are all his works."

God is spirit. He made the higher order of intelligences called angels, spirit also. He proposes now to make something greater, man the greatest creation of God. In the creation he makes man in his own image subject to death, for a little while lower than the angels, having in view Christ and the saints. Not a dying soul but a living soul. He made all creation subject to frailty, not frail in every sense, but subject to it. He pronounced it good. It was a beautiful figure of that which was to follow. By the law is the knowledge of sin. Adam was given a law in the Eden Garden. The Lamb was slain before the foundation of the World. Paul tells us that Adam was a figure of him that was to come. The type, the natural, the figure failed: but said God, I will make a man to be by the resurrection the express image of my person, who will not fail, but who will overcome the evil one by death. Because in the foreknowledge of God he foresaw these things, shall we charge God with being an accessory to sin? Not even though it is better for us that Adam and Israel both failed. "For the judgment came of one unto condemnation, but the free gift came of many trespasses unto justification." Adam lost first place—for Christ is the elect of God. The purpose of God concerning election is not well understood by many of God's people. The statements made regarding Esau and Jacob are not difficult of comprehension when they are taken as they stand, when compared with other Scriptures, and no attempt is made to limit, change or dispute God's words. First the natural (seed), then that which is spiritual, neither can the natural seed develop until the manifestation of the spiritual; this is true individually and as a body, of Israel and the Church. "Jacob have I loved, and Esau have I hated." (or loved less). Before they had done either good or bad, this was said, that God's purpose of election might stand. According to the foreknowledge of God he chose Jacob as the seed, not according to his works nor his obedience. While we see Jacob having respect both to the birthright and blessing, Esau sold his birthright and lost the blessing, but this had nothing to do with his election when first chosen of God. Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus? Some seed will not produce life. Some eggs have not the life to produce chicks. And there are conditions which destroy that little life which they may have. Even though Jacob obtained the promise through subterfuge, it was of God, who afterwards trained him under a hard task master, and he learned obedience by the things which he suffered. But what do we read of his brother? His wives and sons were numerous, he accumulated great possessions, built cities, lived in luxury, for pleasure, and began to lord it over the people, to be chiefs and dukes and kings; while Jacob dwelt in tents in the land of Canaan. So it is evident God chose him from the beginning and trained him for his purposes. "For this purpose have I raised thee up" said God, of Pharaoh. Did he make him bad in the beginning? No, not necessarily, but withheld certain truths from him, surrounding him with riches and earthly honor, he became vain, pompous, proud and withstood the servant of God, Moses. Thus certain people are allowed to exhibit for a time, and become prominent in the affairs of the world, God giving them their portion now, for he giveth the rule to the basest of men, says Daniel: What is the object of it all? That he might make known the riches of his glory upon the vessels of mercy, which he afore prepared unto glory, even us, whom he also called, not from the Jews only, but also from the Gentiles. There are those who claim to follow Christ in the churches who never knew him. They are not outwardly wicked, they do not break the laws of the land, are not thieves nor robbers, but appear morally good, yet they have not the Spirit, they are not spiritually minded, never have fully comprehended the Scriptures, they become proud and boastful, and are enemies of Christ and the truth. Having known God in a way, they refuse to go on to perfection. They have no part in our salvation.

Then again there are two classes in the Church of God—the ignorant babes and the learned in the Word. The babes are hindered in their growth by their teachers. But the Word of God is not bound and in due time they will get the truth necessary for their salvation. But the class of which Esau is the type, is not lost, for we read, "And Rebecca his wife conceived and the children struggled together within her," and taking it to the Lord he said, "Two nations are in thy womb, and two peoples shall be separated even from thy bowels; and the one people shall be stronger than the other people and the elder shall serve the younger."

In the creation of God, of which Christ is the beginning, the two classes are the church, of which Christ is the head, the fulness of God, that filleth all in all, and Israel who have lost the first place as a nation, who in their turn rule over the saved of the nations; represented by Abraham's six sons by Keturah. For "he hath fixed the bounds of their habitation according to the number of the children of Israel," and during that terrible day of Jacob's trouble, he shall be saved out of it, and returned to the land. Paul said, that in the resurrection there is one glory of the sun, another glory of the moon. Now the moon shines from the reflected light of the sun, so Israel cannot shine until the sun of God are perfected and manifested. So God calls and adds to the church such as shall be saved. Nevertheless Jesus, Paul, Peter and John speak of a sin unto death, a falling away, from which there is no recovering. Now that the fruit is green and ripening, there is no restoring it, should it become rotten, and it is impossible to restore a certain class, it is also impossible to tempt others from the power of faith, hope and love of the gospel. "Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father in sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ. Grace to you and peace be multiplied."

E. D. McGLEES.

P. S. In my article on "Election," I made a statement, that might be misconstrued by some; who would infer that I was teaching Josephite or Unitarian doctrines. I said that Adam had lost his first place, and Christ had obtained it, or words to this effect. This is not strictly true, any more than Esau could lose his first place, because of the obedience of Jacob. Esau never had first place, except by occasion of birth, which was overruled by the previous election of Jacob. Jesus the only begotten Son of God, conceived by the Spirit, made of a woman, made under the law, and those in him, were elect before the foundation of the world. There is no comparison of objects of different nature; of Adam and Christ in considering election. "First the natural, then that which is spiritual," or, in process of time out of the natural is produced the spiritual, which though last, is first. "Behold I make all things new," not new things entirely; but out of the old, by the creative power of the Spirit in the new man, will come the new. And Christ will accomplish more for Adam's race than Adam could ever have done. Such is the purpose of God in election, "the last shall be first and the first shall be last."

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 350 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

Recent Travels and Explorations in Bible Lands, with maps and original drawings, by Frank S. DeHass. Over 600 pages. A splendid gift book, by one of the accredited authors, really a souvenir book, for $1 75

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by G. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

The Hydropathic Encyclopedia, a system of Hydropathy and Hygiene, by Dr. R. T. Trall. A large and exhaustive work, 75c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

The middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, If any one refuses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 970 St Marks ave, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 6 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

W. L. SKEELS.

Evangelizing Notice.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Believed we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Robt. H. Huggins, Box 47, Oregon, Ill.

NOTICE.

If any of the brethren desire copies of the platform of the Illinois Conference of 1887, they may receive them by sending to E. L. Curtis, Photographer, Oregon, Ill. The price is 5 cents each. If any who have paid for their pictures have not received them please notify me at once. Address at Oregon, Ill.

EMMA L. SMITH.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother B. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies (post paid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the plain old truth. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Bro. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Yours loving brother,

T. J. DANIEL.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought into knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" for a person finding certain mutilated phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 180 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 420 North Willow Ave. Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

A four-page tract in the German language, by Brother M. Joblin of Cleveland, O. Subject, "What Must I do to be Saved?" After getting the opinion of one who understands this language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to M. Joblin, 626 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

BIBLE PEARLS—2 page tracts. Suitable for wide distribution. 1 The Gospel. 2 Coming and Kingdom of Christ, by 20,000 Baptists in 1660. 3 Immateriality. 4 Kingdom of God. 5 Nature of Man, and Thoughts for Thinkers. 6 Two Advents. 7 What is Religion? 8 Restitution Age. 9 Destiny of the Wicked. 10 Baptism. 10 copies for 5 cts, or assorted packages of 100 for 20 cts.

FOUR-PAGE TRACTS.

Can You Believe? a series of questions setting forth the fundamental points of our faith.

State of Man in Death. A collection of proof texts on this subject.

Life and Death. A short concise statement of the facts in the case.

Age to Come Not a Heresy, by H. V. Reed.

10 for 10 cts, 50 for 25 cts—100 for 40 cts.

Future Probation.—Is that awaiting any of the unrighteous? A 150-page pamphlet by Wm. Bluth Somerset. Post paid, 10 cents.

Law or Gospel—Which? A tract of six pages, being a discussion of the Sabbath Question, by M. Joblin. Any one who is troubled by doubts on this subject, and all who wish to keep well posted, should send ten cents to this office and get a copy.

Modern events in the Light of Prophecy.—By H. V. Reed, 5 cents each, or 30 for $1.00.

The Paternity of Jesus. A pamphlet of 122 pages, by M. Joblin, giving in detail all that can be said on this subject, and completely proving the Heir the Son of God, and not the natural son of Joseph. This work ought to be sold at 25 cents a copy, but the author was so anxious that price should not stand in the way of its being read, that he put the price at ten cents, so all can buy them. Send to this office for them.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think diversity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintance with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address M. Joblin, 624 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, sets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an evident wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Forgotten Workers.

They lived, and they were useful; this we know,
And naught beside;
No record of their names is left, to show
How soon they died;
They did their work and passed away,
An unknown band;
But they shall live in endless day, in the Fair abiding land.

And were they young, or were they growing old?
Or ill, or well?
Or lived in poverty, or had they wealth of gold?
No one can tell;
Only one thing is known of them, they faithful
Were, and true
Disciples of the Lord, and strong the sigh prayer
To save and do.

But what avails the gift of empty fame?
They lived to God;
They loved the sweetness of another Name,
And gladly trod
The rugged ways of earth, that they might be
Helper, or friend,
And in the joy of this their ministry,
Be spent, and spend.

No glory clusters round their names on earth;
But in God's heaven
Is kept a book of names of greatest worth,
And there is given
A place for all who did the Master please,
Though here unknown:
And there lost names shine forth in brightest rays
Before the throne.

Oh, take who will the boon of finding fame!
But give to me
A place, among the workers, though my name
Forgotten be;
And if within the book of life is found
My lowly place,
Honor and glory unto God redound
For all his grace!

Will you please explain Rev vi 9, 10, and greatly oblige yours very respectfully, E. E. Slack, Bogota, Ill.

REPLY.

The 6th chapter of Revelation unfolds the events which were to occur when the Lamb opened the six seals. By reading the chapter with care you will learn that the seals are only time-periods in which certain events transpire. The first, second, third and fourth seals have to do politically with the Roman Habitude; but the fifth seal gives us divine illumination as to the Body of Christ in its conflicts with the Roman Beast. It discloses the "dreadful and terrible" (Dan vii 7) beast killing the saints on an altar, "for the Word of God, and for the testimony which they held." It speaks of them in the agonies of death as crying with a "loud voice" for God to speedily avenge their blood on their enemies. In the remarks which follow we limit our comments on this passage to 1. The "altar" on which they were killed; and 2. The "loud voice" which they uttered in their dying moments.

1. The Altar. In the Old Testament we often have altars which were erected by God's people called by very remarkable and suggestive titles. Jacob built one and called it Ail-Elohe-Yisrael, "the Strength of the Mighty One of Power's Prince". Gen xxxiii 18-20. As Jacob could not and did not consider the work of his own power the "Power's Prince," he was taught, and we are instructed, that his altar was only a symbol of him who is the Strength and Power of God. The altar on which the Israelites offered their sacrifices was "an altar of earth." "And," continues the record, "if thou shalt make me an altar of stone, thou shalt not build it of hewn stone; for if thou lift thy tool upon it, thou hast polluted it. Neither shalt thou go up by steps unto mine altar, that thy nakedness be not discovered thereon." Ex xx 24-26. "We have an altar" (Heb xiii 10) in the person of our Lord Jesus "an altar of earth," of the same nature we are, and born "the image of the earthy" (1 Cor xv 49), as the type requires. And further, he was, like the stone of the Levitical altar, not hewn or touched by any "tool" of man's device. They who affirm that Joseph is the father of Christ "pollute" him, and make Joseph the builder of an altar of hewn stone, upon which his nakedness had been discovered.

2. The "loud voice." Christ is the altar on which his faithful followers were "beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the Word of God." Rev xx 4. Believers were constantly exhorted by the apostles to be ready at any time to make a sacrifice of themselves. Especially was this true coincident and concurrent with the fifth seal. Christ's sacrifice is expressed in the prophetic words, "He hath poured out his soul unto death." Isa liii 12. Christ showed the apostles by his death how they were to die. 2 Pet i 14. Paul was acquainted with this prophetic intimation, and so says to the brethren at Philippi, "If I be offered (poured forth, see the Greek) I joy, and will rejoice with you all." Phil ii 17. Just before his death at the hand of Nero he said he was "ready to be offered (poured out), that is sacrificed. 2 Tim iv 6. A century later, Ignatius was executed by Trajan, and he spoke of being poured out as a libation to God on his altar. The biographer of Polycarp, of Smyrna, who suffered in A. D. 160, says: "Having his hands tied behind him, and being bound as a ram out of a great flock for an offering, and prepared for a burnt sacrifice, acceptable to the Deity, he looked to heaven and said, "O Father, I give thee hearty thanks that thou hast vouchsafed to me that at his day and this hour I should have a part in the number of thy witnesses in the cup of Christ, unto the resurrection of eternal life both of soul and body, in the incorruption of the Holy Spirit. Among whom may I be accepted this day before thee as an acceptable sacrifice, as thou hast ordained." From Polycarp's words as above recorded, we see that the texts of Scripture we have cited led him to regard his execution as a sacrifice, or a pouring out underneath the altar. He cheerfully submitted to the "cup of Christ," and expressed his faith in a future resurrection of his soul as well as his body to the "incorruption of the Holy Spirit."

Now the "loud voice" which these men of God uttered when they died at the hands of their enemies, is explained by the words, "poured out his soul," etc. "The life of the flesh is in the blood." Lev xvii 11. Jesus poured out his soul" when he poured out his blood on the cross. When he was expiring on the cross he "cried with a loud voice." Matt xxvii 46. Even if these words are not capable of proving the text would yet express a great truth. The blood of Abel cried by Cain is said to have a voice and to speak—"The voice of thy brother's bloods [Heb] CRYETH unto me from the ground." Gen iv 10. In the same way the blood of Jesus which was "the life of the flesh," was "poured out" on the cross, and spoke in thunder tones (spoken) "better things than that of Abel." Heb xii 24. The blood of Abel only spoke of Cain's sin and murder; Christ's speaks much "better things" than these, for it speaks of pardon and peace. As the blood is the life or soul, when it was "poured out" on the burnt sacrifice, it ran down "under the altar," lost its fluidity, and became solid as concrete. As a consolidated mass it remained if we are to understand the altar to "speak" by its stones and graves, and to cry "with a loud voice" to the "Holy and True" One to take judicial vengeance on the murderers. Hasten the day, O Lord, when thou wilt avenge thy peoples' blood on them that dwell on the earth.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY MAR 1

JESUS FEEDS THE FIVE THOUSAND.

Golden Text. He shall feed his flock like a shepherd. Isa xl 11.

Last lesson Jesus was in the temple at Jerusalem. The Jews sought to kill him because he had broken the Sabbath, and said God was his Father. John v 18. After a long talk with them he went over the Sea of Galilee. John vi 1.

LESSON TEXT.

2 Because they saw his miracles—the miracles of healing. After the feeding of the five thousand he walked across the Sea of Galilee. John vi 19. The people took boats and followed him. He told them they followed him because of the food. He exhorted them not to do that, but to labor for the meat that endureth. John vi 26, 27. That meat was the gospel—glad tidings of the kingdom of God, concerning which he said: Repent—change your mind—and believe—have faith. Mark i 14, 15, and be immersed. Mark xvi 15, 16.

3-5 The multitude—about five thousand men. Verse 10. Matt xiv 21 adds, "Beside women and children.

5-7 To try Philip he said, Where can we find bread for so many? Philip figuring said, two hundred penny-worth—Denarii—about thirty dollars worth would not be enough.

8, 9 Andrew called the attention of Jesus to a boy with five barley loaves and two small fishes. That seemed to be all the food that could be found among the great crowd.

10 The place was choice, and just suited for the purpose—or object—that Jesus had in view. The feeding of the whole multitude with about enough for a meal for one. That it might glorify God, and the Son of God—glorify. John xi 4.

11-13 He took the food, and gave thanks—an example for all the faithful. From then to the end of the meal was certainly a busy time for Jesus and his disciples. We read that they—every one—were filled—had a full meal—and twelve baskets of fragments. But do we understand and know how it was done? No indeed. The finite mind can look on, or read, and marvel. The spiritually minded—those who have obeyed from the heart, Rom vi 17, 18—read, marvel and have full faith that Jesus—their Lord and Master—fed five thousand with three small barley cakes and two small fishes. This great miracle was but a taste of the powers of the world to come. Heb vi 5. When the saints possess the kingdom. Dan vii 18. They shall do greater works than these. John xiv 12.

14, 15. The miracle convinced the men that Jesus was that prophet. Deut xviii 18 19. The Messiah—and would, by force, have proclaimed him King of the Jews. The times were not yet come, Jesus had to suffer first. Luke xxiv 26. He for our sins. 1 Cor xv 3. And be raised for our justification. Rom iv 25. And the gospel preached in all the world for a witness. Matt xxiv 14. To take out a people from among the Gentiles. Acts xv 14. This has been going on for about two thousand years and we pray "Thy kingdom come."

Next lesson, Jesus the Bread of Life. John vi 22-51.

Funeral Sermon.

PHIL. iii, 20-21.

For our conversation is in heaven: from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself. Why are we so intensely looking for the Savior? For the same reason Paul was. He saw the need of a change in human affairs, and he was certain it would not come until the Life giver came to perfect the change. Amy loved these verses, for she saw in them the only way out of her pain, and why should she not desire it, for not a day in her life has she known what it was to be well. She did not believe this change from a corruptible body to the glorious one came at death, for her Bible told her, For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive, but every man in his own order. Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. 1 Cor xv 22-23. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. 1 Thes iv 16-17. All together the saved company will shout victory over death and the grave, saints will rejoice that mortal life is ended, and the immortal life begins. As we look this life over we do not wonder the Apostle James asks the question, What is your life? And answered it in the same breath. It is even a vapor, Anna L. Barbauld touches a sad strain in these words:

Life! I know not what thou art,
But know that thou and I must part.
And when or how or where we met,
I own to me's a secret yet,
Life! We've been long together
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather.
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear;
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear.
Then steal away; give little warning
Choose thine own time.
Say not good night,
But in some brighter clime,
Bid me good morning.

Well may we ask the question, Where am I? On the most uncertain footing possible. The great characteristic of life is its uncertainty. Here today, gone tomorrow. A little while ago none of us were here, until a wave out of the past eternity cast us up like drift-wood on the shores of time. A little hence another wave will sweep us off the shore, and with Job we question, But man dieth, and wasteth away; yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he? Landed here for a little while on this narrow neck of land between these two great eternities out of which we came, to which we are going. Just time given us to prepare for God's beautiful beyond. We knew nothing before our arrival here, and the same condition comes at death, for, The dead know not any thing. Eccl ix 5. Where is our help, where our release from this condition our beloved sister has fallen into. The Apostles had only one doctrine of eternal life to propound to the world, and they had been learners at the feet of him who had said, I am the resurrection and the life, Christ and the resurrection, the only safe road. Amy had been walking that road for thirty-one years. She knew the way, had studied the guide posts. She believed that she should die, and why talk of a resurrection unless we are dead—if we go to our reward at death there is no need of, or use for a resurrection. And as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly. 1 Cor xv 49. When? At the sounding of the last trump, For.....the dead shall be raised incorruptible. Then may we be able to say with our sleeping sister, I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. The only comfort I can offer the weeping ones today is, Take Amy's God for your refuge, he will carry you safely through the perils of this life, and release you from death. God be with you all. Amen.

Obituary.

What havoc death is making in our ranks. Now it is our dear sister in Christ, Amy Moon, who will never meet with us again in Conference meeting. Whose pleasant smile and companionship for husband and home is gone forever. But there is this to comfort us all: She died as she had lived, faithful to the truth. Amy was the fourth child of Bro. and Sister Jacob Lemon; was born in the Lemon homestead Jan. 6, 1840. She was baptized into the Christ by old Bro. Chesebrough over thirty-one years ago, and although there never was a company of believers for her to meet with in her community she was just as faithful. Her teeth was always ready when Conference came, and if she was not present, it was because she or husband were not well. She was taken with La Grippe, stomach trouble and other complications kept her sick for four weeks until Feb 6, 1908, she fell asleep. A telegram called for B. W. Woodward to preach the funeral sermon, but he was too sick to go, so leaving him in good care I started for the sad, sad home, Friday evening. The severe storm blocked the roads, so that the funeral could not be held until Monday. She sleeps well for she sleeps in Jesus.

A Bloody Catalogue.

The history of mankind is mainly written in blood. Years of peace are passed over without remark. Men who devoted their lives to honest pursuits and the acquirement of their daily bread, are hardly mentioned. But let some monster of iniquity arise, who in mad ambition stretches his arms like arms to grasp in all the shores; let tyrants shake their iron rods above the bowed heads of helpless millions; let war with mailed heel tread upon the bleeding hearts of thousands, and light up the sky with the lurid glare of burning cottages and cities; let famine devour the widows and the orphans whose protectors have perished in deadly strife; let pestilence spread from these battle-fields until it ravishes the globe;—and the historian grasps his pen and records these deeds as the acts of famous heroes and mighty conquerors. And yet the experience of such men is a vivid commentary on the words of Christ: "All they that take the sword, shall perish with the sword."

Anthony Trollope, writing in his introduction to his little book on the Commentaries of Cesar, and having proved that of all of those mentioned in that work, hardly more than one or two died in their beds, goes on to say, "The bloody catalogue is so complete, so nearly comprises all whose names are mentioned, that it strikes the reader with almost a comic horror. But when we come to the slaughter of whole towns; to the devastation of country effected purposely that men and women might starve; to the abandonment of the old, the young, and the tender, that they might perish on the hillsides; to the mutilation of crowds of men; to the burning of cities told as in a passing word; to the drowning of many thousands, mentioned as we should mention the destruction of a brood of rats, the comedy is all over, and the heart becomes sick. Then it is that we remember the coming of Christ changed all these things, that men now, though terrible things have been done since Christ came to us, are not as men were in the days of Cesar."

Nor was this change due to the progress of humanity. For within the memory of man, and even to the present time, humanity has retained the same elements of barbarism and cruelty which have cursed the world for ages. Down to our own days have come bloody despotisms and crimes, which have only been suppressed by the rigorous rule of law, and the stern hand of power. The dark places of the earth are still full of the habitations of cruelty. Man in his natural condition, whether cultured, refined, and polished, or in the rudeness of utter barbarism, exhibits the same evil characteristics.

Humanity does not reform itself. Human progression is an idle boast. All that has been achieved for real progress and enlightenment in the world, has been wrought by the power of Christ, renewing the hearts of individual men and women, and thus remodeling society, and elevating it to a more exalted plane. The South Sea Islanders had been cannibals for ages, without a thought of improvement or progression. The gospel came to them, and in a single generation witnessed an utter change. On the monumental stone of a missionary, on one of those islands, is this inscription:

"When he came here, there were no Christians; when he went away, there were no heathen." The gospel of Christ wrought more progress within the life of a single man, than "humanity" had achieved during the lapse of unrecorded ages.

It is the power of Christ that changes the lion to a lamb. It is the light of truth that reveals the wickedness of the world. It is the gospel shining in the lives of Christian believers, which shames the ungodly into decency, purifies opinion, ameliorates suffering, modifies government, makes life worth living, and this world a place fit to live in.—H. L. Hastings.

The Man and the Snakes.

Once upon a time there lived a man who owned fifteen snakes. They were a continual source of trouble to him. They wriggled and crawled about his back yard making it dangerous for his family and friends. At last he decided to regulate them, so the man got a box and bored fifteen holes in it and put the snakes therein, but the snakes got out of the box in short order. That was low license.

He then plugged up ten of the holes and put the snakes in again, but the fifteen snakes got out of the five remaining holes. That was high license.

In desperation the man gathered the snakes together and pitched them over the fence in his neighbor's yard, but some of them came back and annoyed him again, and it was still a dangerous thing for his children to play there. The question was still unsettled. That was local option.

After careful thought he struck a bright idea, and gathering the snakes together again, he took up an axe and cut off their heads, and the snakes troubled him no more. And that was prohibition.—H. W. Wilbur, In Sound Doctrine.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 26, 1908. NUMBER 8.

We wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

Plymouth, Indiana, Feb'y 26, 1908.

As Brother P. Neill's Sunday School lessons got behind by failure to reach us one week, we print two this week, so they will reach all places in due time.

On account of the severe storm and the water coming into the furnace room of the Plymouth Church, the meetings had to be discontinued last week, and Brother Lindsay went to his home. The roads in Warren Co. are reported impassable, and meeting there will have to be postponed.

We wish information concerning a writer named Francis Cuphill. He wrote and published a pamphlet in 1865, in opposition to the position of Dr. John Thomas. We would like to know who he was, where he lived, who he was associated with. Any one who can tell any thing about him will confer a favor on us by writing to this office.

The article in this issue on Turkey and the Holy Land by Sister Amy Moon, is a paper written by her, and read at a meeting of some people she was associated with. This was the last work of Sister Moon, as notice of her death is in this paper also. She will be sadly missed by the Church in Michigan, and by relatives left to mourn for her. We can only pray for the speedy coming of our King to end the time of mourning for loved ones gone, and bring in the rejoicing time.

The trial of General Stoessel, who defended Port Arthur against the Japanese, and finally surrendered the fortress, is now ended, and he is found guilty of having given up and surrendered without waiting if all defenses were broken down and he was in the last extremity. In the Russian army this constitutes a crime, and he is sentenced to death. However it is asked that the Czar be lenient, and use his power to commute the sentence to ten years imprisonment. All who remember the circumstances well know that it was the wonderment of the world that Port Arthur was held by the Russians as long as it was, and now for the General in charge to be adjudged worthy of suffering the death penalty for giving up against such odds, and with no relief possible, is another wonder, and only shows that spite work and jealously is at work in Russia as in other parts of the world.

A Sample Case.

The mail reaching Plymouth at 11 A. M. Feb. 8, 1908, brought us a postal card stamped at M———, Minn. at 3:00 P. M. Feb. 7, 1908. The card reads as follows:

"M———, Minn. Feb. 7. '08.

A. R. Underwood, Dear Bro:

The last of Dec. I sent you three dollars (Money Order). One and a-half for my subscription, and the other one and a-half for the Helping Fund. So far I have had no acknowledgment of it either in change of label or in the "Fund." Will you kindly look the matter up and report.

Yours truly, Mrs.———."

The mail reaching Plymouth at 7:00 A. M. Feb. 10, 1908, brought us a letter stamped at M———, Minn. at 5:00 P. M. Feb. 8, 1908. This letter reads as follows:

A. R. Underwood, Pub. Restitution, Plymouth, Ind. Dear Bro.

I note by the label on my paper that my subscription has expired, and I enclose $1.50 for its renewal. I also enclose $1.50 for the Helping Fund.

Yours truly, Mrs.———, M———, Minn. Dec. 27, 1907."

Enclosed with this letter was a money order for $3.00, dated at M———, Minn. Feb. 8, 1908.

On Feb. 11, a letter with return address was sent from this office to the person whose name was signed to the above card and letter, explaining that the card came first, then the letter, and giving the dates of stampings and the date of the Money Order. After waiting till the present time, which is Feb. 22, no reply has come to this letter, though a reply was specially asked for.

The only explanation for this that seems reasonable to us now is that the person who wrote the letter on Dec. 27, 1907, gave the letter and money into the hands of some one to attend to. That person neglected it till the card of complaint was given him to mail, and then it was necessary to find the letter and get the order, and send to us. This would have been no great crime if the case was simple neglect, and a statement of the facts would make all right. But inasmuch as we do not get a reply to our letter sent Feb. 11, we naturally think that the person who sent the money, has not received our letter, and still thinks we are the ones who have neglected the matter, and should some meddlesome tattler be told by some one that this person had sent us money, and we never gave credit, but kept it, till after six weeks a complaint was made, and we just had to produce it, such a tattler and busy-body will roll it as a sweet morsel under his tongue, and go on his way to poison the minds of our friends.

The card, letter, and order referred to above were seen by witnesses of repute, whose testimony cannot be gainsaid; and besides the papers are preserved for inspection. It is very likely that every other case where complaint is made could be explained, were people inclined to get both sides of a matter before passing judgment.

Brother, if you have ever been guilty of impugning the character of another, we pray you at once expunge from your heart the desire to injure your brother.

Paul said to the Romans (xii. 9,) "Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil. Cling to that which is good." The Diaglott says "Let love be unfeigned. Detest the evil, adhere to the good." The Syriac reads, "Let not your love be guileful; but be haters of evil things, and adherers to good things."

Even if a brother has erred, we are not the ones to pass sentence. Our job is to try to reclaim him. Let us ask the Father for grace, that we may keep strictly to our own business, and not try to usurp the place of One higher than we are.

Acquaint Thyself With God.

The above may be found in Job xxii 21 and should be an admonition to those who write or teach the subject of the Trinity of which the doctrine of the pre-existence of Christ is a part. The question as asked by our Savior, "When the Son of Man cometh shall he find faith on the earth," is a very important one. There are faiths but will he find the faith of God? It is also called the faith of Christ and the faith of the gospel. One of the New Testament writers has it clothed in the following language, viz.: "The things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ." Acts viii 12.

There are a few who claim the honor of believing this precious truth and hold to doctrines that nullify the gospel as taught by Jesus and his followers. The object of this article is that our readers may know more of the eternal one than what may be found in our present translation. Moses is regarded as the writer of Genesis. In Exodus iii 6 the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob appear to Moses in the burning bush. In Gen xvii 1 this one declares himself to be the Almighty God. The Hebrew for this is All Shaddai and means the powerful one. In Exodus vi 3, we read; I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac and unto Jacob by the name of God Almighty (Ail), but by my name Jehovah was I not known to them. The name Jehovah is a corruption of the name Yahweh. Neither of these appellations should ever be translated by the Anglo-Saxon word God, or Lord. The word God meaning good and the word Lord, ruler or Sovereign ruler. All and Yahweh meaning strength or power. In our translation Exod iii 14, this term Yahweh is more properly rendered "I will be who I will be" instead of I am that I am. It denotes great power and strength. Abraham in order to believe God (Yahweh) when he declared that his seed should be as numerous as the stars of heaven, when he as yet had no son, must believe in his power. Or that he is the All Powerful One. In the first chapter of Genesis the words rendered God and Lord God are from the Hebrew word Elohim and is the plural form of eloah and signifies the messengers of the Ail or Yahweh. The word angel or angels is the English equivalent of angelos Greek. Elohim Hebrew. Angelos Greek. Angels English. In Gen i 26, God said let us make man. The Elohim said, let us make man. Yahweh created man through his Elohim (angels). There is no proof that Yahweh said to his Son Christ let us make man, etc. Those who undertake to prove the pre-existence of Christ by this Scripture do it without any authority from the Bible. If they seek to know the meaning of the terms Eloah and Elohim all will be plain.

In Gen ii 22, Lord God is rendered from the Hebrew words Yahweh Elohim and means "He who shall be mighty ones." Dr. John Thomas says; "God in Saxon signifies good; a meaning which can not possibly be extracted from any of the names recited above. It is not a translation of any of the words used. The words Ail, Eloah, Shaddai, Adonai Elohim are all rendered with scarcely any discrimination by the Anglo Saxon terms Lord and God. We have seen that power, might, sovereignty are ideas upon which the words are based; and as the ideas are absolute and underived in Him, "out of whom, and on account of whom, and for whom are all things!"—the Hebrew nouns expressive of power, might, sovereignty, are selected and appropriated by the Creator as representing signs or names of himself in revealing the knowledge of divine power in its manifestation to men." The name Jesus is a corruption of the name Yahweh. Jesus as the Son of God (Yahweh) took the Father's name. This being true it is no evidence that he pre-existed. Dan iii 24 is given as a proof that Christ existed previous to his birth. Did not we once have men bound into the midst of the fire? They answered and said unto the king, True, O King. He answered and said Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire and they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God. Now it is evident that these translators believed in the pre-existence of Jesus or they would not have so rendered it. I will give here "Leeser's" translation. "Lo, I see four men unbound walking in the midst of the fire, and there is no injury on them; and the appearance of the fourth is like a Son of the Gods. Young's translation gives it the same. In the 28 verse the King declares that he sent his angel to deliver them and not his Son. There are a number of appellations suited to the one who was begotten by the spirit of Yahweh and brought forth by the woman found in the Old Testament Scriptures but not once is he called the Son of God. "The seed of the woman." The seed of Abraham, the seed of David, the righteous branch, the tower of the flock, the sun of righteousness, and many others of like character. We have John i 1-14 given as proof that the Word was Christ. The word is translated from the Greek word Logos and means a writing, a discourse, and not a person. In the Diaglott translation Logos is represented by the neuter pronoun "it" until the 14th verse where the masculine pronoun him is used. A careful reader will observe that "it" is used until the "Logos" becomes a person then him is used. You do not need to imagine that the writer has a great mystery covered up in the Greek language as one declared. The language "In the beginning" is depended upon to prove that the Christ (Logos) existed co-equal with the Eternal One.

Prof. Gardner a noted Greek scholar says, The expression "en arches" is an old Ionic idiom, common to Herodotus. Herod and other writers of their day; but rarely occurring in the later Attic and is correctly rendered generally "in authority" or in "rule, or in sovereignty." The idiom occurs quite frequently in the Scriptures of the Old Covenant; but only three times in the New Covenant. Twice in the above chapter, once in Phil iv 5. In authority was the word—that is the Word of God—not of man." In 1 John i 1-3, we read "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of life; for the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us; manifested means brought to light. "The Word of life" was brought to light in the birth of Jesus the only begotten Son of God. Please notice 1 Tim iii 16. Diaglott translation. Confessedly great is the secret of piety; He who was manifested in flesh, was justified in spirit, was seen by Messengers, was proclaimed among nations, was believed on in the world, was taken up in glory. The secret or mystery is here as in 1 John i 1-3, revealed or manifested and is no longer a mystery. In John i 12, But to as many as received him he gave authority to become children of God to those believing into his name. (Diag.) Authority was in the Word (Logos) and was delegated to Jesus in his ministry. I quote from a recent article, "We do not understand how this same Christ could 4000 years later enter Mary's womb, and become incarnate as man. The mystery of his conception by the Holy Spirit is insolable when viewed as the beginning of his career, or as a means to perpetuate a career already begun. God has seen fit to couch that mystery in a few simple words. "The Word was made flesh." Why call this a mystery? Just out of the regular order of generation. God's Spirit was the begetting power. On the mother's side nothing unusual. Gal iv 4. God sent forth his Son, having been produced from a woman, born under the law, (Diag.) Yahweh created the first Adam, dust of the ground. The second man he begot. Those who enshroud this incident in mystery do it without a particle of Scriptural proof or good sound logic. It belongs to "Mystery Babylon." Let us divest ourselves of such weight and run with patience the race set before us. Jesus says John xvii 3. This is life eternal to know thee the only true God (Yahweh) and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent. 1 Cor viii 6. Paul writes "To us there is but one God (theos, the Greek equivalent of Ail) the Father, of whom are all things, and we for him; and one Lord Jesus Christ by (through), whom are all things, and we by (through) him. This same writer declares that Jesus is the first brought out from among the dead ones. The first to be raised to an immortal life and therefore the beginning of the new race or creation. He is the first of the mighty ones whom Ail has promised to manifest that they may assist in destroying the works of the adversary. It is through the knowledge of the Mighty one that we will be made partakers of his divine nature. In concluding let me admonish all. Acquaint thyself with God. (Ail.)

Editor Restitution:

Some years ago I learned of this Weekly Journal. But like many others, entertained wrong and highly prejudiced ideas of it. Some time since I made a preaching visit to Arkansas, Texas and Indian Territory, during which visit attended the annual meeting or conference of Church of God people held at Driggs Ark., and heard the glorious doctrines of "The Restitution of all thing spoken of by all the holy prophets." Among the preachers whom I heard was John Poore, Dr. Dahlel, Dr. Knowden, Morgan, Lummis and others. All of whom are able and now precious brethren to me. As these doctrines were new to me, took no stock for or against them. However on my departure Dr. Daniel asked me to promise that after my arrival home in Tenn., to give the subject of the restoration of Israel a fair investigation, which was promptly attended to, and resulted in my thorough conversion to the doctrines set forth in The Restitution of which I have been a subscriber and reader for three month past, and desire to continue on. Dearly beloved Editors and readers of The Restitution, may the richest of God's blessings rest upon you all, in all your labors of love. Pray for me, for all things seem to indicate that we are now entering, or at least nearing the time of trouble spoken of by Daniel the prophet xii. 1. Your brother in the blessed hope.

Editor Restitution:

Please find enclosed one dollar and a half to pay for the paper another year. I have been a reader of the dear old paper most of the time for over forty-eight years, and I look for its weekly visits. I try to get others to read it and send my papers to others to read. I am past seventy-eight years of age, and I am a firm believer in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, looking for his appearing and reward.

Dear Restitution:

Kindly send me the addresses of the following persons.

I will try and send you some new subscribers for our dear old paper. It seems to me that The Restitution gets better as years go by.

Don't worry so much about your reputation; create a character for yourself, and let it go at that. Character is the real thing; reputation the shadow, often distorted by the surface on which it falls.

We spend half our lives in making mistakes, and waste the poor remainder in reflecting how easily we might have avoided them.

Subscribe for The Restitution to be sent to a friend. It will cost you but little—the result of seed sowing is safe in God's hands.

Questions.

1 Why was a trial necessary? Why then was Stephen not given a trial?
2 Why was Pilate unwilling to condemn Christ?
3 Why was Jesus sent before Herod?
4 Why was Barabbas released at this time?
5 Compare Christ's trial with a trial of today.
6 Explain Isa. liii. 8.

Dear brethren and sisters:

At home, not very well, either of us. I want to say to the brethren I now have my tracts printed and can send them out. The Great Divine Healer, The Stature of Christ, and The Gospel of Restitution, are ready, and the price is 10 cents. I want all to read my tracts even if you cannot endorse it all, so if you cannot send the price send one cent for postage, and I will mail one to you.

If any of the brethren who ordered tracts have failed to get them, let me know and I will send them at once.

If my eyes do not fail and my pen will move, I will soon have my other tracts out, and will give notice in due time.

Yours for the truth,

John Poore.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of you have files of the "Harbinger" or "Gospel Banner," and can glean any facts therefrom as to early meetings, debates, and time, place, and the names of ministers present at such meetings and debates; names of presiding officers, etc. I shall be very thankful to have such items written out and forwarded to my address—Pierceton, Ind. Also any incidents happening at such meetings, number of baptisms and so on. Kindly send items at once.

S. Rosana Wisse.

Notice.

To the brethren and sisters of the states of Virginia and Maryland, and isolated ones in the east and south:

The brethren of Shenandoah Co, Va. have been sufficiently interested in the truth to engage me as Evangelist for the present year. It is our desire that every legitimate means be used to further the promulgation of the gospel and strengthen the faith of the brethren. Already twenty-one meetings have been held, and one baptism has resulted, and we desire the good work to go on. Will all in the above named territory send in their names and addresses that we may get acquainted with you, send you reading matter, and otherwise help you.

Address me at Woodstock, Va.

Geo. Neill.

We wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

Lesson for Sunday Mar. 8.

Jesus the Bread of Life. John vi. 22-51.

Golden Text. Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life. John vi. 35.

In the last lesson there was the feeding of the natural man. One of the "divers miracles." Heb ii 4. They were fed with the "Daily Bread," Matt vi 11. With "the meat which perisheth." John vi 27.

In connection with this the Lord Jesus advised,—exhorted,—them to labour for the meat which endureth with everlasting life which the Son of Man shall give unto you.

Daily bread is good, and necessary to this life; but when we partake of one meal we have no assurance that we shall live to need another. This proves to us that daily bread is not the one bread necessary.

If we do value the meat that endureth unto everlasting life, then the fact that Jesus is the bread of life will have an absorbing interest for us.

I am the bread of life—Eternal life—As daily bread is truly necessary to the present life, so is Jesus necessary to the life everlasting.

All the promises of God in him are yea, and in him Amen. 2 Cor i 20. This is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life. 1 John ii 25. This life is in Jesus Christ. He that hath the Son—Jesus Christ—hath life, he that hath not the Son of God hath not life. 1 John v 10-13.

He that has the Son of God, has the bread of life.

How can we, or do we, have the Son? By believing the gospel and being baptized. Mark xvi 15, 16

To the apostles he said, Go into all the world and preach the gospel.

The gospel—The glad tidings of the kingdom of God. Luke viii 1. He that receiveth you receiveth me. Matt x 40. He came to his own, and his own received him not. John i 11.

So then the solution of the figures of speech in this lesson is the story of the kingdom of God. Those who receive Jesus as the Christ, the Son of the living God. Matt xvi 16. They work the works of God. Lesson Text verse 28

They believe he was the true bread from heaven. verse 32. Let us keep in mind that Jesus is using figurative words.

33. Giveth life unto the world. Correctly—Offereth life.

35. I am the bread of life—From me only can you get eternal life.

40. I will give it, at the last day, by resurrection; to him that believeth on me. To all such I am the bread of life.

There are thousands who believe that they have life, and that Jesus only gives—or will give—them happiness.

48. I am the bread of life.

51. If any man eat of this bread, he shall live forever. Just another way of saying, I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live—At the resurrection—and he that is alive—at the resurrection—and believe in me, shall not die. John xi 23-26. He shall be changed 1 Cor xv 51.

The bread that I will give is my flesh.—This is made simple in Rom v 8, "While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

It will readily be seen, that this lesson, indeed the whole chapter from verses 27 to the end, is positive foolishness to the natural—The unconverted—man 1 Cor ii 14.

The spiritually-minded read, receive by faith, and rejoice.

These sayings proved to be a severe test for many of his professed followers. They walked with him no more, verse 66. Though offensive to the many, they were the words of eternal life to his chosen ones. Verses 67-70. May they be the words of life to us also.

Next Lesson. Jesus heals a man born blind. John ix.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Poetry.

Almost Home.

We're almost home, we're almost home, hark! hear the joyful cry:
The weary pilgrim lifts his head, and hails redemption nigh:
Oh glorious, soul-reviving sound, we soon shall see our King!
More swiftly fly ye tardy hours, that welcome moment bring.

We've long been wandering here below, cast out for Jesus sake,
And through the dark night we have watched and longed for morn to break:
And now the cry, "Behold! he comes, your journey's end is near."
Sounds sweet in every pilgrim's ear, and "home" is all the theme we hear.

O wayworn pilgrim, dry thy tears; from sin, toil, pain and sting;
What though the world despise thy name? thy King is not a King:
And soon upon his dazzling throne thou shalt with him sit down,
And wear the crown of Paradise, and wear a glittering crown.

Art thou a mourner? dost thou weep that unchecked sway sin holds?
To rod legends the valley shade? Satan no longer roams?
A few days more and you shall need no more to say "Maranatha."
But in those dazzling home is sweet no sin shall dwell.

O! home bound sailor, courage take; what though the clouds be dark,
And angry billows dash around, to sink you little bark;
What though the tempest tear your sails, with joyful hope we'll stand,
For well we know we're near the coast, our ship shall soon be safe in land.

O watcher, thou hast waited long; turn not away your eyes,
For, lo, the Day Star brightly burns, the Sun will soon arise;
With joyful hearts we'll watch and look, and pray, "Lord Jesus, come,"
And take thy waiting church away to heavenly home.

Turkey and the Holy Land in Relation to Prophecy.

It is said that Prophecy must fit History, or the Prophet is to be taken as a false witness. We have the express authority of the Scriptures for this statement; and it is clearly proper that this particular test should be the supreme one selected by Inspiration, in order to convince human beings as to superhuman foresight. Moreover it is predicted calmly and fearlessly that to the degree that prophecy from its essential nature and definition must precede the facts it pretends to anticipate, to that same degree must it agree thereto: and that, unless it does so, we have God's own word that we need not fear a prophet thus shown to be false and presumptuous. Deut xviii 22. The things that have been prophesied from the beginning have been and are being fulfilled up to the present time, and if every one would study the prophecies and signs of the times more, they would more readily understand why so many unusual things or events are transpiring in this eventful age of the world, represented in the toes of clay as given in Daniel. The responsibility rests with ones own self; it cannot be transferred. Adam's excuse that his help-mate gave unto him and so he ate, was of no avail under the circumstances: it was a case of "so much the worse for Adam" and many a modern divorce was gotten upon much less ground. For many years the Eastern Question was the most sensitive point in the diplomatic circles of the courts of Europe. In the language of the magazines of the day, it was "the sick Turkey and the carving, and the division when dead," to satisfy the hunger of the vulture nations that hovered over its fate. What gave additional stress to the problem was the sentiment, and the religious traditions of Jews, Christians, and Mohammedans, connected with a part of Turkey—the holy fields, given to the "father of the faithful" and made sacred by the imprint of the feet of the world's Savior. Here lies that country without a people, waiting for a people without a country. Every noble deed of their forefathers, when living, and every grave of their historic ancestors, when dead, finds a home amongst its hills and valleys. But a great change has come over the aspirations of the nations; the horizon that bounds their outlook has been vastly extended, and the Eastern Question has been enlarged and complicated. There has arisen a startling craze amongst the nations for "broken lots of China." This however is not the most serious aspect of the far Eastern Question, which is linked to the near East, by a new problem which is appearing on the horizon, viz: Who shall control that valley which is richest in the memories of the historic past, and, also, in the possibilities of the expanding future—the valley extending from the mountains of Armenia to the Gulf of Persia. Who shall control the country where the human race was twice cradled in its infant years, where man first learned the land where the first Mergers and Trusts sought to defeat God's law of dispersion by man's substitute of contradiction; and where the first great Empires rose; flourished, and faded away. It will be assumed that the Jewish prophets clearly foretold the final blessing of the world through the seed of Abraham, according to the terms of the original covenant with the first and greatest of the Patriarchs. But Palestine will ever remain a source of irritation until the purposes of God concerning that land are fulfilled. Because this deferred situation is still pending, the kings and rulers still conspire on earth, to keep that land from the people to whom God gave the title deeds under the seal of circumcision, and through whom the reign of righteousness and peace are to be established on the earth. Yet in spite of all the opposition of kings, will be inaugurate his "King upon his holy hill of Zion," and then he will promulgate the decree, giving "the nations for an inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for an possession," to this King of all the nations. But until that day arrives, Palestine will continue to be a bone of contention amongst the powers of the world. France asserted her authority by prostituting her right to protect the Catholic subjects of the Porte. Germany and Italy disputed this right and was upheld by the Sultan. This is the more significant because of the Kaiser's friendship for the Turk, because of his attitude towards Palestine. But Russia was already entrenched on almost every high hill of Palestine, where she has hospitals and monasteries, filled with arms, ammunition and trained soldiers. It could not be supposed that the course and mission of a Power of such magnitude as Gog or Rosh or the Russian Empire, would be unnoticed in the Scriptures of Truth. As a matter of fact, the leading characteristics of Russia and the policy she is so relentlessly pursuing is graphically outlined in the prophets and the downfall of the Empire, upon the mountains of Israel revealed. Ezekiel xxxviii. and xxxix.

In 1899 on the eve of the Peace Conference at the Hague, Russia's mission and destiny as revealed in the prophets was spoken of. It was clearly pointed out at the time that the Peace Conference could not last in course of time and in failure, that God's design was peace on earth, based upon righteousness, and revealed through Christ a Prince of peace, subsequent to his conquest of the world in his character as "Lion of the tribe of Judah." They may talk of converting the world, but it is not in accord with the Scripture. When Christ comes, shall he find peace in the earth? Oh no! They cry peace, peace, but there is no peace, but he comes to bring "peace on earth and good will to men. All Hail the Peacemaker. Any change in the status in that land that will awaken national jealousies is sure to cause serious trouble.

UNREST IN THE WORLD.

"It is an ominous fact that the world, on the eve of the second peace congress at The Hague, is threatened by disturbances in many countries. Hidden physical forces cause this little globe to shake and tremble from pole to pole; similarly, other forces are causing unrest among nations, and, from surface indications there is no prospect of a speedy coming of the era of peace of which statesmen dream.

Advices from Russia are to the effect that the revolutionists are importing and storing arms and ammunition. In the offices of the ministry there is uncertainty; no one pretends to foresee what may happen next. Arms and ammunition have been pouring into Russia for nine months, despite police searches and occasional seizures. The revolutionary agents in Europe are shipping them from unsuspected ports, disguised as merchandise.

According to so-called "Jingo" journals in Germany and England a state of distrust exists in both countries, and the hatred is so intense that it needs only the most trifling overt act on the part of either government to produce terrible consequences, and all the ingenuity of cool diplomacy is demanded to prevent some such disaster happening. The dangerously disturbed state of mind in Germany is vividly portrayed in a remarkable editorial in the Essen Journal, which has attracted widespread attention. It says in part.

"Two persons sitting opposite each other are engaged in a keen contest at the European checkerboard. One is an old, cool, calculating, quiet player; the other is a younger, less calculating hero, full of ideas and fantasies. Who will win? If they fight only with diplomacy chessman the game is no longer doubtful—William II is checkmated."

Mexico has found it necessary to send troops to the border, because of the disturbed condition in Guatemala. The reports say that three regiments have been dispatched to Salina Cruz and vicinity. It has been deemed important and necessary to strengthen the Mexican forces along the border in order to preserve strict neutrality of that territory, the presumption being that Guatemalan revolutionists will endeavor to reach that country through southern Mexico.

The Boers, through General Botha ask the home government for an army of 30,000 men, and opponents of this proposition in South Africa declare that if the demand is granted, they will secede and fight the Powers on their own account.

Similar reports come in dispatches from many other countries. Civilized nations, armed to the teeth, seem ready at a moment's notice to spring at one another's throats—any hoping that the change to spring may come, and come quickly. Lord Byron once declared that he would like to know how it feels to be a murderer, and it seems that this strange craving for a horrible experience has not yet been entirely cured by the application of civilization. Sometimes, it seizes a number of individuals in a nation simultaneously, and sometimes it spreads like an epidemic to other nations. Then the rumblings of the thunders of war become sweet music. But the prevailing conditions prove the necessity of a Hague congress, and a discussion of the best manner in which to tame the crouching tiger in human nature."

It is said that the decline of the Turkish Empire is one of the signs of the times. In Dan. xxxvii. 29. it says, The righteous shall inherit the land and shall dwell therein for ever. The hope of the gospel of the kingdom is based upon the promise of God to Abraham of an everlasting inheritance with Christ of the Holy Land, now a province of the Turkish Empire. Both the rise and decline of that power are the subjects of prophecy in the book of Revelation in connection with the symbol of the river Euphrates. Rev. x. 14; xvi. 12. Now in speaking of the promises to the forefathers in regard to their inheritance of the promised land, Luke xiii. 28 29, says, There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out. And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God. The Jews are stretching out pleading hands to their more favored brethren, such as Rabbi Hirsch, Kalischer, Baron Edmund Von Rothschild, Mr. H. Lewontin and others, urging them to hasten the work of regaining possession of the land of promise; and the only land that was ever deeded to a race of men by the Supreme owner of all the broad acres of the continents. Now I will read a few verses from the Bible showing that God did really promise a certain portion of land to the Patriarchs or forefathers, Galations iii. 16. Now to Abraham and to his seed were the promises made. He saith not, and to seeds as of many; but as of one, and to thy seed, which is Christ. For if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise; but God gave it to Abraham by promise. Now please to remember while I read these few verses, that Jesus was called the Son of David through his earthly father who was a lineal descendant of David, and he is also called the seed of Abraham. I will begin at Gen. xiii. 14, And the Lord said unto Abraham, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art, northward and southward and eastward and westward, For all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it and to thy seed for ever. Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it, for I will give it unto thee. And in the xv. 18th verse it says, In that same day the Lord made a covenant with Adam (afterward called Abraham) saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates. Which includes Cairo, Jerusalem, Damascus, Mt. Lebanon, Ruins of Babylon, and the Dead Sea. And again in chap. 17, 7-8, And I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee, in their generations, for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee and to thy seed after thee. And I will give to thee and thy seed, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, and I will be their God. And in Gen. 22nd and 23rd chapters it reads, And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time, and said, By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only Son. That in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea-shore, and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed. At the age of 175 years Abraham died, and Sarah his wife at the age of 127 years, and they both were buried in the cave of Machpelah, in Hebron in the land of Canaan. The cave was bought by Abraham of the children of Heth. He paid 400 shekels of silver. A shekel of silver is about 2s., 6 d., 1 q. And in Gen. xxvi. 2, 3, 4. And the Lord appeared unto Isaac (who was son of Abraham) and said, go not down into Egypt, dwell in this land; that I shall tell thee of. Sojourn in this land; and I will be with thee, and will bless thee; for unto thee and unto thy seed, I will give all these countries, and I will perform the oath which I sware unto Abraham thy father, and will make thy seed to multiply as the stars of heaven, and will give unto thy seed all these countries; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed. In Gen. xxvii. 10 to 14 it reads. And Jacob a proud son of Abraham went out from Beersheba, and went toward Haran, and at night he piled up stones and lay down to sleep. And he dreamed he saw a ladder, and the Lord stood above it and said, I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac, the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it and to thy seed. In Gen. xxxv. 9, 10, 11, 12 verse says, And God appeared unto Jacob again, when he came out of Padanaram, and blessed him, and God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob: thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name. And God said unto him, I am God Almighty: be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations, shall be of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins. And the land which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed after thee will I give the land. Also in Exodus xxiii. 1, reads, And the Lord said to Moses, Depart and go hence, thou and thy people which thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto the land which I swear unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying unto thy seed will I give it. And in the lxxxix. Psalm, The Lord said of David, My mercy will I keep for him for evermore, and my covenant shall stand fast with him. Once I have sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever, and his throne as the sun before me. In Micah iv. 1, 2, 3, we read. But in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountains of the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and people shall flow into it. And many nations shall come and say; come and let us go up to the mountains of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his path: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. And in the days of these Kings or Emperors or Sultans or any other ruler, shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all other kingdoms, and it shall stand forever.

In speaking of the Promised Land which the fore fathers were to inherit by a covenant with God, we are also told in God's Word, that they did not in their life time receive any of it; not so much as to set their foot upon; yet he promised to give it to them for an everlasting inheritance and to their seed after them. Now as to why they did not receive their inheritance I will leave for you to study out. But Turkey, or the sick man, or the false prophet which ever she may be called, has a very important part to perform in connection with God's final purpose. Jerusalem will again be a Capital City, and the Tabernacle of David will be rebuilt according to promise; but it will never be done while the Turk has control. A few years ago the land of Palestine, the land God promised to Abraham and his seed was sparsely settled and its soil uncultivated and unproductive, and the gates of the city were closed to the Jews under penalty of death in case they tried to enter the city. But the eye of the Jew is ever on the land of promise, and since the Zionist movement in 1898, and gaining concessions with the Turkish government the way opened for the Jew once more in fulfillment of prophecy to get possession of their own land. And today there are more Jews in the city of Jerusalem than there were in the time when Ezra and Nehemiah led them back to Jerusalem out of Babylonish captivity, and the land in general is putting on a prosperous aspect after many hundred years lying in a desolate state as was prophesied it should be. The Russian Gog power of the north, crippled by war and held in check by revolutionary troubles at home is no longer prepared to threaten the Moslem with destruction, or expulsion from Europe; and therefore unable at present to molest the Sultan who holds the key to the door of entrance to the Holy Land. The Turk has been slow to unlock the door as yet, but the time is coming when he will open wide the door for Jewish emigrants and settlers. The near future is full of great and startling changes in the political and ecclesiastical world. The Turk will hold possession until God speaks, then he will have to evacuate, or in other words he will be a "gone Turkey." Let us pray for the peace of Jerusalem. They shall prosper that love thee.

MRS. ANN MOON.

Dear Restitution:

I have just received a letter from the Cleveland Church telling me the sad news of the death of Bro. Joblin, whom the readers of THE RESTITUTION, most of them, were well acquainted with on account of his special contributions to the paper for many years, and he being the Evangelist for the Cleveland Church for so many years. Members of the Church there have requested me to write a sketch of the history of the Church of God in Cleveland since its organization, as I am one of the few remaining who were connected with it at about that time.

I can recall the names of but a few, they are Sister Joblin, Bro. Geo. Elton and Sister Elton of Collinwood, O., Bro. David Elton of Nottingham, O., Sister Machader of Cleveland.

Many of our dear brethren and sisters have fallen asleep about sixty that I can call to mind have been laid away to await the return of the Life-Giver who will call them from their dusty beds clad with glorious immortality.

As near as I can tell, the Church was organized Oct. 4, 1863, at a meeting held at the home of Bro. N. Bond.

Among the organizers I can tell the names of the following; Bro. and Sister Bond, Bro. and Sister Joblin, Bro. and Sister McLauchlan, and I think Bro. and Sister Cherry, the only survivor being Sister Joblin. At first meetings were held at the house of Bro. Bond, then they moved to Temperance Hall on Superior St.

In 1863 I first met Bro. McLauchlan at his house, who then asked me if I would read what he had to give. Of course I accepted and carefully read it, and lo and behold it was the Gospel. Yes, it was the good news concerning the Kingdom of God and the Name of Jesus Christ.

I was at that time a member of the Second Baptist Church and a teacher in the Sunday School, but I had not heard the Gospel prior to the reading of dear Bro. McLauchlan's papers, which were so plain and to the point that I could not resist nor oppose them. I was obliged to accept them as God's eternal Truth, but nevertheless it took me two years to break away from my class of boys in the Baptist Sunday School, although I began to talk Gospel to my classmates after I found it myself.

In 1865 the brethren were holding meetings in a small City School-house on Brownell St., and from there Bro. Joblin led me to the waters of immersion in Lake Erie when I became obedient to the Gospel and was immersed into the All-saving Name of the Anointed One, which I have no cause to regret.

Yes, Bro. McLauchlan drove the nail of Truth, and Bro. Joblin clinched it, and I entertain a glorious hope of meeting them in the kingdom.

There were numerous moves made by the church in the years which followed, sometimes meeting in the halls, then again in buildings or churches, but there were no fit accomodation for them until the present church building was built in 1888 through the generosity of Bro. McLauchlan.

After this was completed Bro. Joblin, who was then living in Tennessee was called and accepted the work of Evangelist, moving back to Cleveland after an absence of a number of years.

The opening services in this fine, well furnished new building were held Nov. 17th 1888, and there Bro. Joblin continued to hold forth the Gospel until too weak physically to stand the strain and was forced to give up his life's work, but he had the joy of knowing that many had believed and become obedient to that form of doctrine which was delivered unto them.

Little did I dream of being one left and called upon to sketch a kind of history of the Cleveland ecclesia reaching back so many years. It is very imperfect and there have been many better qualified for the task than myself. But most of them are now laid away to rest. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, yea saith the spirit, that they may rest from their labors and their works do follow them." They are now waiting for that better resurrection having fallen asleep "looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the Great God and our Savior Jesus Christ," Titus ii. 13.

Hoping we may all be found worthy to obtain an abundant entrance into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Yours for the Truth.

L. C. CATTELL.

Obituary.

Fell asleep in Jesus, in hope of a resurrection to immortality and eternal life when Jesus, the life-giver comes—Bro. J. H. Stevens, at the home of his son, at Sayer, Oklahoma, Feb. 1st 1908; aged 93 years 3 months and 16 days.

Father Stevens was born at Kingsfield, Maine, Nov. 16, 1814.

He was converted in early life, and for many years was an active member of the Baptist Church. In middle life he came west and settled at Monroe, Wis. Becoming deeply interested in the second coming of Christ, he was re-baptized and united with the Church of God, and was a faithful member until called from labor to repose. He leaves to mourn his loss, beside many friends, one daughter by his first wife, Sister Lucy E. Burdick of 4001 Whitman Ave. N. Seattle, Wash., and three sons by his second wife. J. A., N. H. and George C. Stevens. May God bless all the bereaved ones.

ELDER JAMES E. FITCH.

I have just received word from Sarah Kennedy telling of the death, near Rich Hill, Mo. of Sister Eva Willis, wife of John Willis, who died some years ago. She died Feb'y 6, aged eighty-four years, two months and ten days.

She died at five o'clock in the morning, and at noon the same day, her grandson, Everet Pritchett died; both of pneumonia. Everet was twenty-six years, eleven months and twenty-eight days old, and lived with and took care of his grandmother, as she was old and feeble. But alas, both died only seven hours apart.

Everet was a good boy, and it was hard to give him up. His mother is very sick, and is expected to die any day. What a lesson this should be, especially to the young. How necessary that we prepare to live again. Very few boys and girls stand ready to do what this young man did—they are jewels indeed.

Sister Eva had lived a good and faithful Christian, highly esteemed by all who knew her. She was baptized many years ago, and had long been a reader of THE RESTITUTION. Some years ago I visited them and preached and we had a little band of believers there, but they are nearly all gone.

Sister Willis is now sweetly sleeping waiting the summons to life everlasting.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 44

After Rachel Taylor's marriage, Auntie Willard took a little girl, eight years of age, named Carrie Molton, for a daughter. This was done that she might please Jesus and do as she would be done by. Carrie's father was a young man, quite able in the Scriptures, who was preaching every Sunday evening in the hall. His wife had proved herself unworthy of her place, and was in Western New York, and he, living with his parents and his other little daughter at Hammonton. Carrie was an active and pleasant child, and in Auntie Willard's Manuscript Volume of original poems, several little pieces are dedicated to her. Aug. 17th, 1862. Auntie Willard in a letter to my revered father, says "Augustus" (Bro. Roter) has just returned from Philadelphia whether he has been to convey Artie, Nelson's life companion, that she might spend with him his few remaining days before going again to war." Lyman, the second son was on the eve of entering the Normal School, at Trenton, New Jersey, in accordance with the promise made the year before. His being in this school exempted him by law from draft, so that by honoring his parents by giving up cigarette smoking he doubtless saved his life. He himself felt that it was the prolonging of his days even in this land; that to have gone to war for him would have been only another name for death. He was small for his age and slender in build and would not have endured the long, forced marches the exposure to storm, and the terrible excitement and strain of the battle field. It pays to mind God, in every circumstance in life, as all obedient children find to the joy of their hearts.

Auntie Willard had both laughed and cried over the letter of father's to which she was replying, and in a fit of pleasantry asked him "if he ever expected an answer to his missives?" that if he did, he would always be disappointed" "She thought the letter so good that she was going to take it with her to the conference at Wilbraham, and read it to some of the dear Father's family and also put a portion of it in Bro. Grant's hands for publication in "The Crisis." It had proved a perfect cordial to her heart, for as has before been related the year of 1862, was emphatically the year of trial to this devout and faithful household. But trial came in the path of duty, and they felt as the battle waxed hotter and hotter, that they were walking in the steps of the blessed Master, of Peter, of Paul, and of that long line of worthies mentioned in the Hebrew letter, and that unworthy as they felt themselves to be they were of those who suffered with Christ, and might therefore entertain the hope, that they should reign with him.

Father had asked "If Election would do as a subject to preach on, if well handled?" and all replied with one voice, "Yes, yes, such Election as that would do every time," and "They wished they were here to hear it!" Auntie Willard said, "What new life your outline of this subject infused into me! No trial seemed too great in view of it. All that grieves me is that I had not more fully apprehended it sooner, and lived for it more exclusively. Now brother, in reference to being Rulers in the Kingdom of God; this is new to me and too much for me to think of. I have felt that if the least place could be found there for me, it would be enough, but if it be as you say, that we must go in as Rulers, or not at all, I do humbly believe my adored Master has found a place even there for me or he would not give me the cordials he does from time to time. I never have thought of ruling over any one, and my place may be to give the Holy Salvation, (by way of the approval of my Lord) to a company of faithful ones, or that I might be permitted to have their feet in the waters of life." And then she goes on to say, "I am so glad that you are cheered in your "work of faith and labor of love," by the exhortations of such dear saints as Sister Israel Roberts and her Sister. May they follow on to know the Lord, and at last be found in him without spot or wrinkle or any such thing. We were greatly cheered in your account of your success in your field of labor. May you prosper more and more for Jesus' sake. And to his name be all the glory as you so justly say." And, Sister Israel Roberts and her sister did follow on to know the Lord: many little ones grew wiser for their teaching and were led by their faithful hands to the adorable Savior, to find peace and pardon in him. They "kept the faith" and were not "Moved away from the hope of the gospel, and will be found spotless, we trust when Christ appears.

We wonder who the converts were to whom father alludes? Sixty-one years ago last July or August, they gave themselves to God! Whoever they were they are gray-haired men and women now,—almost ready for their narrow house. Were they faithful to their "high calling" or did they turn back to "the weak and beggardly elements of the world?"

AUNTIE WISE.

The Path of Power.

I hold that the surest means of preserving in the pulpit its power is to detract nothing from that great and sublime folly of the cross, which alone can command human attention, for in it contains the response, at once to the greatness of the divine love, and to the deepest needs of the human soul. To seek to commend Christianity by putting the cross to the background is to capitulate before the enemy, and the enemy will be nowise placated by it; for to the philosophers of our day by whom these questions are raised, a vague deism, with a slight evangelical tinge, would be as acceptable as the true Christian doctrine. The idea of a personal God and creation is treated as no less absurd than the doctrine of redemption. Nothing would be gained, therefore, by making a Jonah of the supernatural and casting it out of the objection what would be lost would be the very same power, spirit, savor of the gospel, and, let me add, its supreme attraction for the conscience. After all, the infidel is never convinced till he is vanquished; and he is only vanquished when he falls to the earth, like Saul of Tarsus, overwhelmed with the conviction of sin. And then nothing avails to lift him up but the cross of Calvary and its divine folly. Christian preaching, if it would be powerful, must be faithful to this doctrine, which is to the Jew a stumbling block and to the Greek foolishness, but which has always brought comfort and life to the human conscience when bleeding from some arrow of conviction that has pierced through the armor of false philosophy and Pharisaic pride. Let us be sure of this, that no arrow will thus reach its mark but one drawn from the divine quiver, in which the prophet speaks, one of those words from his lips which wound before they heal. Redemption—to use the Bible language—this is the great lever in the hands of the preacher of the nineteenth century, as in the hands of all who have gone before him, to uplift the heart of man.—E. De Pressense.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

SOME GOOD BOOKS

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Grahm, 650 pgs, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by C. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

The Hydropathic Encyclopedia, a system of Hydropathy and Hygiene, by Dr. R. T. Trall. A large and exhaustive work, 75c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

THE middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, If any one refuses to abide by this action of our government, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra myself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

NOTICE.

If any of the brethren desire copies of the photo-cards of the Illinois Conference of 1880, they may receive them by sending to L. L. Curtis, Photographer, Ore, Ill. The price is 55 cents each. If any who have paid for their pictures have not received them please notify me at once. Address at Oregon, Ill

EMMA L. SMITH.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it, but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents by 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 360 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wines wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wines as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wines, Princeton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder Adam A. Argyle, one of the bible & Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Argyle denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother,

T. J. DANIEL.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the truth by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to clearly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies intersperred on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and effective, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Continuity Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship," "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 3502 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is safe guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Emma Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's name goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid is it—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be skinned to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

TODAY.

In the calendars of greatness
Are but notly spent todays:
For tomorrow brings no laurels
And the waiting wins no bays.
To the poet comes the vision,
To the painter comes the dream:
But only in the present
Can he shape the golden theme.

Moral Evil or Sin. No. 3

JEHOVAH'S GRAND PURPOSE INCARNATION.

Man, in the order of the six days creation is the crowning work of creative power and wisdom. Had God's work ended with the highest order of brute species it would have stopped immensely short of perfection. The earth might have been populated with the various orders of animals and been adorned with trees and flowers, but with man absent from the lovely scene there would have been no creature capable of reflecting on the wisdom, power and goodness displayed in the arrangment and adaptation of things; no creature of these animal orders able to ascend intelligently and adoringly up to the Great Author of its being. None that could realize the fact of Jehovah's existence nor the purpose of the creation. None capacitated to hold communion with the loving Father, and none to worship him as Supreme. What a blank in creation with man left out! Without him there would have been a world of subjects without a king subordinate to the King of all worlds. "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth," Gen i 26. Thus Jehovah deliberates when about to make man the highest in the orders of animate nature. It is said of some men that they were born to be leaders and rulers. Adam by creation was constituted ruler over the things enumerated in this divine character. Endowed by his Creator with mental powers that made him superior to animals, all had to be subordinate to him. "Let them have dominion." From the use of the plural pronoun here it is evident that 'man' is taken in a collective sense, implying the whole race; so Adam's descendants would have this pre-eminence. It is highly probable that before the fall Adam's control over the animals was much more complete than has been that of his descendants since the fall. In consequence of his transgression his sovereignty or Lordship in a measure was forfeited, and from thenceforth the rebellion of these animal subjects against him was a constant reminder of his own rebellion against God, and served as a kind of punishment for his disloyalty. Man was made in the image of his Creator. This is not affirmed of any of the animal orders. Whatever is meant by this likeness of God, it will constitute in the main the great difference between man and the creatures he was ordained to control. This is something more than mere physical contour and erect posture. By the close connection between the phrase 'in our image' and the phrase 'Let them have dominion' it is primarily implied that this likeness to God carries the idea of authority or rulership that the latter is explanatory of the former. The expression, in our image, implies that man was appointed to sustain towards the inferior animals a relation very similar to that in which Jehovah stands toward man. The language of Paul in 1 Cor xi 7, May be quoted as bearing out this meaning of 'in our image,' "For a man indeed ought not to cover his head forasmuch as he is the image and glory of God." Man's preeminence is here referred to the image of God. So headship is the primary meaning of the phrase in Gen i. 26 This does not exhaust the meaning of the words. Man to hold the Lordship over the animals and the earth must be in possession of moral attributes, and be endowed with faculty of reason beyond that discovered in the higher orders of animals. Man without moral judgment and the capacity to reason would not be fitted to bear rule over other creatures; in fact lacking these he would be on the same plane with animals. With moral judgment and reasoning powers in play man is qualified to respect the rights of his creature subjects, and the rights also of his own kind when the race should have multiplied and human rights increased by new relationships unknown to a single pair. What I have written thus far in this article may seem irrelevant to the subject in hand; but not so; it brings me to the discussion of the question of

FREE WILL.

When I first began to read and study the Bible, and form opinions on different subjects, the question of 'free will' was in dispute. There was back in the forties, what was called, The Free Will Baptist church, which meant or implied that there was another Baptist church that rejected the doctrine of free will. This latter church was Calvinistic in belief on several points. Between the two quite a good deal of discussion was carried on, in which I sometimes timidly engaged. Members of the latter church treated the view of "free moral agency" in a manner often times bordering on ridicule. They reminded us that God ordained all things that come to pass. That the potter has power over the clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honor and another unto dishonor. It was in point for these Calvinists to quote copiously from the 9th chapter of Romans.

This marvelous gift of free will is sometimes called the "dangerous gift" from its liability to be abused. Some have gone so far as to call in question both the wisdom and goodness of God, in endowing man with the power to choose between two opposite courses of conduct; and on the ground that he makes choice of a sinful course and persists in pursuing it to the end of probationary life to consign him to a hopeless and helpless state of eternal torture. If a brief life of sin is to issue in a doom that staggers human reason to contemplate, then the gift that makes it possible for all men to choose a course of evil—and the great majority of the race do make such choice—is fearful! This is the way some have reasoned about free will and have hesitatingly asked Would it not have been wiser and better for God to withhold a gift fraught with such fearful consequences? But men fearn that it is not wise for us to the sinner the proposition of sin all assumes a very different aspect. To abuse this God like gift by choosing evil when the good or virtuous course is alike a matter of choice, will end in death complete and eternal.

It is conceded by all who have thought on the subject of the freedom of the human will that man without it would not be man but a mere machine, or at most a necessary agent, instead of a free one. The question asked, Could not God have prevented sin? Had he not the power to interpose a barrier to the entrance into our world. But the proper question is, whether he could have prevented it without doing violence to the nature of man, as a free agent, and consistently with the good purpose of his creation? Could a self-consistent God destroy his own creation? By this I mean free will. Could he destroy this and not thwart his own purpose and contradict himself? This would be to lie; and Paul says "It is impossible for God to lie."

Man was created in accord with the highest wisdom for a good and holy purpose. "Made" as Milton said "sufficient to have stood but free to fall." Free will to sin is something more than the gratification of the impulses of desire, as is the power of choice in animals. The spirit the horse for instance chooses between good sweet hay and the musty, when both are before it, though the latter it could eat, and would eat when pressed by hunger, if the former was not within reach. Where there is the opportunity of choice the horse pleases himself. He has no conscience in the matter. His choice is spontaneous. Above this he can not rise: he is therefore not free. "The human will is free just because it can rise above the desire of gratification, and oppose the moral to the sensational, the spiritual to the carnal." Sin largely consists in the love of pleasure, and this is the sinners bondage. "If the Son therefore shall make you free you shall be free indeed." John viii 36.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 45.

I find in looking over my story that I have neglected to mention some of our earliest pioneers in the faith of the gospel, with all of whom Auntie Willard was acquainted, if not personally, through their writings.

Of these, perhaps Dr. Field, whose home was in Jeffersonville, on the Ohio River, stands out most prominently. He was a strong factor in combatting the false theories of the natural immortality of man, "going to heaven at death," eternal suffering for the wicked, and "the kingdom set up in the hearts of men" while advocating at the same time the near advent of our Lord. He was Chairman, it is thought, of the first Annual Conference held at Old Union, on Eagle Creek, near Indianapolis, and also of the three later ones held at Fairfield, Howard County. At the last of the Fairfield Conferences,—Aug. 16-19, 1860, Mr. Wince was present, Joseph Marsh, Rochester, N. Y. A. N. Seymour, Michigan, Jacob Shaffer, Kewanna, Ind. Dr. Hull, Noble County, Ind. Samuel Andrews and Wm. T. Guffin, Claysville, Huntington Co., Ind. Henry Logan and Hugh Barrabill, of Marshall County, Ind. S. A. Chaplin, Plereston, Ind E. C. Andrus, Miami County, Ind. Nathan and Isaiah Hornaday, Marion Co.; Ralph Carter, Ligonier, Noble Co. Ind and a Bro. Kedrick who lived somewhere in the region of Fairfield, were also present.

The meeting was held in a grove on the bank of a little creek with a living spring close by.

It was a good meeting, sweet harmony prevailed, the sermons were excellent, the speakers, being Joseph Marsh, Dr. Field, Nathan Hornaday, Elder Hugh Barnhill, Henry Logan, and S. A. Chaplin. The singing was delightful, so many fine voices blending in the melodies of praise. It was all new to Mr. Wince. He was young in the faith, and having a feeling of reverence for the old preachers, so much further advanced in knowledge than himself, their zeal and enthusiasm inspired him with zeal to take hold of his Master's work. Nearly all who attended this conference went in their own vehicles; Mr. Wince going in company with Bro. and Sister Samuel Andrews, Bro. A. N. Seymour, Bro. James Watkins, (who afterward became a minister of the Word) and Bro. William T. Guffin, their conveyance being a tent-covered wagon.

Plenty of bedding had been provided, and on the journey, and at the meeting, these friends and others who were in attendance, camped out under little tents. Provisions were for the most part taken from home, and what cooking was done, was done in the usual fashion of campers.

Dr. Field, was a tall, dignified man; slow, deliberate, urbane and emphatic in his speech.

In 1852, the Dr. had held a debate on the State of the Dead, with Thomas P. Connelly, A. B. an Evangelist of the Disciple Church, in the Old Union Meeting-house on Eagle Creek, and the report of this debate having been published it had been used of God as the means of bringing many a dear soul to a knowledge of the truth—among the rest Bro S. T. Hack, who said "It settled him."

John P. Conley, with his sons, Nathan, Isaac and William, from Henry County, Ind., were residing in Marion County near "Old Union" at the time,—all being members of the large and respectable congregation of Campbellites worshiping there, but, with a large number of others, dissenting from their brethren as to the Nature of Man, the Intermediate State, the final destiny of the wicked, the time of the establishment of the kingdom and the nature thereof, and the locality of the saints inheritance. The dissenting members were anxious that all these propositions be discussed and Bro. Nathan Hornaday wrote to Dr. Nathaniel Field to that effect, requesting him to come and meet Connelly, who was then residing in Indianapolis, seven miles distant. But when the four propositions were written out by the Dr. and sent to him he refused to discuss any of them except that relating to the sleep of the dead. The Dr. if he had not already withdrawn from his Campbellite brethren at the time of the discussion did shortly afterward, that "taking an independent stand," he might be left free to "teach the Scriptures, constitute churches, and advise and assist in the management of their temporal and evangelical affairs without regard to his former connections and associations."

I think the first of our annual conferences at Old Union was held in 1858, but am not positive as to the date. My father attended it, whenever it was, probably in August of 1858, for later on he had the Typhoid fever. This would be one year after the debate.

The next annual conference, after the last one held at Fairfield, was held at Little Wild Cat, in Tipton Co. August 1859, the man owning the grove at Fairfield refusing to rent it again.

At this meeting William G. Proctor, from the middle of the State, presided, officers in those days being elected pro tem. Dr. Field, George W. Green, David Shanklin, Nathan Hornaday, with his brother Isaiah, Wm. P. Shockey, Elder Shortridge, Thomas G. Newman, (Editor of the Harbinger), Jacob Blain of Buffalo, N. Y., Samuel Andrews, Wm. T. Guffin, Henry Logan and John L. Wince, were the ministers present, with the addition of Dr. White, who belonged to Tipton County. W. P. Shockey, Thomas G. Newman, Nathan Hornaday, Dr. Field, George W. Green, Henry Logan and Wm. G. Proctor were the speakers. There was a very large attendance the woods was full; people camping and cooking as usual. Lights were put up on the trees at night. It was grand under the green leafy canopy of the overhanging boughs, close attention was paid to all the preaching, even by worldlings. These worldlings usually took our side, and many of them ultimately came into the faith.

In August 1860 another conference was held at Little Wild Cat, which Mr. Wince also attended in company with his Sister Caroline. A Miss Hannah Kaufman, Bro. and Sister Andrews, and Bro. Guffin. This was the Conference at which the question of tobacco-using by our preachers and by all others came up, all the preachers with the exception of old Brother David Shanklin and Brother Nathan Hornaday, taking a decided stand against it.

Bro. Shanklin excused himself on the ground that it only cost him 80cts a year, while Bro Hornaday hung his head, but eventually got up and confessed that it was wrong. He did not say he would quit it, yet he probably did. A Bro. Gouge—a lay member, warmly defended its use; said "he raised his own tobacco and it didn't cost anything," and that "he thought the Conference was transcading its authority, when it began legislating on food(!)" Yet he only had a small patch of ground and ought to have devoted that used for tobacco to the raising of potatoes, he being too poor to even buy himself a Bible, the brethren having to purchase one for him.

Bro. Field, who was again on hand, said "he had used it in his early days in Kentuckey, having smoked, snuffed and chewed, but that he had long ago abandoned it, as a habit ruinous to the health and mind." This, by-the-way-of-diversion-debate, passed off pleasantly, not one of even those who were the hardest hit, getting angry.

Newman, Blain, Shortridge, Shockey, Isaiah Hornaday, and George W. Green, also attended this Conference, thanking the Lord that he had permitted them "to sit in heavenly places with Christ's Jesus."

August 1863, found the brethren again assembled in the grove at Little Wild Cat, and this time, Professor Charles F. Hudson, a dear friend of the Willard's, was present. Mr. Wince was at that time, in Dansville, New York, taking treatment at Dr. Jackson's "Home on the Hillside," but the Claysville friends attended and wrote to him about it.

I do not know what other ministers were there, as our Harbingers burned up with our house, but if any one has a file of these papers, see, No. 35, pages 110,—278-and No. 37—page 278. Perhaps father was present, for Little Wild Cat was frequently and lovingly spoken of in our home in those early days.

Dr. Field left us when the split came between the Crisis people and our Age to Come brethren, but steadfastly held to the truth, as to other matters until his death which occurred a few years before that of my father. Just when the split came it is hard to tell as it began at different places and at various times, the latest date being about 1874, when articles from Age to Come believers began to be rejected by the Crisis, and the pulpits of the Crisis brethren began to be closed against our preachers.

Mrs. Mary A. Tibbatts, a dear Cincinnatti friend of Auntie Willard's, and for years a valued correspondent of myself and father, having come to reside in Jeffersonville became, with her husband the converts of Dr. Field and members of his church, but later moved to Volga, where, assisted by a few others they built a little chapel almost at their door, and where she died Jan. 15, 1896.

Last November, an aged, and invalid lady named Rawlins, came to stay with us while her son was moving his family into another house. And as she was a stranger, we very naturally asked her where her former home had been. My readers can judge of our astonishment, when she replied "Jeffersonville," and that "Dr. Field had been one of her nearest neighbors." She had often heard him preach and thought him a very fine man, and though she did not change her church relationship, she loves and seems to believe the doctrines he advocated, reading with avidity every RESTITUTION she can get hold of.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of you have files of the "Harbinger" or "Gospel Banner," and can glean any facts therefrom as to early meetings, debates, and time, place, and the names of ministers present at such meetings and debates; names of presiding officers, etc. I shall be very thankful to have such items written out and forwarded to my address—Pierceton, Ind. Also any incidents happening at such meetings, number of baptisms and so on. Kindly send items at once.

S. ROXANA [illegible].

WE wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

The Restitution.

A. R. UNDERWOOD.

Plymouth, Indiana, Mar. 4, 1908.

A letter from Sister Woodward says that on account of sickness she will be unable to fill her appointment with the Plymouth Church Sunday March 8. Brother Woodward is some better, but Sister Woodward is herself sick.

In the article by Brother J. L. Barnes where he proposes to raise money for Evangelist purposes, it is well to explain that no money is held for such work by THE RESTITUTION office. All such is in the hands of the Conference Treasurer. The Conference Committee has charge of all such work and funds.

The Concert of Europe.

A brother writer asking if we can tell what is meant by the expression seen in the public print so often "The Concert of Europe."

In order to fully understand this it is necessary to go back in history to the time of the last war between Russia and Turkey. At this time the Russians were victors, and the dream of Peter the Great, that they would be installed in Constantinople, seemed near fulfilment. They were within sight of the minarets of the city, and the terms of peace would have been negotiated there in a short time.

With Russia in possession of Constantinople and the Dardanelles, the outlet from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean, and to the outer world would be secure, and a warm water way be assured. This has been the aim for years. The way north is frozen part of the year. The way south blocked by a wall of nations. The history of the last few years, giving the war with Japan and Russia need not be rehearsed. We all know that Russia made a most desperate effort to get an open way through Chinese waters, and how Japan turned her back again. Since she has endeavored to get through to open water by the Persian road, but has been balked. In studying this subject always remember that Russia is isolated—all her territory lies together. She can only gain by quarreling with her neighbors, and advancing her borders over them. So a Russian officer when asked where the frontier was, replied, "We carry our frontier with us." Russia wants outside trade. Shut in she can only get it through others. Therefore she seeks an open way of her own.

To go back thirty years when she was so near to a realization of her cherished hope, when a few short hours would see her banners on the walls of Stamboul, with a clear stretch of water in which to sail her ships. This prize, the ambition of every Russian ruler since the days of Peter the Great, was just within grasp. What stayed his hand? Looking down to the entrance of the Dardanelles the Czar sees a vision—no it is reality. The British Mediterranean fleet, with steam up, decks cleared for action, ready for the word to flash over the wire and start the guns roaring. What does it mean? Simply that England will not allow Russia to occupy Constantinople, and so be a menace to her way to India.

The Czar must make terms of peace at San Stefano, and come no nearer Constantinople. England would fight Russia at once rather than allow this. At that time Russia was weakened by her war with Turkey, and the ever present internal troubles, and had to yield. England did not like the terms of peace, claiming that the Turks could not comply without disaster, and this would disturb the "balance of power" in Europe. The result was that a call was made for a congress of all the powers at Berlin, with Chancellor Prince Bismarck as president. This congress sealed down the concessions demanded by Russia, and Turkey was given a new lease of life.

The "Berlin Treaty" then organized what has since been known as the "concert of Europe." While it was made broad enough to cover all disturbances, and hold all in check, the prime idea was to prevent the "eastern question" from disrupting international policies. For years this disturbing question had been coming to the fore, and had to be handled by every statesman in his turn, and this united action by the powers was meant to eliminate it.

It is plain to be seen that it was simply hanging Russia up for a time. It is not clear who is entitled to credit for originality, but Peter the Great said in what he called his "Will" that the aim of the Muscovite should be to stimulate strife and quarrels among other nations, and as a peace-maker gain from each other in the settlement. Likewise the founder of Islam told his followers that the faithful would gain more from the dissensions among Christian than their own strength. So it has been the jealousy of the powers that has kept the Sick Man alive so long. The "concert of Europe" has stood for thirty years. In point of fact it has been repeatedly broken, but each time patched up, until now Sir Edward Grey in the House of Commons, Lord Fitzmaurice in the House of Lords, working together, inform their colleagues and the world, that the "concert of Europe" is in a critical condition and likely to disappear at any moment.

This means that these statesmen, who more than others have knowledge of affairs, deem another war in the east as imminent.

Brothers and Sisters, our duty is to watch, for all these are but signs that the breaking up of all converts of men is at hand, and that "in the days of these" the God of heaven will set up his rule and authority. Keep on the watch tower. The night is far spent—day will soon break. Are you ready for it? Are you ready to settle your account? Have you got all the credits entered that you wish to have put down?

The Bible and its Doctrines Number 2.

Having established the fact, as the writer firmly believes, in his first article by numerous passages of Scripture that explicitly declare that there is but "one God, and none other," and that he (Jehovah) created the heavens and the earth "with his own hands," he now invites serious attention to the second class of passages before referred to, which are quoted to prove that there are three Gods—"God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit," or, that there are two Gods, the Father and the Son, as others believe who do not believe in three.

But before proceeding it will be well for the writer to give his rule for interpretation. Inasmuch as words have many definitions, some more than others, it follows that if we attach a meaning to a word, sentence, or passage that will be in contradiction of other passages, we shall know that the wrong meaning has been adopted, or, that there is erroneous translations. To illustrate,—Many Christians, unwittingly perhaps, assert or believe that the preposition "for" in St. Peter's sermon at Pentecost, as to repentance and baptism, means "in order" to "the remission of sins."

Webster gives 30 definitions to the word "for," and among them are "because of; on account of; in order to, etc," and it is certain that the wrong definition to this word has been adopted. It is evident that the true meaning of Peter's words is—"Repent, and be baptized.....for (because of) the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit."

We commence then with the introduction to St. John's gospel, which is believed, to be the Gibraltar of Trinitarianism, and which gives positive proof that Christ is God! But if the first verse is correctly translated, (which we deny) it has no reference to Christ, for it reads—"In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God."

If the word was God, it was not Christ, for Christ is the Son of God. This verse, which relates to Christ, as here rendered is in plain contradiction of the whole Bible on this subject, as can be further verified by scores of passages not given in our first article.

"In the beginning was the word,"—note the fact that the definite article "the" is here used when it is not expressed in the Greek, and that according to the rule of Greek articles, our indefinite article "a" is signified, and should have been used instead of "the," the intention of which was to carry the reader's mind back to Gen. 1. 1, and thus give proof that Christ always existed! But St. Mark 1. 1, contradicts this idea and tells what St. John's "a beginning" is, namely, "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ the Son of God." He not only tells us what the beginning is, but what John's "word" is, namely, "the Son of God"—not "God," as the translators make John say.

"And the Word was with God." Here the definite article is expressed in the Greek, ton Theon, but suppressed, thus blotting out the distinction between "the God," who created the heavens and the earth, and "a God," who is the Son of God.

Verse 2 reads, according to the Greek, "This was in a beginning with (ton Theon) the God."

Verse 3. "All things were (egeneto) made by him, and without him was not anything made that was made."

Here egeneto is rendered in the sense of "create," when this word never means this, or "to make" as every Bible student in Greek knows. Why, then, it may be asked, is not this perversion exposed by the learned men in the churches? and why did not the late Revisers correct it? and echo answers, Why? But Dr. J. J. Griesbach has corrected it in his version as above, and rendered verse 3 as follows:

"All through it was done, and without it was done not one (thing) that was done." verse 10. "He was in the world, and the world was [egeneto] made by him, and the world knew him not."

The Emphatic New Testament has it,—"And the whole world was [enlightened] through him"—the supplied word being in accord with the preceding verse, which is, "The true light was that, which coming into the world enlightens every man." Verse 18, where egeneto is again rendered "made," Griesbach renders the phrase—"And the word became flesh."

In this connection let us read the correction of the perverted words of, Heb i. 2, as in the Diaglott,—

"God having anciently spoken in many portions, and by many methods to the fathers by the prophets; in the last of these days, spoke to us by a Son, whom he appointed heir of all things, on account of whom he constituted the ages."

The common version and also the R. V., has it—"by whom also he made the worlds," but the revisers put—"or ages" in the margin! But they knew if they rendered the whole passage according to the original (not adding other perversions) the version would be rejected by the popular churches, as some of their work, besides the "hell" dogma, has been.

Before noticing other passages, it will be well to remember that no doctrine can be sustained by the sole use of the Greek prepositions, as the following facts will show. Dia, is rendered "by" many times, and sometimes wrongly so, Dia, is rendered "through" 100 times in the New Testament with the following definitions as given in Greenfield's Lexicon. "Because; because of; by reason of; by means of; on account of;" and is often rendered in such cases followed by the genitive case. It is also rendered "for" many times. En, is rendered "in; at; with; by," etc., with the following senses; "as referring to place; time; denoting state or condition; by means of; in respect to; in reference to; on account of; because of; for the sake of," etc.—Greenfield.

In the light of the above let us see if we can ascertain such meaning in other passages of the second class that will not contradict the Scriptures we have quoted of the first class.

Col i 15, "Who is the image of the invisible God, the first born of every creature."

We can all see that, if Christ is the image of the invisible God, as the apostle declares, he is not God, as John i 1 is erroneously made to say—"was God." And, he is not the "first born of every creature" as to time, as believed and so confidently taught, for he was born in Bethlehem of Judah in the days of Herod the king, and, there is not an intimation in the Bible that he had a prior birth. Therefore, "first born" means chief born, which is true.

Verse 16. "For-en-by him were all things created, that are in heaven and that are on the earth, visible and invisible, all things were created dis—by him, and for him." "En" is here rendered "by" when it should be "in" as in the Diaglott and other versions, and in here as in verse 17 is in the sense of "in respect to," according to Greenfield.

Verse 17. And he is before all things [not as to time], and—en—by him all things consist."

When Paul says he is before all things, he means chief of all things delivered unto him of his Father. Matt xi 27.

If Christ is God, and created all things, as so many believe, his creative power must have inhered in himself, but so far from this being true, Christ says (Matt xxviii 18). All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." All things are delivered unto me of my Father." And hath given him authority to execute judgment because he is the Son of Man." John v 27. "I can of my own self do nothing." My Father is greater than I." So Paul's words, Phil ii. were perverted when he is made to say; "Who being in the form of God [not God] thought it not robbery to be equal with God." The Greek word isa here used does not mean "equal," but "like," as Greenfield says, and course this verse where isa is used in this sense. There can be no equality without plurality, and a plurality of gods is in contradiction of the numerous and explicit declarations that there is but one God, who is "the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ."

The word and Christ.—"Before Abraham was I am," John viii 58, are relied upon to prove that he existed before Abraham. Webster gives twelve definitions to the preposition "before," and among the first—are "in the presence of; superior, i. e. higher, or greater in excellence." The seventh definition he gives is—"preceding in time," and quotes—"Before Abraham was I am," as thus referring to—"preceding in time." Webster, it seems understood these words as thousands of others have, namely, "Before Abraham was I was." But Christ did not say, nor mean this, as we will show.

In order to fully understand some of the sayings of Christ it is necessary to note the circumstances under which they were uttered; and this is especially true of the notable words under consideration. Their connection shows that in their unbelief of Christ's claim, and their hatred of him because he had told them the truth and so angered them; they, in their egotistic and remorseless pride, cry out: "We are Abraham's seed; Abraham is our father; are thou greater than our father Abraham, who is dead?" The real and true answer to this question is evidently in the words of Jesus, verse 58, "Before Abraham was"—"superior" to "higher—greater" "than Abraham was I am." So by giving the right definition to the word "Before" we find truth and harmony.

Let us now examine the words of the apostle, 1 Cor viii 6, and see if we can understand his meaning. And for illustration, suppose we let Paul speak for Trinitarians believe and speak and as others who believe that Christ is God, and thus contrast the first clause of the verse with the last, which contradicts the first clause.

"But to us there is but one God the Father" [God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit," or, as others, "God the Father, and God the Son] "of whom are all things and we in him; and one Lord Jesus Christ by whom are all things and we in him."[1]

The correct translation of this verse as given by Griesbach is,—"But to us there is but one God, the Father..... and one Lord Jesus Christ through [on account of] whom are all things" connected with the gospel dispensation.

We here call attention to a statement of an intelligent and prominent brother, to the effect that because John says,—"No man hath seen God at any time," the divine personage called Jehovah who appeared and talked with Abraham, (as recorded in Gen xviii 1), could not have been God, but must have been the Son of God." It is true that no man in this state has seen God as he is in his glorious "garments white as snow, and the hair of his head as the pure wool." Dan vii 9. But it is definitely and emphatically stated that the Lord (Jehovah), who is "the God of Israel," appeared with two angels to Abraham a in the plains of Mamre and talked with him. But they appeared to Abraham as men, being thus veiled as upon other occasions. This definite statement, which is thus harmonized with John's words, we must believe.

The writer firmly believes that Peter teaches that Christ did not exist until born in Bethlehem, when he says, 1 Pet i. 20: But with the precious blood of Christ.....Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifested in these last times for us." Now if we will let Peter interpret Micah's words, v 2, as follows, we shall find truth and harmony: "Whose goings forth have been pre ordained from of old, from everlasting." And on this point let us remember that Paul says—"God calls things that are not as though they were." I firmly believe that Paul was inspired to reveal this truth as explanation to such words as the words of Christ, John xvii 5, where he prays—"And now O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." He thus only existed in the bosom of the Father as "A Lamb slain from the foundation of the world."

Jesus Heals a Man Born Blind. John 9.

Golden Text. I am the light of the world. John ix 5.

For the past few weeks, faithful believers of, and earnest searchers for the kingdom of God have been enjoying the stories of the marvellous powers of Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God by miracles and wonders and signs—which God did by him." Acts xxii.

It would seem—at first thought—that giving sight to a man born blind was the most wonderful of miracles. To those that had not seen any of the other wonderful works which God did by Jesus, this healing of the man born blind would be the most amazing of cures. But to those who have carefully followed the great lessons, the healing of the man born blind will not be any more wonderful than the healing of the Nobleman's Son—by a word—at the distance of about 33 miles. Thy Son liveth John iv 50. Or where Jesus had himself from the angry Jews, going through the midst of them—And they not seeing him. John viii 59.

It will be noticed also that Jesus did not perform all cures in the same way. Those who were healed were sometimes told to do something. Take up thy bed and walk, John v 8. Show thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded. Matt viii 4. At Bethsaida he led the blind man out of town. Spit on his eyes, put his hands on him. The man was partly cured. Jesus put his hands on his eyes again, the cure was complete. Mark viii 22-26.

In the case of the man born blind he made clay and put it on the man's eyes, and sent him to wash in the pool of Siloam. He did and was healed. Lesson text, vi 7.

The neighbors were astonished, some of them so much so, they could not believe their own eyes. Saying, "He is like him." He settled their doubts. Then they were curious, or anxious, to know how he was healed. He told them but did not know where Jesus was. They brought the man to the Pharisees. They asked him how he received his sight. He told them. Some of the very religious among them said, "This man is not of God because he does not keep the Sabbath." Others questioned if a sinner could do such miracles. So they were divided. The question was submitted to the man himself. He said, He is a prophet. Verses 9-17.

The Jews refusing to believe, called the parents. In answer to questions they said, "We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind, but did not know who had opened his eyes. They were afraid of more questions, and said he is of age—ask him. 18-23

They called the man again. The burden of testimony was clearly in favor of Jesus, whose great and kind deed they were determined not to recognize. They began "religious" abuse.

This stream of abuse has by no means dried up. Even today, those who stand in, and for the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ, are the objects of just such abuse, publicly, and privately, and by the same class. The man who had been healed, was just like those who have been justified by faith. Rom v 1. He could not be frightened nor even confused. He preached an excellent sermonette, and founded it on a great truth. If this man were not of God, he could do nothing. verses 24-33. Could do nothing of this kind. Heal a man born blind. They cast him out of the temple.—Truth and error cannot walk together. Amos iii 3. As those in error were the most powerful in authority, the truthful were cast out. Jesus found the man, told him who he was. The man acknowledged him Lord, and believed, and worshiped. He not only saw the light of the present day, but the glorious light of the day of the Lord. The Pharisees had a worse case of blindness than the man that was born blind. Moral blindness. If they had believed Jesus, and confessed their blindness—errors—he would have forgiven them, but they called him blind—a sinner—and said they could see—were righteous—therefore their sin remained. Next lesson Review.

The New Biblical Criticism

To lame and impotent conclusions are we led by those who would refashion history, minimize prophecy, and reverse the representation the Scriptures have given us of God's dealings with men. Instead of pointing to Christ by type, by vision, by clear and definite prediction, they point us to nothing, or at least to nothing worth pointing to. Moses did not "write" of Christ—he did not write at all. The Scriptures of the Old Covenant are not "they which testify of him"—they testify to nothing except to an "ideal picture" which in no way corresponds to the thing represented. For how is the "genius Israel of the last days"—whatever that may mean—represented in the various concurring portentances of the Servant of Jehovah, which find their realization in Christ and in him alone? Professor Robertson has established that "that sort of hearing to the prophets robbed the echo thrown backward over the centuries of the Gospel of Christ." we get from the modern theories "some dry analysis of the 'rules' and the 'conception' of such prophet . . . But we catch no fire from the prophetic words as they are weighed and measured out in the scales of the critics." We ask by some rationale of the motives which induce the Jewish and the Christian Church to hand down the Scriptures of the Old Covenant with such deep reverence, and the critics are so more as when we ask them to tell us what were the "germs" of religious truth and moral law transmitted by Abraham, published authoritatively by Moses and developed by the prophets. "By their fruits ye shall know them. Do men gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles?" Even so is it with men who reduce the living plan for the education of the world to a congeries of myths, and the voice of the Spirit of Christ which "did signify" to the prophets "the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow," to vague and unintelligible foreboods of something which can never be proved to have happened.—London Church Quarterly Review.

Editor Restitution:

Will you give me a few lines in your paper? "Declare unto us the parables of the tares of the field." Matt. xiii, 36. These parables all represent various phases of the kingdom of heaven. Christ never speaks of getting religion, but of his government as a kingdom, of seeking the kingdom, entering the kingdom, hearing the words of the kingdom, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a city, to a grain of mustard seed. Christ established a kingdom, a government, a church, and called upon persons to obey him. "Take my yoke upon you", is his language. He spake as never man spake. Did as man never did. Trust the new with superhuman power, and received worship as the Son of God.

Your Brother, in hope.

Fred Mesecher.

Dear brethren and sisters:

At home, not very well, either of us. I want to say to the brethren I now have my tracts printed and can send them out. The Great Divine Healer, The Stature of Christ, and The Gospel of Restitution, are ready, and the price is 10 cents. I want all to read my tracts even if you cannot endorse it all, so if you cannot send the price send one cent for postage, and I will mail one to you.

If any of the brethren who ordered tracts have failed to get them, let me know and I will send them at once.

If my eyes do not fail and my pen will move, I will soon have my other tracts out, and will give notice in due time.

Yours for the truth,

John Foore.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Poetry.

Our Refuge and Strength.

He who the rule to God hath yielded,
And evermore on Him relies,
Will be in wondrous manner shielded
In straits and all adversities;
Who in the Highest makes his stand,
Builds not his hope upon the sand.

What are our heavy cares availing,
Why should we sigh our years away?
What profit is there in bewailing
Our lot with each returning day?
Such sorrow lends a sting to care,
And gives a heavier cross to bear.

Rest then in God amid all changes,
Be pleased with all he may ordain—
Wait patient till what he arranges
For thy best welfare shall be plain:
God, who hath chosen us as his,
Knows best what our true welfare is.

He knows, if need be, how to measure
The hurt of sunshine or of shade;
And when we wait on his good pleasure,
With heart sincere and spirit stayed,
He comes more quickly than we know,
And makes our cup to overflow.

Think not when sorrow sharply frieth,
That God hath let the clouds be;
That some one in his bosom lieth
Who may be prosperous and great—
The days become long changes on,
And their whole course is quickly gone.

To him whose arm sways while creation,
It is a light thing, at his will,
To bring the great to lowly station,
And make the lowly greater still—
Till he whose wondrous ways we know,
Who lifteth up and layeth low.

Sing, pray, and onward still be pressing,
To thine appointed work be true;
Trust him, and tarry for his blessing,
And it shall every day be new;
Who'er on God his hope hath cast,
Will find him faithful to the last.

The Human-Element Theory, and where it Leads to.

The article that is the occasion of these remarks, lays down these principles, either by express formulation of the writer, or implied endorsement of other men's definition:

1. That only parts of the Old Testament are inspired, viz.: such parts as could not otherwise be produced.

2. That the Bible is not to be spoken of as the Word of God, without qualifications.

3. That there is in it a human (i. e., an erring) as well as a divine element.

4. That historical infallibility is not to be conceded to everything recorded in the Bible.

5. That inspiration only covers "all that may be said to belong to divine revelation proper, by which is to be understood everything in the Scriptures that may have been beyond the power of man to discover for himself."

6. That subordinate features "may have been introduced into the Bible," with which inspiration has nothing to do, and that such things form "legitimate topics of critical inquiry."

7. That inspiration does not teach that which is otherwise ascertainable.

8. That it is unreasonable to suppose "that the attestation which Christ and the apostles gave to the divine mission of Moses and the prophets extends to every point and portion of the Jewish history," or proves the circumstantial truth of every narrative of the Old Testament.

9. That the apostles did not regard the very words of all the Hebrew Scriptures as the product of inspiration.

As corollaries, we have these:

a. That attempts to reconcile apparent inconsistencies are often characterized by straining and ingenuity; that our "sense of candor and integrity are distressed and weakened in the enforced attempt to extract harmony" from them.

b. That the Bible needs to be saved from those who stand up for its absolute divine character, "who are (alleged to be) too little acquainted with its history, and with the embarrassments which beset the theory they entertain of its origin and contents."

These postulates are extracted from the article nearly in the order in which they occur. Let us see where they lead to. They may seem to be rendered innocuous by saving clauses in favor of the inspiration of reserved portions of Scripture. In point of fact, we may find that they react to the destruction of these as well. Logical results are not to be averted by well-meant disclaimers. A wrong principle will work itself out in the long run, however little contemplated or earnestly deprecated by those starting it in the first case: and no doubt many who think the view of things involved in the foregoing propositions easy, harmless, natural, and irresistible, would be the last to welcome the results that come out of it.

If only parts of the Bible are inspired, the other parts are the word of men—not the word of God—and therefore not to be relied upon as an unmistakable guide in the matters of which they treat. Nay, they must even more likely be erring than true: because it is to account for supposed errors that the supposition of a human element is introduced.

How are we invited to discriminate between what is inspired and what is not? between the divine element and the human (i. e., erring) element? By this rule: "that is divine which could not otherwise have been produced; inspiration does not teach that which is otherwise ascertainable," but only that which "may have been beyond the power of man to discover for himself." The application of this to history yields the following result: history is otherwise producible than by inspiration: historical facts are ascertainable by uninspired human faculty, they are in the power of man to discover for himself. Therefore, Bible history has not been written by inspiration but by uninspired human faculty: and as uninspired human faculty is liable to error, Bible history is not necessarily free from error, but may in fact, be untrue in some (and therefore in any) of its narratives.

Let us see the application of this. The life of Abraham was within the power of human faculty to know and record. Therefore, the Bible history of Abraham is not inspired. Therefore it is part of the "human element." Therefore it is liable to error. Therefore we cannot be sure when reading any part of it that we are not dealing with distortions, perversions, traditions, or even myths. What would be the value of such a narrative either for illustration of divine principles or the derivation of human hope? We should have in such a case to sit in judgment upon it instead of surrendering to the guidance of it. The practical working of this Bible destroying theory was very recently illustrated by an upholder of it arguing against the credibility of God's command to offer up Isaac. If Bible history is uninspired history, we stand upon a very shaky foundation in trusting to the promises made unto the fathers. The fact of the promises having been made would of course be "within the power of (contemporary) man to discover" and therefore, by the proposed rule would need no inspiration to record it.

Again, the exodus of Israel from Egypt was certainly a fact "otherwise ascertainable" than by inspiration: it was very palpably "in the power of man to discover for himself," as the Egyptians experienced to their cost. Consequently, by the new rule, the Bible account of it is not the work of inspiration. Therefore, it is part of the "human element," and the human element is the erring element. Therefore, this account may be an erring account. It is "a legitimate topic of critical inquiry," that is, we may sit in judgment upon it, whether it is likely to be true or not; and if we find our "brows knitting" over the emergence of supernatural swarms of frogs from the Nile, or the opening of the sea to let the unarmed host of Israel escape from the chariots of Pharaoh, we may avail ourselves of the enlightening relief that being a human-element history, it is as likely to be erroneous as not. This is exactly what is done by "modern criticism," beluuded with so little reason. Of what value would such a narrative be? What columns could we place in it, as an exemplification of God's purpose and work in the earth, and the aims with which it is being conducted from generation to generation? The loosing of this foundation will loosen the whole structure: for the whole scheme of Bible things is built on the divinity of God's work with Israel in Egypt.

Again, the life of David was certainly a matter "in the power of man to discover for himself." Therefore, by the new rule, inspiration was not needed to write it, and, therefore, as a matter of fact, did not write it. It is part of the "human element," that is, the erring element and therefore may be in error in any part of it. What confidence, or comfort, or advantage, therefore, can we have in reading it? Why should we, all the days of our life, read an antiquated history that may be vitiated with the superstitious errors of the superstitious age in which it was produced by the will and faculty of erring man? How can we be sure that God chose David, or that God delivered David by miraculous interposition, or that God covenanted with him the everlasting duration of his throne? If the Bible history of David is not an inspired history, there may be the childish exaggerations and distortions of perfectly natural circumstances. It is no answer to say that these facts are "infallibly true in themselves;" of course they are. But the question is the getting to know them. Everything, in the sense of this suggestion, is infallibly true in itself; but of what advantage is this, if we cannot certainly know what the truth of the matter is? Christ's resurrection is infallibly true in itself; but its intrinsic truth could not have benefited us, unless it had been testified "by many infallible proofs," which requires the action of inspiration.

What is true of Abraham, Moses, and David is true of the great bulk of the facts recorded in the Bible. They were "otherwise ascertainable" than by inspiration, and, consequently, by the new rule, have not been written by inspiration, but by mere human volition, and therefore are no more to be trusted than any other similarly ancient records—which is no trust at all. We are then at liberty to expunge whatever offends our conceptions of the probable. Like the workers of "the approved of sound criticism," we shall be likely under the operation of such a rule to throw overboard Jonah and the whale; Daniel and the lions; Nebuchadnezzar's dream, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the fire, Elijah's raising the widow's son, and his own ascent into heaven; Elijah's cure of Naaman, and leading the blinded Syrian army to Samaria; and, in a word, all the historic marvels which have signalized God's dealings with his people. By such a rule the Old Testament becomes a wreck.

ONE WHO LOVES GOD'S WORD.

Evangelizing amid Difficulties

Last October I went into Portland from my home, to see Brother Lewis Montgomery, President of our Conference, and consult with him as to whether I should make a trip south to Arizona, and east as far as Kentucky. Our kind-hearted friend and brother spoke with such determination that if I had not been in accord with his views, I would have felt as if he were giving orders. He said to substance: "You must go to Arizona, and take a rest, whether you are able to do any work or not. If any one criticises you for neglecting your work here, tell them I am responsible; that I sent you. If you wish to you can take your trip to Kansas, Kentucky and Ohio. You need change and rest. If you get out of money, telegraph to me, and I will telegraph money to you."

Before the 20th I was moving hopefully southward from the rainy climate of my loved but darkened Oregon, where a long winter of still darker dread and dampier chill, was near at hand. A warmest friend, and if any body on earth the highest in authority, said "go," I would go with his blessing and prayer, and of all true brethren who could know clearly of my life and need of a change of climate or rest, if the times and coming events would afford rest for a week to faithful servant to the coming Master? No, I would go and work. Work would be rest. Rest must be work.

Twenty years and more of nerve-strain, almost constant, either in the public schools, or before the public congregations, and besides a portion of the time an additional straining at the nerves that would have snapped them like breaking cotton wrapping twine—but God was, and is my refuge. I started south hopefully, even buoyantly.

In Arizona I held meetings both in the order of individual appointments and protracted efforts. My brethren of former visits were not only brethren, but something more expressive—they were friends.

Result: Additional spiritual strength was given and imparted during three months of clouds, under a bright sky. Ten pounds avoirdupois was added to my bones.

The brethren of Arizona were well represented at a meeting in the capital of the Territory on Jan. 10, to listen to my parting discourse. During the meeting I expressed my ambition to go through Texas, and on to the central west, sowing the "word of the kingdom," or otherwise I should return to my conference work in the north-west. I had received a number of letters from Texas, encouraging me to come, but others warning me that nothing would be done to help to pay traveling expense. On the hour the brethren gave me $101.00, and encouraged me to go on with my work. On the 21st I started to Texas with much uncertainty as to men, but with much certainty as to God, and those Arizona brethren who had become acquainted with God.

At Tempe, ten miles on my way, our beloved Brother Corbell, the Church deacon who had demonstrated how well he had learned how to fill that office, got on the train to bid me good by, and gave me a love-letter from himself and wife, and after a few words of comforting cheer he gave me a hearty Christian hug, and we parted with renewed resolution to meet again in the kingdom, if not sooner. I was told again to let Arizona know if I got short of funds.

Seemingly a disposition on the part of some of our brethren in Texas to work independent of help from north, even though my message would be and always has been the gospel of peace. Whatever the cause—I must not judge. Perhaps they thought I was worn out and worthless as a servant, as they had notice of my sickness. The word that checked my effort to evangelize Texas, along the Texas and Pacific railroad was sent ahead. In answer to a letter from one of the Editors of Word and Work I wrote an article on and in favor of systematic conference work in Texas. I notified Texas brethren that when I have done the work in mind I will design to return to Oregon through Texas, and if they then desire it, hold meetings.

I am in Kansas at my brother's. Evangelizing under the difficulties I met in Texas may not have proved the nerve tonic I gained in Arizona, but I am here, and this where ever I am to be on hand to work as long as energy of body and brain shall hold out.

Let all take notice. Any one within reasonable railway distances of Wichita Kansas, who desire meetings will address me at an early date at Wichita, Kansas.

W. L. SEEBLS.

What is Faith?

1. Faith is a dependence on the veracity of another; thus trust is called faith, because it relies upon the trust of a promise.

2. "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. xi. 1. "For we are saved by hope; but hope that is seen is not hope; for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for?" Rom. viii. 24.

Now we can look forward to the time when all the promises of God will be performed, hence we have faith in God.

Let us take up Abraham's case who is the father of the faithful. He believed in God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness—just unto him, Rom. iv. 3. How do we know? We find that when God told Abraham to offer Isaac his son for a burnt offering, Gen. xxii. 2, 3, Abraham did it. Faith was the cause.

"Faith without works is dead." Jas. ii. 17. Therefore when we find that faith has been obtained, we must add to our faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity. If we have not had this we have not found faith in God; for Jesus answered and said unto them (his disciples,) Have faith in God. "Without faith it is impossible to please God." Well, then, my dear brethren, if we have not faith I should call our chances very slim for gaining eternal life through our Lord, Jesus Christ. Would'nt you?

Well, then, brethren, we must establish ourselves in the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, who is the author and finisher of our faith, exhorting to continue and increase in the knowledge of faith.

Then again, our faith is compared unto as small a thing as a mustard seed. "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you" Matt. xvi. 20.

"Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints." Jude 3.

That all should "resist stedfast in the faith," 1 Peter v. 9, so when our blessed Redeemer comes we will hear him say that we have kept the faith of Jesus. May it be yours and mine to have on the whole armor of faith.

Yours, in hope of a crown.

CARL THOMPSON.

We wish information concerning a writer named Francis Coghill. He wrote and published a pamphlet in 1865, in opposition to the position of Dr. John Thomas. We would like to know who he was, where he lived, who he was associated with. Any one who can tell any thing about him will confer a favor on us by writing to this office.

A Plea for the Cause of Christ.

This plea is for to put as many evangelists in the field as we can get means to support be that more or less. Now brethren you know the situation. If we want to do much more for the cause, we must get to work as soon as possible. We certainly are living in the end of Gentile times. Then what may we look? for Christ to come and raise the righteous dead and change the living ones. The next important question with us is, where will we be? Can we say we have done all we could? I tremble, do you? Oh what a work there is yet for us to do if we will only do it. We have but a short time to form that life and character that will entitle us to the well done. Yes all these Christian duties done would help ourselves as well as the cause of the blessed Christ. Yea the Father and the angels would rejoice. I am almost 74 years old and work by days work to provide for the necessities of life for wife and myself. It takes only a small effort to earn five dollars more in a year. I will start the ball rolling by promising five dollars to the Directors of THE RESTITUTION published at Plymouth, Ind. To be paid on or before the 1st day of June 1903. We would like to have this years subscription paid in by that time if possible on account of the yearly meeting five miles south of Plymouth, Ind. at the Antioch meeting house. We want to make all the brethren clap their hands for joy and take an extraordinary efforts that will enable us to be the more overcomer. He that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I overcame and am set down with my Father in the Throne. To be an overcomer means work. It means watchfulness. It means to save sinners in every way we can. If we can't preach we can send those out that can. If we are the means of saving others it is also helping to save ourselves. Who will hear it said they have done all they could. Who will hear well done thou good and faithful servant. Who will hear it said, if ye have fed or clothed) one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me. There are many ways that we can help poor fallen man on the way to eternal life. Now brethren, Oh how I wish I could say something that would quicken every impulse of your mental faculties to a determination without any reservation. That you (with me) will do all you reasonably can and pay in to the Directors of THE RESTITUTION from year to year, five, ten or fifteen dollars according to your means. And all that are as I am from two to five. You will not miss it at the end of the year. Can tongues express the good it may do, yes will do. I am as sure of it as I am of anything. We have all the assurances from Genesis to Revelations that we will be fully recompensed for all we will do for Christ. Will we commence this obligation now?

Lovingly solicitted.

A New Years Greeting to the households of faithful ones in Christ our Lord:

As I have read over the letters in the columns of our paper, it has rejoiced my heart as my eyes feasted on the words of cheer and encouragement, and especially those whom it has been my good pleasure to meet, and I feel, should I not write some word in honor of my Lord it would be denying him.

Brother Underwood requested us to tell what the Lord has done for us in the past, since we have been in the family of God by obedience to his Word. I can mention only a few of his wonderful blessings to me.

The first great blessing was that he gave his only begotten Son to die for one like me, and then brought me to know his love, and that love was so great it would cover my sins, blot them from the page to be remembered against me no more. O what love! How I thank the dear loving Father that he has remembered me in mercy all these years. Praise his name. He took me out of the miry clay and placed my feet on the solid Rock. He put a new song in my mouth even praise unto God, and by his grace I want to meet all the dear ones I have associated with in the past. Yes, I want to shake hands with the dear Sister Amy Moon, who has just fallen asleep in Jesus. She was one of God's faithful ones. How we shall miss her at our June Conference in Michigan. There is where I met her and learned to love her for her honest, earnest, hopeful words of good cheer. May she have part in the first resurrection is my prayer.

Let us not grow weary in well-doing for in due season we shall reap if we faint not. Pray for me dear brothers and sisters that I with you may enter into the Holy City of our God and dwell forever with our Lord.

Yours, in Christian love,

MRS. CLARA J. CHAFFEE.

Obituary.

Sister Julia Ann Fisk, wife of Bro. John R. Fisk of Caldwell, Kansas, died Feb. 4, 1903, aged 63 years, 5 months, and 6 days, after an illness of about three weeks.

She was laid to rest on the 6th, at 2 P. M. in the cemetery in Oklahoma, to await the coming of the Life-Giver, when God's dead shall live.

She embraced the Faith and united with the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in 1878. She and her husband were formerly members of the so-called Campbellite Church, but through the preaching of Bro. Prosser, Bro. Fisk became convinced that the Bible taught a literal kingdom and a literal reign of Jesus the Christ over the nations of the earth, and saw the necessity of being baptized in the faith and was buried by Brother Prosser in the watery grave into the faith in 1874, and after a hard struggle Sister Fisk became satisfied that Jesus was not now, as taught by the said above church, reigning on David's throne. She too was buried by baptism by the same Wm. Prosser into the faith in 1878, and ever since has been a true follower of the meek and lowly Jesus.

She leaves a husband in his 68th year, to fight the battle of life and faith without her help and counsel.

She also leaves six sons and three daughters to mourn her loss. The three daughters, the eldest daughter's husband, and three boys and their wives were baptised by the writer into the faith and are manifesting their faith by their daily walk; but now they will not have the kind counsel and encouragement of a loving mother. She sleeps all unconscious of our gloom. But Jesus is soon coming to wake her from the tomb.

She had also a host of sympathising friends to mingle their grief and sorrow with the bereaved family.

After a prayer at the house, she was taken to the North Star Church nine miles southeast of Caldwell, in Oklahoma, and after a short service conducted by the writer assisted by Brother O. B. Cleveland, to a large assemblage of sympathising friends, was followed, by the largest procession of friends the writer ever witnessed, to the cemetery near her old home where we laid her in her silent home to wait the time when death will be no more; for death will be destroyed. He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away every tear from off all faces, and the rebuke (death) of his people shall be taken away from off all the earth; for the Lord hath spoken it.

Sister thou art sweetly sleeping,
All unconscious of our gloom;
But Jesus soon is coming
To raise thee from the tomb.
Come Lord Jesus, quickly come,
And thy will on earth be done;
Then no more shall death destroy
There shall be eternal joy.

Songs in the Night.

Very many of the sweetest joys of Christian hearts are songs which have been learned in the bitterness of trial. It is said of a little bird that he will never learn to sing the song his master will have him sing while it is light in his cage. He learns a snatch of every song he hears, but will not learn a full separate melody of his own. And the master covers the cage and makes it dark all about the bird, and then he listens and learns the one song that is taught to him, until his heart is full of it. Then, ever after, he sings the song in the light. With many of us it is as with the bird. The Master has a song he wants to teach us, but we learn only a strain of it, a note here and there, while we catch up snatches of the world's song, and sing them with it. Then he comes and makes it dark about us, till we learn the sweet melody he would teach us. Many of the loveliest songs of peace and trust sung by God's children in this world, have been taught in the darkened chamber of sorrow.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

We need what is due us on subscriptions and trust all who know themselves to be in arrears will remember us. We appreciate the favor.

The Bereans Column.

A Joyous 1908 Greeting to all Bereans.

The old year has gone, many regrets for lost opportunities, mistakes and unfaithfulness, still linger with us. Ah! how we tremble as we stand on the threshold of the new, and wonder what it has in store for us. How wise the providence that prevents us drawing the curtain and looking on the future. Yet, we who have given ourselves into his care know "My grace is sufficient for thee" and that all things work together for good to those who love the Lord.

May the New Year resolve us to love and trust him more, and with a brighter hope serve him better. So with good courage we may say, "The Lord is my helper, I will not fear."

Yours of the one faith.

MRS. C. N. HOWARD.

Dear Bereans:

A happy New Year Greeting. Christmas the time of feasting and giving of gifts is past. Soon the glad New Year will be ushered in. What our joys or sorrows will be we know not. There is a feast of more importance, which is ever open to the guests. "Whosoever will may come." "Ho every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come, buy wine and milk without money and without price." What can be freer? The feast of God is not like the feasts given by men where only a few invitations are sent out to selected friends. It is a world-wide invitation. "Whosoever will may come." The love of God in the gift of his Son has been made known to us. "Whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Let us be careful to heed the "gracious invitation" that we may be ready when the Master calls.

In hope of life.

MITTIE CHANDLER.

PATIENCE.

In writing to the Hebrews Paul says to them, "Ye have need of patience." I think these words would apply to all of us. We all have need of patience. There are always some discouragements in our life and we are liable at times to become faint-hearted because of them and if we give up to this feeling of discouragement it will grow upon us and make us less zealous in the faith.

We are told that we must "run with patience the race that is set before us" looking unto Jesus for strength and guidance. He is our example of patience.

Paul says that "for the joy that was set before him he endured the cross, despising the shame and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." If we are faithful we too will be rewarded. "If we suffer with him we shall also reign with him."

In James i. we are told to "count it all joy when we fall into temptation for the trying of our faith worketh patience." By yielding to temptation we become weaker and are less able to resist next time, but by meeting and overcoming temptations we are strengthened and more easily overcome the next one we meet with. All the discouragements and difficulties we have are for our good. If we meet them in the right way, they leave us more patient and stronger in faith than before.

Paul, although his sufferings were severe, counted them unworthy to be compared to the glory that should be his. He kept before him the thought of his reward, and it encouraged him so much, he could even glory in his tribulations.

If our faith is strong enough we can look ahead of all trials to the time when they shall be over, and while thinking of this time and trying to prove ourselves worthy of it, we shall not mind so much the discomforts of the present.

Dear Bereans: let us learn to be patient, remembering always to "study to show ourselves approved unto God" and trusting in the promise that "all things work together for good to those who love him."

MABEL KENDRICK.

PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY.

We are told all that live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution, and again, "It is through much tribulation we enter the kingdom." For as we draw closer to Christ we will become more and more separate from the world, and so the world will hate us the more. We cannot be free from suggestions of evil and evil inclinations as we possess this natural body, and so there must be a constant warfare kept up within. Paul tells us to put on the whole armor of God; that we may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

We should give Christ the first place in our affections and refuse to yield any place to our natural inclinations.

There should be no rendering of evil for evil by the Christian. Think of the example of our Savior, who, when he was reviled, reviled not again. He was oppressed and afflicted yet he opened not his mouth. Some people say it is as wrong to have an evil thought as it is to give it utterance, but it seems to me that when we refuse the expression we strengthen ourselves and so doing lessen the inclinations to evil. We gain strength by meeting with others who are stronger in the faith. "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together." Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them, and let all bitterness, wrath, anger and malice be put away; be kind and forgiving to one another, even as Christ has been. "See that none render evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves, and to all men. Pray without ceasing; in everything give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. Prove all things; hold fast that which is good. Abstain from all appearance of evil." "For none of us liveth to himself and no man dieth to himself." Every action of our life makes an impression on some one. Therefore let us try to follow our great Example in our daily life. "A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good; and an evil man out of the evil treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is evil." "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men. Teaching us that, denying ungodly and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world; looking for the blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ.

FRANCES WALLS.

Notice.

To the brethren and sisters of the states of Virginia and Maryland, and isolated ones in the east and south:

The brethren of Shenandoah Co. Va. have been sufficiently interested in the truth to engage me as Evangelist for the present year. It is our desire that every legitimate means be used to further the promulgation of the gospel and strengthen the faith of the brethren. Already twenty-one meetings have been held, and one baptism has resulted, and we desire the good work to go on. Will all in the above named territory send in their names and addresses that we may get acquainted with you, send you reading matter, and otherwise help you.

Address me at Woodstock, Va.

GEO. NEAL.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 350 pps. $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver B. Halstad. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 50c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by G. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

The Hydropathic Encyclopedia, a system of Hydropathy and Hygiene, by Dr. R. T. Trall. A large and exhaustive work, 75c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Indiana Bereans, Greeting:

Brother Neill's resignation has made me your President. I wish to express to you my willingness to help you in any way that I can.

Let me urge you to continue your study and the holding of regular meetings. Great good has already been accomplished, and we must not let this work retard. Let us understand and be about our Father's business, ever keeping in mind his promise to the Little Flock.

The middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, If any one refuses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 970 St. Marks ave. Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

W. L. SKEELS.

Evangelizing Notice.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Beloved, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Rood, G. Huggins, Box 65, Oregon, Ill.

NOTICE.

Many of the brethren desire copies of the photograph of the Illinois Conference of 1907, they may receive them by sending to E. L. Curtis, Photographer, Oregon, Ill. The price is 55 cents each. If any who have paid for their pictures have not received them please notify me at once. Address at Oregon, Ill.

EMMA L. SMITH.

A New Tract.

"The Great Divine Healer vs. Latter-Day Healers, by [illegible] John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 16 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dancehouse will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the Author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother,

T. J. DANIEL.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scriptures, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin. 62 Woodland Av, Cleveland, O.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

IMPORTANT.

All persons subscribing should give their name, post office and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal check. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk or loss. Dampness, weather and carelessness. Money sent in any other way is at the owner's risk. Money sent in registered letters is fully guaranteed by the government.

Always write for your money order and see that it is drawn on the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." For know that the post master has written but, for 10 or 15 cts.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it is now subscribed, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband dies, he is a money order in his own name and send it, saying for me to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we sent it in her name and send him the paper. Susan, paper are discontinued, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid to us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his choicest work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an official wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

A Message From the Flowers.

"Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: they shall prosper that love thee." Psa. cxxii. 6.

We grew upon the very hills
Where Jesus used to stand;
We bloomed on the lonely paths
In God's once holy Land.

There is a city near our home—
A sad and ruined place—
For those who lived within her walls
Let slip the day of grace.

Yet beautiful in all the earth
Mt. Zion used to be—
The City of the Heavenly King,
And loved and glory she!

So we from the Judean hills,
This simple message bring.
Oh, pray for your Jerusalem,
The City of our King.

Sundry Thoughts for the New Year.

No man can foresee what the next twelve months have in store for us, and if we knew what the next year involves in the way of things prosperous or adverse, it would not follow that our knowledge thereof would be advantageous either in a material or spiritual sense. The attitude of those called to be saints, in no way changes from one year to another. It is constantly an attitude of waiting, trusting, believing, patiently enduring unto the end; improving every opportunity to cultivate and educate ourselves to the end that we earnestly exercise a disposition of mind that cheerfully submits to the divine will. God is all and in all, his sovereignty and absolute supremacy is made manifest in things visible and invisible. All things "are and were created for his pleasure." The order and arrangement of the ages to come have been determined in accord with his infinite wisdom and foreknowledge. He fixes the boundary lines of nations and kingdoms, in the present era, and gives signs to their present and future history and destiny as his wisdom and sovereignty shall see fit and proper. At the same time permitting them to exercise their own volition in matters of expediency and policy with reference to the world that now is.

The year into which we have entered will doubtless unfold in passing events a further fulfillment of the prophetic Word concerning the development of Yahweh's work and purpose in the earth. It is not necessary for the called of God to look for anything sensational, but it is well to be prepared for what may possibly be very surprising. "In such an hour as you think not, the Son of Man cometh." The resurrection of the dead in Christ, coincident with a message to the living saints to appear before the Judge of quick and dead to render an account of their stewardship is one of the possible surprises of the near future. How near as to days and years is not of paramount importance to either the living or dead. It is useless to speculate concerning a matter not revealed. At the same time it is not necessary for any intelligent believer of the truth to be in the dark as to the approaching nearness of the Lord's day. The coming of what is called by Paul "the day of the Lord," concerning which the apostle says there is no need of being in darkness is quite distinct from the exact hour or day when the righteous Judge arrives on the scene. As to the latter event the time definitely speaking for some wise purpose has not been made known. This is evident from the fact that it occurs in an unexpected hour, also from the statement, "Behold I come as a thief, blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garment, lest he walk naked and they see his shame." We are not necessarily ignorant as to the day of the Lord, for the signs of the times are a lucid index of what is coming.

The all important question is, to be found not naked, but clothed with the garment of God's righteousness, embodied and made manifest in the sacrificial work of the Lord Jesus. The clothing is not man made. It did not originate with man, that is not evolved from any innate virtue in human nature, in behalf of which so much is claimed in the way of culture and moral discipline by the wise and prudent men of the world.

This is one, but not the only reason why I protest against what is known as the human paternity theory, because it credits the will and pleasure of sin's flesh with all its infirmities the development of the morally perfect, giving the honor and glory of infinite wisdom and power to the creature man.

What is man? A mere worm of the dust estranged and alienated from his Maker in his natural state guided only by his feelings and impressions, which intensifies the weaknesses inherited as the fruit of sin. The first man by disobedience landed himself and all his posterity in the dust of death. We see here how difficult it is to adjust the doctrine of saving immortal souls with the Scriptural arrangement that from beginning to end proclaims death to the soul of the sinner. Even that "written on the tables of stone" is styled the "ministration of death" from which there is no release by any human device. It is impossible for the weak and naked sons of Adam to re-establish, what was subverted by the first man in Eden. Man in his naked and death stricken nature is unfit to offer anything that is well pleasing to his Maker—his thoughts and his ways emanate from his evil imaginations. Hence it is written "there are many ways that seemeth right unto man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." We are often antagonized by the self important, and stiff-necked spirit, unconscious of its own frailty and uncleanness, seeking to dictate just how he shall worship and serve his Maker. And what is most offensive to him is that he cannot come near to his Maker until he is reconciled through faith in the shed blood of the slain Lamb that God in his wisdom has seen fit to "set forth to be a propitiation (mercy seat) through faith in his blood" to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past through the forbearance of God. To declare I say at this time his righteousness that he might be "just and the justifier of him who believeth in Jesus." Where is boasting then? It is excluded. It is God, not man who is just, and the justifier of the sin stricken sons and daughters of Adam. They cannot justify themselves by any provision or invention of their own. Where there is the comprehensive fulness of the admonition, "Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness". It is God's righteousness, not our own, that is essential. It is quite difficult, and sometimes impossible to convince some mind that it is necessary to become reconciled and justified by faith in the order and arrangement God has provided. Human nature over values its own importance, substituting its own estimate of what is just and right instead of recognizing that the right is all on the side of the Creator. This mistake results from a misappreciation of the fundamental principle that man by nature is a sinner, the victim of his evil imaginations, and fleshly desires, and consequently defiled by sin. The fact also that the first man's disobedience has been in its evil effect transmitted to all his posterity is not taken into account by those who appear to take pride in their own virtue, sincerity and uprightness of conduct. They may be sincere in assuming that they cherish no ill will, and that they are disposed to do right so far as they know how, but all this comes far short of what the situation requires. The question is to know what is right, not in our own eyes and feelings, but in the eyes of our Creator. It is written "without faith it is impossible to please God." The literal burden of his Word concerning our true condition and standing unrelated to him who is absolutely pure and holy is the first step to a proper apprehension as to what is right. Man cannot know what is right in any other way. His own impressions cannot guide him, because they spring from a source already perverted and corrupted by the heritage of sin and death. In his natural, unenlightened state he may not be conscious of it, but when he comes to a knowledge of the truth, through a belief of divinely revealed testimony he will see it, and be pricked to the heart ready to enquire, what must I do? The understanding and belief of the testimony God has given concerning his Son is what enables a man to see himself as he is seen. Moreover it prepares him mentally to see the necessity of believing on his name, the only name given under heaven, whereby men can be saved. This name is his birthright, it involved everything to himself, and also to those favored to believe on him. He did not like Esau forfeit his birthright to gratify his faintness for bread, but held fast, enduring self denial until bread was provided.

This birthright name is the one for which God is at the present time visiting the Gentiles by the gospel to take out a people to share in the honor and glory thereof. This favor was first offered to the Jew, and "as many as received him, to them gave he power (right) to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." Notice that the privilege to become sons of God, comes from without, not some inate right of human nature, but a free gift through him by whom a declaration of God's righteousness was made. Again only such as received him—believed on his name, were thus favored.

The chief priests, elders and others denied his name. "I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not. If another shall come in his own name him ye will receive." They said to him you are a blasphemer in that you say God is your Father. You are the carpenter's son, Joseph is your father. Many in our day among the clergy and university professors following in the footsteps of the higher critics are taking a stand along with the Jew in denying the anointing of the Lord's anointed. This is equivalent to denying the name in which we believe and into which the obedient are baptized. It is the Father's name inherited by the Son and made manifest in Jesus, as written, "I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world, thine they were, and thou gavest them me, and they have kept thy Word. Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee." No other man ever uttered a prayer like this from which the above is a quotation. Search the holy writers from beginning to end and nothing like it is found. It accordeth with the spirit of tenderness and affection that united Father and Son in fellowship and love as one in thought and purpose. There is no confession of sin, or acknowledgment of delinquency in the way of having been indifferent to, or negligent of the Father's will.

He further prays "Keep through thine own name those thou hast given me, that they may be one as we are; while I was with them in the world I kept them in thy name.....and the glory which thou gavest me, I have given them.....and I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it, that the love wherewith thou hast loved me, may be in them, and I in them." In this 17th chapter of John a marvelous character is seen, an exception to anything on record. We see one who by his obedience and perfect submission to the Father's will, recovered for himself and those to him what the first man forfeited and lost. He was truly the product of unerring wisdom and power, the blood sprinkled mercy seat of pure gold where God condescended to meet with the humble and contrite of heart, and through his forbearance grant forgiveness of sin. Most assuredly he is in the words of Paul "made unto us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption," and again as foretold by the prophet, "this is the name whereby he shall be called, the Lord our righteousness," for his righteousness covers all those merged into his name. The nation of Israel rejected him and denied his name, but the time is approaching when Israel will most assuredly honor and glorify the name their fathers rejected, for it is written that he will send them in their forebands and write his Father's name in their intelligence, that is in their understanding. This is what he did for the men God gave him in the days of his humiliation, he made manifest the Father's name, and he kept them in that name, "I have given unto them the words, which thou gavest me, and they have received them, and have known surely words "came out from thee." The words "came out from thee" are significant of his origin. His existence was not the result of accident or chance, through the operation of the human will, but the predetermined exhibition of Jehovah's name and glory—the manifestation of infinite wisdom and goodness, reflected in the character of the only begotten of the Father. "I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me." These words are indicative not only of his origin but of a disposition of mind that recognized the absolute sovereignty of God, and cheerfully yielded perfect submission to the divine will. This is how he glorified and pleased the Father. God will be exalted, and requires upon the part of men unreserved submission to his choice and arrangement, whereby he has in his wisdom been pleased to grant repentance and remission of sins to those who "diligently seek him." This is our consolation that we can come near to worship by being reconciled through the shed blood of his Son. Jesus is the antitypical mercy seat blood sprinkled. "There said Jehovah to Israel, will I meet with you" over the mercy seat within the vail, so now he meets with the humble in whose hearts the truth is enshrined through his glorified Son now interceding within the vail of the holy of holies. We have reason therefore to rejoice in thanksgiving and praise that we have an high priest who can be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, and whose tender solicitude and love for those believing in his name never ceases. Being justified through faith in his blood, and clothed with his righteousness, our sins forgiven, how can we forget our indebtedness and obligation to love and serve him faithfully. Thanksgiving and watching, to keep unspotted the garment wherewith he has clothed us, you and will not be treated with negligence by those who keep God in their minds and sessions of good works. God's people are given to thanksgiving and prayer. "Pray without ceasing" says the apostle not however as a mere lip service, a stale formality devoid of faith and spirit, but earnestly soliciting in the name of his Son the forgiveness of our infirmities—increase and growth in spiritual perception, ability to deny self, and strength to resist temptation, and to overcome the allurements of the world. Prayer is conducive to self culture in all those qualities of character that make for peace, righteousness and true holiness, love, patience, gentleness, humility, forbearance and kindness of heart in our intercourse and social relations can be greatly strengthened and fortified by keeping God in mind through prayer and praise. "Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garment lest he walk naked and they see his shame." Gladly does the intelligent believer avail himself of the clothing that God in his goodness has provided, but vigilant watchfulness to keep what has been voluntarily accepted involves a very grave and serious responsibility. God is good, merciful and forgiving, but he requires the recipients of his goodness to continue in their first love, not "laying again the foundation of repentance from works of death." The warning that he comes as a thief is designed to stimulate watchfulness as to our daily walk and conversation, and to fortify the mind against indulging the thought "My Lord delayeth his coming." It is certainly possible to forget that the things of sense and sight so fascinating in their influence are but a vain show, which if not resisted and overcome may end in final shipwreck of faith and exposure to shame. No man can serve two masters at the same time, and therefore the words of Jesus "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Mammon worship is idolatry. In its incipiency it may not be as debasing as final worship, nevertheless it weakens faith, debilitates spiritual mindedness, and eventually excludes the true and living God from the mind. "Having food and raiment, be therewith content" is the advice of one who had suffered the loss of all things for Christ's sake, and he adds "Godliness with contentment" is great gain. Of course a certain degree of thrift is necessary to provide food and raiment, but if it be the fruit of industry and economy, sanctified by prayer and thanksgiving there is little danger of forgetting God who supplies all our wants. Neither poverty nor riches is desirable, but godliness is indispensible. The rich in faith are rarely found among the opulent, greedy of gold, and the same may be said of the degenerate poor who squander their substance in rioting and drunkenness. The called of God cannot remedy the existing evils with which society is afflicted, they neither have the wisdom nor the power, the most they can do is to bear witness to the truth, keeping their garments unspotted from the forbidden wickedness that every where prevails. The time is approaching slowly it may appear to those watching and waiting, but nevertheless surely when he whose right it is will wield the sceptre of omnipotent power executing justice and righteousness in the earth. The mid-heaven proclamation "fear God and give glory to his name for the hour of his judgment is come, and worship him that made heaven and earth, the sea and fountains of waters" will be followed by the chastening rod of divine power effectually establishing such a reformation of human society as the world has never witnessed before. It will be regenerative in its influence and lasting in its results, and more radical in the betterment of present conditions than anything offered by the political and social reformers of our day. In that day shall there be one Lord and his name one, "for God hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father." It is the glory of God the Father that ultimately fills the whole earth.

The Restitution.

THE RESURRECTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead, the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

At the Breaking of Bread.

I therefore the prisoner of the Lord beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation where-with ye are called, Eph iv 1. Now in order that we may properly understand this passage of Scripture we must find out several things as follows:

1. What this vocation is?
2. What it is that calls us?
3. His reason for so doing?
4. How it is he called us?
5. Data what we are called?

This vocation we find by turning to Murdock's Translation is rendered calling, and as used here represents the means by which we are brought unto the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Now that we may find out who it is that calls we will turn to 1 Cor 1 9, which reads, God is faithful by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord. Here we learn in plain simple language exactly who it is that calls us, and knowing that it is God our Father we can join in one accord and ask the same questions as did the children of God in Paul's letter to the Church at Rome. Rom viii 31. What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us? And how very true it is if we love God and he calls us; all will be well, as we see in Rom viii 28. And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose. Now it has been clearly stated that it is God who calls us and knowing this to be a fact, he therefore had a reason for so doing and I can think of no better reason than the one set forth in John iii 16. For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. Just note the wonderful love here displayed and think of the act of giving up the only Son, the nearest and dearest thing to a father's heart, that we by believing and obeying might obtain a hope of everlasting life; certainly the love the Father hath shown toward us is wonderful.

Having found that it is God who calls us, and that his reason for so doing is the love he has for those who believe on his Holy Name. We now wish to know how it is he calls, so turning to 2 Thess ii 12 which reads, Whereunto he called you by our gospel to the obtaining of the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ, and 1 Cor iv 15, agreeing perfectly reads, For though ye have ten thousand instructers in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers; for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel. We therefore can see quite plainly that it is by or through the gospel we are called.

Now lastly we wish to know unto what it is he calls us, and we find it answered in the latter part of 2 Thess ii 14, which says that it is, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ, and 1 Thess ii 12, also reads, That ye would walk worthy of God who has called you unto his kingdom and glory. Any one can plainly see from these passages of Scripture that he calls us unto the obtaining of the glory of his holy kingdom, and may God bless and help us all, to press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MAR. 11, 1908.

OUR city has been visited by a flood of water. Those who have visited here can form an idea of it by knowing that boats were rowed along the street in front of the Church, landing passengers at the Church steps. It ran with a current down the street leading south past the Church. All the houses east and south from the Church were flooded, besides other parts of the city. Some were able to get furniture up before the water got in them, but other had to abandon and be taken out in boats. Two families of our Church people were in the flooded district, and suffered considerable loss of household goods.

Passing Events.

The student of prophecy watches the doings of the nations, and looking ahead sees where trouble will occur. Just now the nearest is causing anxiety, and a few days ago there seemed danger of a clash between Russia and Turkey, this time over Persian territory. Lest some have missed and not noted fully, we give a few items that should be kept in mind.

When Russia was whipped by Japan she became quite humble, and another "Peace Conference" was held last year. Not much was accomplished further than "talk-a-talk." However, Russia got on friendly terms with England. British statesmen were very mellow and kindly toward the Czar, and as he was weakened by the Japanese affair, he was unable to hurt any way. So they made a "compact" with him.

Every body knows that Russia desires to get through the barriers that confine her, so she can get to the open seas. Her fleets can get out only a part of the year, because of the frozen seas. Her attempts have been frustrated repeatedly; the last time by Japan, and of course every body knows that if not directly then indirectly, England favored Japan. Russia must wait and bide her time for another try, and meanwhile scheming must be resorted to.

A "Peace Conference" is called, and proclamations of pacific policies are made. The bear and the lion make friends. England wants to be left free to exploit her policies in Africa, and other parts of the world. Persia, Afghanistan and Tibet are frontiers of Russia, and also on their lower side for British territory. England is active in the south of these countries, and so Russia is in the north. The lion has for years growled whenever the bear attempted to put a paw here. Now with Russia reduced to so pacific a mood, there could be no harm in just allowing her to trade with these people. They are her near neighbors, and she means them no harm. She will only do them good. So English statesmen yield, and make a compact by which they recognize a certain sphere of influence" as belonging to Russia, in these countries.

The last war scare came from the fact that Russia attempted to exploit Persia, and the Sultan claimed sway there, and Turkish troops were massed at once. As they are not quite ready for war yet, it is put off for a spell.

Napoleon complained that "you imbecile Englishmen" would not allow him to create a strong buffer state to check the advances of the Russian bear, and predicted that coming generations would prove how necessary such a barrier was. The history of the "absorbing policy" of Russia has since made this quite plain. By this latest action England has quietly given over to Russia without a struggle, freely and willingly, more than she could have gained by years of bloody war.

Lord Curzon, who was Viceroy of India for years, and knows better than any other man the situation there, gave the House of Lords some light on the mistake that had been made. He showed them where Russia had gained, and pointed out that in just that proportion had England lost. He stated that there was nothing in the compact that guaranteed England a thing more than she held before. In short the Czar has tricked England into recognizing his claims and rights in the north, while he has slipped out of recognizing that England has any rights in the south.

Lord Curzon warned England that when Russia has in a measure recovered herself, she would exploit her "spheres of influence," push Russian railways through the country, which will enable her to bring soldiers up quickly, while England must march hers over hard country slowly and at great cost. He ended up by asking—"Where will British ascendency be in the south of Persia then?" "I am inclined to ask: Where will Persian independence be then?"

We wish some of our able brethren would write and show where these events are tending, and how prophecies are being hastened toward fulfilment thereby.

THE 72ND PSALM.

The 17th verse of our lesson says his name shall endure forever. (Marg) His name shall be as a Son to continue his Father's name forever.

How carefully, and for why the purpose of God in the beginning, is brought out. "Replenish (fill, Marg), the earth subdue it—have dominion over it. After Adam's failure to become the ruler, God promised to produce one who would redeem and subdue, one whose name should endure forever.

Soon after the flood, we find men saying, "Let us make us a name, lest we be scattered. The history of which was a confusion of tongues.

Then came the call of Abram, "Get thee out of thy country, and from thy fathers' house unto a land that I will show thee, and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee and make thy name great.....and the Lord appeared unto Abram, and said unto thee and thy seed will I give this land, and there builded he an altar unto the Lord, and called upon the name of the Lord."

Abram is a son of ninty-and-nine years, and Jehovah appeareth unto him saying, I am the Almighty God; walk before me and be thou perfect, and I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly. And Abram fell on his face; and God talked with him saying, as for me behold my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of many nations. Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be Abraham; for a father of many nations have I made thee, and I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee.....From this on we find Abraham calling upon the Name of the Lord. Then we find Isaac doing the same. Gen xxvi 25. Jacob on his way to Padanaram had a dream and saw a ladder, the top reached to heaven.....and behold the Lord stood above it, and said, I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac. The land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed.....and behold I am with thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land, for I will not leave thee until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of. And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said surely the Lord is in this place and I knew it not. This is none other but the house of God. He called the name of that place Bethel (The house of God) and Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If God will be with me, and will keep me in the way that I go, not that the Lord would cause him to do all that he did while in Padanaram, but if he would bring him again to this country. Then the Lord shall be my God. He had been informed that the one who appeared to him is the God of thy father Abraham, and the God of Isaac.

God had commanded Abraham, walk thou before me, and be thou upright and perfect. The same command is applied to Jacob and all his followers.

Jacob vowed a vow. If he would give him bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace. Then shall the the Lord be my God, and this stone which I have set for a pillar shall be God's house, and of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee. Of Jacob's stay in Padanaram we have only time to notice, during all his stay there, we do not read of him worshiping God, not till he returned to the land of Canaan. On his way back we find him praying earnestly to the God of Abraham, and Isaac (which said unto him in the dream) return unto thy country, and to thy kindred, and I will deal with thee. He lodged in this place, and Jacob was left alone, and there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of the day.....and he said let me go for the day breaketh and he (Jacob) said I will not let thee go except thou bless me, and he said unto him what is thy name, and he said Jacob, and he said thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel, (Prince of God, Marg) Why was it called Jacob; because Jacob said tell me, I pray thee, thy name, and he sayeth wherefore is it thou askest for my name. (Young) and he blessed him there. Blessed him when he asked for his name.

From here Jacob journeyed to Succoth, he erected there an altar and called it el-elo-he. Israel, (That is "God, the God of Israel") Gen xxiii 19 20.

Then God directed him to go to Bethel and erect an altar unto God, who appeared unto then when thou fledest from the face of Esau thy brother. Gen xxxv 1. Here Jacob began to worship as he should. Not a word about his worshiping in Padanaram, but when he returned, and called for the name he was blessed, and ready to ask his household to put away the strange gods and change their garments, and he said, "Let us arise, and go up to Bethel, and I will make there an altar unto God who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way which I went. And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hands, and all their ear-rings which were in their ears, and Jacob hid the murder the oak which was by Shechem. And he builded there an altar and called it el Bethel. (God of the house of God) The words of Solomon impress us. "Who hath ascended up into heaven, or descended, who hath gathered the wind in his fists, who hath bound the water in a garment, who hath established all the ends of the earth, what is his name, and what is his son's name" Prov xxx 4. In assuming his name shall endure forever, his name shall be as a son to continue forever. Paul says, God hath highly exalted him and given him a name that is above every name. That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow. Every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father.

Dear brethren and sisters, we like Jacob have called for that name, called the name of the Father through Christ Jesus upon us.

Begotten by the incorruptible seed, the word of the kingdom, calling the name on us in baptism, buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him, through the faith in the operation of God who hath raised him from the dead, and you being dead in your sins hath he quickened together with him, having forgiven you all trespasses. The eyes of your understanding being enlightened that ye may know what is the hope of his calling and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, and what the exceeding greatness of his power to reward, who believe according to the working of his mighty power which he wrought in Christ when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand far above all principality, power and might and dominion, and every name that is named not only in this world, but also in the world to come.

Can we not say with the Psalmist save me O God by thy name. Should we not praise and adore that name. Knowing what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints. Calling us by the gospel of the kingdom of God, to be a people for his name. We can reverently say, Hallowed be thy name, thy kingdom come.

Moral Evil or Sin, No. 10

There are higher moral and responsible beings than man, concerning whom but little is revealed. It is man, the crowning work of the six days creation, that concerns us most. Pope wrote

Know thyself, presume not God to scan,
The proper study of mankind is man.

What appalling history the race has enacted since the fall. What scenes of wickedness rise up before our imagination! What scenes of battle and of war! Much of the dark history has been written. Perhaps much more has never been written. What appalls us are the sins and crimes of six thousand years committed by beings created in the image of God, and capable of a history that in its entire course would have met the approval of Jehovah, and challenged the admiration of angels. But our first parents against the express command of Jehovah chose to disobey and to bring upon themselves and their posterity the plainly threatened destiny. That act was in defiance of God; and abuse of the marvelous gift of free will, without which man would have been an irresponsible creature; the merit of obedience out of the question, and reward impossible it be had been so constituted.

Is sin a denial of God? Instead of this it is a witness of his power, wisdom and goodness. The greatest creation is that into which the Creator puts the most of his own life, or those attributes of mind which in the main constitute the image of God. This creation is man, marvelously constituted; distinct in personality from his Maker; so distinct that he can sin in defiance of his Maker; sin in contradiction to Jehovah's good purpose in creating.

But this same creature that can sin by freedom of choice has equally the power to choose the good, there being weighty motives set before him to incline him thereto. So sin bears witness to the power wisdom and goodness to God. None but a powerful and infinitely wise being could create such a marvelous creature, and create him for a holy and good purpose. Now since sin is here by man's choice in abuse of the good gift of free will, God's good purpose in creation will be accomplished in the final of redemption. This is the final solution of the problem of sin. If all sinning souls had been left unholy and doomed to death eternal then God's good purpose in creating man would have failed. He who foresaw sin foresaw redemption, and did a tremendous responsibility upon himself for its accomplishment. He has employed the best agencies and measures to bring about the end. "He gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John iii 16. The appeal has been made in the most touching manner possible, and on the ground of man's great needs, sinfulness and life; his eternal self-interest being involved. The message of love is addressed to a race who deliberately sinned by choice, and now that fearful gift of free will must come into play in the choice of life. God never loses sight of man's power of choice, nor of his distinct personality. God is self-consistent and meets man, in extension of mercy to him, on the basis of his constitution by creation. This is the style of his messages to him in the gospel. His commands, exhortations and threatenings pre-supposes man's power of choice. He never speaks to him as if he was bound by fate, or held tightly in the grip of circumstances. It is man who brings forward excuses, pleading inability, lack of opportunity and want of time to attend to the most urgent business of his life. If man in possession of light, with the conditions of justification and salvation before him, neglects or rejects God's proffered mercy so lovingly extended, he is himself to blame; he has doubled his guilt. Responsibility goes with the knowledge of God's revealed will.

FEW SAVED.

It may be said that the plan of salvation devised for the accomplishment of God's good purpose in creating moral beings with free wills, is in a large measure a failure; that our Lord's answer to the question, "Are they (R. V.) few that be saved," but confirms what was the experience of the proclaimers of the truth in apostolic times and what is the experience of today as we sadly know—few entering on the way of life; many pursuing the broad way to destruction: and this condition of vast odds between the two classes extending down to our Lord's coming; for he prophetically said "Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? Matt vii 22. All will be saved who choose to be saved in accordance with God's revealed will. Character is not formed by physical force. It is a matter of choice on the part of man as a morally responsible being. So all will be saved who can be saved by divine wisdom, goodness and love. God is self-consistent in creation and redemption, and is never at cross purposes with himself. Man should be consistent too. If he sins by choice he should obey by choice, since God has so kindly afforded him the opportunity of working out his own salvation in partnership with God, who worketh in him both to will and to do of his good pleasure.

If God created one man, or some men, for a good purpose, is it not logical to conclude that he created all men for a good purpose, and if redemption solves the problem of sin in reference to that portion of the race to which opportunity has been afforded, what about the larger portion to which no opportunity has been granted?

JOHN L. WINGE.

Dear Restitution:

To the saints scattered abroad, Greeting:

The Church of God, at Brooklyn, New York, has good news to report, and brethren, we ask you to rejoice with us in it. On the evening of Friday, February 7th, 1908, Miss Marion Leslie Hawpburst and Miss Nora Loretta Doyle, after having made a good confession of their faith in Jesus as Savior, Companion, Guide and Friend, and their belief in him as Prophet, Priest and King, were buried in the waters of baptism to arise in the newness of life. The ordinance was performed in the Union Course Baptist Church. The Pastor, Brother John Donaldson—an uncle of Miss Hawpburst—officiating. On the following Sunday morning they were formally received into church fellowship. Brother Wm. E. Rothe in a few choice words, extending the right hand of fellowship. We pray they will be steadfast, that they will devote their lives to their new Master, that they will so live and walk that others seeing their good works will know they are of God and will follow him, and that through their efforts many will be brought to a knowledge of the truth, and in the end, they with us will have an abundant entrance into God's everlasting kingdom, to go no more out forever.

Miss Hawpburst is the only child of Bro. and Sister Edward L. Hawpburst, she has been brought up in the truth from infancy, her grandparents, Bro. and Sister John Donaldson being baptized by the brethren in Glasgow, Scotland in 1852, and her mother followed their example about 24 years ago. Bro. Geo. B. Kramer officiating, in the church of the Blessed Hope, Brooklyn.

Miss Doyle was born and reared a Roman Catholic, she was not satisfied with the teachings and practices of the Roman church, but knew not where to look for the light. One of the brethren met her in a business way and the subject door to both their hearts was broached, she acknowledged the Bible to be the Word of God, and the only source of his communication with man, the rest was easy, the result is noted above. She is doubly happy today for she has gotten rid of the superstition of ages and has that peace, that trust and faith which God alone can give.

There are others who seem about ready to obey and we hope soon to have the gratifying pleasure of reporting their obedience. They know the truth, they believe in God and have faith in his promises, they know that God is gracious, tender-hearted, loving, kind, compassionate, long suffering, merciful, peaceful and true, still they refuse to do the one thing that will please him and will link themselves to "The Household of Faith," that outward confession "an answer of a good conscience toward God." May they give their hearts to God in the days of their youth, for life is uncertain and no one knows what a day may bring forth.

We have had many visitors at our meetings of late, especially is this noticed at the evening services, but in a large city, when there are so many attractions to allure the children of men from their loving Creator, it is hard to get them interested in a manner that see the need of "forsaking all and following Jesus." Still we have hopes, but whether we shall live to see the fruit of our toil or not, we know we have not labored in vain, for whatever is done in the name of Jesus the Christ to the glory of God the Father is not a failure, for he doeth what to him seemeth best.

We have had quite a time with sickness among our members during the winter, but it is with thankfulness we say, all are on a fair way to recovery, and we give God the thanks. He has been kind and gracious unto us. May we appreciate it and give him our faith and love in return.

Sincerely your brother awaiting the coming of the promised one.

ALEX D. DONALDSON.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

If any of you have files of the "Harbinger" or "Gospel Banner," and can glean any facts therefrom as to early meetings, debates, and time, place, and the names of ministers present at such meetings and debates; names of presiding officers, etc. I shall be very thankful to have such items written out and forwarded to my address—Pierceton, Ind. Also any incidents happening at such meetings, number of baptisms and so on. Kindly send items at once.

Obituary.

Cecelia M. Whaley was born in Erie County Pennsylvania, Feb. 28, 1837.

When but two years of age her mother died thus leaving the father and the children to make their way as best they could. She moved with her father to Indiana soon after her mother's death.

She was one of a family of ten children. One brother and nine sisters. She was united in marriage to Alphonzo Drew, July 13, 1851, to this union were born six children, William Wallace, Lafayette, Sadie M. John H. Jacob A. and Thomas P. The last named and youngest having preceded her to the silent city of the dead.

She with her husband united with the Church of God, at Sand Hill in 1883, and has remained a firm believer in its teachings ever since.

Her life has been an open book, she has (so to speak) practiced what she preached, so that all who knew her knew her true character. It needs no comments as it speaks for itself.

While Sister Drew has been a sufferer for a long time her death was totally unexpected when it came. But as she has said many times, "come when it may, I am prepared."

She died March 1, 1908, aged 70 years 3 days, leaving a husband, four sisters, five children, fourteen grand children and many friends and neighbors to mourn her loss. May we profit by her past life.

Wearied with years of watching and waiting, another one of the faithful is at rest. She sleeps in Jesus.

After we had uninvented comforting words (from the great source of truth) to the dear husband and to the children, and opened to the assembled friends and neighbors a Scriptural definition of our hope of life from the dead in the world made new; and admonished them to imitate her virtues that they too might be able to say I am prepared, we laid her to rest until the voice of the Son of God shall awake the sleeping saints. May we each be ready to meet the coming Lord and share with him in his glory.

J. H. WILLEY.

Dear brethren and sisters:

At home, not very well, either of us. I want to say to the brethren I now have my tracts printed and can send them out. The Great Divine Healer, The Statues of Christ, and The Gospel of Restitution, are ready, and the price is 10 cents. I want all to read my tracts even if you cannot endorse it all, so if you cannot send the price send one cent for postage, and I will mail one to you.

If any of the brethren who ordered tracts have failed to get them, let me know and I will send them at once.

If my eyes do not fail and my pen will move, I will soon have my other reports out, and will give notice in due time.

Yours for the truth,
JOHN POORE.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Notice.

To the brethren and sisters of the states of Virginia and Maryland, and isolated ones in the east and south:

The brethren of Shenandoah Co. Va. have been sufficiently interested in the truth to engage me as Evangelist for the present year. It is our desire that every legitimate means be used to further the promulgation of the gospel and strengthen the faith of the brethren. Already twenty-one meetings have been held, and one baptism has resulted, and we desire the good work to go on. Will all in the above named territory send in their names and addresses that we may get acquainted with you, send you reading matter, and otherwise help you.

Address me at Woodstock, Va.

GEO. NEILL.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

The Lost Eden.

Bright were the bowers of the Eden of God,
Its flowers in strange beauty bespangled the sod;
The trees waved in grandeur to soft winds that played
With murmurs of music that haunted the shade;
While bright were its rivers that spark'ed and rolled
With the sunlighted sky with their billows of gold;
And beautiful birds, with their plumes of light,
Made joyful the day, and enchanted the night!
O, home of the sinless, how blest was the shrine
Where man, who was formed in the image divine,
Held converse with God in that life-breathing land,
Whose wealth was the gift of His bountiful hand;
The angels of heaven rejoiced at the view,
And trembled their lyres to an anthem anew,
Man listened in awe to the mandate divine—
"All trees of this Eden but one, shalt be thine
That take not the fruit that its blossoms untold,
Though bright on thy vision its store-house unrolled;
For death shall be found 'neath the shining fragrance,
That shall wither thy spirit and darken thine eyes;
And Eden is lost now, the home of thy love,
Away from its glories thy footsteps must rove!"
Man broke the high mandate, and fearful the fall;
For sin round his shield had woven the thrall:
The Angel of death crossed his desolate path,
As the soul of Omnipotence kindled in wrath,
And drove him, an exile from Eden's fair clime
No more to return through the transit of time.
And the glory of Eden, on venture fled away,
Stole the semblance of death and the sign of decay:
And the impress of sin on the dwellers of earth,
Traced the mark of its ruin, the seal of its birth—
No more to the fair Tree of Life man might turn,
For the sword of God's justice to ignore it did burn!
O, Eden, blest Eden, thy glory has fled,
And the clime of the earth is the land of the dead;
Their graves are the hillside, the valley, the plain,
And pale forms are reeling deep down in the main:
The living are fading like Autumn's sere bloom,
By the touch of disease to the rest of the tomb—
From the dim halls of silence, they may not return,
While we trace each fond image in memory's urn—
And sorrow has opened its fountains of tears
In the homes of the earth where the presence appears.
But darker the visions that burst on the sight
Where the orgies of crime mark its years in their flight:
Where the thunders of war shake the mountains and seas,
And the banners of conflict are spread to the breeze;
Where the night of oppression reigns starless and wide,
And the red throne of tyranny stands in its pride;
Where the hosts of idolatry worship the sun,
Or deities monstrous their homage have won;
Where the fiend-browed assassin with spirit of hate,
Goes forth on his mission with his purposes of hate,
Where the vulture of slander feasts, sullen and still
On the names of the just with a demon's dark will!
O sad are the trophies of sin to the earth,
Since the spirit of man was the place of its birth:
But the saddest of all is the death of the soul
In the lone realm of passion beyond earth's control.
But the Angel of Mercy, when Eden was lost,
On the wild sea of sin saw man hopelessly tost;
And swift to his rescue all joyfully sped
With a power that imparted new life to the dead;
The smile of Omnipotence sanctioned the deed,
And welcomes the wanderer back in his need.
O drink from the streams of salvation that roll
The strength of their healing brings life to the soul,
And brightens the pathway of duty below;
While the sunlight of hope on the spirit shall glow—
O turn at the flow of their life-giving sound,
And an Eden more bright than the lost shall be found!

The Three Worlds. 2 Peter iii.

The scientific world has concluded that in as much as our earth has had a beginning it therefore must have an ending. The religious world admits that all things had a beginning and must in time end. The first named claim that the earth in a few million years will become a dead planet. The second party claim that when God has no further use for our planet that he will set it on fire and burn it up and out of its smoke and ashes he will form a new earth. There is still another party who believe from the record found in the Bible that this earth had a beginning in God's purpose and will never be utterly destroyed. The object of the writer is to show that Jehovah has purposed that this earth shall stand forever. A few plain passages of Scripture will answer the purpose.

In Genesis the Eternal One called Abraham and promised him the land of Canaan as an everlasting possession. Is doing this he was promised eternal life and the possession of the land. In Acts vii. Stephen declared that Abraham had not received so much as to set his foot upon. [redacted] God promised it to him when he had [redacted]. Paul declares in Heb xi that Abraham looked for a city that hath a foundation whose builder and maker is God. Of the ancients or elders named in this chapter the apostle says, And then all having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise: God having provided some better things for us, that they without us should not be made perfect. Heb xi 39-40. From the above we conclude that God's promise to Abraham has not been fulfilled. Yet he covenanted with an oath to Abraham that his seed should bless the nations.

He further made a covenant with David that he should not want a son to sit upon his throne forever. This son is Abraham's seed. The promise was made to Mary that Jesus should occupy David's throne and rule over the house or kingdom of David for ever. The above are Bible truths founded upon Jehovah's oath to Abraham and David and cannot be controverted. Again we read from Isa xiv 18. Thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it, he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited. God's purpose reaches further than the present race as he declared to Moses. As truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord. Num xiv 14. Again one of God's prophets says: the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. These are God's testimony and must look beyond this present arrangement for a fulfillment. Solomon has written: One generation passeth away, and another cometh: but the earth abideth forever. Eccl i 4. Thou hast established the earth and it abideth. Isa cxix 90. The heaven, even the heavens [redacted] the Lord's; but the earth hath he given to the children of men. Psa cxv 16. Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth. With these testimonies before us how unreasonable it is to assert that the time will come that this earth upon which we live will be burned up. We now wish to examine the strongest proof text relied upon to prove that when Jesus returns again to this earth he will burn it up and create out of the smoke and ashes a new earth. In 1 Pet iii., the apostle speaks of the world that was, the world that is and the world that will be. We believe that if this Scripture is studied with care and carefully compared with other Scripture that the truth will be revealed.

Therefore to the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them. Isa viii 20. In 2 Pet iii 6, the apostle states that the world that was perished. Permit me to state that our translators have translated three Greek words by one English word. The Greek words Cosmos, Aion and ge are rendered world without any explanation of their meaning. Cosmos means arrangement. Aion age. Ge earth. Now in the above verse the world that perished is Cosmos. Now let us note what was destroyed by water in the flood. Gen vi. God said, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and behold I will destroy them with the earth, (marg. from the earth). In the above Scripture we find that the wicked inhabitants were destroyed. It was the Cosmos and not the ge that was destroyed. We wish our readers to bear this in mind. The apostle is comparing the destruction of the two worlds. The one that was and the one that now is. They must be the same in fact only diverent numerically. Therefore the world that was destroyed by water, and the world that will be burned up must be the same. In verse 7 the apostle says, The heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men. The word translated world here is ge and may be taken to mean the planet instead of the Cosmos. In noting the use of the word ge we find in Rev xiii and other places that it is used instead of Cosmos. All the world (ge) wondered at the beast. We can not maintain that the earth wondered at the beast. It certainly must mean the Cosmos or people. Those who believe that the earth will be burned up when Christ comes believe that it is one general conflagration. An instantaneous burning. Now does the apostle teach this. Please notice verse 8. Belo[illegible] be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. This declares that the eternal one takes his own time to perform an act. Again, notice verse 10. The day of the Lord will come, and during this day something will take place. In the which (the day of the Lord) the heavens shall pass away with a great noise and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up. All admit that this is the strongest proof-text favoring those who believe that this earth will be burned up. It does not prove an instantaneous burning, but it transpires during the Lord's day of a thousand years. The Diaglott renders "burned up" "discovered." See note. The Syriac translates it "will be found." In handling these texts we should remember the covenant that Jehovah made with Noah. Gen viii 21, 22. Neither will I again smite any more every thing living as I have done. While the earth remaineth, seed time and harvest, and cold and heat, summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease. Remember that we have proven that the earth abideth forever.

The question may be asked why did the apostle use such strong language? He evidently used it to emphasize the fact that ungodly men would be punished. Note please the language used by Isa xxxiv in speaking of the destruction of the land of Idumea. All the hosts of heaven shall be dissolved and the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll: and all their hosts shall fall down as the leaf falleth off from the vine and as a falling fig from a fig-tree. Isa xxxiv 4. And the streams thereof shall be turned into pitch and the dust thereof into brimstone, and the land thereof shall become burning pitch. It shall not be quenched night nor day. Verses 9 and 10. Read also the following. Ezek xxxii 7. Joel ii 10. Hag ii 6. In the above we find almost the identical language used by the apostle. In the above the destruction only affected the inhabitants and their possessions. The purpose was to destroy the wickedness of that land. The fires herein spoken of have centuries ago ceased. They served God's purpose and were extinguished. Your Brother seeking for the truth as found in God's Word.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 46.

Auntie Willard was familiar with the names of all the ministers I have mentioned, before she left for her eastern home, and counted them her friends, because they were the friends of her Lord. Therefore I make no scruple about introducing them into her story. They were fellow-workers together; for while she was busy at Hammonton, New Jersey, in the early sixties, showing the people from the Bible and from charts that the kingdom of God is very near, and telling sinners that if they wished to escape the wrath to come, must share in the everlasting glories of the Restitution age, they must believe "the promises made of God unto the fathers," must repent of and forsake their sins, and laying hold of Christ as their only hope, must be buried by baptism into his name, that they might be raised from the dead in the likeness of his resurrection,—these dear, earnest preachers, were as busy here, proclaiming the same precious truths, and cheering her heart by their abundant success.

As to the Hornadays, the father, John Hornaday was a short, heavy-set man, while his sons, were all tall, and with the exception of Isaiah, large.

Isaac and Alvan(?) McClelland, neighbors of the Hornadays in Henry Co., had moved at the same time, but instead of settling in Marion County, had gone to Clinton, and had made themselves homes in the neighborhood of what was called Burgett's Corner. In 1855, three years after the debate between Dr. Field and Connally and five years before Auntie Willard left Indiana, Nathan Hornaday concluded to go over and visit the McClelands who still held to their Campbellite faith. Of course Nathan could not keep still, as to his views, and Bible talks were given in private to whoever happened to come in; the result being, "that a number of persons embraced the faith, and that a class was formed embracing the McClellands." And this class, started in so humble a way, made Burgetts' Corner; a rallying point for our forces for many a day. Alison McClelland, began preaching shortly after the formation of the class, and Bro. W. L. Winslow, came down from Kokomo, Howard County, to hold meetings about the same time. Wm. and Isaiah Hornaday, were also faithful laborers in the same neighborhood, and altogether these and other preachers caused such "oppositions and divisions in the Methodist Church," that a discussion of the points of difference was called for, to take place at Michigantown on Little Wild Cat Creek,—1857, between Nathan Hornaday and an M. E., minister by the name of Bovee.

How this discussion turned out, I do not know, but there is little doubt but that victory was on our side, for Bro Nathan Hornaday, was a difficult opponent to handle. Though his living was obtained by wielding the sledge, he had managed to acquire so close and critical a knowledge of the Bible, that every point was carefully guarded.

Entrenched in the stronghold of truth, he held a position that could not be taken.—the enemy never spiked his guns. He was our David, and many a Goliath did he slay, and sorry indeed were we, when, in 1862, he sank under the power of death.

But he had a son, named William (I suppose for his uncle William), who took up the sword that had fallen from his father's hand and wielded it faithfully while he lived, though he died young. He too, like his father, was a hard-working man, following the threshing-machine day times, and preaching at night. We know that such a man loves the truth. Nothing else would induce him to go out to proclaim it when rushed, and dusty and weary. No prospect of golden dollars lured our pioneer preachers into the field. They went because of a burning desire to let the light shine into the hearts of others that they might be saved.

But neither this young Hornaday, nor his uncles—William and Isaiah, were debaters. And as to the two latter, I have no notes describing their farther labors. But among other preachers who have held up the banner of truth at Burnett's Corners, there have been Bro. Jeremiah S. Hatch, Bro. S. G. Clark, and Bro. J. F. Wagoner all of whom began their labors there, either during, or just after the close of the war. Bro. R. V. Lyons of Niagara Falls, preached there about 1872. Bro. J. M. Steven[illegible] of Harvard, Illinois, and Bro. D. T. Halstead, of Rensselaer, about the same time, or, a little later, the latter, putting me in mind of John,—the beloved disciple. Burgett's Corner is only a mile and a-half, or two miles, from the present.—Hillsburg, Clinton County Church. Bro. Samuel G. Clark, one of the Burgett's Corner preachers, was born in Bangor Maine. He was the son of a ship-merchant,—a stand, severe old New Englander who brought Samuel up to work.

They were Methodists, but Bro. Clark, having left home to carve out his own fortune, ran across "The Six Sermons," of George Storrs, and probably heard some preaching, for he soon after withdrew from the Methodist Church, was baptized into Christ, and began heralding the truth in Philadelphia and Brooklyn, baptizing some of his converts in the ocean. Coming west, he cheered the hearts of the brethren at Middlebury, in Elkhart County, Indiana, by his earnest discourses, and having found in those parts a woman, "Whose price was far above rubies" (a Miss Caroline Hubbell) they were married, lived at Middlebury for a time, then in 1854 moved to Pine Creek,—the home of Bro. James Watkins and Bro. Beck, and from there to Plum River, Illinois, where he remained a year, receiving $300 for his services, though obliged to count as a part of his salary every thing given to him, even down to a pint of sour-kraut!

From Plum River, he came to Liberty Mills, Wabash County, Indiana, about 1858, and it was while here that our more intimate acquaintanceship with him and his noble companion began, a warm friendship springing up between our families that was only broken by death. Mr. Wince and myself have made many a happy visit to his house. But Bro. Clark had preached at our School house, before Mr. Wince and I were married, and I presume Auntie Willard was personally acquainted with him. He often preached at Claysville, in Bro. Wm. T. Guffin's neighborhood, and also preached at Burgett's Corner while living at Liberty Mills.

In 1857, shortly after moving to Wabash County, Bro. Clark held a debate with Alexander Douglas, an M. E. minister from Bluffton, Indiana, the place of meeting a school house at the Maring cross-roads, nine miles south of Columbia City, Whitley County, Indiana, the propositions embracing the state of the dead, the destiny of the wicked and baptism for the remission of sins. Mr. Wince attended this debate, it being in the immediate vicinity of his father's home, and he says, "Bro. Clark had the best of it. Douglas getting so worried toward the last that he could not fill out his time."

About 1858, Bro. Clark held a discussion with a resident of Kosciusko County,—an Elder Whitman, of the Christian or Newlight church,—the proposition being "The kingdom of God,"—the place of meeting in the Union Church near Callamer, Whitley County, Indiana, about nine miles south of Pierceton.

He probably moved to Windfall, Tipton Co., about 1870-71, for he was still at Liberty Mills at the date of our marriage in 1867, and for several years afterward. He attended one of the Rensselaer Conferences after his removal.

He was a medium-sized man, dignified, emotional, positive, emphatic in his delivery, a born critic, and not at all conciliatory where the truth was concerned. He let it cut if it cut to the bones. Yet he was quite successful in gaining converts. While he was still living in Wabash County, he was one day driving along a country road, and overtaking a stranger, invited him to ride. The man turned out to be an Orthodox minister, and in the conversation that followed Bro. Clark was not at all backward in letting his views be known. "You will starve if you preach such an unpopular doctrine as that" was the minister's comment. "Starve then!" was Bro. Clark's emphatic reply, "I have burned the bridges behind me, and I am not going back," nor would he, if death had stared him in the face. Though poor in this world's goods, and obliged to eke his meager salary by doing anything that came in his way, from the mending of a clock to the making of a carriage; raising fowls, working at the carpenter's trade, or toiling on a farm, he never murmured, nor did his wife, but put up with what they got—he rarely laying off from his ministerial labors.

He died in Tipton County; his wife in Chicago. Of the two well-brought up, industrious sons but one is living—Walter Clark of Chicago.

Auntie Wince.

Dear Restitution:

I know it is late for me to try to get in on the New Year love feast, but I will tell you my excuse for being so late. The 19th of December I was suddenly taken down with what the doctor called long fever. Could not rest day or night for several weeks, not able to read the letters from the loved ones of like faith, that I love so much, but I had them all saved and commenced reading them soon as possible, which I know did me lots of good; for all the earnest workers in the Abrahamic faith appear near and dear to me. Though weak in body, I am strong in faith, and truly thankful to our heavenly Father that I can now walk a little. I hope my thankfulness is not from a selfish standpoint, but that I by my words and actions, cause some one to accept of Christ in the appointed way, or some that have started to be more faithful, then I would think it was not in vain that my life was spared a little longer. I am sorry to say that I know of some who act as though they thought because they could not preach they had nothing to do but believe; but that will not do, for we read in James ii. 17, faith if it hath not works is dead, so it is very necessary for us to have a live faith; for I believe that a dead faith is worse than no faith. Some one was commanded to preach the gospel; if that leaves you and I out because we cannot preach I am afraid that we will also be left out of the kingdom when Christ comes to reign. I believe that the command to preach the gospel is to me just as much as it is to the brother or sister that can preach. So the man of much means can preach three or four times as much with his money as the man of no means, and a family to support, no matter how talented he is in the proclamation of the gospel. So who is to blame that some of our good proclaimers of the gospel have to stay at home working with their hands while there is so much of what you and I believe to be God-dishonoring error, taught to the people?

I have just read an article in The Restitution of Jan. 5, from Brother J. T. Daniel of Arkansas, stating his anxiety and willingness to put in his full time preaching the gospel. I am not personally acquainted with him, but I dont believe that any brother or sister that has read his writings, and of his work in Arkansas, will question his being an able representative of the Church of God, but I am sorry to say that about a year ago he started out to preach but had to stop in a short time on account of means to support his family, although I believe that he accomplished enough good in that short time that I would not have asked my money back if it had taken him a full year, and I had done my share in supporting his family. It appears to me that some people act as if they thought that the greatest command I read thus: Thou shalt love thyself with all thy mind, might and strength, and thy family as thyself; but see Matt. xxii. 37-39 and Mark xii. 30-31, to find how the great commands read. Read also 1 Cor. xiii. to see how indispensable is love (not of self) to eternal salvation.

Now, dear ones, dont you think that love that dont prompt work in the Master's vineyard, is the wrong kind of love? the kind that is spoken of in 2 Tim. 3, 4, "Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." Read the 5th verse, that these are they that have a form of godliness. Is it possible that some of those who have been so highly favored with a knowledge of the true way of life are included in this class.

The time to work in the Master's vineyard is surely very short, and I hope that we will all do more in 1908 than we have in any previous year. I know that I will try, for I see so much need of work. The enemy works all the time whether we do or not. Reading of the great movements in Los Angeles, Chicago, and other places, where they teach or preach the gospel of (temporal) healing almost to the exclusion of the gospel of the kingdom and the other essentials to eternal (health) salvation, as we are commanded to preach, that is of so very much more importance than our (momentary as it were) temporal healing in this life. There is no doubt in my mind but that they do temporal good in this life, but where will the harm stop by their making fun of water baptism, calling it narrowness and such like. I dont know just what the devil is doing but I cant believe that he is dead, for his time has not come yet. I imagine he is well pleased when he hears people preaching what he preached in the garden of Eden, and getting people out of the narrow way that leads to life, and into the broad way leading to destruction, even though they do more temporal good than those who preach the gospel. The devil is gaining his point just the same.

Mark xiii. 22, is a verse that we should be sure to remember. False Christs and false prophets shall arise, and shall shew signs and wonders to seduce, if it were possible, even the elect. I am sorry to say that I have talked to some that I thought had quite a good understanding of the true gospel, that I think are just about gone from the true way of life by seeing and reading of the Los Angeles and Chicago movements, where they preach the gospel of healing. They say, if our people have the right faith, and are the true church why dont they heal the sick as those other parties do? About the best answer that I can give them, in a few words is, that our people dont make a specialty of temporal healing, but as commanded, they preach the gospel of the kingdom, and the Bible way to eternal life, which means perfect healing and health for eternity.

Now, brethren, dont you think that we should wake up to our duty as never before, but give through love, not as a duty, for if we do, we are most sure to give sparingly, and I read in 2 Cor. ix. 6, that he who soweth sparingly, shall reap also sparingly, and he who soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. The 7th verse says that God loveth a cheerful giver. Now, dear ones, I feel sure that we all want to reap bountifully, and we want God to love us, so let us act accordingly by giving our means bountifully and gladly, as we would to an only son that wrote home, saying, I am suffering for [illegible] thing to eat, please send me some [illegible] of a few dollars.

I close with lots of love for everybody, and the truth, hoping to meet all of the faithful in the soon coming kingdom.

The Divine Conundrum.

Jesus, the Son of Man, the Son of God, the Seed of the woman. Gen iii 14, 15; Matt i 3; Luke i 26. Especially Matt i 18-25 and Luke i 26-56.

As Bros. Ohmart and Huggins (RESTITUTION, Feb., 12, '08, first page), have had their say about the pre-existence of Christ, it seems pertinent to note some points, relative to the general subjects they have discussed; but most distinctly of the brethren of Christ.

1 For sixty-six years we as a distinct body of Christians have practised our liberty in Christ to study the Scriptures independent of any human ecclesiastical authority and to believe and obey them according to the plain letter of the text in the best translation we can get. Our experience has confirmed us in the correctness of the rule.

2 God has revealed himself to men only in part. His revelations of himself will doubtless continue in all the successions of the ages yet to be.

3 It therefore becomes us to be quite modest in speaking about what God can do and cannot do.

4 Doubtless there is no surplus wastage in God's Word. There are evidences of frailty in all human language, and of the inability of the finite to grasp and express the Infinite. Hence "we know only in part, and can prophesy—teach—only in part"; so we should not be dogmatical.

5 The Greeks more than any other people took great pains to make their language exact in expression and scope, using for this purpose many devices liable to be overlooked. Modern research has qualified scholars to improve the text of the A. V. Version. This ecclesiastical authority has thus far forbidden them to do, commanding them to follow imperfect versions instead of the original! Hence we still wait and pray for a faithful translation.

6 But we are not therefore left in helpless ignorance. The remedy is in reach of every person who can read, it is to diligently "Compare Scripture with Scripture."

7 Brothers Ohmart and Huggins fail to give due prominence to the natal history of Christ. They overshadow Matt i 18-25 and Luke i 26-56 by many other texts on topics some relevant and some irrelevant to the main question. What we need to know most of all is, How Jesus became "the only begotten Son of God; and how in him the Divine and human became blended into one person, the Lord Jesus Christ, the Savior of the world. Matthew and Luke, above cited, tell with the greatest care just how it happened. The angel Gabriel told how it could be and would be, and Matthew and Luke, the two best historians in the New Testament, tell how it did happen, and name the witnesses, holy men and women, who gave their testimony as they were inspired by the Holy Spirit.

8 Now note the personel in the debut of the most important person that ever appeared on this earth:

The Angel Gabriel, who seems to have had general charge of matters pertaining to the promised Messiah from Eve to Mary; especially in the visit of these persons (one of them probably Gabriel) to Abraham and Sarah, to announce the birth of Isaac, Gen viii 1-15; and to Daniel about the time of the first Advent, Dan viii 16; ix 21-27; and to Zacharish, announcing the birth of John, Luke i 9; i 2, 5; and to Mary and Joseph announcing the birth of Jesus. In all these cases the fact seemed impossible; but it was not safe to doubt Gabriel's word; for doubting it the good Zacharish was struck dumb till John was born. Luke i 18-25, 57-66.

(2) Matthew and Luke, the two best historians in the New Testament. Matthew was a business man, a Roman officer to collect the public revenues. Luke was a fine scholar, educated at Alexandria, "the beloved physician," one of Paul's chief helpers, his companion in his missionary journeys. After seeing what other historians had written about Jesus, including doubtless the three best Roman historians, Tacitus, Pliney and Suetonius, Luke, having traced all things accurately from the first, wrote his history of Christ, in which are at least seventeen particulars not given by any other historian. See his preface to his gospel.

9 No other event in human history is guarded with so great and so glorious a cloud of witnesses as the birth of Jesus Christ. No other questions should be allowed to obscure it.

The Prophesies.

Many ministers and professed Christians, seem to believe we have no need for the future prophsies since the New Testament has been given us as a full and complete guide. In taking this position they seem to not see the many great and important prophsies in the New as well as the Old Scriptures, that are future in fulfillment. In Deut xxviii and B. C 1451 years Israel was told, "The Lord shall bring a nation against thee from afar..... whose tongue thou shalt not understand.....and he shall besiege thee in all thy gates through thy land.....and thou thalt eat the fruit of their own body, the flesh of thy sons and daughters, which the Lord thy God hath given thee." The same language is given in Lev xxvi 29. In Ezek v 10, we have the same, thus "Therefore the fathers shall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers, and I will execute judgments in thee, and the whole remnant of thee will I scatter into all the winds." This prophecy was uttered B. C. 594, and we could bring forward several others setting forth the same idea. Students of prophesy agree so far as we know, that when a prophecy is fulfilled it becomes history, has this one been fulfilled? Whether it may have another fulfillment in the future we do not know, but we do know Josephus' history completely fills the mould. See his complete work, page 676 how the delicate wealthy Jewish Lady when the could not longer concern it, brought out her own child cooked, and partly eaten. This is only one item of God's sore chastisement upon Israel for their disobedience.

Let us now notice a few prophesies which in their fulfillment seem to be future. Ezek viii 23. "Thus saith the Lord of hosts In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations. Even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you." If there has been a time when the Gentile nations have thus honored and appreciated the Jews, history has not told us when or where. In Zech xiv 16, "And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem, shall even go up from year to year to worship the king, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles." It remains for those who dump the prophesies setting forth the glorious restitution of Acts iii 21: all into the past, to show us when and where the nations kept the annual feasts of tabernacles at Jerusalem. 17 verse. And when God shut off the rain from such as would not attend. In Matt xix 28, we have a promise to the twelve apostles setting upon twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel. In Isaiah i 26. "And I will restore thy judges as at the first." Has he done this in the past? No! Will he in the future? Yes we believe to the very letter. When? Let Jesus tell us, Luke xxi 24; "And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive unto all nations, and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Judging from the signs of the times, the fulfilment of this prophesy is near completion. Let us have on the wedding garment.

Indiana Brethren, Greeting:

Brother Naill's resignation has made me your President. I wish to express to you my willingness to help you in any way that I can.

Let me urge you to continue your study and the holding of regular meetings. Great good has already been accomplished, and we must not let this work retard. Let us understand and be about our Father's business, ever keeping in mind his promise to the Little Flock.

Address me at 515 E. Pennsylvania Ave. South Bend, Ind.

May God bless and prosper your meetings.

EVELYN K. HANSON.

The middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, If any one refuses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

W. L. SKEELS.

Evangelizing Notice.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to us? Believed, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Robt. G. Huggins, Box G, Oregon, Ill.

NOTICE.

If any of the brethren desire copies of the photograph of the Illinois Conference of 1907, they may receive them by sending to E. L. Curtis, Photographer, Oregon, Ill. The price is 55 cents each. If any who have paid for their pictures have not received them please notify me at once. Address at Oregon, Ill.

EMMA L. SMITH.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs. Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man Is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 866 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photos of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Marrietta, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" for a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages. Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 3502 Woodland Av. Cleveland, O.

Works on Bro. Wiley Jones.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him - please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be stamped to hold it, addresses it, puts on a one cent stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three inpocetent points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Forgiveness.

Now bury with the dead years conflicts dead,
And with fresh days let all begin anew.
Why longer mold shrivelled hate-drifts tread,
When buds are swelling, flowers about the peeping through?
Seen through the vista of the vanished years,
How trivial seem the struggles of the crowns,
How vain past feuds, when reconciling tears
Course down the channel worn by vanished frowns.

How few seem half the bitterness they speak!
Words more than feelings keep us still apart,
And in the heat of passion and of pique,
The tongue is far more cruel than the heart.
Since love alone makes it worth while to live
Let all be now forgiven and forgive.

Harmony of Scriptures.

The first argument brought forward by infidels to refute the claim of Inspiration of the Bible, is the supposed contradictions found in it. I say supposed contradictions, for I do not believe the Word of God contradicts itself. The infidel if honest really thinks he finds them there, but from the believer's standpoint they are only seeming contradictions. The infidel should prove that they are real; and this would require investigation instead of mere surface reading. It is quite likely that on pursuing this course carefully with a view to results a different verdict would be rendered. In brief he would become a believer. While the Old Book all along the centuries has been assailed by infidels and destructive critics, it has had numerous defenders and apologists, men whose honesty and scholarship, have been if any difference, more than a balance of theirs on the other side. The big guns have been either spiked, or aimed in deadly effect on the foe. The friends of the Book would like to see it ably defended that the opposition would retire from the field disheartened never more to renew the attack. But both infidels and destructive critics forget that the arguments alleged against the Bible in a preceding generation were met and refuted; so go on repeating and urging the same.

So long as the friends of the Bible disagree in their exposition of its teachings the opposition will continue to think that it is not invulnerable, that there are some joints in its armor through which an arrow from their arsenal may be shot with fatal effect.

Some Bible students think and say that God's Word needs no exposition. I have never come to this conclusion. Men and women still ask for an explanation of different parts of the inspired record. And it is quite likely that an advanced student who had said the Bible needs no expositor will set about expounding to meet the request. Exposition is all right, but spiritualizing is all wrong.

Now I am going to expound or at least try to expound a portion of Scripture on which there exists honest differences of opinion. The portion selected is the history of the crucifixion, burial and resurrection of our Lord. The critical points are, The day of crucifixion, length of time in the tomb, and the day of resurrection. It is necessary to state the three views and examine them in the same order.

1. Crucified on Wednesday, in the tomb just 72 hours, and raised on the Sabbath a short time before the sunset ending.

2. Crucified on Friday, in the tomb about 36 hours, and raised early on the first day of the week.

3. Crucified on Thursday, less than three whole days and three whole nights, in the tomb, and raised early the first day of the week.

1. To support this view Matt xii 39, 40 is quoted to settle the question of length of time in the tomb. The Pharisees demanded a sign. Jesus in reply said, "An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given to it but the sign of the prophet Jonas: for as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." To have sufficient time for 72 hours to elapse between his burial and resurrection a Wednesday's crucifixion is settled on, and this necessitates a Sabbath day resurrection. To prove the latter, Matt xxvii 1 is cited, which reads, In the end of the Sabbath as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary to see the sepulcher." This is as the text stands translated in the Authorized Version. The way it reads the women visited the tomb in the end of the Sabbath and not after it ended. If this is so then the resurrection occurred on the Sabbath some earlier than the visit. But if the first visit by the woman was made in the end of the Sabbath there are strange things to be accounted for. It is recorded by Mark, Luke and John that there was a first day morning visit, quite early, about sun rise. They come with spices previously prepared to anoint the crucified Savior. On the way they say among themselves "Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulcher." They are ignorant of the fact of his resurrection. All, both women and men had to learn this on that notable first day, some in the morning and some later. Can the shrewdest lawyer that ever "made the worse reason appear the better" reconcile these facts with a Sabbath resurrection? There are other things that do not accord with this view. These women who were very strict in their observance of the day would not have started from home and came to the tomb while the sacred day was still running, especially to do the work that remained unfinished in consequence of the day coming on; for it is written, "And they returned (from the tomb) and prepared spices and ointments and rested the Sabbath day according to the commandment." Luke xxiii 56. A Sabbath day resurrection would have occurred while it was still daylight in the latitude of Jerusalem and at that season of the year, the vernal equinox. In the closing hours of the Sabbath the people were awake though not engaged in secular work, and the event could not have transpired without the inhabitants of the city and the thousands of transient visitors on that occasion, knowing about it, and reporting it. Another circumstance in this connection going to show that there was no Sabbath emergence from the tomb, is that when a part of the guard on the first day morning came into the city and reported what had transpired, to the priests and elders these functionaries assembled and in council decided to bribe the soldiers to say, "His disciples came by night and stole him away while we slept." The Jewish leaders would not have been stupid as to bribe the guard to say what they did, if the resurrection had occurred in the day time, when every body was awake. But the most fatal objection to a Sabbath day resurrection, is the statement by Mark, which reads, "Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week." Mark xvi 9. I know that some critics have pronounced this verse with all that follows to the end of the chapter as unauthorized, and put there by some later hand. More are the scholars who have defended its inspired authenticity than are those who have impugned it. The only objection to its inspiration that I have ever come across is its abrupt introduction. This is not sufficient to set it aside. In regard to manuscripts Bloomfield has this to say, "Schulz, after all his researches (extended to manuscripts nearly half as numerous again as Griesbach's) has never been able to find this portion omitted in more than one MS—(and that one in which great liberties were taken) and a single version." In the light of Mark's statement and of all the facts pointing in the direction it is impossible to defend this first view. The resurrection occurring on the first day of the week, it requires more than 72 hours to reach back to Wednesday's burial same where between 3 and 6 o'clock p. m. Those who advocate this first view demand chronological exactness. With them it must not be over nor under 72 hours. So a first-day resurrection sets aside a Wednesday's crucifixion and burial, and a 72 hours entombment.

2d View, Crucified on Friday. This is the popular view; being held by nearly all Protestants. Those advocating this opinion believe Jesus was crucified on the 15th of Nisan, the day the lamb was eaten (the paschal feast proper) as enjoined on Israel, and which they observed the night when Egypt's first-born were smitten. Friday was the 15th the year 29 of our era, the year of crucifixion. I have before me a long list of names of eminent Biblical scholars, including such men as Luther, Neander, Tichendorf, Elliott and Alford who held that the crucifixion took place on the 14th of Nisan instead of the 15th, and so did all the early Christian Churches of Asia; and celebrated Easter on the third day thereafter (fourteen plus three equals seventeen) without regard to the day of week on which it fell. It is plainly more fitting that the Lamb of God, the antitype of the passover lamb should expire at the time of day when the priests began slaying the typical lambs, 3 o'clock in p. m. of the 14th of Nisan. Now if Jesus was crucified on Friday, expiring at the 9th hour or three in the afternoon and was entombed a short time before the sunset ending of that day, the time between the burial and resurrection, hardly exceed 36 hours, is too short to be called, perforce of usage, three days and three nights. It might be called according to usage two days and two nights. There are a number of texts which state that he would rise the third day, implying on the third day. An example, Matt xvii 22, 23. "The Son of Man shall be betrayed into the hands of men; and they shall kill him and the third day he shall be raised again." The priests and Pharisees asked Pilate to command that the sepulcher be made sure until the third day, which implies, as these leaders understood his prophecy on the third day he would rise. A Friday's crucifixion will not harmonize with the language of the two disciples who were going to Emmaus late in the afternoon of the first day who said, "Today is the third day since these things were done," speaking of his betrayal and death. If the things to which they referred occurred on Friday they would have said, "Today is the second day since these things were done." The days were count from the day and not with the day on which the things were done. If the crucifixion occurred on Wednesday these disciples would have said "Today is the fourth day since these things were done." This leaves Thursday as the day on which "the things were done" and from which the count was made, thus Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

3rd View—Crucified on Thursday, in the tomb less than 72 hours, and raised on the first day of the week. This last fact is affirmed by Mark as already quoted; fulfilling the type of the wave-sheaf, first fruit of the harvest, which under the law was waved before the Lord on the morrow after the weekly Sabbath, Lev xxiii 10, 11, at the passover feast of series of feasts. So in harmony with the type Jesus is called "the first-fruit (Diaglott) of them that slept," 1 Cor xv 20, being raised on the morrow after the Sabbath, or on the first day of the week. "Today is the third day since these things were done" harmonizes with the fact of a Thursday's crucifixion: thus, Sunday, Sabbath, Friday back to Thursday the day on which the things rehearsed by the two disciples, occurred, and the day from which the count was made. But what about the three days and three nights, or 72 hours sojourn in the tomb? In answer I will say that neither of the three views named finds space between our Lord's burial and resurrection to fill 72 hours. Those holding a Thursday's crucifixion do not claim that three days and three nights in this case means seventy-two hours. No one knows that Jonas was in the whale's belly exactly that length of time. Terms denoting time are not always used with chronological exactness in the Scriptures; nor do we moderns always use ourselves down to mathematical precision. No one has been able, up to the present, to show the time of entombment to be seventy-two hours, without arbitrarily fixing on a Sabbath day resurrection.

The first visit of the women to the sepulcher was on the morning of the first day of the week, as stated by Mark, Luke and John. Mark and Luke both say "very early" and the former adds "at the rising of the sun," and John "While it was yet dark." The Diaglott rendering of Matt xxviii 1, is Now after the Sabbath as it was dawning to the first day of the week, Mary of Magdala and the other Mary went to see the tomb. When did they go? After the Sabbath. At what time after? Early the first day morning, or about twelve hours after. Accordingly, "dawn toward the first day of the week" in Matt xxviii 1, means approach of the morning light, and not the approach of the evening beginning of that first day. Green in his Greek Lexicon gives but two definitions to 'opse,' late and after. Wilson in the Diaglott renders it 'after,' which harmonizes the passage in Matthew with the parallel passages in Mark, Luke and John.

In the year 29 A. D—sixteenth year of Tiberius Cesar's reign and the year of the crucifixion the month Nisan began with Friday the 4th of March, which would bring the 14th (slaying lamb day) on Thursday March seventeen, on which day Jesus was crucified—expiring at the 9th hour or 3 o'clock p. m. therefore three hours before the beginning of the paschal feast proper. I am indebted to Prof. Totten for the astronomical fact stated above. The phases of the moon governed the beginning of the passover week. It was so instituted down in Egypt and continued so up to the one at which Jesus was crucified.

QUESTIONS.

1 Who bore the cross for Christ?

2 Where did the crucifixion take place?

3 What was the superscription on the cross, and in what language was it written?

4 Who were crucified with Christ, and how were they arranged?

5 What was done with his garments, and what prophecy was fulfilled?

6 What was given him to drink? How? Did he take it?

7 Who mocked Christ, and what did they say to him?

8 What part did the thieves take in mocking him, and what promise was made to one of them?

9 What prayer did Jesus make while on the cross?

10 Were his bones broken? Where is the prophecy concerning this?

11 Who took the body from the cross, and where was it buried?

12 What precaution was taken to guard it safely?

In Exodus xii, we read of the Passover Lamb, or Paschal Lamb—show how Christ becomes our Paschal Lamb.

In Heb. ix. 22, we are told "Without shedding of blood is no remission." Show why it was necessary that the blood of Christ should be shed, and the office that it fills.

The Erring Brother.

James v 19, 20 reads, "Brethren if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him, let him know that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death and shall hide a multitude of sins. Matt xviii 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, reads, For the Son of Man is come to save that which was lost, How think ye? if a man have a hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine and goeth into the mountain and seeketh that which is gone astray? And if so be that he find it verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth more of that sheep, than of the ninety and nine that went not astray. Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in heaven that one of these little ones should perish. Moreover if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault, between thee and him alone. If he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. But if he shall not hear thee then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of one or two witnesses, every word may be established.

The repentant brother is freely forgiven. "Take heed to yourselves, if thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him, and if he repent forgive him, and if he trespass against thee seven times in a day and turn again to thee saying I repent, thou shalt forgive him. Matt xviii 21, 22 reads, Then came Peter to him and said, Lord how oft shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him? Till seven times? Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, until seven times, but until seventy times seven.

But when he will hear them what does the church do then? Matt xviii 17, reads, And if he shall neglect to hear them tell it unto the church, but if he neglect to hear the church let him be unto thee as a heathen man and a publican. What must the church do next with him? 2 Thess iii 6 reads, "Now we command you brethren in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly and not after the tradition which he received of us. It is hard to break friendships that have been made years ago but when "this saith the Lord" we say, they will be done.

When Lot's friends and neighbors were being destroyed, for their evil ways, Lot's wife took one farewell, friendly glance, with the fearful result as recorded. Beware of keeping up forbidden friendships.

Christ's Miracles.

History records that Jesus Christ when on earth performed miracles—that is he produced or caused a suspension of the operation of the laws of nature. The ordinary operation of those laws could not produce those effects and so we here have proof that Christ was possessed of power more than human.

The Bible tells us of thirty-three of these miracles and there were probably many others, those being recorded because they are more striking or more clearly illustrate some point.

Christ's first miracle was the Turning of Water into Wine. Its purpose is clearly stated by John, "This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested forth his glory, and his disciples believed on him."

The second miracle was the Healing of the Nobleman's Son at Capernaum—this seemed to be because he wished to gratify the father's wish and to show him the divine power so that he and his family would believe.

The third miracle was the one whereby he obtained three of his disciples, Peter, James and John.

The fact that Jesus had power to command or exercise unclean spirits, such as demoniacs or the insane were then thought to possess, amazed many, and many believed on him because of it. And so through each of the miracles of Christ, he was accomplishing his three-fold purpose—fulfilling the Old Testament Scriptures, showing his power and that he was God's Son, and doing these miracles also because he could not look on the sickness and disease and death about him without sorrow.

The record of Jesus's miracles accords in wonder and power those of our so-called great magicians and mesmerists whose rank of followers is so numerous, as the mild rain is exceeded in power by the prairie cyclone. Hundreds will go night after night to watch Kellar's magic or Flint's strange power, and most earnestly contend that they possess a power most wonderful, but besides the wonders which Jesus performed and of which we have such a vivid record, these pale into insignificance. They are but the expression of subtle physical cunning or trickery or of man's influence over another man.

Christ's power expressed in his miracles is a divine power, a God-power, as such we should accept them without question, putting our entire faith in one who is endowed with such power. Do we, unreservedly put our faith in him or has the modern trend of modern life so influenced us that Christ in his present divinity means only a form or a gentle influence to us. It should mean much more—it should mean a live, stirring, working, growing influence in our lives which would lead ourselves and many others, to the eternal life in his kingdom.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the harmonization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked, eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, the requisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MAR. 18, 1908.

A LETTER from Brother George Neill indicates that they are satisfied in their Virginia home.

BROTHER S. J. Lindsay informs us that he was to start a two week's meeting at South Bend, Ind. on last Sunday, and we trust the weather will be favorable, and that good will come of it.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

BROTHER J. L. Wince was with the Plymouth Church last Sunday, and gave two most excellent discourses. Owing to a misunderstanding some supposed the high water would prevent services being held, and the attendance was small, but all who did come were well repaid.

A REPORT from Brother Lindsay, State Evangelist of Illinois, shows that for the first half of their conference year he has traveled 2000 miles, visited 17 places, preached 131 sermons, and baptized 23. The Treasurer, Brother Gotleib, makes report showing collected $1161, paid out $1110, balance $51, with $650 unpaid subscriptions for next half year.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY MAR. 22.
REVIEW.

Golden Text. "In him was life, and the life was the light of men." John i. 4.

"Eternal life is the gift of God through Jesus Christ." Rom. vi. 23.

How may we obtain this gift?

By the resurrection "I will raise him up at the last day." John vi. 40.

"The light of men"—the light of the "glorious gospel of Christ." 2 Cor. iv. 4.

Lesson 1. The Word made flesh. John i. 1-18. The word of judgment on the serpent. "It shall bruise thy head." Gen. iii. 15. The word of promise to Abraham. "In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Gen. xxii. 18

The Word made flesh—"Unto you is born this day in the City of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord." Luke ii. 11.

Lesson 2. Jesus and John the Baptist. John i. 19-34. The story in Matt. iii. 13 17, fits the title of this lesson better—if anything—than in John.

John the Baptist immersed Jesus in the Jordan. He saw the Spirit descending on Jesus. He proclaimed him as the Lamb of God. "Ye were redeemed with the precious blood of Christ, as of a Lamb without blemish and without spot." 1 Peter i. 18, 19.

Who are the YE? 2 Peter i. 1.

Lesson 3. Jesus and his first disciples. John i. 35-51. Simon, Andrew, James and John. Mark i. 16 19. Four of the twelve chosen. Luke vi. 13 20.

Why did they stay with him when many others left? John vi. 66 69.

Lesson 4. Jesus cleanseth the Temple. John ii. 13-22.

How did he cleanse it? Verses 14-16.

What did he say the Temple was? Verse 16.

What is the Temple now? 1 Cor. vi. 19.

Your body—Who is the YOUR?

Lesson 5. Jesus the Savior of the world. John iii. 1-21.

When? After he and his saints have judged the ungodly. Jude 14, 15.

When the inhabitants learn righteousness. Isa. xxvi. 9.

Then what? Psa. lxxii. 17.

Lesson 6. Jesus and the woman of Samaria. John iv. 1-42.

She claimed to be a daughter—descendant of Jacob. And most likely knew something about God's promise to him. Gen. xxviii. 13-16.

How did she know him to be the Messiah, the Christ? Verse 29.

Lesson 7. Jesus heals the nobleman's Son. John iv. 43-54.

This lesson shows us the power of faith in the Nobleman, and the power of God in Jesus.

How did the Nobleman prove his faith? Verse 48.

How did Jesus satisfy him? Verse 50.

Lesson 8. Jesus at the pool of Bethesda. John v. 1-18.

This was a demonstration of the power of God in Jesus, without faith in the man. What is worse than 38 years of helplessness? James i. 15.

Lesson 9. Jesus feeds the five thousand. John vi. 1-21.

This great miracle proved to the men that Jesus was that Prophet. Verse 14.

What prophet? Deut xviii. 18, 19.

Lesson 10. Jesus the Bread of Life. John vi. 22-51. "He that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." Verse 35

Did he mean in this life, or when? Luke xxii. 30; Rev. vii. 16, 17.

Lesson 11. Jesus heals a man born blind. John ix.

This was what men call "a hopeless case." When he came, seeing, it was the talk of the whole neighborhood. It was not only possible, but easy for Jesus to heal this man, and the man not only saw what all men—with eyesight see—but he afterwards—by faith—saw the kingdom of God, and the King—Jesus.

What is it that God cannot do? Heb. vi. 18.

Lesson 12. Review.

In these twelve lessons what is Jesus called? The Word, The Lamb of God, Jesus of Nazareth, God's only begotten Son, The Bread of Life, The Light of the World.

What—in the lesson, is the first words Jesus said? "Come and see."

What was the greatest promise Jesus ever made? "I will raise him up at the last day."

What did he do that no other man did? He cleansed the Temple, and told the Samaritan woman all things she ever did.

How many miracles did he do? He healed the Nobleman's son, The impotent man, Fed five thousand, Healed a man born blind.

What men of importance are mentioned? John the Baptist, Andrew, Simon, Philip, Nathaneal.

Why were they important? Because they believed that Jesus was the Son of God, the King of Israel.

The Review can be made very interesting by the teachers giving out written questions the Sunday before.

Next Lesson, Temperance Lesson. Prov. xxiii. 29-35.

The Human Element Theory, and Where It Leads to. No. 2.

By such a rule the New Testament would be in danger also. If it is to be a rule for the Old Testament that inspiration only co-operates in matters "beyond the power of man to discover for himself," it will be difficult to keep it away from the New. Why should inspiration guide the writers of the New Testament in the record of matters "otherwise ascertainable," and not guide the prophets who wrote the narratives of the Old Testament? No good reason could be shown. And where should we be? The history of Christ, surely, was "within the power of the apostles" to discover for themselves. The history of the apostles, surely that was also within their natural power to know. Consequently, by the new rule, inspiration took no part in their narratives. Therefore, these narratives are part of the "human element," and, as such, they are an erring element; and consequently, we can never be quite sure, when reading them, that we are not reading the result of mis-apprehension, mis-information, or impressions springing from the prejudices and predilections of the "unlearned and ignorant" Galilean fisherman, who were Christ's companions during his life and witnesses after his death. With what confidence, in that case, can we read their reports of Christ's precepts or, their record of his actions? The whole foundation of faith is unloosed if inspiration did not participate—guiding them into all truth. If it did participate, then the rule is upset by which the spirit is excluded as the Recorder of "things within the power of man to discover for himself," and if upset for the apostles, it is upset for the prophets, and the whole Bible rescued.

It is consistent that the holders of such a theory should scruple to speak of the Bible as the Word of God without qualification. It is so to be spoken of, however, on the authority of Christ and the apostles. And this way of speaking of it means that historical infallibility is its attribute in all matters with which it historically deals. The reconciliation of apparent discords is not an encroachment on "candor and integrity". Where the eye and heart are fully open to the demonstrated divinity of the records, the reconciliation is an imperative mathematical necessity, whether we may in particular instances be able to accomplish it or not. Inability in any case is not a disproof of its possibility; the cases are few where there is any real difficulty; and even these are open to plausible suggestion. They no more militate against the manifest and demonstrated inspiration of the record than the discrepancies and difficulties of any science militate against that science. The earth is proved globular, but our feelings and impressions as we walk abroad are all in favor of its being flat; to unadulterated faculty, the explanation of the facts that make these impressions appear to savor of "straining and ingenuity" and to make considerable draughts on "candor and integrity." We know it is not the subject, but the person superficially conversant with the subject, that in this case, is responsible for the idea.

The new theory, the theory of a "human element" in the Bible, may be expressed in a world Unitarian formula with which we have been unconsciously familiar from childhood: that "the Bible is not the Word of God, but CONTAINS the Word of God." We know what this theory has done for them. It has destroyed God's Word, and has left them theorizing about morals and social improvements, but faithless and disobedient to the gospel commands. We cannot stand by unmoved while principles are being promulgated which, if successful, would lead us back to the old quagmire of Atheism, and destroy the foundation of hope and purity, whether intended or not.

Dear Restitution:

We wish to report Bro. D. M. Hudler's work in Tennessee. The dear old brother came to our place in Roane Co., Tenn., last October and preached over two Sundays in the White Creek Baptist church near Glendale, a few became interested. Afterwards he was called to West Boro, Mo., and returned again to Tennessee in January and held meetings at Kingston, Harriman, Emory, Gapp and Glendale, Roane Co., Tennessee, with considerable interest manifested, but none have obeyed yet but the good seed was sown and we trust some fell on good ground that will bring fruit to perfection. Brother Huddler is an earnest and zealous preacher of THE RESTITUTION of age to come. We enjoyed his preaching and presence very much and our prayer is that God will bless him even now, for he has surely forsaken all to do his Lord's will.

Bro Huddler left here for his home in Muscatine, Iowa, on March 3, 1908, where he expects to remain part of the coming summer.

Your Brother and Sister in Christ.
J. W. & M. E. GIBB.

Dear Restitution:

On account of very extreme weather Sunday, March 1, the Church in Salem, Ohio, had no morning service, therefore no exhortations at the Breaking of Bread. There was scarcely an inch of ground not covered with ice, nor a twig, also copious rain, and strong wind. No such weather on Sunday for years. By 4 P. M. no rain, ice all gone, and a warm southerly breeze blowing. Had a nice meeting in the evening that all seemed to enjoy. Subject "The Groaning Creation" showing the difference between the present conditions in the kingdoms of men, and the future conditions under the kingdom of God. "Thy Kingdom Come."

P. NEILL.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

As my subscription has expired please find enclosed money for another year, as I cannot do without the dear old paper. In reading the many letters of those who are isolated, how thankful I feel that I live where we have a church of our own with about twenty-five members, a Sunday School and Bereans, also of having the pleasure of hearing several of our faithful ones, such as Brothers Hatch, Hook, Conner, Crow, Brant and Lindsay. Brother Lindsay held meetings here last fall with good results. Let us now in this year try that we may find ourselves when it is ended with our lives more like Christ.

Your Brother in Christ.
GEO. CLAYPOOL.

Brother Underwood,

I thought I would like to write a few lines for the dear old paper. "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away.

Yours in the blessed hope,
IDA WORLEY.

Editor Restitution:

Please find money for renewal of the dear, old RESTITUTION, for another year. I take great interest in reading the instructive letters that the brothers and sisters are writing from time to time. I am getting old and have no preaching here but God's blessed Word and THE RESTITUTION. I am in my 78th year, still holding on to the faith promised in the gospel of Christ, trying to live till the Lord comes to give me eternal life in his Kingdom.

H. MCHENRY.

Dear Restitution:

As my subscription is about expired, please find enclosed postal order for $1.50 for THE RESTITUTION another year as we have been taking the paper about 30 years, we could no think of doing without it, it gives us so much pleasure to read of the many letters of the faithful ones in THE RESTITUTION.

Your Sister and Brother in Christ.
MR. & MRS. E. P. VENARD.

ITEMS.

Emerson begrudged the dollar he gave to foreign missions, yet he dared not withhold it. Darwin was sceptical as to the use of preaching to persons until he visited Patagonia, and saw for himself. Thereafter he gave generously every year. He had witnessed for himself the evolution of Christianity among a degraded people. It is better to obey Christ than to rebel. It is better still to follow in the path of duty until the beauty and blessing appear. God tries the faith of his people in his promises. He permits discouragements and apparent failures at home and abroad. Then he sits over against the treasury to see how strong is the confidence and consecration of his people. Some of them are weighed in the balances and found wanting. They never lay up treasure in heaven, and therefore they shall have no crown to wear.

The temper in which a man holds his views is nearly as important as the soundness of his views. There is a vast deal of truth held and preached, in the pulpit and out of it, in such a belligerent and bitter temper, that, for all the good it does, it might as well be error. Truth is not only to enter a man's brain, but his heart, and provide the atmosphere as well as the instruments for moral service. Paul did not think that sound views, held in an unlovely temper, could do no good, for he rejoiced that Christ was preached even "of envy and strife," but his ideal was "speaking the truth in love."

Christ said, "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold." There are many churches, many folds, but we all follow the one Divine Shepherd. Once the sectarian walls were built so high that the different churches could not see over them. Then time passed on and they were lowered a little, so that the members of the different churches could throw brickbats at one another. But, thank God, tonight those walls are lowered so that we can reach over them and grasp each other's hands as Christian brothers."

A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five pound note. He or she is a radiating focus of good will, and their entrance into a room is as though another candle had been lighted. We need not care whether they can prove the forty-seventh proposition; they do a better thing than that, they practically demonstrate the great theorem of the livableness of life.

Will you, experienced saints, who have passed through a world of tribulation, lie down and die in despair, or give up your profession, because you are at the present moment passing through some light affliction? Let your past preservation inspire you with courage, and constrain you to brave all for Jesus' sake.

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

If we contend with sin, be assured that we shall be victorious sooner or later; there is not a single sin but the dwelling power thereof may be subdued. 1 John i 7.

To enjoy communion with God, you must be found in the way of duty. If you play the truant, no wonder you are afraid of being whipped.—Toplady.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

Obituary.

Died at his home at Dallas, Ore., Jan. 24, 1908, T. M. Bailey, aged 84 years, 9 months and 28 days. He was born in Randolph Co., Ind., April 1, 1828, of Quaker parentage. Married Lucetta Plummer, daughter of Philemon and Elizabeth Plummer,—in Tipton Co., Ind., April 23, 1848. Twelve children were born to them, six of whom survive him.

He united with the Church of God in 1865—baptized by R. J. Hill at Alden, Iowa—and remained unswerving in his fidility to faith through all the years and varied experiences of life, isolated from those of like faith, for many years THE RESTITUTION has been his only preacher, and how eagerly he sought its pages for news from the Holy Land and the Jewish people, watching for the "signs of the times" that would indicate the coming of the King of kings to reign on the earth.

Always honest and upright in his dealings with the fellow men, social and unassuming in disposition, he won respect and esteem in the varied localities wherein he resided. His hospitable doors were ever open to friend and stranger alike, whether black or white, worthy or unworthy, and the needy never applied to him for help in vain.

The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Newman, of the Advent church from the text found in Job xiv 14, "If a man die, shall he live again? All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change come." Awaiting that glorious time and trusting in the promises of God and his eternal goodness his faithful wife and remaining children find consolation.

"Then the earth seems pure and sweet,
All care the far reversal,—
Hark! Be every murmur dumb:
It is only—"Till he come,"
Till he come!" the key words,
Uttered on the ringing chords."

Brother Whitcomb was baptized by Brother William Huller on Dec. 27th, 1887. Words of comfort were spoken by Brother J. F. Wagoner on "The blessed hope of believers."

Yours in the blessed hope
RACHEL M. WHITCOMB.

Died at Tampa, Florida, D. U. Brown of Sac City, Iowa, on February 29, 1908.

Brother Brown came to Tampa in hope of improving Sister Brown's health, some time during the winter, but I did not know they were here until I saw a notice of his funeral in a daily paper.

Burial services were held in Woodlawn Cemetery at the grave, by the Advent Christian pastor, assisted by the writer; text Job xiv 14. It was sad to think of his death so far from home, among strangers. Sister Brown was not able to attend the burial services.

A. J. EVERAKER.

Sister Ida Perry was born February 21, 1871; was married to Caleb G. Deming, Feb. 28, 1888. She was assisted in putting on the all-saving name of Jesus by baptism by Elder John Foore. She died on Monday March 9, 1908, at the home of her parents, Brother and Sister S. E. Perry, near Alhambra, Arizona.

Sister Deming leaves a husband, father, mother, brothers and a baby born March 1, and she seemed to get along well until Monday, March 9th, when she was attacked with La Grippe and other internal troubles, and fever and derangement set in so rapidly, that by two o'clock P. M. she expired. She was interred in Greenwood cemetery, near Phoenix, Arizona, to awaken to incorruptible life, in the morning of the resurrection. The writer spoke words of comfort from 1 Cor. xv., to a very large concourse of relatives and friends, who came to sympathize with the bereaved.

Correspondence Bible Lesson. Number 6.

Eph. i. 13, 14 "In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation, in whom also after that ye believed ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory."

1. When was the possession purchased?

2. Of what does it consist?

3. What price was paid and who paid it?

4 If not redeemed, what will it be?

5 What shall we say of Christians (testimony like this: "Glory to God! I'm saved! I've been redeemed"?

6 What shall we do with this text: "He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." 1 John v. 12

7. The word "earnest" means "security" of "assurance". What assurance have we of this redemption?

8 How are we sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise?

Those considering themselves in the primary division may answer the first four—others may answer all. Number answers to correspond with questions. Give texts in answer as much as possible.

S. J. LINDSAY.

The Illinois Bible School will convene this year at Oregon, August 10, 11, and the Annual Conference from August 12-23. When answering questions of lesson 6, please say if you will try to attend. Please send the names of any others who may be persuaded to come. Let us try to make this year's School the best we have yet had.

Dear Restitution:

I began meetings with brother Oliver at Crescent Church, nine miles southwest of Arkansas City, near the state line of Kansas and Oklahoma. Brother Wilson closed a series at this house March 1, and our meetings began Saturday night, March 7.

It is undetermined at this time as whether the duty of work shall call me further east, or back through Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona, California and Oregon to Portland, to my work in Oregon and Washington. Health improved.

W. L. SKEELS.

Notice.

To the brethren and sisters of the states of Virginia and Maryland, and isolated ones in the east and south:

The brethren of Shenandoah Co. Va. have been sufficiently interested in the truth to engage me as Evangelist for the present year. It is our desire that every legitimate means be used to further the promulgation of the gospel and strengthen the faith of the brethren. Already twenty-one meetings have been held, and one baptism has resulted, and we desire the good work to go on. Will all in the above named territory send in their names and addresses that we may get acquainted with you, send you reading matter, and otherwise help you.

Address me at Woodstock, Va.

"According to Scripture, there is a mighty shaking coming on the earth; to the awful end things are bound to grow worse instead of better. God says that the things that are made will be shaken to pieces and removed that the things only that cannot be shaken may remain."

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors require. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

For My Sake.

Three little words, but full of tenderest meaning;
Three little words the heart can scarcely hold;
Three little words, but on their import dwelling,
What wealth of love those syllables unfold!

"For My sake" cheer the suffering, help the needy,
On earth this was my work, I give it thee;
If thou wouldst follow in thy Master's footsteps,
Take up My cross, and come and learn of Me.

"For My sake" let the little ones be tended,
All that I gave thee unto safely keep;
I took them in my arms, received, and blessed them,
Do now the same for Me, "Feed now My sheep."

"For My sake" let the harsh word die unuttered,
That troubles on the restless tongue;
"For My sake" check the quick, rebellious feeling
That rises when thy brother does the wrong.

"For My sake" ever press with patience onward,
Although the race be hard, the battle long;
Within My Father's house are many mansions,
There thou shalt rest and join the victor's song.

And 'S in running digs the world reside there,
If "for My sake" thou suffer pain and loss,
Bear on, faint heart, thy Master went before thee,
They only wear his crown who share his cross.

O Thou, dear Lord, who walked on earth incarnate,
Pain would we follow, but we fear to fall;
Lo! at Thy feet we bend, Thy aid imploring,
Our only plea that "For Thy sake" we call.

The Blood Covenants.

The above subject is of much interest and we think should be studied by those who truly believe that Christ is our sacrifice. Many believe that we have nothing to do with the history of blood covenants as we have them written in the Bible. To the writer there are many valuable lessons to be learned from them. Why did God institute this mode of worship? What relation did his creatures sustain to this ordinance? Paul in writing to the Hebrew brethren states that neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained ETERNAL REDEMPTION. Heb ix 12. For even Christ our passover is slain for us. I Cor v 7. The question has often presented itself to us why was it necessary for Christ's blood to be shed and for him to become our sacrifice. An allusion is herein made to the sacrifice of animals instituted early in the history of the race. We can only find out God's purpose in regard to this matter by referring to the Bible account of sacrifices. Pardon us if we begin with the first of the race, Adam. God's purpose in creating the first parents was that they should multiply and fill the earth with their offspring, and ultimately to rule or have DOMINION over the inhabitants of the earth. Gen i 28. In Adam's trial he lost the promise of eternal life and the right to rule. God having placed him in the garden and under the law, viz: "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." The penalty of this law was death. Thou shalt surely die. Now Adam did not die in this day but lived 930 years and begat sons and daughters. We reason then that the penalty of this law was not executed. The penalty of this law required a violent death. If a criminal who has been sentenced to be electrocuted has his sentence changed to a life imprisonment he does not suffer the penalty of the law but has another sentence instead imposed. After disobedience sentence was passed upon the parties concerned. To Adam the Lord God said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife and hast eaten of the tree of which I commanded thee saying, Thou shalt not eat of it; cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life. Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return. Gen iii 17-19. Is not this a very different sentence than the penalty of the law. Thou shalt surely die. The one required an immediate death in the day. The other permitted a lingering death. My object in calling attention to these two sentences is to show God's purpose in instituting blood covenants. In this same chapter we read, Unto Adam also and to his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins and clothed them. Verse 21. This statement teaches us that animals were slain for a covering. The death penalty was here commuted to a lingering death in order that Adam and Eve might fill God's purpose in replenishing the earth, otherwise the earth would have been left without inhabitants. The penalty of the law still stood and must be met in one of the race. Adam having failed God passed a final judgment in the sentence "dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." They had their opportunity and failed and will forever remain under the penalty of that sentence. All efforts made to give him a second chance is based on the reasonings of the flesh. We note in the promise made in Gen iii 15, that the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent must suffer a violent death. I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head and thou shalt bruise his heel. We ask, Why was this required? Answer, that the penalty of the law might be met. Every blood covenant entered into between the Eternal One and his creatures pointed to this promise. The interested parties were placed under the same penalty and must suffer a violent death. The seal of the woman met this penalty on the cross. By his (Christ's) own blood he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption. This is that living way that he entered through his death. In Rev v 9, we read, Thou wast slain and hast redeemed us to God by (by blood). Does not this speak very plainly of the kind of a death. He poured out his soul unto death. It was not because of God's anger that his Son was required to be slain, but that through this we were redeemed to God and the law was met. We are led to think that because Christ suffered this death that therefore we are exempt, he being our substitute. This is a very dangerous doctrine and belongs to old Babylon. Jesus obtained eternal redemption through perfect obedience. He opened up the living way. He brought to light the life and immortality. "Behold the Lamb of God that beareth away the sin of the world." In his death he has met the penalty and made it possible for all to gain eternal redemption through him. Every one of the race who gains eternal life must meet that penalty.

The Scriptural order is believe the gospel, reform your life and crucify the old man that the body of sin may be destroyed. Does not the Apostle in Rom vi teach a violent death? Those who submit to baptism suffer a violent death. We go down into the water and when planted or buried then you sacrificed your present life. For a moment our thoughts have perished. We have not been called upon to suffer to the extent that Jesus did. Yet we have been planted in the likeness of his death. We have been buried with him by baptism into death. We therefore suffer with him that we may be glorified with him. What a blessed thought it is to know that baptism is something more than an ordinance or form to be obeyed because our heavenly Father has requested it. We are a part. His purpose and when we read that the seed of the woman shall bruise the head of the serpent's seed we know that we shall share this glory. This honor have all the saints. What honor? To bind these kings with chains and their nobles with fetters of iron. Psa cxlix

We ask what is God's purpose in his dealings with his creatures? It is expressed in Numbers xiv 14. As truly as I live I will fill the earth with the glory of the Lord. Isa xi 9 reads, The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. Jehovah has been choosing out of the race those who would make rulers that the earth may be filled with his glory. The instrument by which his purpose will be accomplished will be a kingdom in which will be rulers. These prospective rulers are selected and placed on trial for the excellency.

In Gen iv we note that the two sons of Adam were placed on trial. At the end of days (margin) it came to pass that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. Abel also brought of the firstlings of his flock and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel and his offering. Unto Cain and his offering he had no respect. And Cain was very wroth and his countenance fell. What was God purpose in requiring them to offer sacrifice? Evidently that one might have or gain the excellency. The Lord said unto Cain if thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? (Marg. have the excellency). Cain lost his right to rule and the promise of eternal life. When the sentence was passed upon him he said (marg.) mine iniquity is greater than that it may be forgiven me. Cain had no promise of a second chance. He had been weighed in the balance and found wanting. O, that we could realize that God can not be trifled with! It is true that he has been long-suffering to usward. Yet his mercy will not continue forever. Noah a preacher of righteousness was put on trial and was saved and his family.

Abraham was called and placed on trial for the excellency. Every covenant that God made with him was ratified through the shedding of blood. See Gen. xv. and xvi. These covenants all pointed back to the animals slain for a covering and forward to Jesus as the Lamb of God who was slain by whose blood we were redeemed to God. It is this blood of the everlasting covenant that cleanseth us from all sin. How unreasonable it is to think and teach that those who have never entered into covenant relation will be saved. That the blood of the everlasting covenant can be applied without being obedient to that form or model of doctrine.

The covenant of circumcision was entered with human blood and if violated the penalty was death. See Gen. xvii. 14; Ex. iv. 24, 25.

In Rom. iv. 11, Paul says that he Abraham received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised, that he might be the father of all them that believe. This covenant was with blood. Now this same apostle in Col. ii. 11, 12, states that baptism is the circumcision made without hands. This is a sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which we must have in Christ Jesus that we may obtain the Sonship. It is the faith of our father Abraham. Through this covenant we come into the body of Christ. We are then counted as heirs. That the trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ.

Dear reader, let us apply the blood of the new covenant and remain under its covering, that when Jesus comes we will receive the life that is hid with Christ in God.

Your Brother, looking for him.

Teacher. A correspondent writing from Montrose, Pa., says: "You have given a very reasonable interpretation of the Scripture,—Jesus being led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil: now I would like you to explain another passage in particular, namely, Job i 6. Who or what is meant by "Satan," in this chapter and story?"

D. D. Lathrop.

We will make the above enquiry the topic for our study tonight.

"WHO, OR WHAT IS SATAN?"

I will ask, Is the word Satan a personal pronoun, or a common noun?

Lad I regard it as a common noun.

Q Are common nouns frequently personified in Scripture.

A Yes, sir; they are.

Q Please give a sample.

A We find the words sin, death and Hades personified.

Teacher From what language is the word Satan derived?

Ella It is a Hebrew word, transferred into the English language.

Q When translated, what does it signify?

A Young who is an acknowledged authority among all denominations, defines it as follows: "An adversary, accuser, or avenger."

Q If the word Satan was a personal pronoun, should a definite, or an indefinite article be used to define it?

A The definite article the as designating only one personality, should be used.

Q Which did Young use?

A He used the indefinite article "An adversary." This admits of a plurality of adversaries, accusers, or avengers?

A If the word Satan was a personal pronoun—the name of one personality, could the word be used in the plural number?

A It could not.

Q Do the Scriptures use the word Satan in the plural number?

A They do.

Q Will you please give a few instances?

A I will. See Psa cix 4; "They are my adversaries." Heb. my Satans.

Q Who were his Satans?

A See verse 2: "The mouth of the wicked and the mouth of the deceitful, are opened against me; they have spoken against me with a lying tongue." See verse 20: "Let this be the reward of my adversaries (Heb. Satans) from the Lord, and of them that speak evil against my soul."

Verse 29: "Let mine adversaries (Heb. Satans) be clothed with shame." These Satans were David's enemies.

Teacher Is this same word Satan (adversary) ever personified in Scripture?

Arkie It is.

Q Where?

A In Rev xx 1-3, "And I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the devil and Satan, and bound him a thousand years."

Q Does the Scripture make the words devil and Satan to be the same?

A Yes, sir; they are both personified as meaning the same thing.

Q What did they do with him, after he was rendered powerless by being "bound" with a "great chain"?

A "And they cast him into the bottomless pit and shut him up."

Q Why did they do this?

A Because he was not only an "adversary," and "accuser," but a "deceiver." "That he should deceive the nations no more till the thousand years should be fulfilled."

Q How deep was the pit they put him in?

A It was a "bottomless pit."

Q Well, if he was a literal person, he must preponderate, have weight, occupy space, etc., and the pit they put him in, did not have any bottom, pray tell me, where would he go to, if he kept on dropping through space, for a period of a thousand years, especially if we take into account that he must accelerate in speed the longer he is in the pit? How would he get back again, when the thousand years are finished?

A This shows us, that to assume that that which the Scriptures call the devil and Satan, is a literal person, leads us into all manner of inconsistencies.

Q Have we other Scriptures which personify the word "devil?"

A We have; see Heb ii 14: "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through DEATH (which is the negation of all physical power) he might destroy him that had the power of death, (the wages of sin is death) that is the devil."

Q Who had the "power of death?"

A The devil.

Q Could the physical death of Jesus, destroy a supernatural person?

A Never.

Q Well, what devil will he destroy through his death?

A The greatest adversary (Satan) of mankind.

Q What adversary and how is that?

A Heb ix 26: "He appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself." This is the devil that he will destroy "through death."

Teacher Now, after learning what the Scriptures in general, define Satan or devil to be, we can better understand what the Satan mentioned in Job is. Could an angel of the Lord become an adversary—Satan?

Carrie Yes, sir; God used them in that capacity.

Q Please give an instance?

A God sent an angel to be an adversary (Heb. Satan) to Balaam. See Num xxii 21 23: "And Balaam rose up in the morning and saddled his ass, and went with the princes of Moab. And God's anger was kindled because he went; and the angel of the Lord stood in the way for an adversary (Heb. Satan) unto him."

This shows how even a good angel could be a Satan to a bad man. It is a mistake to always suppose that a Satan is a bad wicked person.

Peter was not naturally a bad man. Jesus said to him, "Get thee behind me Satan"—adversary.

Q Why did Jesus call him Satan?

A Jesus had been telling him how he was going up to Jerusalem, and what evil would befall him, and how he should suffer death, and Peter replied, "far be it from thee, Lord." Peter meant well, but he was nevertheless a Satan, adversary, because he was giving expression to words that were adverse to God's plans and purposes.

Q Was Job's Satan always the same person?

A No, sir; it was not.

Q Was his Satan always a wicked person?

A Not necessarily so.

Teacher We have gone over all this preliminary study, that we may have a clearer comprehension of what the general teaching of Scripture is, concerning Satan. Is the Satan of Job the same as that spoken of in other Scriptures?

Albert Just the same. Turn to the first chapter of Job. He is here described as a very rich man, and a man loyal to God. His loyalty was a matter of public repute.

Q Suppose we bring this down to modern times, and a rich man should be pointed out, who has the reputation of being a godly man, a God-trusting man. We can imagine some envious person, or persons saying, it is easy for him to be good. God has given him all his heart could desire, but we poor fellows have to struggle with poverty. Just deprive him of his riches, and you will soon see how God-trusting he will be, he won't be any better than the rest of us. Would it require any supernatural personality to thus cast insinuative suspicions?

A No, sir; not at all necessary.

Q Please read Job i 6: "Now there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan (margin Heb. adversary) came also among them." For an adversary to appear in a gathering or meeting of God's sons, is it necessary that this adversary should be a supernatural acolyte of the great Eternal?

A Not at all necessary.

Q In verse 8, we have this adversary's attention called to Job's uprightness. In verse nine, this adversary says: "Doth Job serve God for nought?  thou hast blessed the work of his hands, and his substance is increased in the land. Put forth thine hand now and touch all that he hath and he will curse thee to thy face." Does not this sound like the language of some envious people, more than that of some omnipresent devil?

A It does surely, it sounds just like envious people would talk today.

Q What adversary (Satan) drove away his oxen, and slew his servants?

A Verse 15, says the "Sabeans" did that.

Q Then in that case the Sabeans were his adversary (Satan) were they not?

A Even so.

Q In verse 16, fire fell from heaven (possibly lightning) and destroyed his sheep. Was not fire his adversary then?

A It surely was.

Teacher Last spring, while I was in Oklahoma, I saw many fields of wheat and oats completely destroyed by a green fly. What did these farmers consider was their adversary, (Satan)?

A The green fly, and not some personal devil. It was even so in Job's case.

Q In verse 17, we read of three bands of Chaldean robbers, who stole his camels, and slew his servants, who was Job's adversary this time?

A The Chaldeans.

Q In the early days in this country the Indians frequently run off the stock of the early settlers. Who did these settlers regard as their Satan—adversary?

A The Indians, whom they called "red devils,"—red adversaries.

Q In verse 19, we read of a great wind (tornado) which took its rise in the wilderness, and blew down his house, and killed those in it. What was Job's Satan, or adversary or Satan this time?

A The wind.

Q When afflicted with boils, what Satan tempted him to "curse God and die?"

A His wife. The Bible speaks of both male and female devils. There is not a thing in all this story in Job, but what is perfectly natural, and many like occurrences are taking place nearly every day. Heathen superstition has so imbedded itself in the human mind, that it is very difficult for them to divest themselves of it. It is a twin-sister to the heathen notion of immortal soulism.

It is time that intelligent Bible students should divest themselves of heathen superstitions.

The phrase "the devil" occurs in many Scriptures as applied to some special adversary. These special devils, or adversaries, are multitudinous, and are applied to widely different objects, and persons. It is never applicable to any one fallen angel or person. Satan is applied both to the good and bad. The good work is progressing in my "out post." evangelical work. Will report anon.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. Wirick.

Dear Restitution:

In RESTITUTION of Feb. 12 is article entitled "Election" written by E. D. McCleese which I am very much pleased with. The brother has written a very fine article on that subject. He could have made it much stronger by other Scriptures. But Bro. McCleese did well and I wish to give him a word of praise for his able and truthful words. They are the truth and I thank him for it. The article has done me much good. I always feel like cheering and encouraging people for the good they do in life. May God bless him.

Also the article on "Religion" written by Bro. Neill in the same number of RESTITUTION, was read with much interest and gave rise to closer thought on that question than ever before. While reading his article the thought came to me, What is religion? and how often is that word used in the Bible? First question, What is religion? Webster defines it as a "mode of divine worship." We believe the word "religion" occurs only three times in the Bible, "Which knew we from the beginning if they would testify that after the most strictest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee." Acts xxvi 5. "If any man among you seem to be religious and bridle not his tongue, but deceive his own heart, this man's religion is vain." James i 26. "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to keep himself unspotted from the world. James i 27. Very many religious people as Paul states he was before his conversion live in such close devotion to their strictest sect, they lose sight of doing any thing but to build up their own pet theory which is the only true and saving one on earth. But is such a course commendable to God? Let us see. Paul did not so consider it, after he left the ranks of the Pharisees. Oh, among all the different kinds and modes of worship can we not find one that is pure and pleasing to God? If so let us accept and practice it—in our lives. We can learn something about such a religion in James i 26. Hear it, "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this. (To believe something? No.) To visit (do something) the fatherless and the widows in their afflictions, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." The pure religion James speaks of calls for self-sacrifice and self-denial. The account of those that are to be condemned in Matt xxv is not because of this peculiar and untrue faith, but because of their inaction, "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these ye did it not to me, etc." God wants his children to do something in this world. It is said of Christ, "He went about doing good."

The second element in this pure religion is to keep one's self unspotted from the world. Can we do this by following after its fashions, its pleasures, and sins? While we are in the world we need not be of the world. The further we get in principle from the world the more pure will our religion become and the near to God will we be found. We cannot serve two masters at the same time. May we all see to it that we are not found trying thus to do. But may we be found ever doing for God and humanity.

Dear brothers and sisters:

At home, not very well, either of us. I want to say to the brethren I now have my tracts printed and can send them out. The Great Divine Healer, The Stature of Christ, and The Gospel of Restitution, are ready, and the price is 10 cents. I want all to read my tracts even if you cannot endorse it all, so if you cannot send the price send one cent for postage, and I will mail one to you.

If any of the brethren who ordered tracts have failed to get them, let me know and I will send them at once.

If my eyes do not fail and my pen will move, I will soon have my other tracts out, and will give notice in due time.

Yours for the truth,

JOHN FOORE.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of you have files of the "Harbinger" or "Gospel Banner," and can glean any facts therefrom as to early meetings, debates, and time, place, and the names of ministers present at such meetings and debates; names of presiding officers, etc. I shall be very thankful to have such items written out and forwarded to my address—Converton, Ind. Also any incidents happening at such meetings, number of baptisms and so on. Kindly send items at once.

OMAR CLOVER.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 47.

Bro. W. P. Shockey, one of Auntie Willard's co-temporaries in the faith of the gospel in Indiana, was a large, fleshy man; a good logical and eloquent speaker; who moved off easily and in good style, and who, while he kept the faith had excellent success in fishing for men. But in 1875, much to the surprise and sorrow of the brotherhood he embraced Universalism. And Brother Isaish Hornaday, whose story I thought I had finished, also embraced some very foolish and erroneous ideas. He claimed that the righteous dead from Abel down to the time of Christ's resurrection, have already been raised, saying that "part of them came forth from the grave at or near the time of the destruction of Jerusalem," that "Christ at that time gathered the elect to him, both living and dead, changed them from mortality to immortality, took them into the heavens to himself and came with them invisible to the Jewish nation, to execute through Titus, the judgments decreed against it, that "Christ will never come personally to earth" but that "When the time comes to rule Israel again, he will rule them through a second David," as God ruled Ancient Israel,—"invisible in person but manifest in power and might." He gained no followers, so far as I know.

Mrs. Naoma Hornaday, died sometime during the year 1875, in the 86th year of her age. She was the wife of John Hornaday, Sr. and the mother of Nathan, Isaiah, Samuel and John W. or William, as he was often called. Bro. Thomas McDonald of Plymouth paid a beautiful tribute to her memory, said "She had been more like a mother to us, than a stranger," that "there were few persons living who had known her longer than he had," he having become acquainted with her some sixty years before, or about 1815, when she was 26 years old, the acquaintance dating back, perhaps to Morrow County, Ohio. She was kind to the sick and to the poor, and was loved most by those who knew her best, had been a professor of religion for more than fifty years, and the latter part of this time a member of the Old Union Church. We like to know something about the mothers of men, for we Find the gold of strenuous manhood

In the womanhood of noon.

It was also about this time that Dr. Field and Bro. D. R. Mansfield, made an effort to unite the "Age to Come" people of our State, with the Irish Adventists, coming to one of our Antioch Conferences for this purpose. William L. Himes, was also there. But Bro. Richard Corbaley, handed the thing off and that was the end of it. Dr. Field however, afterward wrote a private letter to Bro. J. B. Cook, so frankly unburdening his heart that the latter thought it possible he might yet be brought to see the truth as to the future literal restoration of Israel to their own land. But though Bro. Stevenson afterward tackled him on the question at Jeffersonville, in his own church, he never gave up.

Bro. W. L. Winslow was a tall, medium sized man who always wore a plug-hat. He was somewhat slow in speaking, his sermons from beginning to end being mostly made up by apt quotations from the Bible. He was more properly a Bible-reader than a preacher, and though he made remarks between passages that gave them effect, he scarcely tarried long enough to drive his nails home.

Bro. David Shanklin was a tall, lean man, and rather eccentric. He lived somewhere in Illinois. I do not know as to his manner of speaking but he was a beautiful singer; his voice being much like that of Bro. Dickson Thompson's of Plymouth. In a quartet of singers he carried the treble. At the first Annual Conference held at Little Wild Cat, he, in company with Bro. George W. Green, Bro. W. P. Shockey and Bro. Wm. O. Proctor sang an Easter Anthem that made the woods fairly ring, these brethren being all fine singers. Bro. Shanklin was nearly always at our meetings, for he was intensely interested in the truth and very anxious that others should become so. To him, it was a pearl of exceeding price, worth more than all the world beside, and he was willing to sacrifice time, and money and strength—and if need be—life itself that his fellow-men might find it. Bro. George W. Green, was quite large, but only a little above a medium height. He was a fair speaker; logical, a good reasoner; spoke calmly and deliberately and with considerable effect. A. McLeland, the preacher, I know nothing about more than has already been told, nor have I any description of Bro. R. V. Lyons. We all know however that he was for the greater part of his life a faithful laborer in the vineyard of his Lord. He preached at Burgett's Corner about 1872, but labored mostly in the State of New York, and in Canada.

Bro. Jeremiah S. Hatch was a rather heavy-set man, of medium height, and of a somewhat reticent, melancholy disposition. His father died, or was killed accidentally shortly before his birth. As a child, Bro. Hatch, was peculiarly unfortunate. He cut his fingers and toes nearly off at different times, and at last, his mother becoming impatient at what she thought was carelessness, once and simple, told him, "If he cut himself again, she would whip him." Soon after this she was called away from home and on coming back, found Jeremiah, propped back in the big chair, looking very white, his foot bandaged up, and resting on another chair. "What have you been doing now?" was the mother's indignant query. "Cutting another toe!" was Jeremiah's reluctant answer. "Well I am going to whip you, and put a stop to such work," was the mother's not very comforting assurance, and whip him she did, though he thought it pretty hard at the time. I think there was no more cutting of toes and fingers after that, and perhaps the lesson, severe as it was saved his life, for the grand after service that he gave to God.

His mother having married again, the family—some time before Bro. Hatch reached his majority—emigrated to Laporte County, Indiana, and settled not far from Valparaiso. Here in the town of Laporte, he learned the blacksmith-trade and for many years wielded the blacksmith's hammer. I do not know when he went to Montgomery County but in 1863, he came out from the Disciple Church, left the anvil and the forge and began preaching in the neighborhood of Crawfordsville, though he was not baptized into his new faith until 1864. Bro. A. F. Sarvis, who had been in the faith a number of years, was in all probability the instrument used of God for bringing Bro. Hatch into the truth, and also in leading him to see the necessity of having a gospel faith prior to immersion, for he baptized him.

He began preaching at Burgetts' Corner about 1866 67, but it was not until Oct. 1870, that we were permitted to meet him, when the Annual Conference was held at old Antioch Meeting-house in Marshall County, and Brethren J. M. Stephenson, S. G. Clark and Jacob Stauffer, were present, and Brother and Sister Boyd from Illinois. "In 1873, he traveled 1,000 miles, preached nearly 300 discourses, organized three churches, baptized 37 persons and held two discussions."

(To be Continued.)

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by O. M. Myers in 1832, 50c

The Hydropathic Encyclopedia, a system of Hydropathy and Hygiene, by Dr. R. T. Trall. A large and exhaustive work, 75c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

The middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, If any one refuses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

Evangelising on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

EMMA L. SMITH.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the basest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 3502 Woodland Av., Cleveland, O.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it be drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind, not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in such a way as to protect it, failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Persistency.

"'Tis often darkest just before the day."
A little more persistency, courage, what
Success will dawn o'er fortune's cloudy rim.
Then take this honey for the bitterest cup—
There is no failure, save in giving up.
No evil fall us long as one still tries,
For reading setbacks make the strong man wise,
There's no defeat, in truth, save from within;
Unless you're beaten there, you're bound to win.

The Ebionite Gospel.

We have recently noticed a disposition among some who call themselves brethren to speak complimentary of the Ebionite gospel, otherwise called the Hebrew gospel, and to speak disparingly of "canonical" Matthew as we have it. The faithful in the Body of Christ have been disgruntled to see so-called brethren pose as teachers when they needed to be taught themselves. Heb v 12. To tell the truth plainly but kindly, they have tried to say something on this question before they had qualified themselves to do so by proper investigation, and, as was to be expected under these circumstances, have made a leap in the dark, and as the inevitable consequence, are suffering with broken bones. For some time they have been trying to "cast away" (Isa v 24) the first two chapters of Matthew; so when they learned that the Ebionite gospel omitted these chapters, they "went on their way rejoicing." But their joy would have been short lived with an abrupt ending in death if they had only paused long enough to learn a little more about the Hebrew gospel, which they belaud with so little reason. It omits the genealogy from Matthew, and begins with the words, "It came to pass in the days of Herod, king of Judea."

After quoting these words, Origen says: "It is written in a certain gospel, which is called 'according to the Hebrews', if any one is pleased to receive it, NOT AS AUTHORITY, but for illustration of the present question," etc. Subsequently he cites these words from the same gospel: "Just now my mother, the Holy Ghost, took me by one hair and carried me to the great mountain Tabor." This is a statement and an absurdity which ought to show our friends that the Hebrew gospel read by Origen was not the same as our Greek gospel of Matthew. They assume the two gospels are identical, but this quotation should correct such an egregious and ignorant mistake. The reason why Unitarians prefer the Ebionite gospel to Matthew's is found in the fact that their so-called Hebrew gospel omits the first two chapters of Matthew. But this gospel which you laud to the skies, dear friends, omits other chapters—even whole books! Irenæus, the first writer who speaks of the Ebionites, says that they were not only a sect separate from the general body of Christians proper, but that they opposed the gospel preached by the apostles. Especially were they bitter against Paul, whom they called an apostate from the law. They rejected all his epistles, and the greater part of the New Testament! And now this sect which rejected whole books of authentic Scriptures, because they did not tally with their notions, are quoted and commended to us as affording guidance on the question of the authenticity of the first two chapters of Matthew! The authenticity of Matthew's gospel rests upon the united evidence of all accessible ancient manuscript, supported and endorsed by the earliest Christian writers.

When the Ebionite gospel appeared it was impugned and proclaimed a corruption of the "canonical" Matthew. Here is the testimony of Epiphanius: "In the gospel which they (the Ebionites) have called the gospel according to Matthew, which is NOT ENTIRE AND PERFECT, BUT CORRUPTED AND CURTAILED, and which they call the Hebrew gospel, it is written," etc. Again, "They (the Ebionites) change the true account into a falsehood. They have taken away the genealogy from Matthew."

BOYD G. BROWNE.

God the Author of Evil.

Those who hold that God is the Author of sin and in some way responsible for the existence of the need of something more than mere inference to support such a shocking proposition, an appeal to the Scriptures for what is supposed to be direct and plain proof, Isa. xlv. 7, and Amos iii. 6, are cited. There are some very plain statements concerning God's holiness of character and his hatred of sin; and equally plain statements in reference to man's sinfulness, that ought to cause these theorists to pause before deciding the meaning of these texts to be in favor of the awful proposition that God is the author of sin. The word evil occurs a great many times in the Scriptures; sometimes as an abstract noun; many times as an adjective. It sometimes means sin or moral evil. In other occurances it means calamities, and punishment for sin. In Judges ii. 15 it is written of Israel "Whithersoever they went out the hand of the Lord was against them for evil as the Lord had said and as the Lord had sworn unto them." By reference to Deut. xxviii. and xxix. the reader will find a detailed account of what God had sworn against them in case they should forsake his covenant. In Jer. xviii. 7, may be found a good illustration of the two meanings of this word. "At what instant I shall speak concerning a nation and concerning a kingdom to pluck up and to pull down, and to destroy it; if that nation against whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent of the evil that I thought to do unto them." Here the evil of his own people was sin—forgetting him and burning incense to vanity, an idol god. The evil he thought to do unto his people was punishment for sin. There is no difficulty here. The distinction is plain as day. And why should any one fail to grasp the meaning of the word evil in the passages in Isaiah and Amos. To miss the meaning of the word in these connections shows carelessness on the part of the reader, who understands it to mean sin. Amazing carelessness to read through the Bible and not observe the distinction between the evil affirmed of God and the evil which man is said to do. The passage in Isaiah reads, "I form the light and create darkness, I make peace and create evil; I the Lord do all these things. Now where is the room why could dare to stand before a public audience and read, "I create evil," and yet the same man will quote the words as they stand in the text in proof of his utterly false proposition originally started, as sin implied, in harmony with God's will, in accord with his purpose. He presumes that his audience appreciate the force of his argument furnished by it (sic?)

"I make peace and create evil." What is the opposite of peace? "War" everybody answers. That is just what the word means in this connection. The chapter is a prophecy of the deliverance of the Jews from the seventy years captivity in Babylon, accomplished by Cyrus the Mede in the night of that humiliating feast when Belshazzar saw the strange hand writing on his palace wall. God chose the banner of the Medo-Persian host and dressed the sign that terminated so fatally to great Babylon's supremacy. God created that evil; he brought on the war to punish the arrogant king and his proud minions with a view to liberating his own people. In Amos iii. 6, the evil which the Lord did was the war which results in the overthrow of the ten-tribed kingdom of Israel for its idolatry. Plain as daylight again.

JOHN L. WILSON.

Religion Number 2.

Religion, as previously stated, is bringing into harmony, man with God. This is done by the operation of certain principles set forth by God. These principles have been revealed to man by God through his Word, therefore Paul says 2 Tim. iii. 16, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness. That the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works."

"All Scripture is given by inspiration of God." Paul elaborates upon this in Heb. i. 1, 2. "God who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in times past unto the fathers, by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son."

God spake at different times and in various ways through the prophets. For confirmation of this, kindly note the first chapters of Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Hosea, Joel, Amos, Zephaniah, Haggai, Micah, and the rest of the prophets, and notice that the "Word of the Lord came to them." In order that this Word might be useful to instruct, correct, reprove, rebuke and thoroughly furnish Timothy and all others who wished to be "made wise unto salvation," God ordered the preservation of his Word on tables, rolls, books. Exod. xxxiv. Isa. viii. 1. Jer. xxxvi. 1-4.

We find this Word, thus preserved, used as God intended it. Nehemiah viii. 8, instructs the people from the Law of God. Luke iv. 16, Jesus uses Isaiah the prophet. In Luke xx. 42, he uses the book of Psalms. In John v. 39, he advises the Jews to "search the Scriptures." In Acts xxvi. 22, xxviii. 23, Paul expounds from the Law and the prophets.

"God spoke in times past through the prophets, but in these last days by his Son." Listen to God in Matt. xvi. 5, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased, HEAR YE HIM." Also the words of Jesus in Luke iv. 43, "I must preach the kingdom of God in other cities also, for therefore am I sent." Again, John i. 16, 50. "The Father which sent me he gave me a commandment what I should say and what I should speak—whatsoever I speak therefore even as the Father said unto me so I speak."

As the words of the Son are "life" John vi. 63 and will "judge us" John xii. 48, their preservation was necessary to make part of the Scriptures which make us "wise unto salvation." Therefore John xx. 31 says that the deeds of Jesus have been written that we might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing we might have LIFE.

Luke in chapter one says that as many have taken in hand to set forth a declaration of those things of which the writer was sure, that it seemed good to him also to WRITE, because he had a perfect understanding of all things from the first, and in Acts i. 1, he says that his former treatise was about things that Jesus began to do and teach.

Let us go back to Paul's letter to the Hebrews where in chapter i. he says that the salvation spoken of by the Lord, was confirmed unto us by them that heard him, namely the apostles and disciples of Christ. Just before his ascension we find Christ instructing his disciples to preach the gospel to every creature, Mark xvi. 15. He opens their understanding that they might comprehend what was written in the Law of Moses, the Prophets and the Psalms, Luke xxiv. 44, 45, and then he adds that they are to teach the nations, every creature, and all things whatsoever I have commanded you. Matt. xxviii. 19, 20. The disciples thus equipped fulfilled their mission, Rom. x. 18, and God worked with them. Heb. ii. 4.

Their words contained salvation, 1 Cor. ii. 4, 5; John xvii. 20, and therefore we find them writing, 2 Cor. i. 13; Eph. iii. 4; Jas. i. 1 Peter i. 2 Peter i. 1 John i. 3, and lastly we find John writing the Revelations of God, through Jesus Christ, Rev. i. in order to make a part of and complete the Scriptures with a record of principles which unite in harmonious relationship God and man—which serve to correct, instruct, reprove, rebuke, thoroughly furnish and make wise unto salvation.

GEO. NESBIT.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 48.

About 1874 75. Bro. Hatch began preaching in the Boyer and Red Bruch school houses in the neighborhood of our now deserted Gospel Grove Church. I was delighted; I had never heard the gospel made so plain. Bro. Hatch's simple way of illustrating his teaching by setting up books, fastened the lessons in my memory so that I never forgot them. And even the little children who came to those school house meetings, became as familiar with the blessed kingdom story, and knew as well what steps are necessary to secure salvation as did their seniors. No one need tell them that we go to heaven when we die. He also preached at the Mote's school house four miles west of us, at Etna Green, at Millwood, at Bremen, at Claysville, and later on at Pierceton, meeting with but little success at the latter place, though a little church was organized, and a few dear ones became obedient, some of whom are holding fast to the faith to the present day, though far away and isolated from other brethren, and others remaining here, are working on as faithfully as they did in those early days.

The first of March, 1877, Bro. Hatch held a debate in Hall, Morgan Co., Indiana, with a Mr. J. V. Seaton of the Campbellite church, the discussion continuing eight days.

The propositions were first, "Do the Scriptures teach that the kingdom of God is now set up?" Second, that "man is unconscious between death and the resurrection?" Third, that "those who die in wilful disobedience to the gospel of Christ shall suffer conscious, everlasting punishment?" and fourth, that "man has no immortality, until the resurrection?" Seaton affirming the first and third propositions, and Bro. Hatch the second and fourth, and vice versa. Seaton took some strange positions, for instance, that "Christ as the nobleman went into the far country, when he went into the grave and that while there, he established his kingdom and throne deep and lasting, and that when he came from the grave, he distributed his gifts,"—that "the rich man, Abraham and Lazarus were in Hades—the grave, and there talked to one another;" that the beggar was literally and bodily carried, with all his sores into Abraham's bosom; that Pharaoh and all his host were in the same place and that Pharaoh was comforted, Ezek xxxii being given as proof, the rich man tormented and Pharaoh comforted.

Bro. Griggs of Indianapolis attended this debate. He had belonged to the Campbellites for twenty years, but came out on the side of truth in the spring of 1876, and was reimmersed by Bro. Hatch. The Campbellites lost a grand man when they lost him as a preacher. He was a Greek scholar, very much of a gentleman and an able defender of the truth. Seaton was very abusive, but Bro. Hatch took it patiently. A good impression was made, even some of the Campbellites asking Bro. Hatch to come back and hold meetings while Seaton lost the most of his friends.

Bro. Hatch had the gift of perseverance. He was determined to go ahead in spite of all opposition, and in the face of discouragements that would have driven most men from the field. And he had the satisfaction of planting the standard of truth in several places where our brethren had concluded nothing could be done. His motto was, "Do our duty and leave results with God."

In a letter to us, dated Nov. 20, 1877 he says: "I go and plant the truth in places, and after some time, I hear of it taking root. Last June I went to Martin County and stayed over two Sundays, there being only five of the faith there. I immersed one during the meeting. It looked a little discouraging at the time, for the sects got up meetings to keep people away, but they came out in spite of their preachers, and the truth fell in some good ground. The little band kept up their meetings every week and two persons who attended these meetings, finally confessed the truth and became obedient. And now they write me there are several more who have become convinced, who when I was there, did not think much of the doctrine, and others want to hear Hatch. I am going there again and anticipate a good meeting." Word came to us Dec. 23, that "he had been to Martin County, had had one of the best meetings; three being immersed, and many others nearly convinced. His time was taken up through the winter in Indiana and Illinois; and April, 1878, he made a trip to Stevensville, Michigan, and organized a church of eight members; was to have held a debate there but the man did not put in an appearance.

Dec. 25, 1880, he writes that "he is just starting for Bremen with his daughter Azarah to hold meeting, and that he will also visit on at Gospel Grove and Bro. Griffin and brethren at Claysville," had baptized eleven since he saw us last, and four more were waiting to go to the water in Clinton County.

Sept. 11, 1881, he writes from Argos, saying that "he and Azarah had been over in Illinois for a month and had some of the best meetings he had had, for many a day; continuing over two Sundays before the debate came off, and for one week afterward, with good interest all the time—fourteen being immersed and five more coming forward to be buried into the family of God at the next meeting.

The debate alluded to and also the meetings were held at Wall's school house, between the towns of Marshall and Paris, Illinois. Bro. Hatch's opponent in the debate was Elder B. W. Payne of the old hard shell Baptist church.

The propositions were 1st, Resolved, That the Bible teaches that men and women, or sinners are born of God in this life and that they must possess everlasting life before they can believe on the Lord Jesus Christ. Payne affirm. Hatch denies.

Second, Resolved, That all adults, where the gospel of Christ is, are gifted with the ability to obey, or disobey that gospel. Hatch affirms and Payne denies.

Third, Resolved, That the Bible teaches the doctrine of two Seeds, before conversion, one of these being the children of God, and one, the children of the devil, and all of God's people saved absolutely saved by the laying down of Christ's life. Payne affirms and Hatch denies.

Fourth, Resolved, That the Bible teaches that Christ will come in the future to set up his kingdom on this earth which will then be purified and manifested the eternal abode of the saints. Hatch affirms and Payne denies.

Elder Payne was a small man in the principle he with a pretty fair English education, cool, calm and excitable, a smooth speaker with fair language, and generally courteous, and acted fairly until the last speech when he grossly misrepresented our views concerning infants and heathen, asserting that we believed in the damnation of them all, or at least in their non-resurrection.

Elder Payne had two preachers to help him and had been a long time preparing for the debate. Bro. Hatch was alone and had made no preparation, thinking Payne would back out as others had done, so had to select his Scriptures and arrange his line of argument as the debate proceeded." And yet, his opponent was beaten on every point, all our brethren being fully satisfied as to the result. (For full report by Bro. A. Malone, see RESTITUTION for Sept. 7, 1881.)

Bro. Hatch went from Wall's school house to DeWitt County, Illinois, where he held meetings over two Sundays, and had as large a turnout as they had at the Sept., 1881, Conference at Argos. From Argos Bro. Hatch was going to the Rouse neighborhood, then to Tuscarawas, on to Michigan and back home. Had immersed thirty-one during the year.

I think it must have been in Oct., 1881, that he sold out his property in Crawfordsville and bought a little fruit farm on the St. Joe River, six miles from St. Joe, and five miles from Benton Harbor on the opposite side of the river. Bro. and Sister Samuel Andrews and also moved to Michigan from Huntington County, Indiana and had settled twenty miles from Bro. Hatch, Sister Andrews being Mr. Wines's aunt, and both of them, good, kind, God-fearing people, with locks so placid and trustful that one looking at them would think they had never had a trial. One never sees such lines among those who hate and despise our Father in heaven.

Bro. Hatch preached quite a good deal in Illinois while in Michigan, at first and west Plum River in Carroll County, at Adaline, Ogle County, and other points. Also at Gospel Grove, Ind., being always so glad to meet the dear ones there, Bro. Priests, Mussulmans, Sister Stevens, and son Wm. Stevens and others. I think his last first mention of being there, is in a letter dated June 14, 1886.

Dear brethren and sisters:

At home, not very well, either of us, I want to say to the brethren I now have my tracts printed and can send them out. The Great Divine Healer, The Stature of Christ, and The Gospel of Restitution, are ready, and the price is 10 cents. I want all to read my tracts even if you cannot endorse it all, so if you cannot send the price send one cent for postage, and I will mail one to you.

If any of the brethren who ordered tracts have failed to get them, let me know and I will send them at once.

If my eyes do not fail and my pen will move, I will soon have my other tracts out, and will give notice in due time.

Yours for the truth,
JOHN FOORS.

Subscribe for THE RESTITUTION to be sent to a friend. It will cost you but little—the result of seed sowing is not in God's hands.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MARCH 25, 1908. NUMBER 12.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MAR. 25, 1908.

We have for next issue Brother W. H. Wilson's "Notes By the Way," showing he has had a very interesting time since his last report.

We have loaned a copy of Brother J. M. Stephenson's work called "God's Plan of Salvation," and do not remember who has it. We freely lend books that we have to brethren who ask, and several have been out a long time. Please send them in.

WE are glad that Brother Elton has given us an account of the burning of the school building at Collinwood, as many have been anxious to learn. The name of his little granddaughter was not clear to us, so we committed it altogether, using the word "she" as Brother Elton will note.

TROUBLE between Japan and China over the seizure of a Japanese vessel with war materials, has been patched up, and China is reported to have made apology. However, it is not clear that Japan has gained much, as the incident has laid bear some secret work, and China may be the real winner after all.

THERE is much in the papers of the times concerning the sending of the American battle ship fleet from the Atlantic to the Pacific around South America. This was accomplished in a manner that called forth the admiration of experts of all nations. Now it is proposed that this fleet shall proceed across the Pacific, visit our island possessions there, also Australia, Japan and China, pass through the Suez Canal, the Mediterranean Sea, call at some important ports on the way, and return to our Atlantic coast about a year from now. Loud claims are made that this undertaking will impress all nations with the capabilities of both ships and men, that it will tend to keep the peace of the world for a long time to come. No true student of the Word will be lulled to sleep by this talk, and think that for a year at least nothing can transpire in the world worth noting. We are to watch always. Watch the signs of the times, events, happenings. Above all watch Self. Do nothing amiss--nothing you will be ashamed to have laid bare. God's full number of those needed for the work of the next age will soon be ready—then His work will not delay for the passage of even "Uncle Sam's" war ships. All—each, Watch.

The Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus.

Inasmuch as this parable is used as one of the strongest proofs of the consciousness of the soul after death, I send you the following extract from a discourse that I have been delivering, entitled "The Gospel of the Kingdom of God, and Light on Bible Mysteries."

I heard one minister take it, (this parable) for a text, and said he did not believe it was a parable, and even if it was, it was a fact because Christ told it.

We believe this is a parable for various reasons:

1st, because it is called a parable and is classed with Christ's parables in the concordance in the Bible.

2nd, because it is similar in expression to other parables that Christ taught.

3rd, because all parables are used to express analogies or comparisons, and are never intended to convey the idea that the narrative is itself a fact; and Jesus would not say anything contradictory to what the prophets said, but always verified their statements.

Inspired men and the prophets say, "The dead know not anything." Eccl. ix. 5. "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish." Psa. cxlvi. 4. Isaiah says, in regard to other lords who had dominion over them, "They are dead, they shall not live; they are deceased, they shall not rise; therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish." Isa. xxvi. 14.

In this parable dead men are represented as thinking, remembering and talking, notwithstanding the prophets have said that their thoughts and memory perish. Yes, my friends, this must be a parable, or more properly a fable or apologue. Generally speaking, a parable is a short, fictitious story from, or by means of which a moral is drawn. More specifically, they are known as parables, allegories and apologues or fables. A parable proper is a story of something that might occur in life or nature, as the parable of the sower. An apologue or fable is founded on supposed actions of brutes or inanimate objects, as trees or dead people. A fable is not even similar to things that do occur, but are stories of acts that you might think or imagine to occur, as Jotham's fable of the trees electing a king over them, Judges ix. 8. This is also called a parable.

We know that the Bible does not say that Jesus said this story about the rich man and Lazarus is a parable, neither did he say it was an allegory, when he said, "I am the vine, ye are the branches." John xv. 5, yet we know he was not a vine, but he made a beautiful comparison, representing himself as a vine, and his disciples as the branches, deriving their sap of vitality or life from him.

At the Lord's Supper Jesus said of the bread, "This is my body," and of the wine, "This is my blood," both symbols. We know then that this parable does not state what was literally a fact, but Jesus used the belief of the Jews at that time to illustrate a truth or moral condition.

This parable and some others were said to have been given to rebuke the indifference, the pride and selfishness of the Jewish people. In this parable Jesus uses the belief of the Jews, erroneous though it was, to show according to their own view, how utterly unreasonable was their pride of wealth, and contempt of the poor, and their national pride and contempt of the Gentiles.

The belief of the Jews at that time, according to Josephus, was that Hades is a subterranean region of perpetual darkness. Here souls are taken by the angels, who distribute to them temporary punishments. Here also is a lake of unquenchable fire, in which no one will supposedly be cast till the judgment day. As the souls go into Hades, the wicked are dragged to the left hand by the angels, within the very sound of hell itself; while the righteous are taken to the right hand, a place of happiness, which is called Abraham's bosom. Between the two classes there is a great gulf, which cannot be crossed by souls on either side. Josephus said this was the belief of the Jews at the time of Christ. In this parable the Jewish nation is represented by the rich man, and the Gentiles by Lazarus.

Just before the death of Moses, God tells him of his anger and of his vengeance on the children of Israel, on account of their perverseness and vanities. He says, "I will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people; I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation. For a fire is kindled in mine anger, and shall burn unto the lowest hell. They shall be burnt with hunger, and devoured with burning heat, and with bitter destruction." Deut. xxxii. 21, 22. 21. You will observe that God uses the word "fire" as a symbol of punishment, purification, and destruction. "Hell" is used as a symbol of destruction or annihilation.

Paul, in his letter to the Romans, xi. 12-15, tells about the fall of Israel as a nation, on account of their unbelief, and because they were blinded and hardened. He says, "Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world" (that is their riches caused this fall,) "and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles," (that is the decay or loss of them enriched the Gentiles;) "how much more their fulness? For I speak to you Gentiles, inasmuch as I am the apostle of the Gentiles, I magnify mine office; if by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my flesh, and might save some of them." Paul was a Jew, and was of their flesh. He says, "For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?"

When the women of Canaan came out to Jesus and begged for mercy, he said, "It is not meet to take children's bread, and to cast it to dogs." "And she said, Truth, Lord; yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their Master's table." Matt. xv. 26, 27. The poor Gentiles, whom the Jews called dogs, begging for crumbs of mercy!

Recapitulating, we find that God said because of Israel's perverseness and vanities, he would move them to jealousy with those who were not a people, and would devour them with burning heat. Paul said if their riches caused their fall, and their loss enriched the Gentiles, he desired that they might be provoked to emulation, so that some of them might be saved.

Jesus, in this parable, represents the rich man, the Jewish nation, as lost, and in the torment of burning heat, as God had said, and Lazarus the poor Gentiles, saved and happy in Abraham's bosom. Lazarus begging for the crumbs of God's truth and mercy, becomes the child and heir of Abraham through faith, and gathers into the great bosom of Abraham, while the rich man, the house of Judah, is today, in many places, enduring the agonies of torment.

The "rich man" is provoked to emulation by seeing the happiness of the Gentiles, and he wants his brethren, the remainder of Israel, to be warned of their danger; but he is not willing to accept "Moses and the prophets," the Word of God, as the means by which they might be saved, but still desires a sign, as one to return from the dead.

Had God similar parables by the mouth of his prophets, speaking of nations or cities as individuals. I will give one as an example. Ezekiel xviii 1-7. There were two women, the daughters of one mother.....and the names of them were Aholah the elder, and Aholibah her sister: and they were mine, and they bare sons and daughters." The Lord explains this by saying, "Thus were their names; Samaria is Aholah, and Jerusalem is Aholibah."

F. M. ROGERS.

Still at Work.

Brother Oliver and I closed our meeting yesterday, Sunday March 15, that we were holding nine miles south from Arkansas City, near the Kansas and Oklahoma state line.

This has been an interesting and pleasant trip from Portland, Oregon, through that State along the Pacific coast and eastward from California to Arkansas, where I did some work, and found brother-friends of Bible hearts, as already reported; across into Texas and through it, and then through Oklahoma and into Kansas, up to its beautiful Wichita, a thriving city of a thriving State. I did not rest long at my brother's—time is swift and short, and there is much for the Master's servants to do!

I went to the new Church called Bethel, nine miles south of Arkansas City, and gave one discourse during Brother W. H. Wilson's series. Here I waited til Brother Wilson had completed his meetings, soon after which Brother Oliver and I began the meetings which we closed yesterday. Although I cannot report much visible good as resulting from the work of so many, I can solely feel that there was not much evil, and results may yet be due.

I have come to Arkansas City, on my way back to the Northwest and Pacific coast work. I have deferred a trip in the region of Perryville, Kentucky, until the time may be reached when a church or other building, or a leafy grove may be secured in which to tell the good news. This for two causes; yes more. First, The inability to get a good hearing where a proper place cannot be secured. Second, Because as my health has improved, and as the instrumentality difficulties been overcome through the providence of God, I think with the health given me I shall be able to resume the work among those dear brethren that have continued their confidence and love during so many years of mingled pleasures and tears.

I expect to stop at Wichita for a short time, where I hope to hear from those within reach that want work done during the month of March. Any that write from Kansas or Oklahoma will be considered. Any that address me in Texas or between Texas and Arizona, please write to me in care of Sister Minerva Gibbs, Abilene, Texas. Arizona brethren will communicate with me there or at Phoenix, Arizona care of J. M. Pike. Brethren in California and Southern Oregon will write to Pomona, California, care of W. G. Steffa.

I will visit all I can, and speak old truths with the vigor that restored health may give me, and brethren of Oregon and Washington, I will be pleased to see you all before the conference year ends, under the grace of a kind Providence.

W. L. SKEELS.

LATER.

Under the providence of God my health has improved. Duty calls me back to my work on the Pacific. In spite of my desire to meet brethren and relatives on my proposed trip as far east as Ohio and Kentucky I turn homeward in a few days.

After leaving Kansas my first meetings will be at Blackwell, Okla. Those wanting meetings in Oklahoma or Northern Texas will address me without delay, in care of Eliza Rabe, Box 254, Blackwell, Okla.

Brethren in the region of Abilene, Texas and west of that city in Texas and New Mexico, etc., address me care of Word and Work, Abilene, Texas.

Arizona brethren and those west of the Territory address in care of J. M. Pike, Phoenix, Arizona.

Brethren of California can reach me at any of these towns if you write soon enough or before I pass. Brethren of California will intercept me at Pomona, Cal., address in care of W. G. Steffa. Those of Oregon that write me later dates, will write in care of Hinton Wilson, Central Point, Ore. I feel competent in health for all this work.

Selections.

Concerning Swearing.

MATT. v 33-37.

Swearing is a very ancient custom. I know not its origin, but fancy its necessity can be traced to the origin of sin in the Garden of Eden. The devil told the first lie, in assuring Eve that, though she ate of the forbidden fruit, she would still live forever; and her first use after eating was to deceive her husband. And I presume the tendency to lie and deceive has been in the human race ever since, rendering it necessary that some special affirmation should be made, with an appeal to a Higher Being, or some thing more age-lasting or valuable than ourselves, as a witness and guarantee of the fulfilment of all vows.

From the beginning, swearing seems to have been Divinely recognized, and afterwards it may be said to have been Divinely organized. The first instance I know of is that of the covenant between Abraham and Abimelech (Gen xxi 22), where they both an oath agreed to in conditions, naming the well that was dug at the place where the covenant was made, "Beer-sheba"—the well of the oath. The manner of swearing, and the thing sworn by, in all probability varied very much in ancient times. This was evident even in our Lord's day, so far as the latter is concerned, otherwise he would not have singled out those mentioned in our text for special prohibition.

When Abraham desired a wife for his son Isaac, he said to his servant, "Put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh, and I will make thee swear by the Lord the God of heaven, and the God of the earth." And we further read, "And the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his master, and swere to him according to that matter." Gen xxiv. We have here both the form and character of the oath; and we have no reason to suppose this method of putting the hand under the thigh was necessarily new. In all likelihood, it was a common usage in Abraham's day. We find Esau for a mess of pottage, swearing away his birthright, and so losing it forever; and Jacob swearing to Laban "by the fear of his father Isaac." Joseph, also, on his death-bed, put the children of Israel on oath that they would carry his bones up with them to the goodly land which the Lord had sworn to give to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. These references do not exhaust all that is said about swearing, prior to the Mosaic period, but they are sufficient for our purpose, and clearly demonstrate the binding or sacred nature of an oath.

When we come to the Law, we find the most minute instructions regarding vow making, or pledging on oath, and the most dire consequences denounced against those by whom such an oath was broken. "When thou shalt vow a vow unto the Lord thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it; for the Lord thy God will surely require it of thee; and it would be a sin in thee. Deut xxiii 21. "That which is gone out of thy lips thou shalt keep and perform, even a free-will offering, according as thou hast vowed unto the Lord thy God, which thou hast promised with thy mouth." When a wife, or a daughter under age, vowed a vow, and the husband or father hearing of it disallowed it, the vow, in either case, did not stand; and the Lord would forgive her, because the husband or father disallowed it.

Throughout the whole of the Scriptures, solemn vows are considered sacred, and must be fulfilled, however dreadful the consequences. Instance the rash vow of Jepthah, recorded in Judges xi.: "And Jepthah vowed a vow unto the Lord, and said, If thou shalt, without fail, deliver the children of Ammon into mine hand, then it shall be that whatsoever cometh forth of the doors of my house to meet me when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, shall surely be the Lord's, and I will offer it up for a burnt-offering." And, we learn, on returning to his own house, "Behold his own daughter came out to meet him, with timbrels and with dances, and she was his only child." It was then he realized the rashness of his vow. yes, the terrible character of his vow. "For when he saw her, he rent his clothes, and said, Alas! my daughter, thou hast brought me very low, and thou art one of them that trouble me, for I have opened my mouth unto the Lord, and I cannot go back." And, two months afterward, a human sacrifice was offered.

So also the foolish vow of Saul, which would have cost good and brave Jonathan his life, through his simply tasting—and that in ignorance—a honeycomb, had not the people rescued him from Saul's power. When we consider the sacred and relentless character of vows recorded in the Bible, we can, in a measure, estimate what was involved in the terrible oath of those forty men who bound themselves neither to eat nor drink till they had killed Paul. Many of these must have forsworn themselves, and I doubt not that God will judge them according to their sins.

Considering, therefore, how general the practice of vow-making had been, and, no doubt, still was, among the people, and the hold it must have had upon them, the sweeping character of the command of the Savior assumes a very striking aspect. To prohibit a custom that had been so long followed and that often with profit, which, moreover, was countenanced by the Law, and practiced by the fathers, required a power and an authority rather than human. And on this point the multitude seemed agreed, for they said, "He taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes."

I have said that swearing was divinely recognized, and afterwards divinely organized: I did not, however, emphasize the additional fact that it was divinely practised. That this was so is a marvellous exhibition of the great condescension of Jehovah, as if his promise required a confirmation, other than the spoken Word; and yet we find, on several occasions, God confirmed his promise by an oath. He knew the hardness of man's heart, how little he was to judge others by himself, and to scoff at the mere promise of a liar, whom he had neither heard nor seen; and so he condescended to confirm certain of his promises by an oath, that there might be no excuse, and that he might, in this way, win the confidence and faith of the heirs of salvation. And yet, in spite of this, nothing is more difficult than to persuade men of the truth of the very promises which God has so confirmed. First of all, he confirmed his promise to Abraham with an oath—"By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, that in blessing I will bless thee," etc. To Isaac and to Jacob, he in like manner, reaffirmed his promises. We find this referred to in the letter to the Hebrews, where we read, "He swore by himself, because he could swear by no greater; and this he did to show the more abundantly to the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel." To David, also, he swears that he should never want a man to sit upon his throne, Psa. lxxxix. And the prophecy of the angel Gabriel to Mary is another evidence of the immutability of his counsel, as, amongst other glorious things predicted, the Child she was to bear was to "sit on the throne of his father David." Peter on the day of Pentecost, makes mention, with telling effect, of the oath of God to David. "Therefore, being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne." Acts ii. 30.

We have found that making a vow, and declaring an oath were Scriptural, having not only divine precept, but divine example. We may also note that the practice was common even in the apostles' day, for we find Paul himself indulging in vow-making, shaving his head as part of the confirmation.

Placing ourselves in the position of these men and women gathered about Christ, we can well imagine their wonder and surprise at his wholesale condemnation of the practice; and his singling out for special prohibition, in all likelihood the very things most commonly invoked as witnesses of their vows. Nor need we wonder at this astonishment, for, as I have already hinted, it must have touched, in a great many ways, much of what was reckoned part of their religious life. But while this may have so appeared, it was only so on the surface.

Christ, as the Son of God, was able to look under all this religious film, even beyond the law itself; recognizing that the whole practice was the outcome of sin, of the infidelity and weakness of poor, fallen, faithless man, and that God's recognition of it was nothing more than a means of maintaining a certain measure of right doing between man and man. And Christ, by his teaching, lifts those that would be his disciples to a much higher plane. Infidelity can have no place in the character of his followers. Righteousness, or right-doing, is the one golden rule that governs and characterizes their lives; and, under such conditions, swearing is out of place. It would be like an effort to whiten the virgin snow. The "Yea" or the "Nay" of such an one is all-sufficient. His word is better than his bond; for it is evidence of the upright character of the man, and that the love of Christ is in his heart, constantly constraining him. Hence the instruction: "Let your communication be Yea, yea; Nay, nay: for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil," is all sufficient as a reason for the radical change the teaching of Christ calls into being.

James, at the close of his intensely practical letter, recognizes the force of the Master's teaching on this subject. He writes: "Above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath, but let your yea be yea, and your nay be nay, lest ye fall into condemnation." James v 12. Anything else cometh of evil, and should be avoided. The beautiful and climate suggestion of Paul, in writing to the Colossians, exactly suits the circumstances: "Let your speech be alway with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man."—Andrew Leung in Messenger

The Whole Heart.

David says: "Blessed are they that seek the Lord with the whole heart." This is a strong sentence, but it becomes stronger as we realize the full meaning of the Hebrew word, heart. In the original language, this word stands for about everything that is noble and strong in human nature. To seek anything with the whole heart would mean to do so with every power enlisted in that one thing. Just as the athlete seeks for the prize which he hopes to gain, just as the student who covets some special position in scholarship struggles for the coveted goal, just as the man who is seeking some position of honor and trust in the political world puts forth every effort to attain his desire, just as the successful man in the business world must make everything count toward securing the anticipated supremacy, so must we seek God. If we would know him, "with the whole heart."

Editor Restitution:

We have one more milestone passed and if we have been faithful and overcome the enemy it will be easier to keep in the narrow way and press on to the mark of the high calling. Let us be faithful the remainder of the journey, then he who said, "Because thou hast been faithful over a few things I will make the ruler over many things" will welcome us.

SARAH J. LANPHEAR.

Dear Restitution:

As our time has expired for the dear old paper, please find $1.50 for renewal. It has been our weekly visitor for something over 30 years, and were it not for the Bible and RESTITUTION we would be very lonely, as we are so far from any of our dear brethren. I hope you will all pray for us that we may have part in the first resurrection, on which the second death hath no power.

Your Brother and Sister, in the hope of eternal life when Jesus comes.

MR. & MRS. R. J. WORTHINGTON.

He that waits to pray, or loses heart in prayer, because he does not yet feel the faith needed to get the answer, will never learn to believe. He who begins to pray and ask will find the spirit of faith is given nowhere so surely as at the foot of the throne.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

BIBLE RESTITUTION:

Herewith I enclose an ode which explains itself, and we hope it may be the means of doing something toward suppressing this greatest vice, which is making such inroads on the characters of the rising generation. Praying for success in all of God's plans and purposes.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

ELMINA S. BITTNER.

Come young and old, and hear me tell,
How strong tobacco smokers smell,
Who love to smoke their pipes so well,
That for tobacco they will sell
Their rights to social union.

Oft times from three to six you see,
Collected in one company,
And every person in good glee,
And all must have a smoking spree,
A fetid, stinking union.

They clean their pipe-stems with a wire,
Then fill the bowl and put in fire,
And smoke till it doth quite expire,
Nor do they ever seem to tire
While in this smoking union.

Then the curses of smoke will rise,
Like morning mist toward the skies.
Then woe to him who has weak eyes,
Unless he takes his leave and flies
Away from such a union.

With impudence they still presume
To vex all persons in the room,
Who can't endure tobacco fume.
But they must bear this hateful doom.
Or leave this smoking union.

They take the money from the poor,
And send them hungry from the door,
And haste away to some one's store,
To buy tobacco more and more,
To burn in smoking union.

I can't see how such folks can say
They have religion every day,
And love the Lord and love to pray,
While they his money smoke away,
And sing of heavenly union.

And there are those who love to chew,
Although it often makes them spew.
It makes them drunk and beastly, too,
The practice they will still pursue,
And sing of heavenly union.

Oft times within their neighbor's door,
They cast their quids, some three or four,
And spit upon the hearth or floor,
Some times a gill or even more,
And sing of heavenly union.

Some times within the Church you view,
These persons who will sit and chew,
And spit upon the floor or pew,
Until it spreads a foot or two,
And sing of heavenly union.

When they get mad they chew much more,
Until their angry fit is o'er,
Then they were known to chew before;
Their anger then is much too sore
To think of heavenly union.

The quid is oft too large within,
The juice runs down and stains the chin,
And then I always have to grin,
And think there is no little sin
In this tobacco union.

SIN.

The presence of sin in the world has given rise to many strange ideas, thoughts and teachings. Many vexed and foolish questions on this subject have been asked and have fallen on the ears of men strangely answered, such as the following, "If God is all wise. If he is all powerful, If sin is displeasing to God how came sin here? Is God surprised that it is in the world he once pronounced "very good?" Answer, No. He is not. God foresaw it as well as all other things, and in his plan prepared a sacrifice slain (in his purpose) "from the foundation of the world," Rom xiii 8, that he might redeem man from the thraldom of sin and death. "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." John i 28. If God is the Almighty, Gen xvii 1. If God has known the end from the beginning of the world, Acts xv 18. If God works all things after the council of his will, Eph i 11. I must think the claims of such a being as recorded in Gen xvii 1, I am the Almighty God is true and that he understands his purposes. Therefore the all things he has planned has and is working out for man and the universe is the best and his richest choice. Then far be it from us (the clay) to say to the Father, Why hast thou made me thus? Rom ix 20. And pine over the condition and plan of God's creation in the words of the poet,

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these, it might have been."

Thereby suggesting an improvement on God's plan and word by saying, It is no strain on human thought to think that the race obedient would have had life extended endlessly and every needed blessing granted to go with it by the loving Father. We cannot conceive of any other than a happy condition in a world free from sin. Just think of what would be at this moment, the earth filled with an obedient population and all praising the great First Cause. None defiant. None as now quarreling with their Maker. I think of this as a gain to Jehovah, so to speak.

Sin for six thousand years has silenced the voice of praise in countless millions and substituted cursings and bitterness in hearts that would instinctively adored the Sovereign of the universe. This beautiful and imaginary picture may be man's plan, but as history and facts show it has not been God's purpose. If so, he being the Almighty God would have had it thus and prevented the present conditions. But as it is stated in Scripture God is all wise and knows the end from the beginning we are willing to give him the credit of knowing best and doing what will be the greatest good for all his creatures. Oh, to think weak, finite man would presume to suggest a better plan to the Father, and think of that plan as an improvement, a great gain to Jehovah so to speak. Has God ever been thwarted in any of his purposes, or turned aside from any of his plans? Has he been blindly groping his way along through the long dark period the ages ignorant of what was before him, and as this or that difficulty presented itself then and there devised means out of the unexpected difficulty? No, if so he is not all wise and powerful as Paul in Acts xv has stated, "Known unto God are all his works (how far back) from the beginning of the world." For Eph i 11 we read, "In whom we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will." Hath not the potter power over the clay of the same lump to make one vessel unto honor and another unto dishonor? Rom ix 21. Then God is not surprised at any part of his creation.

We now come to the question, What is sin? Since we are told in the Scriptures, "Is the transgression of law." 1 John iii 4, Where there is no law, there is no transgression. Rom iv 15. Without law man would be without any moral character. The keeping of law develops character. By disobeying law character is also formed. Without law (not sin) man would have been as destitute of character as a new born babe. Therefore the good and the bad, the obedient and the disobedient exist because of obeying And disobeying God's law or commands. Sin then being the violation of law, to me it is no hard question to solve as to who is the author of sin and how it came into the world. He who violated God's commands is the guilty party. Without law and its enforcement no governing force from the school room to the ruling of a kingdom could be of any value. And as soon as law is established character both good and bad, obedient and disobedient are developed, and the good and evil begin this warfare. There is a blessing attached to willing obedience to law that cannot possibly exist only for the fact of law, and that in all cases there is a possibility of disobedience to that law. "The willing and the obedient shall eat the good of the land." Isa i 19. If it was not possible for man to be tempted and fall, then no blessing could come to those that resist. "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation, for when he is tried he shall receive a crown of life," etc. Jas i 12. Paul was fearful lest after preaching to others he might fall and become a castaway." 1 Cor ix 27. There is also a glory in victory that could not come if no conflicts or warfare against opposing elements were not arrayed against us. Oh no, without these opposing forces Paul could not say, "I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of life," etc. Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God." Rev iii 12. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me on my throne even as I have overcome and am set down with my Father in his throne." First a cross and then the crown. First a conflict, a warfare with the enemy, and then the rest for the people of God." In God's appointed way that rest and peace will come to this restless, tired, sin-tossed world, when he who once was here on earth and spoke "peace be still" to the foam-crested waves of Galilee shall come again, and fulfil the mission spoken of by John the Baptist when he said "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."

God has never charged the world of being guilty of but one universal sin or transgression against his Divine law—"Wherefore, as by one man (Adam) sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men, (universal) for that all have sinned." Rom. v. 12. The only way for Christ to take away this "sin of the world" will be to remove from the heart of the disobedient the desire and willingness to sin or disobey God's law or commandments. Such will be Christ's mission on earth when he returns, alluded to in 1 Cor. xv. His first work in that direction will be with the disobedient and rebellious children of Israel, and in the same manner as he is to deal with that people will he deal with other nations, until his mission is fulfilled, as John declared.

The manner of his cleansing work with Israel will be as follows, if we can believe the Scriptures: "And I will give them one heart, and I will put a new spirit within you, and I will take the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them a heart of flesh, (what for?) that they may walk in my statutes, and keep my ordinances, and do them: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God." Ezek. xi. 19, 20. "Behold I will gather them out of all countries whither I have driven them in mine anger and in my fury, and in my great wrath: and I will bring them again unto this place, and I will cause them to dwell safely. And they shall be my people, and I will be their God. And I will give them one heart and one way, that they may fear me forever, for the good of them and for their children's children after them. I will put my fear in their hearts, and they shall not depart from it." Jer. xxxii. 37-40. "And so all Israel [all be saved, as it is written, There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer, and shall turn ungodliness away from Jacob." Rom. xi. 26.

Then "Sing, oh daughter of Zion, shout, oh Israel; be glad and rejoice with all the heart, oh daughters of Jerusalem. The Lord hath taken away thy judgments; he hath cast out thine enemies; the King of Israel, even the Lord is in the midst of thee. Thou shalt not see evil any more." Zeph. iii. 14, 15.

When all this is fulfilled in the future history of the Jewish people, and when the earth is filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea, Hab. ii. 14, and when all flesh shall come and worship before the Lord, Isa. lxvi. 23, then will rebellion against God law have ceased, sin removed, and Christ's mission spoken of by John ended, and his work and rule given into the hands of the Father, that God may be all and in all. 1 Cor. xv. 28. Amen and Amen.

Paul's Strait.

"For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart and to be with Christ, which is far better." Phil. i. 23.

The above quotation is a very difficult one to understand, and will say, taken by itself that it tells but little, but by carefully reading the whole connection, and by comparing it with other translations, we arrive at the author's meaning.

The Philippian letter was written by Paul while a prisoner at Rome. The Philippians having heard of Paul being a prisoner, sent Epaphroditus to him with gifts and sympathy. On his arrival at Rome he fell ill, and after his recovery this letter is sent by him to the Philippians.

The 20th Century translation, is a modern English one by twenty scholars representing many different denominations, makes the meaning more clear than the Revised, or the King James translations. To get a more clear and comprehensive understanding let us read from verse 12 to the end of the chapter.

"Now brothers, I want you to recognize that what has happened to me, has actually served to help forward the good news." The next few words tell what he refers to. "My imprisonment has been plainly seen both by the whole of the supreme guard, and by every one else, to have come upon me for Christ's sake. And besides this most of our brothers, having gained confidence in the Lord through my imprisonment, now venture with far greater freedom to tell of God's message, fearlessly. It is true that some actually proclaim the Christ out of jealousy and opposition. But there are those who proclaim him from good will. The latter do it for love of me, knowing that I have been put in position to plead the cause of the Good News. The former spread the news of the Christ in a spirit of rivalry and not sincerely, thinking to add to the pain of my imprisonment. But what of that? Why in some way or other, either with assumed or with real earnestness, Christ is made known. And of this I am glad. Yes, and I will be glad, for I know that, thanks to your prayers, and to a rich supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, all this will make for my salvation. (Job xiii. 16.) And this agrees with my keen expectation and hope that I shall have no cause for shame, but through my unfailing courage, now as hitherto, Christ will be honored in my body whether by my life or by my death, for life to me is Christ, and death is gain."

"But what if by continuing to live, my labors bear fruit? I cannot see which to choose. I am sorely perplexed, either way. (23) My own desire is to depart and be with Christ, for this would be by far the better. (24) But for your sakes it may be more needful that I should stay here still. Indeed I am confident that this was, and therefore I am sure I shall stay, and stay near you all, to promote your progress and joy in the faith; so that you may find in me fresh cause for Christian exultation, through having me among you once more."

"Whatever happens, let your lives be worthy of the good news of the Christ, so that, whether I come and see you, or only hear of your affairs at a distance, I may know that you are standing firm, animated by one Christ, and joining with one heart in a common struggle for the faith of the Good News, without showing the least terror of your opponents. To them, this will be an indication of coming ruin, but to you it will be an indication of salvation: an indication from God. For on behalf of Christ, you have had the honor granted you, Not only of trusting in him, but also of suffering on his behalf."

"It is the same hard struggle as that in which you once saw me engaged, and which you hear that I am maintaining still."

The first thing noticed is that he wants his brethern at Philippi to recognize this fact, That his imprisonment was for the furtherance of the spread of the Good News.

2 The brothers have gained confidence in the Lord thereby.

3 They now speak with greater freedom of God's message fearlessly.

4 Some proclaim Christ out of jealousy. Others from love of him. But Paul rejoices that Christ in some way is being made known.

5 Then he says, quoting from Job xiii. 16 "All this will make for my salvation."

6 This agrees with his expectation and hope that he will have no cause for shame. But through his courage "Christ will be honored in his body, whether by his life or death."

To this there is no possible point of either doubt or misunderstanding. All is plain and all agree as to his meaning. Let me incidentally remark that much has been said in a few words. Each sentence conveys a thought, with very few words. In fact almost too few words are used in the next sentence. "For life to me is Christ and death is gain." The gain here mentioned is not to himself, but to Christ. He has just said that Christ will be honored either by his life or by his death. Meaning in any event he will die courageously, as behooves one who has the hope of the blessed promise of Christ, that he will "raise him up at the last day." John vi. 40. Then he says, as though arguing with himself, "What if by continuing to live my labors bear fruit," In this sentence he evidently has omitted the word "here" after "live," but does supply it in the next verse but one, when he says "But for your sake it may be more needful that I stay here still." He says in vers 22 that he cannot see which to choose, and is sorely perplexed. Then comes on text: "My own desire is to depart, and be with Christ, for this would be by far the better." His desire is to depart. And truly I don't blame him. He has been a prisoner some time in Rome, and was a prisoner nearly or quite two years before coming to Rome. No doubt at all in any one's mind that so far as Paul himself was concerned, to depart would be far better. But unselfishly as Paul always decides, he says "But for your sakes, it may be more needful that I should stay here still." At this point his mind is made up, and he wavers no longer, as the next sentence tells us. "Indeed I am confident that this is so, and therefore I shall stay, and stay near you all."

Then he tells what his work will be while he still remains—"To promote your progress and joy in the faith, so that you may find in me fresh cause for Christian exultation, through having me among you once more."

There is one phrase I have purposely omitted until now, and that phrase is "And be with Christ." Just what shade of meaning Paul had in mind I do not know. I do know that we have record of his being with Christ and talking with him before this time. First was when he was on the way to Damascus when Christ appeared to him and said "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me," Acts ix. 4, and again in Jerusalem when Christ appeared to him and said, Acts xxiii. 11, "Be of good cheer, Paul, for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also in Rome." I think there are scriptural grounds for this interpretation, that could he still hedging the will of Christ, still be with him in spirit, he would prefer leaving Rome. I do not give this as the absolute meaning, but it is what I gather from the words.

Our text is often quoted by those who believe that we go direct to heaven at death, as the one verse in the whole Word that would strengthen that idea. The thought is untenable for many reasons, a few of them I will give.

Whatever it is that he is in a "strait betwixt" it is his choice, his option, as it were. And if one chooses that he thought far better was dying and going to heaven, where Christ is, then it would follow that he is contemplating suicide. Because he that dies of choice commits suicide, and suicide is self murder. And Paul says in his Galatian letter, v. 21, speaking of murder, etc. "They who do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." This may be putting the matter a little stronger than they who so use the text would. But it is but following the thought to its ultimate conclusion.

Another reason is, there is not a promise anywhere within the Bible of a man ever going to heaven, either at death or at any other time. It is true that Elijah was "caught up in a whirlwind," but so have many other men. But they all came down again. Enoch was translated. I do not know what that means, but he did not go to heaven. Because the Record says Christ's own words, John iii, 13, "And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of Man which is in heaven." Again in John xiii. 33, Christ says "And as I said unto the Jews, whither I go ye cannot come, so now I say unto you again." The reward of Christ's presence, and of the eternal life is at his appearing and kingdom—not before.

In Revelations he says, "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give unto every man as his works shall be." Therefore, we are taught to pray "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." The fulfilment of this prayer being the fulfilment of the promises, and the prophets regarding our future since the world began.

EUGENE C. WENSTER.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I have been wanting to write more of my "Random thoughts" for some time but could not seem to get to it. But on Mar. 4th the most appalling calamity occured in Collinwood that I ever witnessed, and our hearts have been filled with sorrow ever since. Brothers and Sisters from Seattle to New York want to know about it, and I am not able to write to each, so ask you to be kind enough to insert this in THE RESTITUTION and oblige many of your readers, if not all.

Collinwood is a village of say, about seven thousand inhabitants east of the City of Cleveland near the Lake. Here is my home since 1869. We have good schools and school buildings. One is about a-half mile away and one of my daughters and her husband and two little ones a few rods beyond. On Mar. 4, I was there talking with them, when the fire alarm was heard. My son-in-law (Wallace Upton) opened the door, says he, the school house is on fire! and was gone like the wind. I tried to run after, but soon found that a man over 80 years old can't run much, in fact I had to quit running and was used up. But just then I met my little grand daughter age 6 years just out of the burning school. The smoke and flames pouring out of the door and windows. She was crying, said she, "They wouldn't let me get my coat!" I told her she should have another, hustle home to mamma. I then started to around the burning building; could see no one at the windows and had no idea but all must have got out, till I got around near the rear door, then I saw and heard what I shall never forget, should I live 80 years more. Looking in the door they were heaped upon heaps, and the screams! Oh dear, I can seem to hear them yet! My heart bleeds for the poor little things. They started along the passage to go out the door, but some way stumbled and others still crowding on and on—the awful fire behind they could not turn back, but they piled up and could go neither way; and there was my son-in-law Wallace Upton and others trying to pull them out, and did get out some. Wallace came out half roasted for breath, with a sad heart, and said, She is gone! No said I, I met her, she is safe at home. I feel sure he never heard happier words in his life! But still he tried to save more! I have mentioned this particularly, because the early reports in the newspapers had it that his little daughter was lost, and he dangerously burnt. I am happy to say our little girl was not lost and that Wallace though painfully burned was not dangerously burned. How many he did rescue we don't know, but he and others rescued quite a few, and all did their best. When the fire company got there it was too late to save life or building. The awful sound of screaming of the poor little ones was replaced by the agonizing cries of the mothers and fathers, a large majority of whom were foreigners, whose expressions in words I did not understand, but I did understand them to be expressions of grief and sorrow for their dear ones. I counted my half I might say. The fine school house we had has nothing standing but chimneys and walls (brick of course) and about 175 little ones are no more! I cannot tell exactly how the fire started. I do not know, one thinks this and another that. One blames this one, another that one. For myself, I cannot blame any one. To me it seemed strange there was so much to burn and make so large and hot a fire in a brick building, but there was a big fire and awful hot.

As I looked at it and heard the terrible roar, I could not help thinking of the fiery furnace of Nebuchadnezzar that was heated so hot, and the three Hebrew children bound and cast into it! And then of the king who looking into the furnace said, Did we not cast three men bound into the furnace? Behold! I see four men loose walking in the fire, and the fourth is like unto the Son of God! And that not so much as the smell of fire was on them. And I thought of the time after the Lord shall come, with ten thousands of his saints to judge, rule, or govern the world, every one of his saints being like or equal to the fourth one in the furnace, who not only had power over fire for himself, but for the other three also. And though from infancy I was taught to pray thy kingdom come, I feel I can do it now with greater earnestness than ever before. God's promise to Abraham was that in him and in his seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed. The seed being the Anointed Jesus and his saints who will then be like him, and equal to the angels. Oh, what a blessing it would have been to the people of Collinwood could the Lord or one of his saints like the angel in the furnace appeared just then, and quenched the violence of the fire and delivered all the 175 children safe and sound. Let us pray thy kingdom come.

Brother Underwood,

Enclosed please find $1.50 for THE RESTITUTION another year. The dear old paper grows more dear each year. We look for it with eager anxiety, as for a dear friend, and why not? for it's our only preacher except when Brother or Sister Woodward has compassion on us, and comes for a Sunday, or Bro Blakely in kindness gives us some blessed words of cheer and council, when he can make it convenient to call on us. It is inspiring to think as we study the Sunday School lesson, how many dear ones are doing the same all over the world, and if we cannot hear the explanations each one gives God can, and he loves us too, and it lends a solemnity, an inspiration to feel that it may be at the same time our prayer ascends to a throne of grace, blessed thought to me, and thrice blessed the thought, the assurance, that Jesus that our King is coming to claim his own.

"God be with you till we meet again" in that blessed reunion, is my prayer in behalf of all the dear ones in Christ.

RELLA RICHARDSON.

Dear Restitution:

Find enclosed $3.00, $1.00 for a new subscriber and $2.00 for my paper another year. I could not do without it, it is all the preaching I have. I am still holding fast to the faith once delivered to the saints. I rejoice in the promises made to Abraham and to us through Christ.

My love to all of like precious faith.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 29.

Temperance Lesson. Prov. xxiii. 29-35.

Golden Text.—At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder. Prov. xxiii. 32.

Intemperance—drunkenness brings woes, sorrows, quarrels, complaints, wounds, redness of eyes—to the drunkard. Also bson companions, his pleasure is in their company, he enjoys the drunken bout, the hilarious laughter, the roaring song the reckless abandon.

His wife—if he has one—has greater woes and sorrows, heavy, painful afflictions, dire misery, often poverty and wretchedness. His children suffer shame and disgrace. Does he know it? Certainly. Does he care? He pretends to—if sober—he can even mourn and weep, and this leads kindly hearted people to say, "Pity the poor drunkard." Let us always remember that God, who is love, (1 John iv. 8,) he is merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth. Ex xxxiv 6. But he has never expressed any sympathy for the drunkard.

The first temperance lesson is given in Lev. x. 9. Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die.

It is not recorded, but there is a strong inference that Nadab and Abihu were under the influence of strong drink when they offered strange fire before the Lord. They did not get an opportunity to repent the offence. Lev. x. 1, 2.

Under the vow of a Nazarite to separate—set themselves apart for a time—to the Lord, the restriction from wine or strong drink was more than temperance, it was very strict prohibition, not only from the liquor but from any thing that could produce it. Num. vi. 1-4.

You shall buy oxen, sheep, wine or strong drink, or whatever you may desire. Deut. xiv. 26. This was not a license for drunkenness. It was strict temperance both in meat and drink. A drunkard or glutton was stoned to death. Deut. xxi. 20, 21. This law if applied now would ruin many liquor dealers.

Prohibitionists tell us that nine-tenths of all brawls, fights, quarrels and crimes are traceable to drink. Temperance then would bring a great measure of prosperity, much happiness, pleasure, peace and solid enjoyment. But not salvation, nor even a promise of it from God. Temperance is much to be desired, but neither temperance nor prohibition can bring peace on earth, good will to men. Temperance is one of the most valuable things for this life. But of itself it goes no further than this life. Solomon in the book of Ecclesiastes proves, as much as words can, that the full possession and use of every thing this world can provide is only vanity—profitless and vexatious.

It is well, and is good to stand, and to stand unflinchingly for temperance. For if it was possible for a man to do all that Jesus commands, and be intemperate, he could not inherit the kingdom of God. 1 Cor. vi. 10.

It is a gospel—good news—to learn of the tidal wave of temperance that is running high just now. But let us not take it for more than it is worth. It is not the gospel—not the good news of salvation. There is no "gospel temperance" in God's book. The same magazines and papers that publish so freely accounts of the temperance movement, also publish—for pay—whiskey advertisements on the same page, and sometimes in the same column with a murder, or murders by some drunkard. The temperance lesson by the apostle Paul from Jesus Christ is "Not given to much wine." 1 Tim. iii. 7. "Not given to much wine." Titus ii. 3. This is the class of men and women acceptable to God. They have believed the gospel and been immersed. Mark xvi. 16. And their sins washed away. Acts xxii. 16. They do not need to sign a temperance pledge, they have entered into covenant relation with God through Jesus Christ and have hope of eternal life which God, that cannot lie, promised. Titus i. 2.

Next lesson, Jesus the Good Shepherd. John x. 1-18.

P. NEILL.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the Kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope.

W. R. WILSON.

Notice.

To the brethren and sisters of the states of Virginia and Maryland, and isolated ones in the east and south:

The brethren of Shenandoah Co., Va. have been sufficiently interested in the truth to engage me as Evangelist for the present year. It is our desire that every legitimate means be used to further the promulgation of the gospel and strengthen the faith of the brethren. Already twenty-one meetings have been held, and one baptism has resulted, and we desire the good work to go on. Will all in the above named territory send in their names and addresses that we may get acquainted with you, send you reading matter, and otherwise help you.

Address me at Woodstock, Va.

GEO. NEILL.

The Illinois Bible School will convene this year at Oregon, August 18-19, and the Annual Conference from August 19-23. When answering questions of lesson ii, please say if you will try to attend. Please send the names of any others who may be persuaded to come. Let us try to make this year's School the best we have yet had.

S. J. LINDSAY.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of you have files of the "Harbinger" or "Gospel Banner," and can glean any facts therefrom as to early meetings, debates, and time, place, and the names of ministers present at such meetings and debates; names of presiding officers, etc. I shall be very thankful to have such items written out and forwarded to my address—Pierceton, Ind. Also any incidents happening at such meetings, number of baptisms and so on. Kindly send items at once.

S. ROXANA WIRE.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

We wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our Library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry F. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by O. M. Myers in 1882. 50c

The Hydropathic Encyclopedia, a system of Hydropathy and Hygiene, by Dr. R. T. Trall. A large and exhaustive work, 75c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

Indiana Brethren, Greeting:

Brother Neill's resignation has made me your President. I wish to express to you my willingness to help you in any way that I can.

Let me urge you to continue your study and the holding of regular meetings. Great good has already been accomplished, and we must not let this work retard. Let us understand and be about our Father's business, ever keeping in mind the promise to the Little Flock.

Address me at 315 E. Pennsylvania Ave. South Bend, Ind.

May God bless and prosper your meetings.

The middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and so make this statement, If any one chooses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 1970 St Marks ave, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 15 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, as the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Evangelizing on the Pacific Coast.

I have started to engage in my third tour of Arizona, this 18th of Oct. This in harmony with the request of Arizona brethren, and the advice of Brother Montgomery, the President of our Northwest Conference. I cannot determine the date that I will reach Tempe and Phoenix. After canvassing Arizona I hope to return to Oregon and Washington. Whether I shall return through California or go by the way of Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio and westward from that State to Oregon will depend on which way the strong calls come. Any that want work on either of these routes will please write to me at Phoenix, Arizona at an early date.

If any who have paid for their pictures have not received them please notify me at once. Address at Oregon, Ill.

EMMA L. SMITH.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Paulo John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 886 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the oldest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother,

T. J. DANIEL.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain single phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerely all is well with them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves converted by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Selfishness for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 4502 Woodland Av, Cleveland, O.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Postage stamps taken for sums less than one dollar. Money sent in unregistered letters is not guaranteed by the government.

After you examine your money order and see that it is drawn on the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. to U. of Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her son, George, gets a money order in his own name and sends it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has been strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on [illegible] stamps and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, been neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Shall We Meet?

Shall I meet thee, my brother, in Eden restored,
To purity, holiness, beauty and bliss?
Where flood and the bomb shall be ever [illegible]
And its fulness flourish unsullied to me?

Shall I meet thee, my brother, where sorrow is not crying,
And pain cannot enter, and death shall not be?
Not a plaintive veil—no drooping, nor sighing—
Where all are immortal, and happy and free.

Oh say, shall we meet?—or shall one but be there?
Shall I be rebuked, and you win the prize?
Or I and not you, or shall neither appear
Triumphant with saints when to glory they rise?

I mean to be there, through the Master's rich grace!
My brother, my brother, be this thy resolve,
To think on the bliss, to be held his bright face,
While ages on ages their counters revolve!

Enduring the cross, and despising the shame,
My brother, my brother, like Christ let us be!
The crown kept in view, and in Jesus' name,
To the end of the conflict in glory we'll see.

—L. B. Chase in Gospel Banner, 1864.

Communicated.

Notes by the Way.

Leaving St. Louis, I took the train for Morse Mill, Missouri; on arriving there, was entertained by Bro. John Williams and wife. Meetings were held in the comfortable church house owned by the congregation at that place. The attendance, while not large, was fair, and some interest manifested in truths that were spoken. One night it commenced to rain, and it was hardly thought worth while to try to hold meeting at all, nevertheless, we went, and we found an audience of forty-six, who had interest enough to brave the inclement weather. Morse is the past has been the scene of many a conflict for the "faith once delivered unto the saints," and even now, with a united and persistent effort much good can yet be accomplished. On the last Sunday, after the morning service, we all went to the river where I baptized Samuel Satterfield of St. Louis, who came up for the purpose of yielding obedience to the faith and finally gain the victor's crown.

This gathering at the river, reminds me of another gathering at the river which we sometimes sing about:

Soon we gather at the river,
The peaceful, the beautiful River
Gather with the saints at the River
That flows by the throne of God.

Soon we'll reach the silver river,
Soon our pilgrim toils will be over,
When our happy hearts will quiver,
With the melody of joy.

May our young brother, and all the faithful at Morse Mill, now resolve to endeavor to "gather at the beautiful river."

I next started for Bosworth, Missouri, by way of St. Louis. Had the sometime to wait at St. Louis. Sister Logan of the Sanitarium, met me at the depot, and together we started for the home of Sister Satterfield, the mother of the young man whom I baptized. We stayed to supper, and had a pleasant time together.

I took the train between ten and eleven o'clock at night. Arrived at Bosworth the next morning. I was met by Bro. and Sister Murray, and conveyed to their home, about three miles distant in the country. The meetings were held in the Fairview school house, and were a success from the start to finish. We could not possibly seat all the people. The crowd kept getting larger all the time. Several confessed receiving information they never had before. Objections were cleared away satisfactorily. A little spice was added to the meeting by the opposition of the gentleman who taught school in this house. He talked to the school children against my coming. The children, [illegible] went home told their parents what he had said. This raised a breeze, which tended to the furtherance of the gospel.

Bosworth is a field where my Uncle Benjamin Wilson preached over forty years ago. He baptized some ten or twelve at that early date; some of which are still living there among whom I might mention, Bro. and Sister Huffaker.

Some of the young people manifested interest in the truth. They ought to have a band of Young Heralds at this place. The Heralds are very helpful in the ministry of the gospel, and ought to be established everywhere where a small company of young people can be got together. If any one desires information about them, correspond with Miss Anna Dees 529 N Salem Ave., Dixon, Ill.

Having closed our meetings at Bosworth, I next started for Arkansas City, Kansas. Arrived there Saturday night. Went to the home of Bro. and Sister Arthur Chaplin, and stayed over night. On Sunday morning, their son Russell, drove me out to the church, some six miles distant. Here the congregation own a very neat church building. Soon after the meeting had commenced Bro. Wm Steele, accompanied by Bro. Arthur Chaplin entered the house while preaching was in progress. I was pleased to meet our noted Evangelist from the Pacific coast. During the progress of the meeting we roomed together at the home of Bro. and Sister Jacob Reed. I thus had the opportunity of becoming more intimately acquainted with him. Rain and muddy roads rendered the meetings only partially successful. We have at this place some kind hearted earnest brethren and sisters, whom it is a pleasure to meet with. My next appointment was at Blackwell, Oklahoma. Bro. John Butcher, met me at the depot, and took me to his home, where I was welcomed by sister Butcher. This new married pair seemed so happy together. Bro. Butcher recently married Sister Hadicke, of Geuda Springs, Kansas. He is now building a nice new edge in which to put his bird.

They have ambition at the place, to build a new church house, but not having any at present, the meetings were held in the spacious parlors of Sister Chambers, who is the daughter of Sister Eliza Rahe, who makes her home with her daughter. The audiences were not large, but fairly well attended. A devoted interest had been awakened in some without, which attended the meetings. By a persistent effort at Blackwell, a good work can be done there. It was really a pleasure for me to visit these people. They are certainly a kind hospitable people, [illegible] heart. There is one brother who has no use of his limbs at all, yet he was nearly always at the meetings. He comes on his wheel chair, which he propels with his hands. The Blessed Hope means much to him. He is looking for the time to come, when "the lame man shall leap as a hart." Oh what a relief that time will be to the suffering afflicted children of God.

[illegible]
Should I see you all up there
Standing around the throne,
Clothed in white robes of purity,
With palms in your hands,
Singing the song of redeeming love,
With Crown to cast at the feet."

The above is a blessed united consolation which helps strength to us many Christian sufferers to carry the cross they are called upon to bear.

I received a [illegible] from a [illegible] sister (Rohrbach) living at Stillwater, Oklahoma to come over and help her. Receiving no salary, I can only visit such places as I am needed by those who with a share in my gospel work. I went to Stillwater, however, and found this sister who has fitted up the lower part of her house as a Gospel Hall. She has put benches in and a desk. She has fitted out upstairs as sleeping rooms which she rents to students at the government school, and thus earns a little money that way. She hired a larger hall for me, and advertised it by hand bills. Sometimes we had fair sized audiences, and other times not so large.

Most of the audience was composed of Adventists and Republicans,—two of the broadest classes of people to do anything with. The Adventist persistently denies the restoration of God's ancient people of Israel, thus rendering the teaching of the gospel of the kingdom of none effect.

The Russellite denies the resurrection of the crucified One who hung upon the cross. They say his body was supernaturally removed from the grave, in place of being raised from the dead as the angel told the women.

Although not apparent, we trust that some good has been accomplished. We cannot always tell when the seed sown will take effect.

The sister not being conveniently situated to entertain me, the Adventist preacher invited me to be his guest while meetings were in progress. I accepted of his invitation. While thrown together, we discussed our differences. I believe he is honest, and really wants the truth, and will finally emerge out of Adventism. He bought a copy of Fine Woods Bible Class, and also the Students' Text Book. If even one Adventist preacher can be made to see and preach the gospel of the kingdom, my trip will not have been in vain. A daily Advent preacher heard me preach one Sunday morning, on the "One faith and Hope, as based on the earth-bound covenants." She said it was the grandest sermon she ever heard in her life. It may be possible, then, that my trip to Stillwater was not in vain, and the call heaven sent.

"Lift up the trumpet, Oh lend her it ring!
Jesus is coming again!
Cheer up ye pilgrims, be joyful and sing,
Jesus is coming again!
Behold it billetops, proclaim it ye plains,
Jesus is coming again!
Coming in glory, the Lamb that was slain,
Jesus is coming again!"

Amen, so come, Lord Jesus.
Yours in the Blessed Hope,
W. H. WILSON.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 44).

Bro. Hatch's effort to add some thing to what had been a very meager living for his family, did not prove a success, such fruit as apples and pears went down to almost nothing in price, and some seasons the strawberry crop was almost a failure, coming to only 15 dollars, when under favorable circumstances it would have brought 1500 or 1800. The unwonted hard work broke down his health. His sons were not talented to stay, and keep the affairs of his troubles in Aug., 1886, his wife's mind gave way, and he could no longer keep house, Anna having married in the fall of 1882, so the little place had to be given up. But the dear wife must have recovered, for 6 years later, Mch., 1892, finds him at Paris, Ill., and he speaks of his wife, and of having been in Illinois three years, working at some point where he was paid five dollars per week, with five dollars a month rent to pay, though one of the richest counties owned 240 acres of land and had thirteen of fat cattle, fat hogs and mules on his farm. This man only paid Bro. Hatch eight dollars for a year's preaching. Evidently he did not set much value on God's great gift of eternal life; or having freely received the precious message of the gospel, he would have felt no stone unturned in his efforts to have it carried to the ears of other dear lost ones. I do not know who he was, nor where he lived, but I cannot help feeling sorry that he failed so utterly in learning that God, having given us the truth that saves, has obligated us to pass that truth on to others.

From the place, Bro Hatch went to Memphis, Tenn., and remained a little over a year, having worse even, than he had in the north. He remained sometime at Paris, Ill., made one or two trips to Missouri, and then moved to or to Sandersville, Indiana—his daughter caring for him, I think after her mother's death.

I fear we did not appreciate this modest, self sacrificing laborer as we ought. Reading over his letters and noting how little he received—sometimes coming home with only fifteen cents after having been gone for weeks; at other times too poor to buy clothes to go to Conference. Again, obliged to take the money belonging to his family to pay his railroad fare to his appointments, it looks as if we did not do our duty. Yet he loved us and we loved him. His attachment to the brotherhood was very strong. When he heard of Bro Griffin's death, he almost sank to the floor, and he rarely wrote without naming the various members of the church and sending his love. The last visit he made us was a peculiarly happy one. He picked berries, trimmed trees, mended porches, rested, sang, read and talked of the blessed hope, or told me tales of his early life, at his own sweet will. This could have been but little more than a year or so before his death. We cherish the memory of that visit. It has a sweetness that nothing can ever take away. Truly "the memory of the just is blessed."

Bro. Hatch preached the truth for 41 years—a long time to endure as he endured. Surely he "fought the good fight" and when he wakes up and is crowned in the kingdom of God, will not many a dear saint say rejoicingly, "We are here Bro. Hatch, because you so patiently taught us the way of life?"

If I have, by voice or pen, been the means of leading any one to Jesus, I owe much to Bro. Hatch for showing me how to put the gospel story in plain and simple language, so that a little child could understand it.

I turn now to another faithful soldier of the cross, who has so often carried the standard of his Lord into many a fierce battle and has each time, come with it victoriously from the field, not a weapon having been suffered to pierce its folds. J. F. Waggoner is a tall, some but slender man, with satisfied eye, courteous manners, entertaining in conversation, a good reasoner, logical, eloquent at times, going to the very heights of sublimity in describing "the things that God has in store for those that love him," yet modest withal, and inclined to take the lowest seat until invited higher by the Master.

He was born in Miami County, Ohio, Jan. 30, 1830, and came with his parents to Fulton County, Indiana in 1839, and became obedient to the faith in 1866, being pioneered by Elder Jacob Shaffer of Kewanna, Fulton County. In 1862 he made his first attempt at preaching in his home county, and as he continued speaking his intelligent ability as a preacher and an expounder of the unadulterated gospel of Christ, soon came to be recognized by the brethren, and he was sent for here and there to fill the Master's bidding. He preached at Claysville in Wm. T. Gaff's neighborhood shortly after he began his ministry, and spoke there occasionally for several years. In 1866, he began laboring at Burgett's Corner, and in Aug., 1870, attended a large Conference of the brethren in Chicago, Ill., which Bro. Read, Bro. E. H. Derick, Bro. Benjamin Wilson, old Bro. L. H. Chase and John L. Wilson also attended. Bro. Wilson was chairman. The speeches were ten minute ones, with the exception of Bro. Wilson's, which took up a half hour. Bro. Waggoner was eloquent, despite the restriction as to time. This was the first time Mr. Winchell heard him preach, though he had met him at the 1861 Conference held in Bro. Gaff's Liberty, at which Bro. Richard Corbaley was present.

Sometime in the early 70's he spoke at Laud, Whitley County, in the Dingle church, and had a large turn out, with good interest, but with no apparent results. The seed that we sow does not spring up and grow, and bring forth fruit in an hour's time, and yet, it is not lost. It has its influence in moulding and changing the thoughts of men, and if watered by an Apollos, God will give the increase.

In Dec., 1874, I find Bro. Waggoner at Remington in company with Bro. W. L. Winslow—that sheary man, whose presence was enough to drive away the blues, and who had held, or who afterward held, at least three discussions—the first at the Bailey school house, with a Universalist named Dick, the second at Roll, with an M. E. minister by the name of Edmonson, and the third also at Roll with a Mr. Mavity.

Brother Jacob Shaffer, and Brother D. T. Halstead were also at that meeting of days at Remington.

In April 1875 he and Brother Winslow were at Remington, Ind. and at the close of their meeting organized a church, and in 1876, Brother Waggoner was appointed special contributor to THE RESTITUTION.

Sept. 8, 1876, Brother Waggoner held a meeting at New Palestine, Ind., and found "the opposition as strong there as at any place he had visited for years," and asks "How do I account for it? Do you think if the little handful there had kept quiet about the teaching of the Bible, it would have roused the whole town? If in war times we should see a powerful defense prepared, should we not conclude the enemy was no insignificant affair?" We surely should, and so, wherever the brethren meet with opposition and with all manner of breast-works for defense—but they built of brush or what not,—they may be sure that their antagonists are afraid and will bring forward all the guns in their possession to guard our progress, and to protect the strongholds of their armies.

Brother Griggs of Indianapolis, and Brother Hatch both assisted Brother Wagoner at this meeting, and near the close, they had a full house and deep interest. Brother Wagoner stopped at Indianapolis on his return and met some of the brethren there.

In 1882, he preached one month at Pierceton, gaining respectful attention, until forced to give up his appointments on account of poor health. He also spoke occasionally at Gospel [illegible] church. In Dec. he went to Florida and found a few willing to hear, and glad to obey the gospel, baptizing fourteen while he was there—a good showing for four years labor in a new place. He met the same opposition there that we meet here in planting the truth, and there were no conference meetings to uphold and cheer him. He held one public discussion while in the land of flowers. His opponent being Dr. Curry, a fine scholar, and a polished gentleman, but not no minister in those parts who preached the gospel in its purity. In 1888, he returned to Indiana and in November of that year was sent as a delegate to the First Annual Conference at Philadelphia, and there met Auntie Willard and many more dear sufferers of the cross. His theme in that memorable gathering was "The Coming of the Lord" and he showed that he loved it, not only "by the gleam of his eye" but by the earnest, forcible and feeling way in which he presented the subject. We know where Brother Waggoner stands, he believes what he preaches, he makes no compromise with the Evil one, he are not afraid of his cutting out any part of the Bible; he has become as a little child in this, that he believes just what the Father says, and will not add or take from it, even to a letter.

He has preached in Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, Ohio, and other states, and is widely known and greatly beloved, and like Brother Hatch, when he gets into the kingdom will find many there who will rejoice because of what he did in bringing them into the light and liberty of the gospel. It is now 45 years since he began to speak for God, and we pray that he may be spared to preach on till Jesus comes.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life essential for final salvation.

Obituary.

Levina Waggoner was born in Bascom, Seneca County, Ohio, May 17th, 1830, and died in Argos, Indiana, on March 22d, 1908, aged 77 years, 10 months and 5 days.

She was united in marriage with R. S. Baker, November 8th, 1853. To this union there were born eight children, the eldest and youngest of which are dead. One son and five daughters remain to mourn a mother's loss, the husband having died in 1898.

She came with her family to Indiana about thirty years ago. Early in life she united with the Methodist church. Later she came in contact with the doctrines of the Adventist faith and embraced them by baptism, May 31, 1882.

The funeral service was held from the Church in Argos, March 24, burial was made at the Jordan cemetery southwest of town. The writer spoke words of comfort from Prov. xxxi 10-31; 1 Thess. iv 13-18. Sister Baker sleeps awaiting the resurrection morning.

"Weep not that her toils are over,
Weep not that her race is run,
Glad must we may rest us calmly,
When our work, like hers, is done.
Until then we yield with gladness,
Our dear loved one for him to keep,
And rejoice in the blessed assurance,
"He giveth His beloved sleep."

Indiana Bible School.

The Indiana Bible School will convene this year at Plymouth, Indiana, June 15. This will be the day following the June Conference at Antioch. So those coming can come in time for the Conference and stay over the following week. Last year the attendance was about double the previous year, and we hope to have a like increase or more this year. Work is being planned that will be both interesting and instructive to those in attendance. Those coming please notify Mrs Phebe Willey, Plymouth, so that lodging places may be secured.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
J. H. WILLEY,

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 1, 1908

SISTER S. ROXANA WINCE accompanied by her nephew Omar Clover, visited in Plymouth last week, and while here called at our home.

BROTHER R. G. HIGGINS has been holding a series of meeting at Oregon Ill. We have no report as yet, but hope it was successful.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

SISTER Woodward of Michigan says in a recent letter that she is now improved in health, and expects to be with the Plymouth Church the second Sunday in April. We are all glad to learn that Brother Woodward is also much better.

BROTHER S. J. Lindsey has been holding meetings at South Bend, Ind. the past two weeks. He was called to a funeral at Argos last week, and made us a pleasant call on the way there. His meetings were to close on Sunday night.

WE have loaned a copy of Brother J. M. Stephenson's work called "God's Plan of Salvation," and do not remember who has it. We freely lend books that we have to brethren who ask, and several have been out a long time. Please send them in.

A LETTER from Brother George Neill tells of his work in Virginia, and shows that he is kept busy. He has six different places to preach and has in the neighborhood of 100 brethren at these points. We hope for the best results from his work in this old and yet new field.

LAST Saturday while the police were endeavoring to disperse a mob in New York, an anarchist attempted to use a bomb, but it went off prematurely, killing a companion, and so severely injuring the one who attempted to throw it that he will die. Men are so desperate and are so inflamed by the writing and speeches of the leaders, that they stop at nothing in their endeavors to kill those who are pointed out as their enemies. That the innocent suffer by their deeds seems not to stay their hand. Question: Is the world getting better? Don't we really need a Strong Man to come and put down misrule and oppression, and to rule in righteousness? Will our great charitable, educational and scientific institutions, with all their religious factors thrown in, and all the "moral up-lift" efforts that are put forth by well meaning people, be able to bring peace and right to the people? Will politicians and statesmen, and kings, and presidents, and legislatures bring the desired end? With all the strenuous efforts now being put forth, is the moral—the so called "better" element even holding its own against the evil? The most conservative journals of the day chronicle so much more of evil than of good that there can be but one answer to these questions, and when we couple all that is disturbing the masses of the people, with the unrest among nations, and note how a very little fire sets the kettle boiling furiously, we cannot but say the time we are living in fills the requirements, and we are surely in the "time of the end." Brother, Look up, for your redemption draweth nigh.

Two Letters.

———, Iowa, Feb. 21, '08.

Dear Restitution:

After so long a time we send you the pay for THE RESTITUTION, not because we did not have the money, really on account of neglect, and having the care of an aged father, and an invalid mother. Will try to be more prompt in the future.

MRS. ————

This letter contained a money order for $2.50, and was entered on our books Feb. 25. Please note the letter says nothing of the amount of money in it, and makes no disposition of the money other than to pay for THE RESTITUTION. Hence we applied the whole amount to this use, and changed the date from Dec. 1907, to Aug. 1909, changing the type in the label so it would show that date.

On March 27 we received the following letter:

———, Iowa, Mar. 26, '08.

Dear Restitution:

I sent my subscription for the paper also one dollar for the Helping Fund. I have looked for my name to appear so that I would know that the order had been received. Will you kindly let us know.

MRS. ————

Evidently the good Sister intended in the kindness of her heart to pay her paper for an even year, and have $1.00 used to help those too poor to pay for themselves. That was in her mind, and she honestly thought she told in her letter all about her desire. In telling of her reason for delay—the care of father and mother—she failed to express her wish fully as to the disposition of the money, and we had no means of knowing only what her letter said. We have written the Sister, retracing her first letter so she can see just what it says, and have corrected our books in accord with her wish.

The reason why we take the liberty to give this incident place is that should some evil disposed person have met this Sister, and learned of this—heard that we took money and failed to give account for it—he might go away and repeat it, and gossip and fault-finding ensue.

Perhaps other cases might as easily be explained. If we would each make it a rule of our lives to always believe the good one says of another, but always disbelieve the bad—refuse to receive it at all till we have gotten all sides of the story, and then give the accused the benefit of all doubtful points, we would come much nearer doing the will of the Father.

"As ye would have men do to you, even so do ye to them."

Communicated.

The Evangelium of Marcium.

To those who quote Marcion on the authenticity of the first two chapters of Matthew, just a few words to you my friend, just a few words. The Evangelium of Marcion omits the chapters now in question; that is admitted. But friend! Marcion rejected the whole New Testament, and made a New Testament to suit himself, consisting of only one gospel, which he compiled chiefly from Luke, and only ten of Paul's epistles, which he changed to suit his false doctrines, peculiar ideas, and gnostic theories. He denied that Christ was born, and begins his gospel in the words, "In the 15th year of the reign of Tiberius, God descended into Capernaum." He recklessly omitted, besides the first and second chapters of Matthew, the first two chapters of Luke, the account of John the Baptist, the baptism of Jesus, and his visit to Nazareth. He omitted or changed several dozen texts in the book of Luke. If "birds of a feather flock together," does it not look bad for those who delight in the company of the sceptical Ebionites, and in the corruptions of the Evangelium?

Friends, where would you lead us, if we were to let you lead us? Would you not make Unitarians and Deists of yourselves and us? You deny this, you say you only mean to deny the authenticity and inspiration of the first two chapters of Matthew. But friend, good intentions cannot forestall the working out of conclusions from premises. Well-meant disclaimers cannot hinder the logical upshot of principles. The authorities you quote against the authenticity of Matthew's gospel, are just as cogent against most, if not all, the Bible. We cannot close our eyes against your dangerous criticisms of the Bible. Whether you design it or not, it makes no difference, you are covering the Word of the blessed God with dark clouds of doubt. Foul-mouthed infidels have been making war on God's Word for many years. They have made about as much impression upon it as they would have made shooting boiled beans at Pike's Peak. "The Word of the Lord endureth forever." 1 Pet. i. 25. While you are a little smoother in your statements, and a little more deceptive in your tactics, than is usual for infidels, yet you borrow most of your arguments from their works, and teach the same deadly principles of scepticism. You have a dangerous disease, the "last stage" of which is represented by Atheism. May God help you to consider this matter 2 Tim. ii. 7, before you get "past feeling," Eph. iv. 19, before your disease becomes chronic and incurable, when it will have to be said of you, "There is no remedy" 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16, that will heal you.

REUT. G. HIGGINS.

Subscribe for THE RESTITUTION for a present to a friend. It will cost you but little—the result of seed sowing is safe in God's hands.

Skepticism.

Universal doubt. That is where we are today. Lovers of the precious old Bible regret the condition. But here it is, and who, pray, is responsible for it. Where does the blame lie. Not at the open door of avowed infidels, but "wounded in the house of his friends." It is those who profess to love the way of life, and strange to say, are expecting salvation from a knowledge of the grand old Book, and then tell us with great assurance, it is a mark of ignorance to believe too much of the Bible.

We have lying on our desk a paper in which is a supplement. Some very good things in it, but enough bad things to condemn the whole. It would not hurt us, for I do not believe its statements—but what about that young man or woman, not yet well established in religious thought? Listen, this is what it says, "If the genealogy in 1 Chronicles is either true or inspired, that the one in Matthew cannot be either, and we prefer to accept the Old Testament record, and to utterly reject the whole first three chapters of Matthew as spurious."

Those chapters contain much besides this genealogy. Is it not a fact that a certain decree went forth from Herod to kill all the children from two years old and under, and the record says it was a fulfillment of Jeremiah the prophet. If we remember right Jeremiah is in the Old Testament. Was not this terrible decree substantiated by authentic history, and it will be found in one of the three chapters which our writer says he "utterly rejects as spurious." Now if this record be true perhaps there are other things in those chapters which will hold good.

The writer further says "I regret to have to say that the Bible, as we now have it, is a mixture of truth and error, of inspiration and human superstition." What I regret is, that there are so many people trying to show as much human wisdom, trying to get people to follow their ideas, sowing seeds of distrust, and infidelity among the masses. There is a very common disease now called Appendicitus. As soon as a person complains of a pain in the side, a physician is called, an operation advised. Alas, how often on using the knife they find a wrong diagnosis has been made. Too anxious about using the knife. So it is with our biblical surgeons. Too hasty with their scriptural scalping knives, and their wisdom cuts out whole chapters, and condemns much of the entire book as spurious. What would we think of a counsel who would impeach his star witness. Supposing, friends, I should enter an assembly for the purpose of converting some of them to the doctrines of the Christ, and begin by telling them, all we know of the plan of salvation is found in the Bible, especially in the New Testament, but I caution you, friends, for there is so much of it that is spurious, and composed from the fables and superstitions of men, that you will have hard work sifting the true from the false, but I think the Holy Spirit will help you do the separating. How many do you suppose I could persuade, however eloquent the plea might be to accept the Bible and plan of salvation. I would as soon take Buddha or Confucius for my leader, it would be as safe.

It takes a mighty effort for the very best and wisest to persuade men to accept Christ and believe. But one sermon or one article will destroy many for whom Christ died. If this tirade of Bible criticism, so common now in our colleges, churches, and among public men and lecturers is continued, it will not be long before there will be no respect for God, or worship, especially among the young. A volume of sixty-six books, written by nearly as many authors, covering a period of hundreds of years, written from prison cells and dungeons" filth. Written in different languages, would it be strange if an occasional word had been changed? A Jew, a fine Hebrew scholar, told me it was very difficult to find in the English language just the equivalent to express the Hebrew thought. Then consider the many changes made in the English language. Many words have become obsolete, others added to, until we would hardly recognize it ourselves. But when we understand the thought desired to be expressed it is all right.

I have often noticed in court, two men testifying regarding the same matter, both truthful men, but what an apparent difference in their statements! Yet both had told the truth, and the jury accepted both as having the same meaning, although differently expressed.

I accept the Bible as God's revealed will to man. A book inspired of God. I want the first three chapters of Matthew, and the first chapter of Luke. That blessed promise to Mary by the angel, that she should bear a son, and he should take the throne of his father David, etc. What the world needs is more faith and less self-constituted wisdom. If I believed I could take the scalping knife and destroy whole chapters, and what remained was exceedingly questionable, I would have very little faith in what was left.

May God save the honest people from the skepticism of this unbelieving age. Let us lend every effort, as did Paul to preach the Word, if by any means we might save some, and stop trying to file mosquito's bills, or to find the solid contents of a humming bird's eye ball.

Truly we are in the perils of the last days.

R. W. WOODWARD.

A Fight.

"From whence come wars and fightings among you?"

The armies are arrayed in a deadly death-dealing conflict. The motto on each banner is "Earnestly Contend for the Faith." In their zeal they "Earnestly Contend." These are the emphasized words of the motto which are repeated daily and hourly to cheer the spirits of any lagging soldier on either side, and "I know that we are right and we will fight it out" lashes on from both sides. The leaders are determined—determined to be "dead-sure," all are determined to "fight" "come they not hence even of your desires that war in your members"?

These zealous men are not trying to slaughter each other. They are too conscientious for that. They are seeking the destruction of each others reputation. They are not fighting with the "Sword of the Spirit;" they are slinging mud, not to soil the garments but the reputations of the opposing phalanx. Both are all intent on spiking the guns of the enemy and capturing their positions of war by fair or foul means. "Everything is fair in War" and thirds "wars and fightings."

There has been more bloodshed and more characters defamed in religious wars than in all earthly strife and conquests. It is not alone in historic wars of Asiatic Mohammedan against the European "Christian" or Catholic against Protestant but the most detestable is among "brethren" of "like precious faith." When "Ye lust and have not: ye kill and desire to have, and cannot obtain; ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask amiss." They do not wish to be classed as murderers, yet, "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer, and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." They of either side are too brave to retreat and too zealous to stop the struggle. Listen to the conflict:—"It's a lie" "your father is the father of liars." The other side hurls back: "I have nailed another lie to the mast," and thus with black lie mixed with black mud, they are covering each others characters and destroying each others reputations and what is it all about?

One word will tell it. Leadership! Hurl the leaders down. Follow the meek Master. Inscribe on the banner "And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, but the greatest of these is love."

Whenever you are challenged to a contention with a brother remember the new commandment "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye also love one another, as I have loved you, that ye also love one another." "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." John xiii. 34, 35.

The sign of the old covenant was Sabbath keeping, Exod. xxxi. 16, 17.

The sign of the new covenant is love. Let us belong to the Church of God of the new covenant by keeping "the new commandment."

Questions on Sunday School Lesson April 5.

Jesus the Good Shepherd.
John x. 1-18.

Who is entitled to the name "The Good Shepherd?"

Is any one but Jesus worthy of the name "Good Shepherd?"

What does a good shepherd do for his flock?

How many of his sheep does a good shepherd take care of?

Referring to the lesson of the healing of the man born blind, What did the shepherds of the flock in that day do to him? John ix.

Were they worthy the name of good shepherds?

What did Jesus, our Good Shepherd, do for this man? John ix 35.

What was a sheepfold like in Eastern lands?

Contrast the door, and entering in some other way.

Repeat some prophecies of the promised Messiah. Deut xviii 15, Isa vii Micah v 2.

Did Jesus come in accordance with these promises?

Is the Good Shepherd acquainted with his sheep?

How well does he know them?

How well do the sheep know the shepherd?

Compare verses 3 and 9 with Psalm xxiii. What is signified by green pastures and still waters? Read John vi 51, iv 13 14.

What will the Good Shepherd do for his sheep?

Tell the difference between him and the hireling and robber.

Does the Good Shepherd seek only one good?

How does he prove this in our lesson?

Was Jesus' whole life devoted to his people?

How does his death help those he came to save?

What is meant by Jesus being the door?

Can any one enter except through him?

Are there any blessings for those who enter by him?

What is it to have "life," and to have it "more abundantly?"

How can he lead us?

Once he ask us to do anything he was not willing to do?

What does it mean to hear his voice?

Do we know when he speaks to us?

What does it mean to follow him?

Verse 15 states that Jesus knows the Father. How does this fact help us?

In verse 16, who are "other sheep?"

How can all be united in one fold, and with one shepherd?

In this lesson what qualifications belong to the shepherd?

What to the sheep?

Even in Affliction.

A girl belonging to a church society went to call upon a cripple, taking some sweet spring flowers to the invalid. After a little conversation, the visitor asked: "Don't you get tired of being tied to that bed day and night, Miss Gray, week after week?"

"Yes, I think I do sometimes; that is, I grow bodily tired," was the response. "But I try not to think of that. I only want to remember that God is good and merciful. In his love he spared me, even though I am crippled, to live that I might learn to know him here. You see, before I was hurt I never thought about him as being a real Friend and Helper. But since I have been compelled to lie here quiet and helpless, I can even find joy and thankfulness in my affliction; I live to serve him, and that crowds almost every other thought out."

And the one who had come to minister went away feeling that she had received more than she had given during that brief visit. "Joy and thankfulness in affliction."

Truly, only those who know him for the loving Savior that he is can say this.

The Mystery of Prayer.

It is sometimes urged that prayer is mysterious. So is everything if we stop to think about it. Matter is a mystery. Nobody knows what matter is. Force is a mystery. Nobody knows what force is. Gravitation is a mystery. Nobody knows what gravitation is. Nobody knows what takes place when we drop a lump of sugar into a cup of coffee. Whether the change is mechanical or chemical, the very wisest men are not able to say. We know just one thing, that by dropping sugar into the coffee the coffee is sweetened. For most of us that is enough. We know that by dropping a prayer into a day we sweeten the day. How this is brought about we do not know. Who has sight so keen and strong that it can follow the flight of song or the flight of prayer? Why should we not be as reasonable and practical in our religion as we are at the dinner table.—Charles E. Jefferson.

QUESTIONS.

1 Give the story of the resurrection—the earthquake—the angel and the soldiers

2 How many times was Jesus seen after his resurrection before his ascension?

3 How long was it between the resurrection and ascension?

4 Tell of the different appearances, time—to whom—where?

5 At his appearance when ten disciples were present which one of the eleven was absent?

6 What was Jesus' last message to his disciples?

7 By what act do we commemorate the resurrection of Christ? Col ii 2,

8 What would be the result if Christ had not procured our release from the grave? 1 Cor xv 15 18.

9 When and how will life be restored to the righteous? 1 Thess. iv, 16, 17.

10 After whose body will the resurrected ones be fashioned? Phil xv 17 Phil iii 20, 21.

God Giveth Grace.

To deny one's self and take up our cross, willingly and daily, follow the commandments of God and walk in his holy ways require a steadiness of purpose that only those who are sustained by divine grace can endure. The temptations and allurements of the world are very enticing and often promise personal comfort and pleasure that for the time being involve pleasure and profit. In some cases fidelity to the dictates of the conscience awakens contempt on the part of others and puts the love of God to great straits, as well as much disadvantage and loss, but, steady to his purpose, he proceeds on the even tenor of his way; counting it, if need be, better to suffer rather than sacrifice his sense of honor and piety.

Announcement.

The Twenty-first Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug 22 to 30. Programme later.

EVA I. STEARNS, Sec.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for H. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

We wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

The Jewish Pilgrim.

Are these the ancient holy hills
  Where angels walked of old?
Is this the land our story fills
  With glory and with gold?
For I have passed by many a shrine,
  O'er many a land and sea,
But still, O! promised Palestine,
  My dreams have been of thee.

I see thy mountain cedars green,
  Thy valleys fresh and fair,
With summers bright as they have been,
  When Israel's home was there;
Though o'er thee, sword and time have passed
  And Cross and Crescent shone,
And heavily the chain hath pressed,
  But thou art still our own.

Thine are the wandering race that go
  Coldest through every land,
Whose blood hath stained the paler snow
  And quenched the desert's sand,
And thine the homeless hearts that turn,
  From all earth's shrines to thee,
With their love fulness for ages borne
  In sleepless memory.

For thrones have fallen, nations gone,
  Before the march of time,
And where the ocean rolled alone
  Grow forests in their prime,
Since Gentile pinnacles marred the brow
  Of Zion's Holy Hill.
Where are Roman eagles now?
  Y t Judah wanders still!

And hath she wandered thus in vain,
  A pilgrim of the past?
No! long deserved her hope hath been,
  But it shall come at last;
For in her wastes a voice I hear,
  As from some prophet's urn:
It bids the nations build not here,
  For Jacob shall return.

Oh! lost and loved Jerusalem!
  Thy pilgrim may not stay
To see the glad earth's harvest home
  In thy redeeming day,
But now resigned in faith and trust,
  I seek a nameless tomb;
At last beneath thy hallowed dust
  To give the wanderer room.

The Kingless Kingdom.

"They have set up kings but not by me; they have made princes, but I knew them not." Hosea viii. 4.

Every now and then, the reader, who can discern when a writer possesses the qualifications and the earnest of a truly called servant of God, is confronted with a communication in THE RESTITUTION, of very much more than ordinary value. The idea that matters of religion and matters of "pious opinion" are interchangeable, is most destructive to religious progress. The Word of Truth, while plain and easy to those "to whom it is given; who will receive it" does not lay leisurely open like a dictionary, but, like the arithmetic, requires study, patience, docility, fitness. One of our Lord's arithmetic propositions runs: "What shall it profit (?) a man if he gain the whole world, and lose his life?" This is a clear problem in "profit and loss." It (like the arithmetic) presupposes a prior knowledge of life's addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, and the fractions, interest and the compound numbers of human destiny. And, hence, "few," comparatively, ever rightly solve the the Lord's example, for want of ability and the desire (or even the desire for the ability) to go through the figures. It is not hard when in right hands. Nothing is. But it is a hard mess in wrong hands!

Let us remember that the powers of God are all "given"—"gifts." Not human. The unfolding of Truth is not opinionating, essaying or adventuring, but "revelation;" exactly as it was in the first presentation of it. Otherwise it is humanized. It is much easier to reveal a matter than to perpetuate it, and God shows clearly that he knew this, by calling such men as Paul and his associates. Error in exposing the things of God is plainest evidence of disconnection with the Source of Truth—just as in natural matters. It is not, when sincere, wicked or reprehensible. It is often God's way of forestalling an unspiritual church or world! Differences of "opinion" are nothing. A poor waste of time and type. No true preacher will ever venture an "opinion." Even the world is getting away from it. Scholarship, experience, mother-sense will bar it, if nothing else.

There are some difficulties along the path of Bible examination. Certain faults of transcription and tamperings. Not so many. The original tongues are also an occasional barrier, but the Book itself purges these faults out—exactly as a healthy body separates morbid from healthy secretions. The Bible never supposes anything to stand but Truth! Here is our cue and warning. Can we hear them?

Some kindly remarks made recently in THE RESTITUTION upon that slippery word, "Israel," have attracted my attention for the thousandth time towards that very important subject. A bold contention for Truth for Truth's sake shows that some Christian teachers and thinkers can sometime "turn about," without turning their coats or deserting their communion. I have been for years endeavoring to find the real attitude of our writers on this and other vital heads. The words "faith of Abraham," "seed of Abraham," "kingdom of God," "gospel," etc. are of such insistent recurrence in tracts and our paper, and are so interwoven with the Pauline expression "commonwealth of Israel," (a remark having no spiritual bearing whatever) that it is quite pleasant to feel that in becoming a desirable member of a Bible communion, one is not being surreptitiously smuggled back into old carnal, political Israel again. This method was tried (I believe in all honesty) in Paul's time, and his greatest work was that which eventually stayed it. Since the relinquishment of circumcision, judaizing has broken out in various more or less virulent types, and the Book of Revelation predicts its violent reappearance in the time just ahead of us, when the Seven Churches in Asia ("Rottenness," Greek,) shall bloom in all their fragrance of disunited fidelity and unrest.

We have here in Camden, N. J., a young man of good reputation, the son of well-known and estimable Christian parents, who recently married a Jewess, went over pack and baggage to her religion, and declares he has found it to be the only true Bible faith and is sorry others cannot see the same way, who profess to search that Book. It would be a very interesting query whether this young truth-seeker has entered "the commonwealth of Israel," or left it! If the latter, then the interest increases to understand how Paul could consistently recommend that transitory institution to any Gentile—or, even Jew, who had any correct notion of his own records. If this young man has entered the Abrahamic covenant, or any covenant of God, he sets us all no imperative example. If he has forsaken it, the sooner "the commonwealth of Israel" is placed on the retired list, the better—at least for Christians. As a brother suggests, Jesus placed it there centuries ago. My brother says: "The fleshly seed had their opportunity and like Adam, lost. The kingdom of God will not be restored to them." He would have come closer had he inserted the church, for "Adam," but his point is cogent, and very near the Word of God.

In THE RESTITUTION of Oct. 16, '07, there is a fine article by Elder S. A. Chaplin, entitled: "Israel, the Church, and the Nations," to show the same effect. There are three subjects before the waiting people of God, in these last hours of this age, which are of paramount importance to the Body of Christ, because it will not be safe to be wrong there. One is the above subject, the other the so-called "Shiloh" Name baptism; the last, the personality of the fiend, Satan. God has fully instructed us in the whole truth on these heads, by the most forceful and simple language, both literal and symbolic, and any defection is a very dangerous risk, if one has the smallest knowledge of the Word as found in 1 Thess. 4: 13, on. 1 Cor. 15 to 16 is the sufficient admonition against, and the fate of all erroneous teachings in divine matters, and the very plainest assurance and warning that work not perfectly done, or not "all" done is either combustible or must be resumed and completed in the age to come, when the class of men and machinery will be in place to do it!

We can never get the true definition of the words "age to come," until we drop the pitifully small notion that that "Day" will be simply Israelitish, and eternal. The covenant with Abraham (God's, not Abraham's) is clearly in two sections. The first is to Israel—the sons of Jacob and their seed—and was a foregone failure from the very hour it was made! The second was to Adam—the human race—"all the families of the earth," (Eph iii 15) and so utterly swept aside the first partition as to "break it down" and crush it into splinters. It left an earthly promise to the seed in the flesh—the commonwealth—a promise of "land"—their most fanatical and carnal desire and passion—and, when this land is given it will be only some 20 times as large as the ancient area—not as large as Germany, and every whit of it foreign. The prophets in references to Israel's joint and glorious triumph over the nations refer invariably to the ancient peoples who tore and scourged her. The whole scene is set in the post-resurrection age, to come, when Israel and her neighbors have again come into existence. Their names are plainly mentioned and the territory to be occupied, etc., which nothing in Rollin, or any such strained guesses, can tally for an instant. Let any one look at Zech xiv, and Ezek xl to xlv chapters, and place them in any niche of the past! It is impossible.

We may, if we will, see the faint smile which spread over the grave face of the saintly old Abraham when he viewed this promised land of the future, from a mountain top (as Jesus similarly viewed "the nations of the earth"—by what extensive enlargement of the human powers, we know not!) and inwardly shook his godly head as he foresaw the poverty of the future land's proportions and compared them with the vast domain of his eternal Head and Lord. "The meek (Jew) shall inherit the earth," but the "joint heirs" of Christ and his "all things"—sit in the "heavenlies"—"judge the angels" "who kept not their former estate"—not saved from plagues in planet no ruddy as they now walk and swift as light! Else, what in the third heaven to which Paul was caught up—or that company of the redeemed on the sea of glass—or that other company of 24 elders—or the wondrous speed of that angel who was "made to fly swiftly" and who touched Daniel "about the time of the evening oblation"?

Matt xxi 42. Jesus said to them, "Have you never read in the Scriptures, 'The Stone which the builders rejected, the same was made into the head (apex) of the angle' (or corner stone). This was from the Lord and is wonderful in our eyes? On account of this I say to you that the kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a people bringing forth the fruits thereof. And he who falls on this Stone shall be broken, but he on whom it falls it will grind him to pieces." It ought to be a very serious reminder to writers and thinkers, that not one being, purely of the loins of Abraham, but who was a miscarriage in the Messianic relation, Christ was not the seed of Abraham in the ordinary sense, as he was not a pure generation of the patriarch's, having had no human or fleshly father, hence being in all respects but his mortality, unlike every other being in earth or heaven, so far as we know.

Had Jesus been a mere human son of Adam, he would have needed a Savior and an atonement! His Messianic relation consists solely in his being exactly as set forth in the Book, and in his own teachings, "The only Begotten Son of God." This is absolute. It is the bounden duty of every Christian church to instantly and summarily disfellowship, or to refuse membership to every soul holding a contrary opinion. There can be no ambiguity about the foundational things of God. They are plainly written—not for our skill in fencing, but for our faith! They are to an extent subject to reason (sanity), but they transcend reason, hence subordinate it—just as does the creation and every phenomena of life and existence. The rejection of the supernatural sonship of Jesus Christ, along the line of fatherhood, is the renunciation of the whole framework of the Bible, and a practical overturning of the Bible presentation of the scheme of salvation. On any other ground salvation must be one guilty sinner (or debtor) affecting to stand for others, on the plea of more human worthiness or excellence—something Moses and others could have equally shared in.

Now the doctrine of "the kingdom of God," or "of the heavens," (plural) is most essential to the right spiritual attitude to the Word of God. This kingdom has never been among men, as yet, for the insuperable reason that there has as yet been no king. Hosea xiii 11, "I gave thee a king in mine anger, and took him away in my wrath." (See also Hos viii 4) Jehovah was never Israel's king, or he would have ruled! In every age God had arranged and prepared for this kingdom, but the gracious act was, as he foreknew it would be, a mere witness of man's total unwillingness to support it. He made his supreme attempt in Israel, but in a very little while that people made demand for "a king"—that they "might be as other people." Exactly! And God's words in Samuel are, "They have not rejected thee; they have rejected me!" This would be impossible in the true kingdom of God! The history of Israel is the most unsavory of all nations—one eternal crush after "the world, the flesh and the devil." No word but "whoredoms" could divinely apostrophize it. "A seed of evil doers." "A sinful nation. A people laden with iniquity. Children that are corruptors. They have forsaken the Lord. They have provoked the Holy One of Israel to anger. They are gone away backward." (Margin, alienated.) This is the "commonwealth" of Israel, ever and everywhere, "Ye will revolt more and more!" Isa i.

And, when "the king" came, at last, what could such a commonwealth of seditionists do, but exactly what their God said they would do and did? Pity him! God pity them! Thus, so far as the loins of Abraham was concerned, they lost the kingdom of God and the heavens, forever. Because the unalluterated(!) seed of Abraham and of Adam were one—sinners. To rescue and save this seed, the second partition of the Abrahamic covenant was at once instituted—coevally with the first, that not a moment should be lost. This second aspect fell like a massive infliction on the first party-wall and ground it to powder.

Jesus' words are entirely sufficient for the student. Matt xxv 34, "Then will the King say to those on his right, 'Come, you blessed of the Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you(!) from the foundation of the world'"! In this way the kingdom of God was ever lastingly, backward and forward, and clearly in continuous operation. "Prepared." As was Jesus and all the saints and every smallest detail from the very "beginning" of God's purposes. In this way, the kingdom of God is of necessity "within you," or it could never be. God placed its geography in the far future, but not its "seed." The actual rule of God is in the heart. Not by force not by law—but by faith! The kingdom, commonwealth, of Israel was ruled by judgments and violence, because it was not prepared, but similar to other peoples. That was the only way it could have been effected. There can be no "kings and priests" in the kingdom of the heavens except immortalized beings, previously perfected on earth. David, Israel's best specimen king, lost the throne forever.

The words "among you," in the margin of Luke xvii 21, are of no force. The Greek word is "entos," the inward parts." Matt xii 38 supports this. "The good seed (!) are the children of the kingdom," showing that the germs of the kingdom—all but its outward manifestation of authority—were then and now in view. No kingdom, church or organization ever could exist except in this way. They exist as flour, water, salt and leaven exist, but are not bread till properly mingled and passed through the oven. This is the divine simile. Dan xii 10, etc. A kingdom is not considered as a plot of ground or platform, but as an association of intelligences. Jesus, the king, was conceived, born, lived, died, rose, ascended on high, in the present time. Not one act remains for him, now, but to "come" and take the kingdom—the kingdoms Satan showed him, Rev xi 15, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ"—and this when the sinister arch fiend is "cast out," knowing "he has but a short time"! "Ask of me and I will give you the nations for your inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for your possession." Luke xxii 20 to 24 is literally correct, "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation." The Greek word for observation is rendered in the Diaglott, "carefully watching." There is no idea of "outward show" whatever, though the Diaglott deserts its own plain interlineari The Body in 1 Thes iv 13 on, will never think of "watching" for any "signs" of their coming Lord in this way. Their key is, "in such an hour as you think not." "Watch!" the heart, the life. That Day shall not "overtake" them, but it will assuredly "come" when they "know not." Their attitude will not be as those who are fleeing from, but as those "hastening unto." See, here! See, there! Go not after them! Let no one deceive you by any means!"

The restoration of Israel is a plain and delightful department of the age to come. It is not a brief work, but has to do with terrific times and conquests. Israel has to "learn righteousness" and find salvation through the divinely ordained channels, which she forsook of old. The last chapters of Ezekiel contain the program. It is simply an orderly taking up of the work where it broke off—not at all a premium for their sins and crimes—but a making good of every word of every prophet of Jehovah, whether threat or blessing, to all the sons of Jacob among the living and the dead—or Abraham could not be there! The age to come is essentially resurrectional. The true kings and priests are Christ's and his Gentile Body—who received him—forsaking kin, houses, lands (!) and all things to do so. We have no single instance of any Old Testament worthy forsaking any earthly treasure, or becoming willingly impoverished in any service of God. Even Abraham was not called upon to face this extremity. It is a question whether, if this plan had been placed upon those early worthies and their descendants, God could have carried out his purposes as we have them! Here is the real meaning of the words, "In due time."

The passage in Ephii 12 says, "You were in that time without Christ, having been foreigners of the commonwealth (nation) of Israel, and strangers of the covenants of promise, having no hope, and being without God in the world," every word of which is simple historic fact. The next verse calls this being "far off." The heathen nations were in the covenants, not as strangers; because, "having known God, they glorified him not as God," Rom i 21 on. The Israelitish nation was the repository of the divine oracles. They could be trusted nowhere else, and were very precarious there. The Greek word politeia, rendered commonwealth, is literally political. The second division of the covenant with Abraham removed all necessity for the human family to owe allegiance to the nation or religion of Israel. But Paul shows that Israel had every other people at a disadvantage. Rom iii., "What advantage has the Jew, then? or what profit? Much, every way! Firstly, they were entrusted with the oracles of God." They forsook the trust, as a commonwealth, but the Way of Life eternal still lay secreted and dwelt among them. It was not the oracles, but the commonwealth which God removed. And it was this corrupt, treasonous commonwealth which was "the party wall" and enmity to the salvation in Christ. Paul had no thought of the restoration of, or recommendation of, this vile institution, but calls the Ephesian Gentiles' attention to the fact that both themselves and the Jew had been largely the cause of a long withheld redemption. Being "aliens" to the political feature of Israel cut them off, physically. Being strangers to God, they were cut off from him, spiritually. "But now (!) in Christ Jesus, you who were far off are made nigh, by the blood of Christ." Eph ii 13. Not by any good office of the commonwealth of Israel, but by the blood of Christ! Jesus, in Matt xxiii 14 says, "Woe to you, scribes, pharisees, hypocrites, because you shut the kingdom of the heavens from before men, for you enter not yourselves, nor permit those seeking entrance to enter." For this Israel lost the kingdom. He who removed the kingless kingdom was the King himself!

It is because Paul (and Christ) are so careful to mark the distinction between Israel as a commonwealth and Israel as the true seed of Abraham, that we need not err as to the Bible covenants and promises. It is altogether logical and rational to believe that God (like man) will not accept anything of an inferior grade to the sample. To be "of" Abraham is to be like Abraham. To be of Christ is to be "like" Christ. "We know not what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear we will be like him." To get at the true inwardness of the commonwealth of Israel, we must leave the Jew at Calvary, for a moment and go back to those fateful sons of Jacob, whose history was such, it is very hard to see how heaven was ever going to forge through it. Not only in the received murder or sale of their brother, but in such passages as Genesis xxxiii. It is quite all through, the history of Korah outKorahed. Look swiftly from it to that One spotless Figure among the whole race of men and imagine how such a being could be! "O, the depth of the wealth, and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable his judgments. How untraceable his ways! For, who knew the mind of the Lord and who was his counsellor?"

The naturalization of "all the families of earth" into the commonwealth of Israel would have availed nothing in Christ. Paul's words are: Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but keeping the commandments of God. Each one in the calling in which he is called; in this let him remain." Read Eph iv, from verse 10 on. Witness the smash up of that "middle wall" of flesh, in the flesh of Christ; that he might reconcile both (Israels) having destroyed the enmity!—the enmity of the first fatal partition in the flesh and commonwealth. God never destroys what is to stand.

The numerous passages in the prophets concerning the regathering of Israel to Palestine, etc. are beyond question. No earthly condition, and no temporal state of worship and religious exaltation can be conceived as comparable to it. But all those glowing pictures are so interspersed with conditions and exceptions, that commentators have staggered away astonished, and the Adventists given them up in toto. The cure for this was always quite easy. It rests in the one inviolable reminder that the one word in God's Book is "Christ!" No human life or contingency can affect the salvation that is in the Son of God, except in the sinner's each individual case. To in any way interpose Israel or any human soul, is to recoil backward to dead forms, experiments and failures. Abraham (the prince of the Old Testament) was a heathen, not an Israelite—a son of Adam—of heathen lineage. He needed and sought a redeemer, and obtained him! He was sure of the true God, and would be content with nothing less. He "believed God," as no other man ever believed him, in his day, if ever.

God saw it, and at this point, with this man, was the starting place of the Plan which would save the world! and the example of Faith which alone can ever have acceptance with the Father. In all the history of man, Abraham stands out as the great exemplar of faith. This faith was not the ignorant concomitant that is the natural companion of illiteracy or depravity, which we like to dub "superstition;" but a movement of the best intelligence known to man, that what is of imperative necessity to existence, exists. That God was such a necessity, and if so, he existed; and if he existed he would and must reveal himself; and he did.

Once sure of this ground, Abraham never questioned, as Moses or Peter did, as we all do at times. He smiled and laughed lightly at the idea of so old and insignificant a man being good for much in so large a sense as was being impressed upon him. But he never doubted—not even the seemingly impossible. There is no exhibition in the annals of mankind quite like it.

But, it did not save men. It did saved Abraham. More than that, it lifted Abraham to a height in the divine favor vouchsafed to but one other member of the race. Many alone shared it. One man and one woman among men—for the man and woman who had failed in Eden.

We are prone to answer this and other Bible examples with the argument, that these people all "saw." It was not faith, pure and simple. But sight, in itself, is a very small matter; far smaller in supernatural things than in material. For a supernatural revelation (supposing they were of every day recurrence and plain as the stars) would not (never did) of necessity reveal identity. It did not, and cannot (necessarily) designate. Moses instantly objected, at the bush, on this ground: "Who are you? How am I to know and my people to know?" Devils perform wonders. God thereupon changes his attitude and Name, and proceeds to place Faith on a much lower, but securer, plane of improbability and credit. It was not, even then, the plainest sailing for the carnal mind. Jannes and Jambres could have readily floored Moses and Aaron, had not God thus brought Faith very near the portals of sight. And it is because the two powers of good and evil are in active and undoubted operation, that the Word cautions us: "Believe not every spirit, but prove the spirits, whether they are from God."

The command of God to Abraham was intensely suspicious and repellant. But he had one "proof"—a gracious one—when all the conditions were unfavorable. Hence, now, the simple record is "He staggered not." He was no fetisch mongerer. "He believed God" for a reason, though there were the ever prevalent human infirmities to the very last. But his faith all along his life had seen a God like the God who at length spoke to him—and here he was.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 5.

JESUS THE GOOD SHEPHERD. JNO i 1-18.

Golden Text—The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. Jno x 11.

LESSON TEXT.

11 "I am the good Shepherd"—not A good shepherd but THE good Shepherd. "I am." This informs us that there is but one Shepherd that can truly say, "I am the good Shepherd." Jesus illustrated much of his teaching by things that his hearers were familiar with. There are few people, either in city or country but what know something of a shepherd—sheep herd—and his sheep.

There are some who are entitled to the name of good shepherds. A good shepherd is one that takes care of a number of sheep. The good shepherd takes care of ALL the sheep.

Dropping metaphor—figure of speech—for the present. One who teaches sound doctrine, Titus i 9, and continues in it, saving himself and those that hear him. I Tim iv 16. All such are good shepherds, good pastors, good bishops. I Tim iii. They ignore the traditions—the common religious teachings of men. They teach and preach only what Jesus himself taught, neither adding to nor taking from. They teach "The things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ." Acts viii 12. This Jesus himself called "The glad tidings of the kingdom of God." And said, "The gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations." Matt xxiv 14. And he gave instructions to Paul, His chosen vessel, Acts ix 15, to inform the churches of Galatia that if, "We, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. Gal i 8. Thus we have, in simple and plain words, which any one with common reason can understand, that the good shepherd "The Chief Shepherd, I Peter v 4, holds all who preach in his name—or so profess—responsible to preach or teach the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, the gospel that was preached to Abraham, Gal iii 8, and no other.

Isa xl 11, present us with a beautiful word picture of the good shepherd, "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd; he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and shall gently lead those that are with young." This assures us that Jesus was not only the good shepherd to those who became his sheep, but in the ages to come he will be fully and truly the good shepherd. Let us look at a few of the other points in the lesson.

In verse 6 we learn that this was a parable, speaking of himself as the head and leader of the Church of God, under the figure of a shepherd and sheep.

Verses 7 and 8, All that came before him teaching false doctrines were thieves and robbers, prophets prophesying lies in the name of the Lord. Jer xiv 14. The Scribes and Pharisees that shut up the kingdom, Matt xxiii 13, rejected the commandment of God, and taught their own tradition, Mark vii 9, and even robbed widows. Matt xxiii 14. This class of false shepherds are numerous and active now. They serve not the Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly—desire—and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple. Rom xvi 17, 18. This class professing to be shepherds—servants of Jesus—have at present a powerful influence for evil. But they cannot deceive the real sheep—the faithful believer, the seed of Abraham, the heirs of the promise. Gal iii 29.

Verses 9 and 8. They cannot be deceived because they belong to Christ, having the same faith as Abraham. Gal iii 7. The good Shepherd gave his life for the sheep. Christ died for us—the sheep, the believers, the obedient ones. Rom v 8.

All who believe THE gospel, and are immersed, obeying from the heart, shall be saved, Mark xvi 15, 16, and be with the good Shepherd in the kingdom of God. Dan vii 27. The student and teacher, also readers will have noticed considerable repetition in these Sunday School lesson notes. This could be often avoided, but the notes then would not be suitable for Sunday school use. They would take the form of what is termed Scripture exegesis, suitable, and perhaps interesting to those more learned in the deep things. In writing, teaching or preaching so that all MAY understand, the language should be plain, the words simple and the theme the gospel of the Kingdom of God, the gospel of Christ, the power of God to save. Rom i 16.

Next lesson, The raising of Lazarus. John xi.

P. NEILL.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Susephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,

W. H. WILSON.

Notice

To the brethren and sisters of the states of Virginia and Maryland, and isolated ones in the east and south:

The brethren of Shenandoah Co. Va. have been sufficiently interested in the truth to engage me as Evangelist for the present year. It is our desire that every legitimate means be used to further the promulgation of the gospel and strengthen the faith of the brethren. Already twenty-one meetings have been held, and one baptism has resulted, and we desire the good work to go on. Will all in the above named territory send in their names and addresses that we may get acquainted with you, send you reading matter, and otherwise help you.

Address me at Woodstock, Va.

GEO. NEILL.

The Illinois Bible School will convene this year at Oregon, August 10-19, and the Annual Conference from August 19-23. When answering questions of lesson 6, please say if you will try to attend. Please send the names of any others who may be persuaded to come. Let us try to make this year's School the best we have yet had.

S. J. LINDSAY.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

If any of you have files of the "Harbinger" or "Gospel Banner," and can glean any facts therefrom as to early meetings, debates, and time, place, and the names of ministers present at such meetings and debates; names of presiding officers, etc. I shall be very thankful to have such items written out and forwarded to my address—Pierceton, Ind. Also any incidents happening at such meetings, number of baptisms and so on. Kindly send items at once.

S. ROXANA WINCE.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Habstel. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent. Being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by G. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

The Hydropathic Encyclopedia, a system of Hydropathy and Hygiene, by Dr. R. T. Trall. A large and exhaustive work, 75c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

Indiana Brethren, Greeting:

Brother Neill's resignation has made me your President. I wish to express to you my willingness to help you in any way that I can.

Let me urge you to continue your study and the holding of regular meetings. Great good has already been accomplished, and we must not let this work retard. Let us understand and be about our Father's business, ever keeping in mind his promise to the Little Flock.

Address me at 515 E. Pennsylvania Ave. South Bend, Ind.

May God bless and prosper your meetings.

EVELYN K. HARSCH.

THE middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, If any one refuses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 970 St Marks ave, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

We need what is due us on subscriptions and trust all who know themselves to be in arrears will remember us. We appreciate the favor

Evangelizing Notice.

Under the providence of God my health has improved. Duty calls me back to my work on the Pacific. In spite of my desire to meet brethren and relatives on my proposed trip as far east as Ohio and Kentucky I turn homeward in a few days.

After leaving Kansas my first meetings will be at Blackwell, Okla. Those wanting meetings in Oklahoma or Northern Texas will address me without delay, in care of Eliza Rale, Box 254, Blackwell, Okla.

Brethren in the region of Abilene, Texas and west of that city in Texas and New Mexico, etc., address me care of Word and Work, Abilene, Texas.

Arizona brethren and those west of the Territory address in care of J. M. Pike, Phoenix, Arizona.

Brethren of California can reach me at any of these towns if you write soon enough or before I pass. Brethren of California will intercept me at Pomona, Cal., address in care of W. H. Stella. Those of Oregon that write me later dates, will write in care of Clinton Wilcox, Central Point, Ore. I feel competent in health for all this work.

W. L. SHIELS.

Evangelizing Notice.

Will all persons interested in the truth, and all isolated brethren within the State with whom we are not acquainted, please write to me? Beloved, we are anxious to locate and correspond with you, that we may impart unto you some spiritual gift.

Address S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, or Robt. G. Huggins, Box G, Oregon, Ill.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs. Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Poore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Poore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave, Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies post paid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother,

T. J. DANIEL.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 400 pages bound in cloth. Studies at length on the difference between a Christ and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Jobin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Jobin, entitled—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Jobin, 3502 Woodland Av, Cleveland, O.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

From Nazareth.

Comes any good from Nazareth?
The scornful challenge as of old
Is flung on empty jeering breath,
From cloistered cells and marts of gold.

Comes any good from Nazareth?
Behold, the mighty Nazarene,
The Lord of life, the Lord of death,
Through warring ages [illegible] serene.

One touch upon his garment's fringe
Still heals the hurts of sinful years.
Before him yet the demons cringe,
He gives the wine of joy for tears.

O City of the Carpenter,
Upon the hill slope old and gray,
The world need its pain and stir
Turns yearning eyes on thee today.

For he who dwelt in Nazareth,
And wrought with toil of hand and brain,
Alone gives victory to faith
Until the day he comes again.

The Kingless Kingdom. No. 2.

We must remember that all evidences of the unseen are equally valid, whether good or evil. Satan, without exposing his devilish lineaments, proved the supernatural to Adam and Eve and all the race. Spiritualism, Ridyism, Swedenborgism, hypnotism, telepathy, etc., are rampant efforts and forces in the present hour, but are only in the "suggestive" stage as yet and not at all substantial.

The clear and visible operations of Satan were not to be until Rev. xii. The operations of God are through the Holy Spirit, not manifestational. Satan works in a precisely similar manner; controlling all the evil conditions of the primal curse, as disease, etc., bad habits and passions and what not.

The question of a personal Satan is not one of theological importation, but belongs to the simple query; were there or were there not supernatural beings, prior to man, other than God. It is almost universally conceded that there were such. Angel is the common Biblical term, but not in the secondary, or official sense of messengers, without they were that also. Here (as in all such matters) the Word is the only source of evidence. It is incontestible that if "angels" existed before man, they were not men. The powers of these pre-Adamic beings are given in the Word as infinite in excess of man's. They are very much nearer to God than man in this respect, hence are called by the generic term "gods." It is useless to cavil on this word. There is no room for reason, if the Book is more than a fable.

The presentation of evil angels, in Scripture, is not an accident, or freak of literature, or parable or dialect of any sort. Rome believes there was and is a personal Satan, demons, etc., but the ready reply to this is, Voltaire, Payne, Ingersoll, the Universalists and all the hosts of infidelity are impersonal devilites. Men who twist the letter of God's Word are to blame for all this kind of wrong, and very much more. The common experiences of men (as well as the Bible) testify to the indubitable law that neither good nor evil can order itself! There must be a head! something stronger than the subject or victim. The sins of innocence are natural products, but the crimes of maturity against law, decency, self and sense, are the result of the dangers which lay all along the road of the powers of darkness," when Christ is estranged and man presumes upon his own security. Jesus said, "The ruler (archon) of this world cometh, who has nothing in me." This was not Pilate. Paul in Ephesians says, "You once walked according to the ruler (archon) of the power of the air, (aeros,) of the spirit now operating in the sons of disobedience." Thus agrees with the book of Job, and the clear assertions of Genesis, Jude, Peter and the gospels, and with the indisputable assertions of Rev xii, where symbolic language must instantly look like a huge jest!

The saint who assumes he is safe, if secured against his own self and kind, only, is wading towards a sea of awful peril and perplexity. He is overrating sin, reflecting upon his Maker, covenanting and consorting with the devilish suggestions in Eden, and later, and forgetting, in an insecure moment, that just as his divine assurance is that the good in himself is nothing except it is the work of God, so the evil in himself and his race is not only evil, but the work of the great arch-enemy of his Maker, in whom he has rendered himself subject. The suggestion that Jesus did or could for one moment take the slightest thought of rebellion or infidelity to his Father, or be capable of any temptation, trial or thought of such a nature, at once places him in the class of a lost sinner, and a most pitiable one. Millions of the human race never fall or could be induced to fall so low as that. An Arnold, an Aaron Burr, or Judas—one here and there, along the ages. The Record as we have it is thrice repeated. Its physical aspects, as to the mountain, the pinnacle of the temple, etc. are the exact counterpart of Gen xiii 14, 15. Verse 12 shows Abraham chose the mountains, and Lot the plains. In no wise could our Lord pose with Ananias and his wife without being an illustrious applicant for membership in the Ananias club. Be assured, my brethren, that not in all his brief life of some 32 years, and broken career of one year and a fraction, did "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world," ever for a moment suffer the slightest inconvenience from sin—though the onslaughts of the arch-enemy of God and his saints, were the most violent and extraordinary in the history of men. There is not a word in the (Greek original that infers Jesus was tempted, as that word goes in modern tongues. The passage runs, Having been tried in all respects, in accordance with a similar grievance (or deprivation) apart from sin! Heb iv 15. The idea that Jesus was a mere man—a poor, unsteady, moody fool of sin; being up against all he was worth to keep his character and place, is altogether wanting in Paul's words. He was "a man of sorrows," essentially, "and acquainted with grief"—bruised, chastened, afflicted, deprived, "for our transgressions." Shutting our bosoms and trials and exempting himself from no hardship or indignity, but partaking exactly of our life and condition.

As to the "promote" difficulty, there is no room for marvel. At Acts viii 39 we learn that, When they came up out of the water, the Spirit seized Philip, and the eunuch saw him no more. Philip was found at Azotus. No doubt. If Job is a romance, Jude and Peter readers of old mythological novels, such as "The Resurrection of Moses," and the "Book of Enoch," etc., and the vital truths of God are hopelessly submerged in symbols, these arguments from and for the ill life are very false and foolish. But, first, some proof is needed—and some other contingencies must be rearranged.

One word, in conclusion, as to the age to follow the one we are now living in. The keynote is Scriptureally in the word "judgment." Not the final judgment, of the great white throne of Rev xx, but that judgment that was wrested from Christ. I quote, "Behold my servant whom I uphold; mine elect in whom my soul delighteth. I have put my Spirit upon him, he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles," (nations). Isa xlii 1. "The Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High." Dan vii. "Let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream." Amos v 24. "A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench, till he send forth judgment unto victory, and in his name shall the nations trust." Matt xii 20 and Isa xlii. At Acts viii 39, and Isa lii, "in his humiliation his judgment was taken away." At 1 Pet iv 17, "The time is coming for judgment to begin from the house of God." There has not been as yet any species of divine judgment among men, in or out of the Book. No calling to final account—no retribution—no correction or anything out of the ordinary natural. All this is to be—to occupy a set time and to be complete and final. It could not be just, or perfect, or salutary under prevailing conditions. Judgment (or justice) has been since Adam entirely in the hands of man. The Word is briefly, "God has appointed a day in which he will judge the world (?) in righteousness (not wrath) by the Man who he Appointed; having guaranteed a pledge (?) to all (?) in having raised him from the dead." The resurrection of Christ is thus a covenant without condition that both the just and the unjust shall have a right to, and a ground for, another life and one full and unhampered look at the things of God!!

The interpositions of God, in Israel, etc., were not judgments or even blessings in a plenary sense. They witnessed. Judgment in this state of sin would be subject to certiorari, because the right courts do not exist here, as constituted. The resurrection of the dead is the divine writ of habeas corpus—"produce (have) the body." No writ, summons or other mandate can issue as yet, for any ordinary lawyer could quash them, according to the divine code. The words in Matt xi 20-24 are the perfect legal ground for a re-hearing of those old cases of sinful ecclesiastical defection, and practically Jesus' own motion for a new trial, when he in person can conduct it. "We have an Advocate with the Father!" These are the words. If the ages since Eden were final and determinative, it is impossible to see how the mass of human souls can avoid eternal death! It is only a remove from that horrid nightmare of theology and Satan, eternal conscious agony and woe! Ah, the mothers, fathers, children, wives, husbands and beloved ones, the unimmersed and uninstructed to go down into this other hell of eternal death! The treachery of Israel; the recreancy of "the church," the see sawings of "truth seekers," the laxity of those who "know" but "do" not! "Thanks! be to God who giveth us the victory!"

This is all most graciously provided for!

Let us recall that such words as "chance" and "second, or another chance," are not of God, but of men. The clear warning is, "For it is impossible (?) for those who were once enlightened (?)—if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance." The intervening words show a perfectly instructed discipleship in the Apostle's mind, not the unsure of fable and bane and damned, who are called from hedge and highway, indiscriminately into the wedding feast to come—and will go. Not these. "There is a sin unto" (not unto) death, which only damns the transgressor, but no sin, now or ever, that, if repented of soundly, the blood of Christ will not instantly wipe away forever. It cleanses from "all" sin. Bless God!

I have endeavored to handle the matter in this paper tenderly, yet plainly. The weapons used are all of the lighter calibre. There are much heavier guns, all along the ramparts of our good and sure Word, but I prefer the reader should find and fire them. The three errors I have discussed are the great supporters of the traditional immortality peoples; a breach that need not be. The "single" name immersion is not "one" baptism but a one-third substitute, without the slightest evidence that the half dozen cases in the Acts were violators of Jesus direct "commands." These incidents are not mandatory but historical recitals of facts. The Jebusites, Captaanites, Paulites and Christites were all at work, falsely and flagrantly. John the Baptist never baptized in a single name, for God sent him to baptize. To urge faith and immersion in but one Name and person, is a palpable boycott of Deity, Father and the divine unction, and subjects the faith of Christ to the three—one "Tohuvabohu," and is a practical surrender to the falsely styled Trinitarian. The single name baptism infers a reducing or shrinking of the Bible faith to a mystical mercurius of one-third its divine proportions. It is the only consistent form of immersion for the so-called Trinitarians, or popular form of worship, as it presents Jesus as the ghostly, immaterial, condemnation of three persons in One—exactly what Jesus in Matt xxviii 19 and elsewhere sought to plainly forestall. It is a great pity that this matter (and such doctrines of men as the literal pre-existence of Christ) should need any discussion among good people. A literally pre-existent Christ is the strongest foundation for the new epidemic idea of transmigration of souls. The microbes of error are legion. And, like those of the medical schools, have anti-toxins without end. But these "remedies" kill the poor patient. And when all human guesswork and exploiting is over, it will be found that all the microbes and other errors were the vermin of men's human frailty.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 12.
THE RAISING OF LAZARUS. JOHN xi.
Golden Text. I am the resurrection and the life.

The raising of Lazarus was certainly a most marvelous work. He was not only dead, but corruption had begun. Lesson text verse 39. Raising the dead was not an unheard of or actually a new thing. Nearly 1000 years before Christ, Elisha the prophet raised the son of the Shunammite. 2 Kings iv 34. A most remarkable incident is recorded in 2 Kings xiii 21, where the Moabites cast a dead man into the tomb of Elisha, and on coming in contact with bones of that prophet he revived.

Generations, and even nations had come and gone from that time until the time of Christ. Many wonderful things had been done, but no raising of the dead. The raising of Lazarus from the dead must have been as wonderful to those who saw it done, as it would be to us now.

According to the dates given by Whitehouse Jesus raised two from the dead before he raised Lazarus. First the son of the widow of Nain. Luke vii 11-17. Next the daughter of Jairus. Luke viii 49-56. There was a great difference in the cases mentioned. The widow's son was being carried to the grave. The daughter of Jairus had just died. Lazarus had been in the grave four days. Verse 17.

Lazarus was a young man, we understand, one of an affectionate family. Jesus loved him verse 5. His death was sad, untimely and deeply lamented. There ran tone of blame in the words of Martha to Jesus. Lord if you had been here, my brother had not died. Verse 21. In verse 22 she indicates that there is hope yet, even now. She probably knew about the widow's son and Jairus' daughter. "Thy brother shall rise again." Verse 23. These words pointed forward remotely, and Martha wanted her brother alive then. That he would rise again in the resurrection, at the last day she had no doubt. Her faith on that point was perfect. Jesus, her Lord, had promised as much in John vi 39, 40. He had promised that those who believed on him would be raised up at the last day. In verse 25 he repeats this promise. This great hope of the saints in all ages is lost sight of and ignored by the multitude of professing Christians.

The promise of Jesus is followed in verse 26 by an assurance to believers who will be living at the resurrection at the last day. They shall not die. This is explained in 1 Cor xv 53: "This mortal must put on immortality." Verses 25 26 are fully explained,—opened up, in 1 Cor xv 53 where Paul in finishing his grand exposition of the resurrection: This corruptible—the believers who are dead when the Christ comes, must put on incorruption; this mortal—believers who are living when Christ comes, must put on immortality. Observe the word Must. Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter the kingdom of God. That which is born of the Spirit is Spirit, John iii 6 and is therefore incorruptible, immortal, being children of the resurrection, Luke xx 36.

The raising of Lazarus is a positive assurance to all "Beloved of God," called saints, Rom i 7, that death, the grave, and corruption cannot stay, nor interfere in any way with the love and promises of God and Christ. The resurrection of Jesus Christ banished all doubts, and gave a never failing hope of life from the dead, 1 Peter i 3. Notice the beautiful prayer of Jesus just before he called Lazarus, verses 41, 42; Lazarus was not only made alive by the power of God, but lifted up and set before those present. He could not, of himself rise and come forth, being bound hand and foot, verses 43 44. Truly this was miracle and miracle. Jesus spoke with authority, Mark i 22, Never man spake like this man, John vii 46. Such was the testimony of his enemies.

We understand now why Jesus said "This sickness is not unto death," vs 4, and why he said "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth" ver 11. No saint, believer, ever died; nor do any now die, to remain dead. They fall asleep in Jesus, and when the Lord himself descends from heaven, 1 Thess iv 14 17, he will awake them as he did Lazarus, and they shall die no more, Luke xx 36. Truly Jesus is the Resurrection and the Life.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 19.
JESUS ANOINTED AT BETHANY.
John xii 1-11.

Golden text: We love him because he first loved us. 1 John iv 19.

The raising of Lazarus had increased the wrath of the chief priests and Pharisees, so they plotted and planned to have Jesus put to death. On this account he left Bethany with his disciples, retiring to a city called Ephraim, about 10 miles northeast of Jerusalem, supposed to be the place now called Taniheh.

Lesson: Mary anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair, ver 3.

The words in Luke vii 37 38 are, A woman washed his feet with tears, wiped them with the hair of her head, kissed them, and anointed them with the ointment.

Matthew and Mark record that she poured it on his head. The four narratives evidently speak of the same anointing at Bethany. A woman poured it on his head, Matt xxvi 7. She poured it on his head, Mark xiv 3. It is such seeming contradictions that gives the sceptic great joy, and sometimes troubles those who are not sceptical. Reading the four accounts carefully we find this statement, or statements: Jesus said She hath poured this ointment on my body, she did it for my burial, Matt xxvi 12. She is come afore to anoint my body to the burying, Mark xiv 8.

From these expressions it is not at all difficult to believe that Jesus was anointed both head and feet. We have frequently read and heard something about "harmonizing the gospels." That is not so very difficult for the "spiritually-minded," because they harmonize their minds to the gospels. The natural man—unbeliever—receiveth not the things of the spirit of God 1 Cor ii 14, not to him harmony is impossible.

The anointing of Jesus by Mary showed great affection on her part. Jesus kindly received and approved of what she did, ver 7.

The custom and purpose of anointing dates far back in the history of the people of God. Jacob poured oil on his stone pillow and called the place Bethel, the house of God, Gen xxviii 18 19. The Lord said Jacob anointed the pillar, Gen xxxi 13.

The anointing of Aaron and his sons consecrated and sanctified them as ministers unto God, Ex xxviii 41.

The anointing of Saul made him captain over the Lord's inheritance, 1 Sam x 1, king over the Lord's people Israel, 2 Sam v 1.

Moses was told to make "the holy anointing oil" and what to make it of. Death was the penalty if any one else made it, or any thing like it. Ex xxx 22-33.

Ointment, oil or balsam was a thick fluid that would drop or pour from a vessel. The ointment of spikenard that Mary used was not the same as the holy anointing oil. It was very costly; the value lay mostly in the compounding—not so much in the ingredients. The pound that Mary used is estimated at from $42 to $51 worth.

A noted popular preacher was heard to say that Mary was very poor. She washed and scrubbed from morning till night, and raised garden stuff to buy the ointment. A commentator, called a great teacher, writes "That so rich a treasure in the possession of Mary shows that she was one of the wealthiest in the village of Bethany."

These two opposite accounts are given here to show the value of some Lesson Helps, so called, and shows the best and only reliable help is to compare Scripture with Scripture. The Holy Scriptures are able to make us wise unto salvation, 2 Tim iii 15.

This anointing of Jesus at Bethany was not "the" anointing of Jesus. He said "the Lord hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor," Luke iv 18.

The apostles in their prayer said "Thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed," Acts iv 27. God anointed Jesus with the Holy Ghost and with power, Acts x 38.

Many people now boldly claim to be anointed with the Holy Ghost, and some claim with power also, but when asked for proof they find a ready excuse.

Jesus by the Holy Spirit, moved Paul to say "Let no man deceive you by any means," 2 Thess ii 3. And again "Let no man deceive himself," 1 Cor iii 18. What we may term a relic of anointing, is practised in what is termed "ordaining" by laying on hands, the ceremony of crowning a king, and the inauguration of a president.

Let us believe and live so that Jesus will give us a crown of life when he comes.

Next lesson, Jesus teaches humility, John xiii 1-20.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 8, 1908. NUMBER 14.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Brother, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Word received from Sister Woodward assures us she will be with us on Sunday, April 12, and preach. Her subject for the evening discourse will be "Jerusalem and the Jews." Let all make a special endeavor to be present when Sister Woodward is to be here.

We were pleased last week to receive a call from our old friend, Brother I. B. Roberts. He had been spending the winter at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Cuffel, at Akron, and has returned to Argos for a stay with his other daughter, Mrs. Taylor. Brother Roberts is always welcome at our home, and we hope he will soon come again.

Throughout parts of the country in different states the temperance, or rather the prohibition question has been up before the public very much the past year. Just now at an election held yesterday in Illinois the matter is referred to the vote of the people. There has been great interest manifested, and both sides have worked as never before. As we go to press the result is not known, but the temperance people seem sure of success, and we pray their hopes may be realized.

Brother J. H. Willey, President of the Indiana State Conference, returned last Saturday from a three weeks' business trip in Illinois. He reports having met Brother R. G. Huggins at a railway station, as he was waiting for a train. Brother Huggins was on his way to his Sunday appointment. Brother Willey preached on Sunday morning for the Church in Plymouth, his subject being the old, yet ever new one, the Coming of Christ. This subject will bear repeating many times over—indeed it should be brought forward often, and all who heard Brother Willey were well entertained.

The Conferences in Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Indiana are announced, with the Bible Schools and study classes connected with them. In each of these points there is an undercurrent of determination to do more and better than before. This is the right spirit. God has done, is now doing, and will yet do much for his people. Indeed we have the promise that eye has not seen and ear has not heard of all that the Lord has in his storehouse for the faithful. Then brothers, make all possible effort. The utmost in our power is not too much to do for our Master. The brethren in Virginia too are looking to a new Conference, and we can look for a forward movement there, for which all will be thankful and glad. Rally to the work. The time grows shorter—the Lord is coming.

Indiana Bereans. Lesson 5.

CHOOSING AND TEACHING OF TWELVE APOSTLES.

In studying the life of Christ we find, that after his baptism in the Jordan, by John the Baptist, he was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil forty days. After this he returned to Galilee, teaching and preaching in their synagogues. Going to Nazareth where he had been brought up, he entered the synagogue and taught the people, explaining to them the prophecies concerning himself; but his applying these prophecies to himself, filled the people with wrath, and they arose and thrust him out of the city.

From Nazareth he went to Capernaum at the northern end of the Sea of Galilee, where he performed a number of miracles, casting out devils and healing the sick.

Going south to Bethsaida, great multitudes of people pressed upon him to hear the Word of God, so that it was necessary for him to enter a ship and thrust out a little from the land in order for him to teach them. After he had finished speaking he commanded the men of the ships to "launch out into the deep and let down their nets." And we all know the story of the miraculous draught of fishes. These fishermen were Peter (Andrew), Andrew, James and John, who were partners in this occupation. After this miracle, Christ called these four men to leave their nets and follow him that he might teach them "to become fishers of men."

Shortly after this Christ called Philip also of Bethsaida, and Philip findeth Nathaniel (or Bartholomew) and brought him to Christ. We also have an account of Christ's calling Matthew, the tax gatherer, at the receipt of customs in Nazareth. The Scriptures make special mention of Christ's calling these seven men to be his disciples or followers, whom he afterwards selected with five others to be his apostles or messengers.

Luke tells us that before choosing the apostles, he went out into a mountain and continued all night in prayer to God, and when it was day he called his disciples unto him and choose the twelve. Beside the seven already mentioned he chose Thomas, James the son of Alpheus and Judas or Jude, sometimes called Thaddeus, his brother Simon called Zelotes, the Canaanite and Judas Iscariot, the traitor. We have no account of just when and where these five men became disciples of Christ, but we know that the twelve were unlearned men from the common walks of life and some were disciples of John the Baptist. It might help us to distinguish them if we bear in mind the fact that there were four pairs of brothers, viz: Peter and Andrew, James and John, the other James and Judas who is the author of the book of Jude, and Phillip and Nathaniel.

Peter was impulsive and rash by nature as shown by his attempt to walk on the sea, and his rebuking Jesus, as he explained to them in regard to his suffering and crucifixion, also his denial of Christ. But Christ's crucifixion produced a great change in him, giving him dignity, prudence and firmness.

The Scriptures relate several scattered notices of Andrew, but we do not get much of an idea of his disposition. John was the loved disciple, had a gentle nature and was a fast friend of Peter's. Philip was timid by nature. Thomas was slow to believe, he saw the difficulties in every case, but had an ardent love and was faithful even unto death. Judas Iscariot was the steward and probably had special gifts for handling money, which likely developed covetousness, unfaithfulness and eventually the betrayal of Christ.

The gospel writers relate other instances, which give us some idea of the disposition of the other apostles, but we cannot review all of them in one lesson. After ordaining "the twelve" Christ sends them forth to the "lost sheep of the house of Israel" commanding them to "preach the kingdom of God," giving them power to perform miracles and instructing them to make no provision for their journey saying "the workman is worthy of his hire." He exhorted them in Matt x 28 to "fear not them which kill the body but are not able to kill the soul, but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." We understand that Christ's error was to impress upon their minds the great importance of the future life over the present and of fearing God rather than man, and a better rendering would read "fear not them who can destroy your present life but can not destroy the future, but rather fear him (God) who is able to destroy both present and future life." He warned them that they would have persecutions and should be hated of all men, but gave them the promise "he that endureth unto the end shall be saved."

Luke tells us that Christ also appointed seventy other disciples, and sent them by twos into every city; whither he himself would come. They afterward returned rejoicing that the devils were subject unto them in his name. Christ told them to rejoice rather because their names were written in heaven.

After the resurrection Christ commanded the eleven to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be condemned."

At the Breaking of Bread.

Job xxiii 10.

He knoweth the way that I take and when he hath tried me I shall come forth as gold. Doth not he see my ways and count all my steps? But the Lord tryeth the righteous. But the wicked his soul hateth. After all the suffering and loss, after friends had forsaken and death seemed near, Job did not lose his faith in God, but said, He knoweth the way I take. He was trusting in the God that said, I will never leave thee nor forsake thee, for the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous, the eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, he is their strength in times of trouble; and they that know thy name will put their trust in thee, for thou Lord hast not forsaken them that seek thee, for the Lord knoweth them that are his. If we are known of him, then he will know the way we take, and if we like Job, when we are tried can say, I have esteemed the words of thy mouth more than my necessary food. All the while my breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils, my lips shall not speak wickedness, nor my tongue utter deceit. My righteousness I hold fast, and will not let it go. It is only by esteeming the Word of God, the gospel of the kingdom, the bone of eternal life more than our necessary food that when we are tried, we can come forth like gold. By humbling ourselves before God, taking all trials patiently and ever asking for strength, search me O God, and know my heart, try me and know my thought. Then as God rewarded Job for his faithfulness in giving more than he had, so will our Lord say, Well done, and give us the crown of life, if we have overcome and patiently endured, if we have come forth as gold, purified of the dross by the Word, refined and pure, fit for the Master's use. Heavenly Father grant that our prayers may ever be, Keep us unspotted from the world, and may we be among the jewels in the gathering time.

Ella Knowles.

TITUS II.

I have selected a few references on the first verse. "But speak thou the things which become sound doctrine." This is Paul writing to Titus and telling him to speak sound doctrine. What is doctrine? It is a principle laid down as true by a master. And in Psalm xix 7 it says, "The law of the Lord is perfect, but in the marginal rendering it says, The doctrine of the Lord is perfect, converting or restoring the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. How is all Scripture given? It says 2 Tim iii 16. "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, and for instruction in righteousness." How long should we continue in sound doctrine? I think that question is answered in 1 Tim iv 13, for it says, "Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation and to doctrine."

Ida Beckman.

Putting on Christ.

In the book of Romans xii 14, we read these words, "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ." Suppose someone who knew nothing about what was meant by this phrase and yet he very much desired to know how he might put on Christ. Paul does not follow that text with an explanation. Now what should he do? Should he say, Well, I will see if I can find any thing in the encyclopedia on that or I will see what some theologian says about it? No, dear reader, he should not consult any of the above but he should stay close by the Word of God and compare spiritual things. Study to show yourselves approved unto God a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, prove all things, hold fast to that which is good. Let us search the Scriptures and see if we can come to the knowledge of the truth as to how to put on Christ. In Acts xvii 11 it says those at Berea received the Word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily whether those things were so. In Gal iii 26, 27, Paul says, For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus, for as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. Verse 29, And if ye be Christ then are Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. And what was the promise? The land of Canaan for an everlasting possession. Gen xvii 7, 8. In Acts vii 5, Stephen says, God gave him none inheritance in it, not so much as to set his foot on, yet he promised that he would. In order for Abraham to inherit it for ever, Abraham must be raised from the dead, and given everlasting life. Let us go a little farther and see what is meant by baptized into Christ. In Col ii 11, 12, Paul says ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, even the circumcision of Christ. Buried with him into baptism wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God who hath raised him from the dead. In Rom iv 11 Paul says that Abraham received the sign of circumcision, a seal of righteousness of the faith which he had, yet being uncircumcised. Here we find that circumcision was a seal, but since Christ came baptism takes the place of circumcision, and thus being made conformable unto his death. Rom vi 3. In Rom x 2, 3, we read that Israel had a zeal of God but not according to knowledge, they being ignorant of God's righteousness went about to establish their own righteousness. Thus it is the knowledge of the gospel and obedience thereto that constitutes the righteousness of God, which is by faith of Jesus Christ. Rom iii 22.

Wm. Hammers.

"Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." Matt v 8.

Only the pure in heart shall see God. Blessed are they who are preparing the way of the Lord. Believe the gospel, be baptized for the remission of your sins into that all saving name, depart from evil and do good, seek peace and pursue it, learn to do well, seek judgment and righteousness, have the faith, charity and hope of letting your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven. Be glad and rejoice in the Lord ye righteous, and shout for joy all ye that are upright in heart. Jesus says, in Matt., For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven the same is my brother and sister and mother. What a relationship, to be accepted in that royal family, if we do the will of the Father with a pure heart, keep his commandments and walk in the light as he is in the light, then we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin. 1 John i 7. In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sin according to the riches of his grace. Eph i 7. O how we ought to rejoice to know that we can be made clean and pure, washed white as snow in the blood of the Lamb, if we seek him and endure unto the end. What a hope we have, it is a blessed hope, it is the one hope, and the hope of meeting together with all God's people in that day when he will send his only begotten Son to rule the world in righteousness. My prayer is that we all who have put on that saving name will be ready with a pure heart to meet the Lord when he comes.

What proof have we that this family loved Jesus? John xii 2-7, Luke x 38-42
Which one was taken sick?
What did his sisters do?
Where was Jesus at the time? John x 40, i 28
What should we do in case of sickness?
How long did Jesus stay in Bethabara after receiving the message?
What reason is given for this? John xi 4 15
Tell the discussion between Jesus and his disciples about going.
Was there any danger?
Where did Martha meet Jesus?
How did she greet him?
Did she have faith in him that he would help?
Had Jesus before this raised any one from the dead? Luke vii 11-17, viii 49-56
What promise did Jesus make to Martha?
What did she understand this to mean? Verse 24
What great doctrine did Jesus then teach her?
What do we mean by the resurrection?
Who only are to have this resurrection to life?
Why did Jesus weep?
Does this show that Jesus is tender-hearted and sympathetic?
Tell the story of the resurrection of Lazarus.
Describe the tomb, and how he was bound
Why did Jesus pray?
Does the raising of Lazarus teach that body and soul have a separate existence?
What was the effect of this miracle on the people?
Does this lesson illustrate Jesus' work as the "Good Shepherd?"
What hope does it give us of life beyond death? I Cor xv, Rom viii 10 11, Phil iii 21.

Obituary.

Another one has fallen. Sister Mary A. Cole, for 22 years a firm believer in life only through Christ, came into this living truth while Brother R. S. Duggins was holding a series of meetings here at the time of the church organization twenty-two years ago—and was baptized later by B. W. Woodward. For 76 years she has battled with life.

Born in Jefferson Co. N. Y., Mar. 4, 1832. She married David Cole July 6, 1850. They came to Michigan in an early day, and realized all that pioneer life meant in a wilderness. They reared out a good home, reared four children who survive her, two others dying quite young. The husband and father died a year ago last month. Sister Cole was living at the time of her death with her youngest daughter, Jennie Stickney, near Harriette. She fell asleep March 27th, 1908, and was brought back to Dutton, for burial. The funeral sermon was preached by the writer from John vi. 68. "To whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life. Sister Cole had been almost totally blind for six years, and nothing gave her more comfort than to have some one read the Bible, or The Restitution, to her. Patiently she lived bearing her trials without a murmur, peacefully she sleeps till the trump of God shall awaken her to sight and glory.

Selections.

A Deed Living through a Century.

A noble deed may not only carry its influence at the time of its being enacted, but may live on, and thus perpetuate its influence through other lives and years. Its memory may live long after, shedding a silent influence for good. Often as one witnesses the familiar scene, or recalls the old surroundings of by-gone days, some act of benevolence, or example of real goodness, or deed of mercy, will come back as definitely and as strongly as though it were lived in our presence again.

The power of the deed is often revived with memory, while on the other hand the influence may be so felt that the good achieved will live on, even though the perpetrator of that deed be seldom recalled. Its advantages may be felt and realized, proving a blessing to society, and yet the author may live far in the background.

A striking incident of the power of such an example was related some since. In one of her lectures Frances Willard told the story of a young nobleman who found himself in a little village away off in Cornwall, where he had never been before. It was a hot day, and he was thirsty, and his thirst increased as he rode up and down the village streets seeking in vain for a place where something stronger than water could be had. At last he stopped and made impatient inquiry of an old peasant who was on his way home after a day of toil.

"How is it that I can't get a glass of liquor anywhere in this wretched village of yours?"

The old man, recognizing his questioner as a man of rank, pulled off his cap and bowed humbly, but nevertheless, there was a proud flash in his faded eyes as he answered, "My lord, something over a hundred years ago a man named Wesley came to these parts," and with that the old peasant walked on.

It would be interesting to know just what the nobleman thought as he pursued his thirsty way. But what a splendid testimony was this to the preaching of John Wesley! For more than a century the word that he had spoken for his Master had kept the curse of drunkenness out of the village; and who can estimate the influences for good thus exerted upon the lives of those sturdy peasants!

What nobler memorial could be desired by any Christian minister.—Volunteers Gazette.

The Discipline of Life.

Stress, strain, struggle—what a persistent triumvirate! On every side they strike us. The story of most lives re-echoes them. Their reign is undisputed, untiring, universal. Extensively, intensively they rule. Expect them! Shrinking from them does not eliminate their pressure. Life requires them—and all of life. To meet them is our part—to conquer, our privilege. To complain, to groan, to yield is childish. Why despair? Why forespend?

They hurt—of course. But do not hate them. Assert the stuff that victor souls are made of. You are making character. They help you in making. Discipline is what counts. Never fight that. It is what every life needs. They furnish it. Don't permit them to torment you. That is foolish and unresting. Endure! Strength of character—real strength—will result. By them your soul is proved—and polished. You cannot escape the finishing process. Don't try! It is the will of God. It is your Father's purpose. He knows the whole process of soul refining. His way is good. Be brave! Have courage! You need the stress and strain and struggle. It may be most unpleasant—but it is best. Try to understand. Co-operate! Sweetness, richness, beauty will be your soul's sure recompense. Resign yourself! A real child of God must. A true child of God will. Such adjustment reveals you to yourself, explains the core meaning of life; puts before your fellows the attainable ideal. Be unafraid! God loves moral heroes. So does man. Grow! Develop! Ripen! Mellow! Live the intensive life!

God is watching. Your crown is being cut with God-cut gems. Meantime you are learning the true interpretation of life's only meaning. You are building the one enduring thing—character—God's hand is helping you. Behold it in life's stress and strain and struggle! Get hold of the Fatherhand. Grip hard—and hold on. Know this: He will carry you through.—Seth Russell Downie.

"Feeble Saints."

It was an amusing distortion of a good hymn, but there was not a little sound philosophy in it, when the negro preacher sang, "Judge not the Lord by feeble saints." And yet this is precisely what the great majority of unconverted men are doing all the time. They will not go to the Bible and give heed to what God himself says. They have no ear for his voice of mercy that offers them salvation for the taking. They do not pay any attention to the solemn warning that the Scriptures utter. They judge the Lord by "feeble saints." They attempt to feed their starving souls on the imperfections of Christians, and poor enough food they find it! Because God's people are not all they ought to be, therefore these cavilers will keep away from the religion they profess. Because God's believing followers are not perfect—they do not claim to be—therefore, say these unbelievers, there is no power in religion. Christians cannot claim exemption from criticism. They do not expect it. They know that the eyes of the world are upon them. But they say to the unbeliever, "If you would know the truth, go to the Word of God; go to him who is the truth; 'judge not the Lord by feeble saints.'"—Christian Witness.

True religion begins in prayer, and in prayer more than anything else is it exercised.

An ounce of generous praise will do more to make a man your friend than a pound of fault-finding.

Study pure and holy walking, if you would have your confidence firm, and have boldness and joy in God.

The Stars: the Alphabet of Omnipotence. The Flowers: the Language of Angels. The Birds: the Singers of God's own music.

Reason is a fine thing; but let us not think too much of it. God does not. We know of a surety—we know on the authority of his Word—that all the proud and high things of man's intellect are of infinitely less value in his sight than the humblest aspiration after mercy and truth, than the heart-uttered groan of a contrite spirit.—Kitto.

Poetry.

The Last Hope of the Church.

Thou who from Olive's brow did rise,
In splendid triumph to the skies,
Before the rapt disciples' eyes,
Lord Jesus, quickly come!

For Thy appearance all things pray,
All nations sighs at Thy delay,
Thy people cry "no longer stay,"
Lord Jesus, quickly come!

Hear Thou the whole creation's groans;
The burdened creatures' plaintive moans,
The cry of deserts wild and lone,
Lord Jesus, quickly come!

For signals of distress unfurled,
For nations on stormy billows hurled;
Hear Palestine as a shipwrecked world
Lord Jesus, quickly come!

Hush the fierce blast of war's alarms,
The trumpet's roll, the clash of arms,
Let mutic Love, sweet Thy charms,
Lord Jesus, quickly come!

Wave once again upon the sea
As the sad earth's tempestuous sea,
And still the waves, O Prince of Peace,
Lord Jesus, quickly come!

See, Thy fair Bride, with garments torn,
Of her celestial crowning shorn,
Upraises her arms, with watching worn,
Lord Jesus, quickly come!

Hope of the ever-mournful heart,
Their only glory, joy and boast,
Without Thy advent all is lost!
Lord Jesus, quickly come!

Come, with Thy mighty, a dieharm,
Come, with embattled cherubim,
Come, with the shout to seraphim,
Lord Jesus, quickly come!

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 50.

Elder Hugh Sharon Barnhill, was born in Butler County, Ohio, March 29, 1809, and moved with his parents to Marion County, Ind. in 1820: this being 88 years ago, when the Capitol of Indiana was still at Corydon, and her second Governor was just taking his seat.

Here in due time he united with the Disciple Church, married, and in 1846 moved with his family to a farm in the vicinity of where the town of Argos now is. Quite a large number of young people attended this conference, some of them from churches a long distance to the south.

Brother Barnhill was "the prince of entertainers" and was ably seconded by his devoted wife and lovely daughters. Brother Mansfield and wife and Brother Berrick were at this conference, and with about twenty more were housed at the Barnhill home at least part of the time, my parents, grandparents, Auntie Willard, her son and adopted daughter and myself being of the number, and not only at the meeting but wherever he went, Brother Barnhill's warnings, exhortations and prayers had their effect, especially upon the young.

His presence brought with it a solemnity, an awe, a reverence for holy things, that brought others into the same attitude. He seemed when teaching the Bible, just as Auntie Willard said she felt, "As if he were laying his hands upon the Ark of God." As God himself is reverenced, so did he reverence that Holy, Holy Word. No historical fact was questioned, no person or event explained away; God's veracity was not to be questioned on any point, if he had spoken, it was enough. And well would it be for us of these later days, if we were as careful in handling the Word of the Lord as was Brother Barnhill. There would not be so many things explained away that still stand as unmovably true, after the explainer is through with his explanation, as they did before,—simple, trusting, child-like faith, accepting, believing them still.

"Many were led by Brother Barnhill's fearless exhortations, to accept God's salvation as proffered through the Son of his love;" and among those were two of my young lady friends—dear Kitty Stevens and a cousin—a Miss Ada Vose, here on a visit from Aten, Nebraska. This was January 20th, 1884, in a night meeting at Gospel Grove, and March 3rd, 1884, he fell asleep,—his death being due to an accident.

He was driving along in his buggy on the way from Argos to Plymouth, to attend a meeting of Brother Woodward's, when a bolt breaking, he was thrown over the dash-board, suffering internal injuries that were beyond the reach of human skill. But although he was 74 years, 11 months and 3 days old at the time of his death, Brother Barnhill, like Moses, still kept his vigor of mind, his youthful appearance, and his almost unabated strength.

He was never here but once, and that was when

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in thee," was "sung above a coffin lid," underneath which lay my mother in the calm repose of death, for Brother Barnhill preached her funeral.

One of the last conferences Brother Barnhill attended was the one at Rensselaer, August, 1882, when Brother Alfred Thompson was Chairman, and he, my father, and Brother D. T. Halstead, Brother H. V. Reed, Brother Charles Gardner, Brother J. F. Wilcox and Brother Ralph Carter were the speakers, and two were baptized, one of these being a brother from Wabash County, out of the Disciple church who, when asked "What he had gained by the change?"—replied, "I have gained TRUTH." About fifty from abroad attended this conference.

It is a pretty good test of the faithfulness of a father and mother when all their children come into the fold, and this was Brother and Sister Barnhill's happy experience.

Sister Barnhill was a woman of deep and exalted piety, and a true yoke-fellow of her husband, well-fitted to "bring up children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." But they both sleep, and "who is there who have left behind them a better record for piety, morality and unbounded generosity?"

Religion Number 3.

In article 1 we tried to show that in contradistinction to the many creeds and forms of religion (so called) that have and do exist, that there is but one true ground, substance, foundation or principle upon which God and man can be united.

In article 2 we tried to show that God revealed this principle to man, through inspired men. These men made a record of their inspiration. We have this record, the Scriptures. Question: What is this principle, and how does it unite us with God? This principle is Obedience, 1 Sam xv 22. God created the earth to abide forever, Eccl i 4, Psa cxix 90. He purposed in all it with His glory, Num xiv 21, Habak ii 14. This is to be done by a people who will voluntarily be obedient to him. Rom v 19, Eph ii 5, Rom iv 16-22.

Adam was entrusted with the rule of the whole earth, Gen i 28-30. He was voluntarily disobedient, Gen iii 6. He became involuntarily disobedient ever since, Rom v 12. God's word will not return to him void, Isa lv 11. He has appointed a man who will rule the world in righteousness, Acts xvii 31, Jesus Christ is the man. He gained the right to rule the world because he was voluntarily obedient, Phil ii 7-10. Jesus was sent to preach Obedience, Luke iv 18, viii 1. He told us that all those that would believe and be baptized, Mark xvi 16, or in other words, those that would obey from the heart that form of doctrine, Rom vi 17, would be saved—would be united to God.

Those who believe in a spiritual kingdom in heaven, eternal life and torment for the wicked, and other things contrary to God's purpose, have not understood their minds, Rom xii 2. They are therefore still disobedient. Those who have transformed their minds but not their hearts are still disobedient and not in harmony with God.

When we really want to be united with God, the preaching of the gospel the good news, pricks our hearts, Acts ii 37. New ideas, new conceptions, new aims and ambitions come to us, thus we are begotten by the gospel, 1 Cor iv 15. It impels us to be obedient to baptism into Christ. It is the influence, the spirit by which we are all baptized into one body, 1 Cor xii 13. Those in Christ are new creatures, 2 Cor v 17 thus we are born again by the Word of God which is the Gospel, 1 Pet i 23-25. As new born babes we grow by feeding on the Word, 1 Pet ii 1.

In conclusion let us note here we are kept in harmony with God. We read in Heb xii 5-7 that whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth. What does the Lord do when he chastens, and how does he do it. Chasten comes from the same root word as castle, and it means to correct, purify, separate. Monks, friars and nuns were put in castles to separate them from the world. How does God correct, purify and separate us? 2 Tim iii 16 says that God gave all Scripture to correct, reprove instruct us in righteousness. Webster says the word rod means a shoot or twig, and that is sometimes used as a means of correction. David says in Psa xxiii 4 that God's rod, or in other words God's Word or means of correction, serves to comfort him. Read also Psa xix, and note that the law of the Lord converts the soul, makes wise the simple, rejoices the heart, enlightens the eyes.

If our delight is in the law of the Lord, and in it we meditate day and night, Psalm i, if we let it guide our hands, Psa cxix 18, and also our feet, verse 59, we will be in harmony, and will be kept in harmony with God, and as the darkey says, we will have "got religion."

GEORGE NEILL.

To the Household in Texas.

I shall soon be in Texas. If there are others in Texas and Louisiana who desire me to hold meetings in their neighborhood, they can arrange for the same by addressing a letter to my home address immediately. Write to 420 N. Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois, and my family will forward them to me.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

Some Free Reading for You.

Brother William Reed of New York has issued some pamphlets—The City of Pure Gold, The Atonement, The Atonement continued, and Parables of the Christ. He has sent a quantity of each kind to this office and instructs us to send them free to those who ask for them. The four will cost three cents postage, and the tracts are free.

Report of Meeting.

The South Bend, Indiana, Church, not being able to obtain Brother S. J. Lindsay's services for longer time than one week in February, secured his promise to return as soon as his other engagements would permit, and on Monday, March 10th, he returned and began another series of meetings which continued two weeks.

A number of people who are members of various other denominations attended the entire series of meetings, showing great interest, by making for notes and references and admitting that statements were sustained by Scriptural evidence.

Sickness prevented some of the members from attending all the meetings, but all have been greatly edified and strengthened, and it is thought impetus will result in the near future.

EMMA C. RANSBURG, Sec'y.

Dear Restitution:

I have been so pressed for time and strength, that I have not sent in a notice of Brother Wilson's visit until now.

We enjoyed the unusual treat of listening to the expounding of the Scriptures by one brother who is so well qualified to bring out the beautiful harmony of God's Word.

There is not the least doubt in my mind that the Lord sent him here as near as up to the appearance of holding meeting, at least once a month, as we are all scattered. We should not forget that we are told to forsake not the assembling of ourselves together and so much the more as we see the day approaching.

We are glad to see that Brother Wilson is helping to organize a Missouri conference. May the Lord keep him in health that this stirring up work may go on. There are many who are asleep and in danger of getting into the group of foolish virgins.

We must not excuse ourselves by thinking that we are isolated and can do little or nothing. We can have a share in the reward if we put all the means we can afford to give to those who can give their time to this work. We are certain to miss a great blessing if we neglect this duty.

We hope to see Brother Wilson in August, when he comes north.

Your Sister, in Christ.

GENEVIEVE M. LOGAN.

Editor Restitution:

I am just taking a few minutes to say to Brother W. L. Skeels how much I commend his article to the last RESTITUTION, April 1, entitled "A FIGHT."

I hope and pray that every one who has sealed their faith in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, by being immersed, will read it over and over again, and if there is any where contention among brethren, and the contenders have unfurled their banners shouting, "I know we are right and will fight it out," I entreat you in the name of our Lord to pull down your flags, read carefully and prayerfully the Scripture quoted by Bro. Skeels, then give heed to his remarks, and especially to one word LEADERSHIP. This word is the foundation and inducement of nearly all contention. The Master's words are "The servant of the Lord must NOT strive but be gentle unto all, apt to teach, patient, etc." 2 Tim. ii. 24, 25. No contention in that my dearly beloved brethren.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Announcement.

The Twenty-first Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug 22 to 30. Programme later.

EVA L. STEARNS, Sec.

The Annual Meeting and Conference of the Church of God in Indiana, will be held at Old Antioch, Marshall Co. commencing Friday, June 12, and continuing over the following Sunday. A competent programme committee is appointed to arrange a programme which will be announced in due time. Shall we all commence now to so arrange our business affairs so we may not miss this meeting. Brethren we anticipate a good meeting. Come all who can and meet with us. Come in the Spirit of the Master, and we shall be blessed.

Remember our Bible School which will begin Monday morning following the close of the Conference. All who can are especially invited to come to the conference and stay with us during this feast of Bible lore. Brother Lindsay and other teachers are expected to be with us.

J. H. WILLEY,
Pres. Ind. Conference.

The 50th Annual Conference of the Church of God in Michigan, will be held in Dutton, beginning Tuesday evening, June 2, as voted at the fall conference. A lecture Tuesday evening, Wednesday and Thursday Bible lessons, with Brother Lindsay, of Geneva, Illinois as teacher.

The Conference meeting proper will open as usual Thursday evening, continuing over the next Sunday, with an hour each afternoon for Bible study.

This is the 50th Annual Conference in Michigan, and arrangements are being made to make this gathering very instructive and beneficial. It is greatly desired that every pioneer in the gospel of the Kingdom will make an effort to be present and enjoy the sessions which will be set apart especially for them. If there are any brethren in Ohio, Indiana, or elsewhere who was in or knew any thing of the '43 and '44 movement, we especially desire their presence or a paper prepared by them. Who does not wish to be present at this gathering and enjoy this religious feast. Remember friends, we are not making this extra effort because the people of Dutton stand need this spiritual uplift, but for the general good and advancement of Christ's cause, not only in Michigan, but in sister states. To this end we hope there may be a general rally to the standard of truth. We would like to have representatives from every state in the union and Canada. They will be received with a hearty welcome. If there should happen to be so many present that improvised floor beds become a necessity—why, the more the merrier. You will enjoy the good gospel truths better the next morning.

We are expecting E. L. Austin, of Penfield, Canada, as one of the speakers, and we hope other able Brothers and sisters will come, determined to give much good, as well as receive much. The board and lodging will be free.

Brother D. Paine, of Meadow, is the Chairman of Committees; six others to fill different committees to be chosen by him. We trust these committees are hard at work, for there is certainly no time to be lost now in preparation. Will these committees, especially the one to arrange program for meetings, please correspond with me, as it will be necessary to announce it a little later in THE RESTITUTION.

No one will wish to miss the able sermons and Bible instruction given by Brother Lindsay. Come one and all.

M. A. WOODWARD,
Conference Sec.

The Illinois Bible School will convene this year at Oregon, August 13-19, and the Annual Conference from August 19-28. When answering questions of lesson 8, please say if you will try to attend. Please send the names of any others who may be persuaded to come. Let us try to make this year's School the best we have yet had.

S. J. LINDSAY.

We wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

Please don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Indiana Bible School.

The Indiana Bible School will convene this year at Plymouth, Indiana, June 15. This will be the day following the June Conference at Antioch. So those coming can come in time for the Conference and stay over the following week. Last year the attendance was about double the previous year, and we hope to have a like increase or more this year. Work is being planned that will be both interesting and instructive to those in attendance. Those coming please notify Mrs Phebe Willey, Plymouth, so that lodging places may be secured.

LYDIA RAHSBURG, Sec.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of the brethren have statistics, facts or figures, showing the good that conference have accomplished, I would be glad to have you communicate with me at Woodstock Va. I would like to secure a copy of same. Perhaps Brothers Lindsay, Allard, Wilcox, Wagoner, Brothers and Sister Woodward, Brother Crozier or Sister Emma Jackman and others who have been active in Conference work can help me out. Also in regard to the claim of the orthodox churches that the world is growing better. Can any of the brethren tell me where I can secure facts showing that the world is not growing better.

GEORGE NEILL.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri, (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,

W. H. WILSON.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of you have files of the "Harbinger" or "Gospel Banner," and can glean any facts therefrom as to early meetings, debates, and time, place, and the names of ministers present at such meetings and debates; names of presiding officers, etc. I shall be very thankful to have such items written out and forwarded to my address—Pierceton, Ind. Also any incidents happening at such meetings, number of baptisms and so on. Kindly send items at once.

S. ROXANA WILCOX.

Notice.

To the brethren and sisters of the states of Virginia and Maryland, and isolated ones in the east and south:

The brethren of Shenandoah Co, Va. have been sufficiently interested in the truth to engage me as Evangelist for the present year. It is our desire that every legitimate means be used to further the promulgation of the gospel and strengthen the faith of the brethren. Already twenty-one meetings have been held, and one baptism has resulted, and we desire the good work to go on. Will all in the above named territory send in their names and addresses that we may get acquainted with you, and you reading matter, and otherwise help you.

Address me at Woodstock, Va.

GEO. NEILL.

The middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, if any one refuses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

From Arkansas.

Brother Underwood,

In my last to THE RESTITUTION, I promised that in a future article, I would tell the brethren of our church houses in this part of the country.

In the year 1885, I moved to Waveland, Ark. At that time there was but one brother of the Abrahamic faith in all this part of the country. I had warrings without and fightings within; was hated, persecuted, and ordered to leave the country. But none of these things moved me. I kept on preaching the gospel. Pretty soon the seed sown began to take root, and I began to baptize the believers. We soon built up quite a congregation, but we had no house that we could call our own. So we went to work and built one. All of the faith did what they could towards building it. I remember that I went all alone one evening to the spot where we were going to build the house, and as the persecution was so great I feared some one would burn the church if we built it. So while there all alone, I knelt down and asked God to protect the building and to not let the enemies of truth destroy it. We went on with the work, the house was finished and we dedicated it to the Lord. It stands there yet. Many sessions of school were taught in it, but for years not a pane was broken out of the windows.

In the fall of 1894, I came to this town. There was no house of worship here where we could preach the gospel. True the Methodist folks would let us have their house occasionally, but we did not feel free to preach in it as if it was ours. There were a few Disciples here, and they had no house either, so I proposed to them that if they would build the house, I would furnish the material. They agreed to it, and I went to work and put the material on the ground. I got about forty dollars help from friends, and my wife and I did the rest, with the exception of a little help from one other noble brother. I do not know just how much the material cost, but somewhere between three and six hundred dollars. Mrs. Daniel took in boarders and helped all she could. The house was finally finished, and I bought a bell and a stove and put in it. It stands in this beautiful little town today, a credit to the Church of God. Now thank God we have a house in which our preachers can herald forth the glorious gospel of the kingdom, and no one can say you shall not. Last night we preached the gospel in it, and at the close of the discourse, two loving ones came forward and made the good confession. The theme was, "The Rightful Heir to David's Throne." It was made so clear that Christ was the rightful heir to that throne, every one could see who wanted to see the truth. Bless the Lord! This house is about thirty feet wide, and fifty-four feet long, I think. It is as good, if not better, than any church house in town. We preached all over this part of the country, and converted quite a good many to the truth, and some of them are now preaching. At Driggs, five miles north of this place, we have quite a number of brethren, and they have built them a good house of worship. But most of the faith are poor. There we have an able young man in the person of Bro. Shelton, who can preach the truth with power. We are proud of Bro. Shelton. He can defend the truth, as well as preach it. He had one discussion, some time ago, in which he gained a grand victory for the truth. I am still preaching all I can. I preached at Stoneville, last Sunday was a week ago, to a large congregation, and at the close a Methodist preacher arose and endorsed everything I preached. Said it was the truth, and that the people should accept it. The theme there was "Christ the Rightful Heir to the Throne of David." Brethren, pray for me and my work in this beautiful south-land. Some time since I received ten dollars from a Sister, I think it was, from Buffalo, New York, and a letter asking if I had received it, but there was no street and number on the letter, and the answer was returned to me. I withhold the name, but if this should meet her eye, I would be very glad if she would write me and give me her street and number, as I want to write her a personal letter. I also received from a brother in California and one from Oklahoma, with help in them. God bless them. I cannot find language, brethren, to express my thanks for the same. I never asked for help direct in my life, and have done all I have without money and without price. I feel now that I did wrong in not teaching the brethren that they ought to support the gospel. I almost lost this last year's work from sickness, and for that reason, am in a financial strait. A few have helped me, and God knows I appreciate it. I am going to preach all I can, and as the way opens. If I had the means to pay my railroad fare I would get out from home and preach some, but as I have not the means to pay it, I am going to preach around home. If wife and children had bread and clothes, I would devote my whole time to the work. God impress those who have means to spare, to use at least some of it, for the advancement of thy truth.

By the help of the Lord, I have led another preacher to see the truth, and I want some one who is able, to send him THE RESTITUTION. I give Bro. Underwood his name and address, and if you will send him the money he will send it to the preacher. I have made diligent inquiry as to his standing and find him to be a first class citizen, who has the confidence of all who know him. He was a Latter Day Saint, of the Joseph wing, but is now a child of God.

I would love to tell you how I came to convert him, but space forbids. Will say, however, that he had an appointment at a certain place, at 11 A. M. and I had an appointment at the same place at 3 P. M. So I heard him, and he heard me, and this led to his conversion. He is a fine speaker, and well educated, and has a good influence.

May God bless all of like precious faith, everywhere. Your loving Brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Indiana Brevets, Greeting.

Brother Neill's resignation has made me your President. I wish to express to you my willingness to help you in any way that I can.

Let me urge you to continue your study and the holding of regular meetings. Great good has already been accomplished, and we must not let this work retard. Let us understand and be about our Father's business, ever keeping in mind his promise to the Little Flock.

Address me at 515 E. Pennsylvania Ave. South Bend, Ind.

May God bless and prosper your meetings.

EVELYN K. HANSON.

THE MESSENGER

is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 970 St Marks ave, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts. 5 or more comes 25 cts each copy per year. Simple copy on application.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 340 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by G. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

The Hydropathic Encyclopedia, a system of Hydropathy and Hygiene, by Dr. R. T. Trall. A large and exhaustive work, 75c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices

Evangelizing Notice.

Under the providence of God my health has improved. Duty calls me back to my work on the Pacific. In spite of my desire to meet brethren and relatives on my proposed trip as far east as Ohio and Kentucky I turn homeward in a few days.

After leaving Kansas my first meetings will be at Blackwell, Okla. Those wanting meetings in Oklahoma or Northern Texas will address me without delay, in care of Eliza Rabe, Box 254, Blackwell, Okla.

Brethren in the region of Abilene, Texas and west of that city in Texas and New Mexico, etc., address me care of Word and Work, Abilene, Texas.

Arizona brethren and those west of the Territory address in care of J. M. Pike, Phoenix, Arizona.

Brethren of California can reach me at any of these towns if you write soon enough or before I pass. Brethren of California will intercept me at Pomona, Cal., address in care of W. O Steffa. Those of Oregon that write on later dates, will write in care of Clinton Wilson, Central Point, Ore. I feel competent in health for all this work.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these People out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave, Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance houses will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Walls of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies post paid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 15, 1908. NUMBER 15.

The Restitution.

ISSUED WEEKLY BY
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
FOR THE CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

One Year $1.50, Six Months 75 Cents, Three Months 40 Cents.

The Restitution advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this and the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations: the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, preceded by a knowledge of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money can pass; money is easily detected, and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper one year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Palestine.

Land of Israel's favor'd nation—
Dreariness so long been Thine—
Thou shalt wake from desolation—
Sure the word, "Arise and shine!"

We will mark the tokens telling
Of thy coming day of might—
Then all other lands excelling,
Thou shalt gleam with heav'nly light.

Wake, O wake, with song resounding!
Royal harp, renew thy strain!
Wilderness, in bloom abounding,
Greet thee our Messiah's reign.

Glory! Glory! Glory! Glory!
Thou a land of joy shalt be!
And shall speedily restore thee—
Canaan! Be one home in thee.

Why Did Felix Tremble?

After the charges against Paul were set before Felix the governor, by Tertullus a pleader in Provincial courts, and the defense of the Apostle by himself, heard: Felix instead of dismissing the case as unsupported by testimony delayed the matter and put the Jews off by promising to make further inquiry about the case when Lysias the commander would come down. So Paul was still held as a prisoner under guard but not bound. A few days after turning him over to the centurion, Felix with Drusilla, his wife, who was a Jewess, sent for Paul with a view to hear him concerning the faith in Christ Jesus. Here was Paul's opportunity to preach a sermon to two persons whose lives outraged every principle of decency and law. The apostle's talk to this dissolute couple took a practical turn. The points discoursed on were justice, self-control and the judgment to come. Tacitus, the Roman Annalist said, "His rule was a mixture of cruelty, lust and servility." Injustice would characterize the public administration of his office. In private life he gave way to unbridled lust. At the time Paul was talking to him he was living in adultery. He must have felt the sting of the apostle's rebukes uttered with all the sternness and gravity befitting the case before him. Paul's talk would have been incomplete, and without power to rouse the conscience of such a man had he omitted reasoning concerning a judgment to come, when such characters would have to meet the great Judge and hear their doom. This made Felix tremble, but awakened no resolve for reformation, at least for the time being. "Go thy way for this time; when I have a more convenient season I will call for thee." The golden opportunity of life was let slip; the convenient season never came. This is but a single example among the countless millions who have had the opportunity of hearing or reading the message of love and pardon but postponed the obedience the Lord required to some more convenient season.

The judgment concerning which the apostle reasoned is not a judicial action of the Judge at the moment of death, as taught in popular creeds, but an issue or judgment future to death, which is to settle finally and forever the doom of the individual transgressor who shall be summoned before that awful tribunal. This is what inspired terror in the mind of Felix and should inspire terror in the minds of all who hear and know the threatened doom. Paul in his defense before the Governor and in the presence of his accusers said, But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets; and have hope toward God which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust. Acts xxiv 14, 15. The Governor heard this language in reference to the resurrection of the unjust and he belonged to this class. For this human judge to have his case brought before the divine Judge for settlement was something more fearful than dying a natural death or being cut off suddenly by the hand of an assassin without the sentence of him to whom all judgment has been committed, pronounced to his face.

The resurrection of the unjust to judgment is too plainly revealed by the Judge himself to admit of question or controversy. Men have spent a great deal of precious time trying to set it aside, and when they got through explaining the language in the 5th chapter of John to mean something else than a literal resurrection and judgment, simple faith finds it much easier to believe the message as it stands than to believe the labored exposition of the expounders. Men raise what they regard as insurmountable objections to raising such countless numbers of unjustified men and women to life, and of disposing of their cases. They imagine serious consequences to follow. One man in Plymouth tried to make such a fuss appear ridiculous. We must not set our judgment against God's plainly revealed purposes. Our judgment of the fitness of things is not the criterion by which to dispose of the difficulty. Let God take care of the difficulty involved in the fact.

There are quite a number of passages in New Testament Scriptures that cannot be understood except on the ground that retribution beyond the Adamic death awaits the ungodly, and this preceded by a judgment which is frequently alluded to in these same Scriptures. The fact that the Adamic death is not the end of the wicked is clearly shown in the language of the great Teacher. Matt x 28, Fear not them that kill the body but are not able to kill or destroy the soul (life) but rather fear him who is able to destroy both soul (life) and body in Gehenna. Man can inflict death or kill the body and as Luke records, "After that have no more that they can do." Luke xii 4. Another death or destruction lies beyond what man can do; and the great Judge will inflict this as punishment incurred by those who abandon the faith to save themselves from death at the hand of cruel persecutors. It was a hard fate, going to the stake to be burned or to the wheel to be bruised and broken, or to be tortured and die by inches by whatever means devilish ingenuity could invent; but fear not; and in case you do there will await you at the hand of the Judge utter destruction from which there will be no resurrection to life. The language in this passage was a forewarning of what might be expected in case of recantation of faith. The doom would surely fall. Whosoever will (would) save his life shall lose it. It will not do, when facing a martyr's death to deny the Christ. To prove so unloyal to forfeit eternal life. On the other hand whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's shall save it. What infinite compensation for torture and death! I will not quote the whole passage but will now cite verse 38 of this 8th chapter of Mark, "Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him also shall the Son of Man be ashamed when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels." According to these words, the cowardly of that first generation with those of every subsequent generation down to our Lord's coming will be obliged to appear at his bar. Those who deny the resurrection of the wicked will reply that the words "ashamed of" are adequately met if the Judge leaves them to sleep on forever as they went down under the Adamic death; that no awakening is necessary. It would appear a sufficient reply to this objection to say that this is squarely in the face of what the Bible teaches in plain terms touching the resurrection of the unjust. I have already cited two passages in proof, on which the objector can exhaust his exegetical skill to no purpose. In addition to this I will quote Matt xvi 27. "For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels, then shall he render unto every man according to his deeds." R. V. These words are logically connected with what is said above, saving and losing life. Two classes, opposite in character are the subjects of reward; so both classes must be raised, but not necessarily at the same time. See the writer's tract on the resurrection. Dying a natural death, as of old age, or by disease, or by violence of the persecutor's hand is not the execution of the sentence for personal or individual sins. Our Lord's judgship is involved in this. The sentence is not the continuation of the Adamic death, but the infliction of death supernaturally. This will appear further evident on examining Rom ii. After portraying the debasement of the pagan world by its obscene and idolatrous practices the apostle arraigns the Jews, charging them of being guilty of the same or similar sins as those committed by the pagans, on whom these boastful, self-righteous adherents of the law pronounced judgment. He says of these, But after thy hardness and impenitent heart, treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God. This judgment settles the question of the final destiny of individuals. "Who will render to every man according to his deeds." This is the same as affirmed by Christ in Matt xvi 27. To them who by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life—will he render. But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness—will be rendered indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile. It will be the high prerogative of the Son to whom the Father committed all judgment to decide the doom and execute the judgment, and this he will do in the day of wrath, the day in which, as verse 16 reads, when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to Paul's gospel. Connecting the 12th verse with the 16th we have the idea clearly expressed that the wicked will perish in that day. This must include the contentious and disobedient of Paul's day and of subsequent days and of all time in which men under the light of truth have been and will be rebellious. It is not a judgment at death, nor is it a natural judgment, but one that decides the destiny of every soul. It involves the resurrection of the dead. No one denies this of the righteous; some deny that the opposite class will ever be released from the Adamic death. If so then the statements in this chapter in reference to the executive judgment by Jesus Christ is false? The only thing for these errorists to do is to admit that there will be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust. The Son of God does not inflict natural death, and this judgment in the 2nd chapter of the Roman letter does not relate to this death but to one belonging to the day of wrath, when the secrets of men will be laid bare; the day at the beginning of which the righteous dead will be raised and rewarded—a long day of a thousand years.

I once carried on a discussion through letter with a man who assumed that the wicked dead could not be raised because they are not in Christ. A sufficient answer to such a position is, How do you know that they cannot? After you have argued and inferred and jumped to the conclusion, there still remains the plain teaching of the Bible for childlike faith to rest in.

I have not called attention to all the passages of Scripture bearing upon my main topic. To sum up the argument I will state: 1, There will be a resurrection of two classes; 2, This will be followed by a judgment that fixes destiny; 3, One class perish as the result of that judgment; 4, The other get eternal life as previously determined; and as the result of that judgment—glory, honor and peace, rulership in the kingdom according to faithfulness and ability; 5, Jesus will officiate in the judgment scenes.

JOHN L. WILCOX.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 26.

Jesus teaches Humility, John xiii 1-20.

Golden text: A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another as I have loved you, John xiii 34.

After the anointing at Bethany, Jesus rode into Jerusalem as "The King of the Jews," John xii 13. Many of the chief rulers believed on him, but did not confess. They loved the praise of men more than the praise of God, John xii 42 43. They could not humble themselves, nor brook to be humbled.

Lesson text; Jesus had fulfilled all that Moses in the law and the prophets said he would up to the crucifixion foretold by Isaiah liii 3 8. He came to his own, but his own received him not, John i 11. That did not turn away his love, for he wept over Jerusalem, Luke xix 41, saying, O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, I would often have gathered thy children together as a hen gathers her chickens under wings, but ye would not, Matt xxiii 37.

He still loves them, Rom xi 26. The question of who should, or would be the greatest was discussed more than once by, or among the twelve. On one occasion on the way to Capernaum they debated the question, and when they reached the city Jesus asked them what it was they disputed among themselves by the way? They held their peace, Mark ix 33 34. They were ashamed to tell him, but he knew. The debate, or argument was renewed by them after the Lord's supper, according to Luke xxii 24. In Matt xviii 4, the question is definitely settled, as far as words could do so. Whoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is—correctly, shall be, the greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

There is no virtue, no point of moral excellence more difficult to acquire than humility. The multiplied examples in Moses and the prophets of humility as acceptable to God; the many things that Jesus both did and said, had not, up to the end of his ministry among his disciples, convinced them that "If any man desire to be first, he shall be last of all, and servant of all, Mark ix 35.

The grand object lesson of the Lord and Master himself washing his disciples' feet did not, at the time, settle the matter. This was just one, or another, of the many things that Jesus had taught and shown. That they did not comprehend the full import nce we learn from verse 7, "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shall know hereafter. This is further shown in verse 12, by the question, Do you know what I have done to you? That there was no answer is proof that they did not know. Truly they did know afterwards, for never in all the history of the struggles of the faithful, was there more need for humility on the part of any of God's servants, than was necessary on the part of the apostles in their efforts to "preach the gospel to every creature." They were not only trusted with the glorious and good news of Christ and his kingdom, but as a testimony to the truth of their message, they were entrusted with the power to heal, to hurt and to kill. They were healed every one, Acts v 16. Thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season, Acts xiii 11. And Ananias hearing these words fell down, and gave up the ghost. Acts v 5.

For years, while having this great power, they were falsely accused, and often cruelly persecuted. All personal abuse they humbly endured, remembering the great lesson in humility stamped upon their minds by the Master washing their feet, like the humblest of servants; remembering also "The servant is not greater than his Lord, ver 16.

Every true servant of Jesus Christ still realizes the need of humility. For though the persecution is not now to prison and to death, there is a mild yet determined opposition to the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ. Acts viii 12. There are nicknames given, there are slurs upon and jokes made at those who preach, teach or believe the truth to salvation. There are no Rev. Very, Right, nor Most Rev. among those who "Humble themselves under the mighty hand of God, but he will exalt them in due time," 1 Pet v 6. Jesus Christ will make them kings and priests unto God, and they shall reign on the earth, Rev v 9 10.

There are those who practice feet-washing, because Jesus did so, and said, Ye also ought to wash one another's feet. He did not say that to All who profess "religion." He said it to those who believed his words, who were willing to obey, willing to preach his words, and knew that they would be put to death for their active faith. If they washed each other's feet, there is no record; but they did humbly and lovingly preach that Jesus is the Christ, and is coming again, and they died, were put to death, in faith.

Next lesson, Our heavenly home, John xiv.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,
W. H. WILSON.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

1 Memorize the Commission, chapter and verse.

2 What is the Gospel? Meaning of the word? As preached by Paul?

3 Does it make any difference what we believe just so we are sincere about it? Gal i 8. Can we depend on our own feelings for salvation? Acts xxvi 9.

4 Is Col i 23 a fulfillment of Matt xxiv 14?

5 Why were the disciples told to preach the Word of God? Mark xvi 16.

6 What was the cause of this commission? John i 11.

7 Should baptism precede or follow a knowledge of the Word? Is a baptism without such knowledge valid? Acts xix 1-5. Is baptism at all necessary to salvation?

8 How was the Word confirmed?

9 Upon what great truth is this gospel founded? 1 Cor xv.

Dear Restitution:

A Sister, commenting on the erring brother, in a recent issue of THE RESTITUTION speaking of breaking fellowship or it standing, etc. We think the Sister fails to make the right division.

We are told not to eat with unruly brothers. Is not the line drawn in the wrong place? Do we not have two tables? At the Lord's table we would not like to partake with sinners; but at our table—how about that? Suppose the erring brother visits my home: perhaps a dear friend, a father, a brother, or a son. Must we turn him away from our table? We think not. What would sinners think of us if we acted that way—what would we think of ourselves? Would that be a shining light? If so we think it badly covered by a bushel. Why we are even told to feed our enemies. Let the erring brother be to us as a heathen—that is at the Lord's table: yet let us not make an enemy of him, for friends are more to be desired. The Sister's view does not harmonize exactly with the Bible teaching according to the way we view it, but this is open to criticism.

A BROTHER.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of you have files of the "Harbinger" or "Gospel Banner," and can glean any facts therefrom as to early meetings, debates, and time, place, and the names of ministers present at such meetings and debates; names of presiding officers, etc. I shall be very thankful to have such items written out and forwarded to my address—Perceton, Ind. Also any incidents happening at such meetings, number of baptisms and so on. Kindly send items at once.

S. ROXANA WINDE.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Subscribe for THE RESTITUTION to be sent to a friend. It will cost you but little—the result of seed sowing is safe in God's hands.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 15, 1908

WE are glad to have the report of work in Iowa from Brother Marsh, and hope he will report often, and we pray that the blessings of the Father will attend the efforts of his faithful workmen.

TROUBLE between warring faction in Austria resulted in the assassination on last Sunday of Count Potocki, governor of a Polish province. The deed was committed by a student who says he "acted in behalf of his oppressed people."

CHELSEA, Mass. situated across the bay from Boston, was visited by a disastrous fire last Sunday. 10,000 people being made homeless, and over 1,000 buildings being burned. Several people lost their lives and the property loss is six million dollars.

ON last Friday we learned by telephone from Chicago of the death of our aged Sister, Mrs. Richard Appleyard. They were asking for Brother Wagoner to preach at the funeral on Sunday. We hope some of the friends will send an obituary notice.

IN renewing subscription for this year, Sister Emma Jo Kuhn writes that her Aunt, Sister Hoyt, widow of Brother E. Hoyt of Grand Rapids, Michigan, was 90 years old on April 3d. We congratulate our aged Sister on having lived so long and useful a life, and hope for her that what yet remains of life may be pleasant and peaceful. We know that after this life is over she will have a more abundant and enduring life when Jesus comes.

THE Plymouth Church again had the pleasure of a visit from Sister M. A. Woodward, and listening to two discourses that really seemed to us the "best ever." Good audiences were in attendance both morning and evening, and all were benefitted. Sister W. was not feeling very well, though better than she has been. She reports that Bro. W. is not at all well, and is unable to get out very much of the time. We trust they may both be spared to still do some service for the Master, and that some arrangement will be made to relieve them of the hard work, allowing them to have easier duties as their strength will allow.

An Explanation

Some years ago when our revered and lamented Brother S. A. Chaplin was Editor of THE RESTITUTION, he compiled from time to time what he called "Sententious Paragraphs," and published them in the paper. After the destruction of our office by fire, a quantity of old papers which were partly burned were saved, and since the clippings have been made of numbers of these paragraphs selected by Brother Chaplin, and often in the hurry of closing up our forms it is found that a long article will not fit, and so some items are used as "fillers." It can easily be understood by those who know the esteem in which Brother Chaplin was held, and the confidence the Brotherhood had in him, that but slight attention would be given by us to the doctrines taught by items so used. We would presume them to be "all right."

In our issue of March 18 several such item were used, and one of them was found in the text in John x 16 which reads, "Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also must I bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd."

The comments on this text as contained in that item would lead the reader to conclude that one church is as good as another, that we are all "Christian brothers." That Methodist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, Congregational, Baptist, Episcopalian, even Catholic, are all right. Being sincere in their belief, though now differing somewhat in faith and practice, all were acceptable to God, and should be to us, and so all barriers are removed.

The belief and repeated statements concerning this subject by the managers of this paper should have been so fixed in the minds of our readers, that no doubt would exist as to our position, but lest some suppose we have faced about, and abandoned the faith, we will simply state that we have not.

It so happens that the regular Sunday School lesson for April 5, was taken from John x, and this text was one that the Editor was personally called to explain to a class. He asked them to bear in mind that the lesson subject was "The Good Shepherd" That the Good Shepherd leads his flock to "quiet waters" and "green pastures." That he cares for, guides, directs, controls, protects, gathers, keeps, seeks, saves, is watchful, and thoughtful for, is an example, a savior, a rewarder for his flock. That the Good Shepherd demands from his flock on their part that they listen to his voice, obey his commands, follow his leadership—and no other; be obedient, faithful, thoughtful to do his will; that they be always ready and cheerfully willing to obey his dictates. Bidding the class bear this in mind, look at verse 16, and try to get the meaning.

Jesus' work had been with his own people, Israel. These Jews, as a nation, were rejecting him: plotting to put him to death—which they did not long after. They were as a nation refusing to be sheep of his flock—denying his leadership and guidance. In their rage blaspheming the very God who had sent him. The class was told that God's plan of having a peculiar people, who should do his will, and worship and reverence him, was not to fail simply because these misguided and fanatical Jews would not accept even God's Son, his only begotten Son, whom he had sent to be unto them a "Good Shepherd." As this design of having a worthy people should not come to naught, an invitation was to be given to other people, from among whom a sufficient number would be selected, chosen, taken, who would fill the requirements, meet the demands by faith and obedience—learning and giving heed to the voice of the Good Shepherd, being accepted as members of his flock, following him, and finally being safely sheltered in his fold, where "quiet waters" and "green pastures" abound—where rest and refreshment after the heat and turmoil of the day would be the reward. Looking forward to the time—the glad time when "His sheep" shall be united in one flock, gathered in one fold, with one Shepherd.

This in brief is what we gave to our class, and we most emphatically say we do believe and teach, that it does make a vast difference what we believe, and how we obey, and how we live. We deny that any quantity or quality of "sincerity" alone will suffice. The merely "moral" man has no claims on God's promises for salvation—he is making a big mistake. We claim that God demands, and will have correct faith, correct belief, correct obedience, correct life. These are "essentials," and no counterfeit no matter how near the genuine it may be, will answer him who is the refiner and searcher of hearts.

The following article from the pen of our good Brother Howell will abundantly bear out all we said concerning John x 16, and we thank him for directing our attention to it.

Dear Restitution:

In the "items" printed in THE RESTITUTION of March 18, the following statement appears, "Christ said, 'Other sheep I have which are not of this fold.' There are many churches, many folds, but we all follow the one Divine Shepherd. Once the sectarian walls were built so high that the different churches could not see over them. Then time passed on and they were lowered a little, so that the members of the different churches could throw brickbats at one another. But, thank God, tonight those walls are lowered so that we can reach over them and grasp each other's hands as Christian brothers."

My Christian friends, let us think seriously about this assertion. If the members of the various sects are all brethren, all Christians, notwithstanding their different faiths, then why worry about the "one faith," why bother about the "one baptism," or why be baptized at all, as some sects teach that it is not essential to salvation? If we recognize the various denominations as right, what would such a condition lead to? We would make Paul in error about the one faith, where he said he believed all things written in the law and in the prophets, Acts xxiv 14, because some sects either do not believe these prophecies, or they spiritualize them. We would make Christ wrong when he said, "But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men," Matthew xv 9, because some of the popular churches do this. In fact we would make the Bible contradictory, hence false, and would be all at sea for any divine guide.

We may thank God that such is not the case. If we will investigate, we find that the other sheep that Christ spoke of did not mean members of other churches, but those who will be saved from among the Gentiles. The Gentiles had not been called yet, nor regarded as a people. We find that Jesus says in the same verse, John x 16, "Them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd." The same verse that was quoted from in the item referred to teaches us clearly that all who are saved must come into the one fold, the one Church. I will quote from the second chapter of Paul's letter to the Ephesians, "Wherefore remember that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh..... that at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world; but now in Christ Jesus, ye who were sometimes far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone."

Your brother in search of truth.

PEACE RULING THE HEART.

Peace, one of the fruits of the Spirit must be found in every branch of the great Vine. Paul says "Let the peace of God rule in your hearts." In Prov. iv. 23, we read, "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life." Peace ruling in the heart gives a life that is full of all lovely things. The absence of peace produces a life without beauty uncontrolled, unquiet, undisciplined. To place Christ's peace on the throne of our hearts and let it control our lives, we must live a life of faith; a life of love; a life of prayer; a life of patience; a life of labor; a life of sacrifice; a life of virtue; a life of temperance; a life of humility.

With our hearts under the influence of God's peace, we can sail o'er life's stormy sea without fear of being dashed against the rocks of destruction. The waves of trial and tribulation may beat against our ship, but our heavenly Father whom we have cast our cares and burdens upon will sustain us. He will say to the wave tossed sea, Peace! Be still! and we shall know the blessed calm of God.

IN WHAT DOES A MAN'S LIFE CONSIST?

Dear Bereans:

It has been my intention for some time to write a letter for our Bereau Column in THE RESTITUTION. My strongest personal desire is to follow the example of the noble Bereans who received the Word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, to see if the things taught them be true or not. Acts xvii. 11.

I have found pearls, the value of which, my finite mind can scarcely comprehend. Precious priceless truths have been unfolded and revealed in the effort to know more perfectly the ways of the All-Wise Creator. My hope is founded on the firm rock of Christ, and so is yours, dear sister or brother, if you have grasped higher, holier thoughts than the small temporal things of this present pilgrimage afford.

In Luke xii. 15, Jesus administered a stinging rebuke to the lover of worldly riches, "for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things he possesseth." Even so, earthly treasures are as the chaff of the summer threshing floor, when compared to the life which is more than meat, and the body which is more than raiment. Humanity has been drifting for lo, these many years out upon a broad sea of indifference to the truth as it is revealed by Christ and his apostles. We need but open our eyes and behold the mad rush for gold or other selfish gain. The worldly desires and baser thoughts crowd into smaller and smaller crevices the little sparks of higher and nobler resolve. Often the tiny flame is entirely extinguished, little realizing that at the end of the race these things which have been provided shall be given to another. The treasure will vanish and in the morning of the second resurrection such an one will stand empty handed before the judgment-seat of Christ and his saints. "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself and is not rich toward God." But, you ask: In what does a man's life consist then? "Your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things; but rather seek ye the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you." Luke xii. 31.

Notice closely the word SEEK, which means hunt for, search out, and obey the teachings of the gospel of the kingdom. These words were spoken to the disciples by the Master, but are they not applicable to all of God's people? "To them who by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for glory, honor and immortality, eternal life." Rom. ii. 7. Thus we too, are admonished to seek for the hidden treasures of the world to come and not the short-lived pleasures of sin or the passing comforts of a luxurious environment for a few short years. Lay hold of the incorruptible life by walking in the footsteps of Jesus and his apostles. Build your characters on principles of truth and righteousness. Read Phil. iv. 8, and develop your thoughts along the lines of purity and virtue. Love your fellowmen as Christ did the church and gave himself for it.

May God bless you, one and all, and finally receive you into that haven of light and joy prepared for the faithful.

Yours in Christian love.
VIRGINIA RUTLEDGE.

Dear Bereans:

If we desire a part in the first resurrection, we must set our affections on things above, not on things on the earth. Col iii. 2-4

Paul says, We must not be conformed to this world, but transformed by the renewing of our minds, that we may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God. Rom. xii. 2

Oftentimes we encounter temptations which seem greater than we are able to bear, but we must ever trust in our dear Father, and he will not suffer us to be tempted above our strength, but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that we may be able to bear it. 1 Cor. x. 13.

Again, Paul says, A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good, and an evil man out of the evil treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is evil, for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh.

If our thoughts are pure, then will our actions be pleasing in God's sight, but if our thoughts are corrupt, evil actions are sure to follow. Therefore, let us examine our hearts and cast out the evil; "For to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace," Rom. viii. 6.

Sowing the Seed in Iowa

On the fifth day of March I left my home in Marshalltown and went to Colo, a small town located on the main line of the C. N. W. R. R. in Story Co., Iowa. Reaching my destination in the morning I set out at once through the rain distributing hand bills from house to house, and in other ways advertizing the meeting we were to begin that evening in the Christian church. I was joined in the afternoon by Bro. O. J. Allard, the president of our State Conference, from Ft. Dodge.

In spite of the unpleasant weather, some forty persons ventured out, and listened attentively while I endeavored to impress them with the importance of faith,—the essentiality of believing God's Word unsupported by visible evidence. We remained in Colo until the twenty-first, preaching every night and twice on Sundays "the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ." The attendance was good throughout and the best of attention was manifested at all of the services. On Sunday evening, the fifteenth, brother Allard delivered a most excellent lecture on "Purity" to the young people, which evoked much favorable comment.

The Christian church conducted their regular services each Sunday afternoon, in which we assisted by invitation of the pastor. Having preached nineteen discourses we closed the meeting. No one accepted the gospel, at least not to the point of obedience, but we believe some seed fell in good ground and will eventually bring forth fruit unto life.

Sunday morning, March 22nd, Bro. Allard and I walked six miles south west of Colo to a school house, where I addressed fifty persons on "God's Love Revealed in Nature." Brother Allard followed it in the evening with a sermon entitled "The Importance of a definite Belief." We continued at this place until the night of the fifth of April, delivering in all sixteen discourses. Brother Allard did the most of the preaching here as I was called to Irving to fill my regular appointment and was gone several days.

On the last Sunday of the meeting we held a communion service, after which we reorganized the church, which is known as the Hickory Grove Church of God. Brothers Joseph Fish and J. W. Dickenson were selected as elders, and Sister Flora Fish deaconess. The latter will act as the secretary-treasurer of the church. There has been no organized body of believers here for over fifty years, the church having first been organized in 1862 or 1863, when a number of families emigrated from Indiana and settled in the vicinity of Hickory Grove. The church continued in a prosperous condition, owning their own building, and having regular preaching for a number of years. But in time it became impossible to obtain a regular pastor and the church was permitted to decline, and at last the building was sold.

About two years ago the work was revived by Brother Allard and is again in a flourishing condition. There is a prospect that a new building will soon be erected by this congregation, some money and a site having already been subscribed for the purpose.

Brother Allard and I are now engaged in sowing the seed of the kingdom in the town of Collins, in the southern part of Story County. The outlook now seems bright for a successful meeting.

Yours for the truth that saves.
G. EDMUND MARSH

Reminiscences

In reading the story of a "Happy Christian Life" in THE RESTITUTION especially the part telling of Brethren J. M. Stephenson and J. S. Hatch, my mind goes back to the time of my first recollection of being at "Church." Bro. J. M Stephenson was holding a meeting in our building at Ripley, Ill. The building then stood across the hollow on the other hill. I remember him as a fluent orator and great exhorter, laboring hard to drive home the truths that he so ably presented. I also remember of Bro. Hatch preaching on the types and shadows of the Tabernacle service. He ended his sermon by imploring his audience never to blaspheme God's name by saying they were going into the Holiest of Holies. I think, too, that Ripley has been fortunate in securing men to expound the Word of Life. Following is a list of our preachers that have visited Ripley, as I remember them. Beginning with those already named, we have had brethren: John Foore (Uncle John"), D. M. Huddler, W. L. Crowe, F. L. Austin, C. P. Graham, W. B. Wilson, L. E. Conner, S. J. Lindsay and O. J. Allard. If any have been omitted, it is not purposely, but through forgetfulness. The Church has steadily grown from year to year. The most marked growth, however, has been under the teaching of our beloved Bro. S. J. Lindsay, he having done a great deal of work in Ripley, since taking up the State work. We remember all of the above named brethren with love, and hope to meet them in the kingdom of God.

J. W. COOPER.

Out of the ruins of the native village where the first missionary party camped thirty years ago, there has risen a mission with four European stations, nine native churches, with a communion roll of 1013 communicants, and a "catechumens" roll of 8331 members. Blantyre is now the chief center of trade and commerce in Central Africa, and the residence of a European community numbering over 150. The country is under the protection of the British flag, and the old days of raiding and slavery are over and gone. Peace and security of life and property are assured to the native peoples all over the country. Everywhere the door stands wide open to the messengers of the gospel of peace.—Uganda Notes

It is the every worker that succeeds. No one can do his best, or even do well, in the midst of worry and nagging. Wherefore if you work, work as cheerily as you can. If you do not work, do not put even a straw in the way of others.

"God does not give us light for two steps at a time. Hence the moment we discover that we are on wrong ground, it is our duty to abandon it, and wait on God for further light, which he will most surely give."

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

A Marriage.

This notice is somewhat belated, but doubtless is just as interesting as if sooner.

Our Bro. James C. Thompson of Cleveland, and our sister Ora M. Cole of Salem, Ohio, were married on Saturday March 14, 1908 at the home of Brother and Sister Morron in Salem. The ceremony was performed by the writer in the presence of about 30 guests, relatives and friends of the happy couple. After supper they left for Cleveland where they will make their home.

They left Salem with even more than the hearty well wishes of all present at the wedding, and were happily escorted to the depot by a number of the guests. Bro. Thompson is a faithful member, and useful servant of the Lord in the church in Cleveland. He is the son of brother and sister Thompson who lived in Newburg, Cleveland. Both died a few years ago leaving our brother and his two sisters.

Sister Ora Cole was a valued member of the church in Salem, a sister of our faithful sister Morron.

We realize that our brother Thompson has obtained, in his wife, a helpmeet indeed. They have the well wishes of all who know them. Our prayer on their behalf is, that as they individually made themselves useful in the church, that united they may have still greater power for good.

It may be interesting to some to learn that I was "best man" at the marriage of the groom's parents in Scotland. They came to this country with their baby boy. I came a few years later. The acquaintance was renewed. We, wife and I, learned the truth, we carried it to them, they also obeyed. My wife's brother, H. E. Birchall is married to a sister of Bro. James Thompson.

It is wonderful how, by the ever changing current of events, those born far apart become friends and relatives.

About Grace.

[Sent by Mrs. M. P. A. Crozier.]

There is no such thing as having much of a growth in grace as long as we insist on keeping our hands in our pockets.

The growth of grace is like the polishing of metals. There is first an opaque surface; by and by you see a spark darting out, then a strong light, till at length it sends back a perfect image of the sun that shines upon it.

Dew falls but little upon the smooth and brilliant surface of polished steel or burnished gold, while coarser and less costly objects are freely wet. The gentle dew of the heavenly grace often takes effect upon the rude and uncultivated, while the refined, the tasteful and critical are left, like frost-work, brilliant and beautiful, but cold and dead.

A man never needs the grace of God any more than he does when, by some unusual exploit, he begins to find a good deal of satisfaction in looking at himself.

Love is the fulfilling of the law; faith is the fulfilling of the gospel. These two pipes being rightly laid from a Christian's soul to the fountain of Divine waters, fetch in from them a daily supply of such grace as will certainly end in a fullness of glory.—John Arrowsmith, 1659.

There is not a round in the ladder to heaven which doth not give every one that stepp'eth upon it just occasion of crying "Grace, grace!"—John Arrowsmith.

Instead of grace, say help, succor, a divine influence, a dew of heaven; then one can come to a right understanding. The word grace is a sort of talisman, all the baneful spell of which can be broken by translating it.—Joubert.

Inseparable, Quenchless Love.

"Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or sword?.....Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Rom viii 35-39.

We need what is due us on subscriptions and trust all who know themselves to be in arrears will remember us. We appreciate the favor.

Messiah.

He comes! the great Messiah comes!
Ye soldiers of the cross,
Raise high that blood-stained banner—
For Him count all but loss.

Gird on, gird on faith's armor,
Salvation's helmet too,
For He comes a mighty Conqueror,
Who bled and died for you.

Tell, oh! tell the tidings,
Ye scattered ones and few;
For you He burst the bars of death—
He comes again for you.

He comes! the Prince of Salem!
Let loud hosannas ring;
The world knows not the footsteps,
Of Israel's promised King.

But ye despised and truly loved,
Watching with weary eye,
Lift up your heads rejoicing,
Redemption draweth nigh.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 51.

Hiram V. Reed was born near Utica, New York, November 4, 1836, but while he was yet a child in his seventh year, his father moved the family to Walworth County, Wisconsin, and since then he has lived and worked mostly in the west.

He had little opportunity for schooling in those pioneer days, the little that he had being obtained by walking three miles and a half to a very inferior country school. He grew to manhood, however, with a great hunger for intellectual food, and studied, as did Lincoln, the best he could at night and between the long furrows made by the breaking team.

He went to the meetings of the neighborhood and listened to the doctrine of eternal torment until his soul revolted against the Bible which he supposed taught this theory and against the preachers who preached it. At this time he thought he was a sceptic and his faithful praying mother thought so too. But when in his fifteenth year he met with Walter Lee, a man of considerable intellectual attainments and a believer in conditional immortality, Brother Lee convinced the lad that the Bible did not teach what it was represented as teaching on several points, and then he became an earnest and enthusiastic student of the Scriptures. He carried his little Bible to the fields with him and while the cattle were resting and eating their dinners, he memorized many a chapter which is still familiar to his well stored mind I know of no man who is more intimately acquainted with the Scriptures, for he has been a faithful student of the Book all his life.

When he was sixteen years of age he invited the neighbors to his father's house and gave his first discourse concerning the things of the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, and since that time he has always been ready to give a reason for the hope that is in him.

In the following years he held successful meetings at Steven's Point, Wisconsin, at Wanpaca, and at Farmington about six miles west of Wanpaca, where he baptized a goodly number of new believers and organized a working church as he also did at Palfreyville. He helped to organize the church at Oshkosh after his meetings there and also at Leroy, Dodge County, Wisconsin.

In 1858 he attended conference at Twin Groves, Wisconsin, but only reached there in time to deliver the closing address. He spent three months however in this community sowing the good seed, and last fall, (1907) while holding meetings at Buchanan, Michigan, he met a prominent physician who first heard the "good news" from his lips at this time while the doctor was still in boyhood, but he said he had never forgotten the influence which then obtained over his mind and heart. He also held meetings at Mt. Pleasant, Albany, and other points in that region.

His first public discussion was held at Omro, Wisconsin, in 1857 with a minister by the name of Reynolds. It was arranged to discuss three propositions pertaining to conditional immortality and the debate by especial agreement was to last ten days. But the clergyman was so baffled in his efforts to sustain the theory of natural immortality that he was forced to abandon the discussion on the second day.

Brother Reed's second discussion was held with a Baptist minister by the name of Smith at Grand Rapids, Wisconsin. This debate lasted four evenings and it is said that more than eight hundred people were in attendance. At the conclusion of the fourth evening a vote was taken and more than nine-tenths of the large audience voted that Brother Reed had fairly and Scripturally sustained his proposition, that: "The Scriptures do not Teach the Natural Immortality of Man."

The third discussion was held at Forreston, Illinois, on the same topic with two Methodist clergymen by the name of Ely and Williams. There was much interest in the community during this debate which lasted three days and the results were permanent. All through that region there are still many believers.

The fourth discussion was held at Leroy, Wisconsin, about 1858, with J. C. Crawford, a Universalist minister, on "Conditional Immortality."

While living at Harvard, Illinois, he also held an oral discussion with Dr. Field at an annual meeting at Cicero, Indiana, and later a written discussion, which was published in "The Prophetic Watchman," Subject, "The Restoration of Israel."

From Forreston, he went to Harvard, Illinois, in 1859, where he held a series of meetings and also became acquainted with Miss Elizabeth Armstrong, who became his wife the following year.

During the month of December, 1859, he held a discussion in Astalan, Wisconsin, with a Baptist clergyman by the name of Burr, upon the subject of "Conditional Immortality." This debate was largely attended, but on the third evening Mr. Burr announced that on account of the condition of his health, he would be unable to continue. The friends of truth were very enthusiastic over the results of this effort.

On his return to Harvard he found Brother Lister, from Buchanan, Michigan, who came to secure the services of Dr. John Howell for the purpose of meeting in discussion the ablest debater in the ranks of the Disciple Church. By the especial request of Dr. Howell, H. V. Reed went in his place to attend to the matter. The questions to be discussed were the state of the dead and the nature and location of the Kingdom of God.

Mr. Russell was attended by several of the ablest ministers of the sect he represented, who were there for the purpose of offering any needed suggestions or assistance, and the general opinion was that in view of the great experience of Mr. Russell and the forces connected with him, it was manifestly unfair for our people to select as his opponent, a young man only twenty-three years of age, of slender build, and necessarily of limited experience. Indeed Mr. Russell himself said: "I shall be obliged to wrap that boy up in cotton before I get through with him."

The debate lasted three days and three evenings. It was very largely attended and there was great excitement during its progress. The results were entirely satisfactory to the friends of truth. One paper in giving an account of the controversy said that Brother Reed's wonderful memory of the Scriptures and his happy method of exposing the sophistries of his opponent, his kindly and courteous spirit, together with his eloquent presentation of the Christian Hope, and the glory of Messiah's coming and Kingdom, won for his friends the heartiest congratulations. This was a fair example of the opinions reflected by the local press, and the results of this discussion, which occurred nearly fifty years ago are still well remembered by the survivors among the hearers.

Brother Reed returned to Harvard where he was chosen as the minister to succeed Dr. John Howell who then went East and worked for the Master's cause until he was smitten down by quick consumption. During the twelve years of Brother Reed's active work in Harvard he was enabled to visit several other points and hold a series of meetings.

During this time he dedicated the new church building at Eureka, Wisconsin, and helped raise the nine-hundred dollars needed to pay off the debt. He visited the field of his labors in different parts of Wisconsin, and also held meetings at Woodstock, Illinois, and at Greenwood where he baptized a goodly number and organized a church of believers. He also visited the East and held meetings at Sandy Hill, Seneca Falls, New York, and other points in that state. Also at Aurora and Geneva, Illinois, and other localities not far from home—as Chemung, Dunham, etc.

His work at Harvard attracted so much attention that the sectarians deemed it advisable to have certain questions settled. A clergyman by the name of Varnum Hull was therefore selected to champion the doctrine of eternal suffering for the wicked. This discussion continued for eight evenings, there being in all, thirty-two speeches—sixteen on each side. The debate was reported and published in book form and the entire edition was soon exhausted. The friends of truth were satisfied and an account of this debate is given in Alger's "History of the Doctrine of Future Life" published in Boston by the Unitarian Association.

It was while living in Harvard also that he was called to Dixon, Illinois, to hold a series of meeting. When he went there he and his wife were greeted by Brother J. W. Becker and his noble wife dear, faithful "Aunt Ellen." They had been the friends of his long hood, and stood by his side during his battles for truth at Waukau, Wisconsin, and feeling deeply their isolated condition in Dixon they sent for him hoping he could with God's help, build up a society around them. In this they were not disappointed, there were many large meetings and a deep interest prevailed; he visited the place several times and baptized as many as seventeen at one time. A large and enthusiastic society was brought together here and there is a goodly body of believers still there—some of them being those whom he then baptized. Meetings were also held at Amboy, not far from Dixon at about the same time with good results.

While living in Harvard, Brother Reed became editorially connected with the Millennial Harbinger, then published by Thomas M. Newman at Seneca Falls, New York. This added largely to his work in the way of writing editorials and in the preparation of books and pamphlets.

The Millennial Harbinger was afterward combined with the Gospel Banner, then published at Geneva, Illinois, by Benjamin Wilson, and the two papers were called The Prophetic Watchman, and it was published in Harvard, Brother Reed having been chosen as the editor.

This paper was afterward moved to Chicago where it was published for a time under the management of Thomas Wilson, but later it was moved to Plymouth, Indiana, where it is at published under the name of THE RESTITUTION.

November 17, 1874, Brother Reed was elected editor of the paper by the Christian Publishing Association, and moved his family to Plymouth where he ministered to the church for nearly four years, besides editorial work and holding at times a series of meetings at other points.

It was while living at Plymouth that he was called to Goodland by Brother William Mills, who with his noble wife were living there without the society of any of like precious faith. These meetings were abundantly blessed of the Father and a goodly society of believers was built up, numbers being baptized at one time until about fifty were united under the banner of Christ.

While he was living at Plymouth too, he was called to Argos where a handful of believers were struggling against adverse influences. These meetings were large and enthusiastic, and many were added to the church. But in the Providence of God the spirit of sectarianism in the community was aroused to such an extent that they were forbidden to use the school house for their meetings. This most fortunate occurrence resulted in the building of a comfortable and convenient house of worship and we trust that many whose names were then engrossed in the church records will be found written in the Lamb's Book of Life. Brother Hugh Barnhill was here a cheerful and faithful worker, the rite of baptism was performed by him and his great heart was gladdened by the numbers added to the little society.

At West Irving, Iowa, there was no one of "the Faith" except Brother Levi Marsh, who sent for Brother Reed to help him in his conflict with man-made creeds. Under the Providence of God a goodly society was also built up there. A church was built which Brother Reed dedicated—he also dedicated several others in different parts of the country.

Successful meetings had previously been held at Cedar Rapids and other places in the state.

Soon after the paper was moved to Plymouth dear, faithful Brother S. A. Chaplin became associated with it editorially, and on the return of Brother Reed and his family to Chicago, he became editor-in-chief, November 10, 1877, in which work he continued until September last, 2 years and 6 months before his death. He is sleeping upon his armor awaiting the roll call of God's jewels when he shall come forth radiant in light and life and love.

On his return to Chicago Brother Reed was actively engaged in the promulgation of the truth and he still cherishes as his most precious possession the Blessed Hope of the soon-coming and Kingdom of our Lord.

He has had his full share of losses and crosses and disappointments—has been brought safely through severe and dangerous illnesses often followed by long invalidism, but he is looking anxiously for the consummation of our hope. Still a careful student of events and of Prophecy, he is ever ready and always glad to give a reason for the hope that is in him whether in private conversation or upon the platform.

The above faithful sketch of Brother Reed's life (with the exception of a few changes) was sent me by his devoted wife,—Mrs. Elizabeth A. Reed. We wish to add that Brother Reed is a man of somewhat more than medium height, well-proportioned, fine appearance, of commanding presence in the pulpit, eloquent and flowery in speech, and having the power to fix his thoughts in the memories of his hearers. He has done a great deal for the cause of truth and well deserves a place in the annals of these pioneer workers.

We hope soon to see and greet him among the great host of God's redeemed ones, where there will be no lingering illnesses, no gray hairs, no partings; but where all will be brighter than his most eloquent flight of fancy has ever painted it.

ARETTA WILSON.

(To be Continued.)

Working in Oklahoma.

Have reached Stillwater, Oklahoma. Am to begin meetings this evening, April 4th. This is one of the points where Brother W. H. Wilson held a series of meetings recently which he reported to THE RESTITUTION in his "Notes By the Way," April 1.

The fact that I am on my return trip to Portland, Oregon, will show why I am so nearly on the line of this brother's work.

I stayed at Blackwell a week and had five pleasant little meetings at Sister Chambers' home in that town of four or five thousand people. At that place I received a warm invitation through Sister Rohrback to come to Stillwater and hold some meetings, presumable in the hall that she has fitted up and seated in her house.

I was treated so kindly at Blackwell that my memory will cling to that town and the little company of loved ones that have so much zeal that they want their neighbors to hear of Jesus and his love and his coming, and hope so earnestly that more will learn, believe and obey "the power of God unto salvation."

They did not have to hire either organist or building or choir leader. Sister Chambers did the work or furnished all with her own home, piano, talent, with credit for any locality or any city. A wayfarer is truly thankful for the successful effort of cheer on the way. Whether I can ever pass that way again or not, Blackwell will never be forgotten. If those brethren see the time when they can have a church building they will find that it will give an impetus to the interest and attendance of the public, but without I do not know how they could do better.

At Blackwell I formed the acquaintance of Brother John Wince's nieces—the Misses Waldo. For the interest of their relatives and friends in Indiana, I am glad to commend their zeal. They loved to talk of Uncle John and Aunty Wince and though I have never seen those battle-scared veterans, I felt a speakable acquaintance with them through THE RESTITUTION and now it is more. I will not wait for an introduction if another eastern trip should ever take me as far as Indiana, but will extend the hand of fellowship on sight.

My next work under the providences of the Father who loves us so well will be—as may be yet arranged—any place in Oklahoma, Texas, California or Oregon, as we move hopefully on toward Portland.

W. L. SKEELS.

WE have loaned a copy of Brother J. M. Stephenson's work called "God's Plan of Salvation," and do not remember who has it. We freely lend books that we have to brethren who ask, and several have been out a long time. Please send them in.

The Clay of the Image. Dan ii.

The clay of this image is a constituent part of the image, being mixed with the iron of the last division of the image. The clay is not a mineral like the gold, the silver, the brass, or the iron; but is a species of earth. In poetry and in Scripture, it is earth in general. "I also am formed out of the clay." Job xxxiii 6. When used as a symbol, as it is in the image, we understand it to represent the democracy, as contrasted with royalty; being a component part of earth. "The earth helped the woman." Rev xii 16. In the gold or Babylonian part of the image, there was no mixture of clay with the gold. The monarch commanded, and the democracy obeyed; the clay was plastic in the hand of the potter. A few quotations will suffice to show how the clay or earth is used in the Bible, in a symbolic sense. "The earth also was corrupt before God; and the earth was filled with violence." Gen vi 11.

"And the whole earth was of one language, and of one speech." Gen xi 1. "Give ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth." Deut xxxii 1. Here it is easy to perceive that the rulers and the common people are addressed, as the "heavens and the earth."

"And it shall come to pass in that day, I will hear, saith the Lord, I will hear the heavens, and they shall hear the earth; and the earth shall hear the corn, and the wine, and the oil; and they shall hear Jezreel." Hosea ii 21, 22. Now I think we should be able to understand in what way "the earth helped the woman." Rev xii 16. In the fourth century there was a memorable contest for the supremacy in the Roman heaven. It was Jehovah, against the Jupiter; Michael, against the dragon. Literally, Constantine against Maximin and Licinius. From 303 to 313 A. D. the Christians suffered terrible persecution under Diocletian and Galerius. In A. D. 306 Constantine Chlorus dying in Britain, the army saluted with the title of Augustus, his son Constantius, and forced him to accept the purple. This action of the soldiers was not according to the law, but revolutionary, and Constantine in his victorious march from Britain to Rome, was hailed as the deliverer of the people, and finally adopting the Christian faith, he placed their faith in the Roman heaven. Now we can understand the following Scripture. "And the earth helped the woman; and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth." Let us remember this earth, or clay element is mixed with the iron in the last phase of the image. How true this is to the facts of history. Switzerland is the first nation in which the clay displaced the iron. In France also the clay has triumphed over the iron. In Russia the clay is in deadly conflict with the iron. In Britain and all her colonies, the iron to a large extent tolerates the clay; but there is a continual strife between the two elements of the population. Our country, the United States of America, has a unique history, it being originally constituted of the clay element.

There is one more symbolic text of Scripture I wish to call the attention of the readers of THE RESTITUTION to; it may be called the goal of this short article. "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon." Rev xiii 11. His work is described in the remainder of the chapter. Now brethren, what power is this? He has horns like a lamb, but speaks like a dragon. Does great wonders, makes fire to come from heaven, makes an image to a former beast that had a deadly wound by a sword and lived; compels people to worship the image.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

THE middle of last year the Canadian and United States governments made a new regulation, compelling all publishers to put postage stamps on all papers going across the lines, the same as we have to do with foreign countries. This makes an additional expense of fifty cents on each one of our subscribers in Canada. Other publishers have raised the price of their papers to all their patrons in Canada, and much as we regret to do it we are compelled to do so to. The price to Canadian subscribers is now fixed at Two Dollars a year. However, we do not wish to lose any from our list on this account, and we make this statement, If any one refuses to abide by this action of our governments, we will accept the old price, and pay the extra ourself. This leaves the matter with each individual, and we are confident you will be fair with us always.

To the Household in Texas.

I shall soon be in Texas. If there are others in Texas and Louisiana who desire me to hold meetings in their neighborhood, they can arrange for the same by addressing a letter to my home address immediately. Write to 420 N. Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois, and my family will forward them to me.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

Some Free Reading for You.

Brother William Rennie of New York has issued some pamphlets—The City of Pure Gold, The Atonement, The Atonement continued, and Parables of the Christ. He has sent a quantity of each kind to this office and instructs us to send them free to those who ask for them. The four will cost three cents postage, and the tracts are free.

Announcement.

The Twenty-first Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug 22 to 30. Programme later.

EVA L. STEARNS, Sec.

The Annual Meeting and Conference of the Church of God in Indiana, will be held at Old Antioch, Marshall Co. commencing Friday, June 12, and continuing over the following Sunday. A competent programme committee is appointed to arrange a programme which will be announced in due time. Shall we all commence now to so arrange our business affairs so we may not miss this meeting. Brethren we anticipate a good meeting Come all who can and meet with us Come in the Spirit of the Master, and we shall be blessed.

Remember our Bible School which will begin Monday morning following the close of the Conference. All who can are especially invited to come to the conference and stay with us during this feast of Bible lore. Brother Lindsay and other teachers are expected to be with us.

J. H. WILLEY,
Pres. Ind. Conference.

The 50th Annual Conference of the Church of God in Michigan, will be held in Dallas, beginning Tuesday evening, June 2, as voted at the fall conference. A lecture Tuesday evening, Wednesday and Thursday Bible lessons, with Brother Lindsay, of Oregon, Illinois as teacher.

The Conference meeting proper will open as usual Thursday evening, continuing over the next Sunday, with an hour each afternoon for Bible study.

This is the 50th Annual Conference in Michigan, and arrangements are being made to make this gathering very instructive and beneficial. It is greatly desired that every pioneer in the gospel of the kingdom will make an effort to be present and enjoy the sessions which will be set apart especially for them. If there are any brethren in Ohio, Indiana, or elsewhere who was in or know any thing of the '43 and '44 movement, we especially desire their presence or a paper prepared by them. Who does not wish to be present at this gathering and enjoy this religious feast. Remember friends, we are not making this extra effort because the people of Dutton alone need this spiritual uplift, but for the general good and advancement of Christ's cause, not only in Michigan, but in sister states. To this end we hope there may be a general rally to the standard of truth. We would like to have representatives from every state in the union and Canada. They will be received with a hearty welcome. If there should happen to be so many present that improvised floor beds become a necessity—why, the more the merrier. You will enjoy the good gospel truths better the next morning.

We are expecting F. L. Austin, of Fonthill, Canada, as one of the speakers, and we hope other able brothers and sisters will come, determined to give much good, as well as receive much. The board and lodging will be free.

Brother D. Paine, of Mendon, is the Chairman of Committees; six others to fill different committees to be chosen by him. We trust these committees are hard at work, for there is certainly no time to be lost now in preparation. Will these committees, especially the one to arrange program for meetings, please correspond with me, as it will be necessary to announce it a little later in THE RESTITUTION.
